UNIVERSITY OF BIRMINGHAM.

Chancellor: THE RT. HON. LORD ROBERT CECIL, K.C., M.P.

Vice-Chancellor: SIR GILBERT BARLING, Bart., C.B., C.B.E., F.R.C.S.

Principal: C. GRANT ROBERTSON, M.A., C.V.O.

Vice-Principal: SIR WILLIAM ASHLEY, Ph.D., M.Com.

Dean of the Faculty of Science: PROFESSOR F. W. BURSTALL, M.Sc., M.A.

Dean of the Faculty of Arts: PROFESSOR ERNEST DE SELINCOURT, M.A., D.Litt.

Dean of the Faculty of Medicine: W. P. HASLAM, F.R.C.S.

Dean of the Faculty of Commerce: SIR WILLIAM ASHLEY, Ph.D., M.Com.

The University has fully-staffed Faculties in Science, Arts, Medicine (including Dental Surgery and Public Health), and Commerce, and grants Degrees in all these subjects.

Main subjects in the Faculty of Science are:—Pure and Applied Science; Mining; Metallurgy; Mechanical, Civil, and Electrical Engineering; Mathematics; Geology; Chemistry; Physics; Zoology; Botany; Brewing; with fully-equipped Departments and Laboratories. The Mining Department of the University includes a specially endowed branch for Petroleum Engineering and Research.

In the Faculty of Arts the University has Chairs in all the subjects commonly recognised as humane studies, and it has established Honour Schools in Classics, Mathematics, Philosophy, English, Modern History, the chief Modern Languages, and Music.

The Faculty of Medicine provides a five-year course for men and women students, and works in close connection with the two large general hospitals and the numerous special hospitals in the city. It also includes a School of Dental Surgery, working in close connection with the Dental Hospital.

The course in the Faculty of Commerce is specially designed to equip students with a scientific and practical training for Commerce, Industry, and Business generally. Students in this Faculty have the opportunity of receiving some training in Pure and Applied Science and Engineering practice.

The University grants, under defined conditions, Higher Degrees in the subjects of all its Faculties.

It has recently established a Joint Standing Committee of Council and Senate, to frame a policy of research and to promote and organise Research in the subjects of the Faculties.

There is also an organised Department of Social Study, with a two-years' course of study and a Diploma, for Training in Public and Social Work.

The Department of Education is under a Director, who is Professor of Education, and it has organised Departments for Training in Primary and Secondary Schools. It also has a Master's degree in Education.

The University has a Joint Committee with the Workers' Educational Association for the provision of Higher Education, through Tutorial Classes, Preparatory Classes, and Lectures, to working men and women unable to attend the University in the daytime.

The University has various Scholarships and Prizes, Research and otherwise, awarded annually.

Full information, with Syllabuses, Regulations, &c., as to Courses and facilities for study, research, and entrance, can be obtained from either the Secretary (G. H. Mowley, M.Com.) or the Registrar (J. H. Costain).

NEW BOOK

BY

RUDYARD KIPLING

THE IRISH GUARDS IN THE GREAT WAR

Edited and Compiled from their Diaries and Papers by
RUDYARD KIPLING

With Maps and Plans. 2 Vols. 8vo. 40s. net.

These volumes try to give soberly, and with what truth is possible, the experiences of both Battalions of the Irish Guards from 1914 to 1918. The point of view is the Battalions', and the facts mainly follow the Regimental Diaries, supplemented by the few private letters and documents which such a war made possible.

It will be found, however, that the work is something more than the military record of a famous regiment, for although its first purpose is to give in plain language the from day-to-day experiences of war as encountered by the two battalions, it deals also in a striking way with the incidental and overwhelming labours that fill up men's time between actions. The soldiers have been followed into their camps and billets, their "fatigues" especially are described with care, and their daily life is portrayed in so many aspects that the general reader will gain from these volumes a comprehensive view of what modern warfare means, and will be made to realize how much of it is back and heart-breaking heavy work. On the human and lighter side Mr. Kipling's book will be appreciated, for he has tried to indicate in some measure the characteristics of the Irish, the relations which existed between themselves, their officers, and their priests, and the internal psychology of the Battalions as time went on. He gives tales of individual performances, all hard as well as heroic, and examples of the never-failing Irish humour that carried the men through the worst phases of the war.

PREFACE

IN the present, the sixtieth, issue of the YEAR-BOOK all the sections have been carefully revised, the Mandated Territories have been placed in their proper positions, and the new conditions in Ireland are shown in the two new chapters devoted respectively to Northern Ireland and the Irish Free State (as well as in one of the maps included in this volume). But though there is no longer a United Kingdom in the old sense, certain Irish statistics which relate to the old conditions have been retained for the present under the United Kingdom, from which, of course, they cannot be conveniently separated. As the statistical returns for the two political entities in Ireland increase, it will be possible gradually to replace the old Irish statistics by new ones. A beginning has already been made in this volume. In regard to Turkey, it will hardly be possible to furnish up-to-date information until the Treaty of Peace definitely settles the new Turkish boundaries.

The Introductory Tables contain a number of world surveys, including a comparison of the military and naval strengths of the principal countries, and a statement concerning Mandates; while in the 'Additions and Corrections' will be found important information which came to hand too late for inclusion in the text.

To our numerous friends all over the world we desire to express our very warm thanks for their valued co-operation.

II.—FINANCE AND COMMERCE OF VARIOUS COUNTRIES.

The following statistics relating to the financial and commercial condition of various countries have been put together for convenience of reference, not for the purpose of comparison. Revenue and expenditure, which in some States are raised and expended by local authorities, are in others included in the national accounts. Debt in some countries is incurred for the sake of profitable investment, while in others it is unproductive and burdensome. With respect to trade, the figures in general show the special imports (or those for home consumption) and the special exports (or those of home produce and manufacture). Specie and bullion are generally excluded.

The statistics are for the most part for the calendar year 1922, or the financial year 1922-23, and the various currencies have been converted into sterling at approximately current rates of exchange.

No German Colonies have been assigned to the British Empire. State property in Mandated Territories passes without payment to the Government exercising authority in those territories under Article 120 of the Treaty of Versailles.

XIII.—THE TREATY OF LAUSANNE.

The following is a brief summary of the Treaty of Peace with Turkey presented by the Allied Powers to the Turkish delegates on January 31, 1923:—

I. Frontiers of Turkey.

(a) IN EUROPE.

Turkey in Europe will be bounded on the north by the Bulgarian frontier as laid down by the Treaty of Neuilly, and on the west by the left bank of the Maritza.

Opposite Adrianople, in order to provide access to the main railway, a strip of territory on the right bank of the Maritza, including the bridge and the small branch line, will be ceded to Turkey between the river and Karagach.

A zone of territory to an average depth of 30 km. on each side of the frontier of Turkey in Europe will be demilitarized.

Turkey will renounce all rights and title over all the Islands (except Imbros and Tenedos, which will be given to her subject to the grant of local autonomy). The following Islands will be demilitarized: Samothrace, Imbros, Tenedos, Lemnos, Mytilene, Chios, Samos, and Nijaria.

(b) IN ASIA.

The frontier with Syria will be that already agreed to between France and Turkey.

The frontier with Iraq is to be left to the decision of the Council of the League of Nations.

Turkey will renounce all rights and title over Syria, Palestine, Iraq, the Hejaz, the Arabian Peninsula, Egypt, the Sudan, Lybia, and Cyprus.

II. The Straits.

Absolute freedom of passage and navigation by water and by air in the Dardanelles, the Sea of Marmora, and the Bosphorus.

III. Capitulations.

All capitulations are abolished. The future régime of foreigners in Turkey to be determined by a special convention.

IV. Minorities.

Full protection of life and liberty and freedom of worship for all inhabitants of Turkey without distinction of language, race, or religion; enjoyment by non-Moslem Turkish nationals of the same civil and political rights as Moslems; equality before the law of all the inhabitants of Turkey without distinction of religion; freedom of all non-Moslem minorities to use their own language in their private intercourse or in commerce, as well as regards religion, the Press, and public meetings: Turkish nationals speaking a language other than Turk to use their language orally in the Courts; non-Moslem minorities to possess the same rights as other Turkish nationals to found and maintain charitable, religious, or social institutions and schools, and to be given special facilities as regards public instruction in towns and districts where such minorities reside in considerable numbers: Turkey to take with regard to non-Moslem minorities all measures permitting them to regulate questions of family or personal status according to their usages, such measures to be elaborated later by special Commission¹ composed in equal numbers of representatives of the interested minorities with an arbiter chosen from European jurists by the League of Nations and Turkey in agreement: protection of all churches, synagogues, cemeteries, etc., and facilities for pious foundations and religious and charitable establishments belonging to existing non-Moslem minorities in Turkey: freedom of internal movement and emigration for non-Moslem minorities subject to certain reserves relating to good order.

All the above articles to be regarded by Turkey as fundamental laws of Turkey, and to be placed under the guarantee of the League of Nations by an article similar to that guaranteeing all European Minority Treaties.

The Treaty also regulates certain economic and financial questions, and in particular the Ottoman Public Debt.

XIV.—THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

The League of Nations is an association of States which have pledged themselves, through signing the Covenant (i.e., the constitution of the League) [For the text of the Covenant, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1921, page xxviii], not to go to war before submitting their disputes with each other or States not members of the League to arbitration and a delay of from three to nine months. Furthermore, any State violating this pledge is automatically in a state of outlawry with the other States, which are bound to sever all economic and political relations with the defaulting member. The States members of the League have pledged themselves to co-operate over a wide range of economic, social, humanitarian and labour questions.

The League of Nations formally came into existence on January 10, 1920, through the coming into force at that date of the Treaty of Versailles. The two official languages of the League are English and French. The seat of the League is Geneva, Switzerland.

I. MEMBERSHIP.

The following 52 States are members of the League:—

¹ Signed the treaties concerning protection of national minorities as a condition of their entry into the League.

² The delegation of the Argentine Republic did not attend the second Assembly and withdrew from the first Assembly upon the latter's decision to refer the amendment to Article I of the Covenant proposed by the Argentine, for study by a committee that was to report to the second Assembly. The Argentine Government has not given notice of an intention to leave the League, and appears to regard itself as in a state of suspended or passive membership, to continue until some measure regarded as a satisfactory equivalent to the amendment proposed by the Argentine has been adopted by the League.

Estonia (5+2)	8	Norway	11
France (95+17)	78	Panama	1	Total	944

Belgium, Estonia, France, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Rumania, and Serb-Croat-Slovene State have had their quotas temporarily reduced by the number of units indicated opposite each country, owing to the fact that they were invaded during the war. Poland, however, which was also invaded, voluntarily agreed to raise the quota allotted to it from 15 to 25 units, and so helped to make possible the acceptance of the whole scheme.

V. INTERNATIONAL LABOUR OFFICE.

The Labour Office has organized four International Conferences, as follows:—1919, Washington; 1920, Geneva; 1921, Geneva; 1922, Geneva.

For particulars of results of the first three conferences, as also for full information as to the Labour Office as a whole, see the STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1922 p. xxxviii.

At the fourth conference a recommendation was adopted asking each State Member to communicate to the Office all information available, so far as possible every three months, and within three months of the end of the period to which it refers, concerning emigration, immigration, repatriation and transit of emigrants. It also recommended that the States Members should communicate to the Office within six months of the end of the year to which they refer, the total figures of emigrants and immigrants, showing separately nationals and aliens, and specifying particularly for nationals, and as far as possible for aliens, the sex, age, occupation, nationality, country of last residence and country of proposed residence.

It also recommended that States Members should make agreements with other members providing for the adoption of a uniform definition of the term "emigrant," and the use of a uniform method of recording statistical information with regard to emigration and immigration.

VI. MANDATES.

The African and Pacific possessions and certain territories of the German and Ottoman Empires were ceded by these countries at the end of the war to the Allied and Associated Powers. The latter had inserted an article (Art. 22) in the Covenant of the League according to which the inhabitants of these territories should be put under the tutelage of "advanced nations who by reason of their resources, their experience, or their geographical position, can best undertake this responsibility." These nations should act as mandatories of the League, and exercise their powers on behalf of the League. They should act on the principle that the well-being and development of the peoples under their tutelage formed a "sacred trust of civilisation," and should render the Council an annual report on the territory committed to their charge.

Article 22 furthermore divides the mandated territories into three classes, according to the degree of civilisation of their inhabitants, economic and geographic circumstances, and so forth. Class A is composed of the communities detached from the Ottoman Empire, declared to have "reached a stage of development where their existence as independent nations can be provisionally recognised subject to the rendering of administrative advice and assistance by a Mandatory until such time as they are able to stand alone."

Class B, consisting of the former German colonies in Central and East Africa, should be administered by the Mandatory under conditions which will "guarantee freedom of conscience or religion, subject only to the maintenance of public order and morals, the prohibition of abuses such as the slave trade, the arms traffic and the liquor traffic, and the prevention of the establishment of fortifications or military or naval bases and of military training of the natives for other than police purposes and the defence of territory, and will also secure equal opportunities for the trade and commerce of other members of the League."

Class C (German South-West Africa and Pacific Islands possessions) is composed of territories which "can best be administered under the laws of the Mandatory as integral portions of its territory, subject to the safeguards above mentioned in the interests of the indigenous population."

The Supreme Council, as the organ of the Allied and Associated Powers, drew up the terms of and allocated the mandates for the territories ceded by Germany and Turkey, subject to the approval of the Council of the League. The mandates and mandatory powers, as determined by the Supreme Council, are:—

A Mandates.—Mesopotamia (now the Kingdom of Iraq) and Palestine, attributed to Great Britain. Syria (including Lebanon), attributed to France.

B Mandates.—Togoland and Cameroons, attributed to France.

The North-Western portion of former German East Africa, attributed to Belgium.

The remainder of former German East Africa (now Tanganyika Colony), attributed to Great Britain.

C Mandates.—Former German South Pacific possessions (except Nauru and Samoa) attributed to Australia.

Samoa, attributed to New Zealand, and Nauru, attributed to the British Empire and administered by Australia, New Zealand, and Great Britain.

Former German North Pacific possessions (Yap, etc.), attributed to Japan.

Former German South-West Africa, attributed to the Union of South Africa.

PALESTINE.

Constitution (p. 193).—On September 1, 1922, a new constitution was promulgated to replace the existing arrangements. It provides for the appointment of a High Commissioner and Commander-in-Chief and an Executive Council.

A Legislative Council will replace the Advisory Council and will have authority to pass such Ordinances as may be necessary for the peace, order, and good government of Palestine, provided (1) that no Ordinance shall restrict complete freedom of conscience and the free exercise of all forms of worship, save in so far as is required for the maintenance of public order and morals, or shall tend to discriminate in any way between the inhabitants of Palestine on the ground of race, religion, or language; (2) that no Ordinance shall take effect until either the High Commissioner or His Majesty has assented thereto; (3) that the High Commissioner may reserve any Ordinance for the signification of His Majesty's pleasure, and shall so reserve any Ordinance which concerns matters dealt with specifically by the provisions of the Mandate; and (4) that His Majesty may disallow any Ordinance to which the High Commissioner may have assented within one year of the date of the High Commissioner's assent.

The Legislative Council will consist, in addition to the High Commissioner, of 22 members, of whom 10 will be official members and 12 unofficial members. All the unofficial members will be elected, not less than two being Christians, and two Jews. The elected members will be chosen by primary and secondary elections. Every male Palestinian citizen over 25 years of age is entitled to vote at the primary election, unless he has lost his civil rights or claims to be a foreign subject, or under foreign protection, or is otherwise disqualified. The number of secondary electors to be elected in each electoral area is determined on the basis that every 200 primary electors will elect one secondary elector. If any village or quarter has between 150 and 200 primary electors, it is entitled to vote for one secondary elector; if it has between 350 and 400 primary electors, it is entitled to vote for two secondary electors, and so on.

Any person may be elected as a secondary elector provided he is on the register of primary electors for the district.

The secondary electors will be formed into twelve electoral colleges according to the religious community to which they belong; subject to the minimum representation stated above, the numbers of colleges to be allotted to each religious community will be proportionate to the number of secondary electors belonging to the several communities; and each electoral college elects one member of the Council.

Special provision is made for the government of territories comprised in the Mandated territory to the east of the Jordan and the Dead Sea, to which certain Articles of the Mandate have been declared by the Council of the League of Nations to be inapplicable. A local Arab Administration has been formed under His Highness the Emir Abdullah Ibn Hussein, G.B.E. (son of King Hussein of the Hejaz and brother of King Faisal of Iraq) assisted by a staff of Arab advisers. The High Commissioner for Palestine is represented in Transjordan by H. St. John B. Philby, C.I.E., I.C.S. The official language is Arabic.

The eastern and southern boundaries of Transjordan are yet to be defined.

PART THE FIRST

THE BRITISH EMPIRE

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

The British Empire consists of:—

- I. GREAT BRITAIN AND NORTHERN IRELAND,¹ CHANNEL ISLANDS, AND ISLE OF MAN.
- II. THE IRISH FREE STATE,¹ INDIA, THE DOMINIONS, COLONIES, PROTECTORATES, AND DEPENDENCIES.

Reigning King and Emperor.

George V., born June 3, 1865, son of King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra, eldest daughter of King Christian IX., of Denmark; married July 6, 1893, to Victoria Mary, born May 26, 1867, daughter of the late Duke of Teck; succeeded to the crown on the death of his father, May 6, 1910.

Living Children of the King.

- I. Edward Albert, Prince of Wales, Duke of Cornwall, Duke of Rothesay, Heir apparent, born June 23, 1894.
- II. Prince Albert Frederick, Duke of York, born December 14, 1895.
- III. Princess Victoria Alexandra Alice Mary, born April 25, 1897; married Viscount Lascelles, K.G., D.S.O., February 28, 1922. Offspring:—George Henry Hubert, February 7, 1923.
- IV. Prince Henry William, born March 31, 1900.
- V. Prince George Edward, born December 20, 1902.

Living Sisters of the King.

Ramsay, D.S.O., R.N.

¹ Ireland remains the geographical description of the island, but politically it has been divided into the two divisions of 'Irish Free State' and 'Northern Ireland.' The former has the status in the British Commonwealth of nations co-equal with the other self-governing Dominions and India. The latter has been granted local self-government for certain purposes, but for other purposes remains under the control of the Imperial Parliament and Government, and continues to send representatives to the Parliament at Westminster, though in reduced number. (See the separate sections on 'Northern Ireland' and 'Irish Free State'.)

IV. Princess Beatrice, born April 14, 1857; married July 23, 1885, to Prince Henry (died January 20, 1896), third son of Prince Alexander of Hesse. Living offspring:—(1) Alexander Albert, born Nov. 23, 1886, married Lady Iren. Denison; (2) Victoria Eugénie, born Oct. 24, 1887; married May 31, 1906, to Alfonso XIII., King of Spain.

The King's legal title rests on the statute of 12 and 13 Will. III. c. 3, by which the succession to the Crown of Great Britain and Ireland was settled on the Princess Sophia of Hanover and the 'heirs of her body being Protestants.' By proclamation of May 9, 1910, under the Royal Titles Act, 1901, the title of the King is declared to be 'George V., by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India.' By proclamation of July 17, 1917, the Royal family became known as the House and Family of Windsor.

By Letters Patent of November 30, 1917, the titles of Royal Highness and Prince or Princess are (except for existing titles) to be restricted to the Sovereign's children, the children of the Sovereign's sons, and the eldest living son of the eldest son of the Prince of Wales.

The Regency Act, 1910 (10 Edw. VII. and 1 Geo. V., ch. 26) appointed Queen Mary to act as regent in the event of the demise of the King and his succession by any of his children under the age of 18 years.

Provision is made for the support of the Royal household by the settlement of the Civil List soon after the commencement of each reign. (For historical details, see YEAR-BOOK for 1908, p. 5.) By Act of 10 Ed. VII. and 1 Geo. V. c. 28 (August 3, 1910), the Civil List of the King, after the usual surrender of hereditary revenues, is fixed at 470,000*l.*, of which 110,000*l.* is appropriated to the privy purse of the King and Queen, 125,800*l.* for salaries of the Royal household and retired allowances, 193,000*l.* for household expenses, 20,000*l.* for works, 13,200*l.* for alms and bounty, and 8,000*l.* remains unappropriated. The same Civil List Act of 1910 also provides for an annuity of 70,000*l.* to Queen Mary in the event of her surviving the King. Should the Prince of Wales marry, the Princess of Wales will receive an annuity of 10,000*l.*, and should she survive the Prince of Wales, this annuity will be raised to one of 30,000*l.* Further, there is to be paid to trustees for the benefit of the King's children (other than the Duke of Cornwall) an annual sum of 10,000*l.* in respect of each son (other than the Duke of Cornwall) who attains the age of 21 years, and a further annual sum of 15,000*l.* in respect of each such son who marries, and an annuity of 6,000*l.* in respect of each daughter who attains the age of 21 or marries. The First Commissioner of the Treasury, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the Keeper of the King's Privy Purse are appointed the Royal Trustees under this Act. Queen Alexandra, the Queen-Mother, receives the annuity of 70,000*l.* provided by the Civil List Act of 1901. Civil List pensions may be granted, but are not chargeable on the sum paid for the Civil List. All these payments are charged on the Consolidated Fund, into which the surrendered hereditary revenues are carried. The King has paid to him the revenues of the Duchy of Lancaster, the payments made therefrom in 1920 being 43,000*l.* for His Majesty's use.

On the Consolidated Fund are charged likewise the following sums allowed to members of the royal family:—25,000*l.* a year to the Duke of Connaught; 6,000*l.* to H.R.H. Helena Augusta Victoria (Princess Christian); 6,000*l.* to Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll; 6,000*l.* to H.R.H. Beatrice Mary Victoria Frederic; and 6,000*l.* to each of the late King's daughters.

The Heir Apparent has an income from the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall, the payment in 1921 on his account being 33,736*l.*

GREAT BRITAIN AND NORTHERN IRELAND.²

Constitution and Government.

I. IMPERIAL AND CENTRAL.

* The supreme legislative power of the British Empire is vested in Parliament. Parliament is summoned by the writ of the sovereign issued out of Chancery, by advice of the Privy Council, at least twenty days previous to its assembling.

The annual session used to extend from the middle of February to about the middle of August, and only occasionally later, but since 1914 the sittings of Parliament have been interrupted only by comparatively short intervals. Every session must end with a prorogation, and all Bills which have not been passed during the session then lapse. A dissolution may occur by the will of the sovereign, or, as is most usual, during the recess, by proclamation, or finally by lapse of time, the statutory limit of the duration of any Parliament being five years.

Under the Parliament Act, 1911 (1 and 2 Geo. V, ch. 13), all Money Bills (so certified by the Speaker of the House of Commons), if not passed by the House of Lords without amendment, may become law without their concurrence on the royal assent being signified. Public Bills, other than Money Bills or a Bill extending the maximum duration of Parliament, if passed by the House of Commons in three successive sessions, whether of the same Parliament or not, and rejected each time, or not passed, by the House of Lords, may become law without their concurrence on the royal assent being signified, provided that two years have elapsed between the second reading in the first session of the House of Commons, and the third reading in the third session. All Bills coming under this Act must reach the House of Lords at least one month before the end of the session. Finally, the Parliament Act limited the maximum duration of Parliament to five years.

• The present form of Parliament, as divided into two Houses of Legislature, the Lords and the Commons, dates from the middle of the fourteenth century.

• The House of Lords consists of peers who hold their seats—(i) by hereditary right, (ii) by creation of the sovereign; (iii) by virtue of office—Law Lords, and English archbishops (2) and bishops (24); (iv) by election for life—Irish peers (28); (v) by election for duration of Parliament—Scottish peers (16). The full house would consist of about 740 members, but the voting strength (in January 1923) was about 720.

The House of Commons consists of members representing County, Borough, and University constituencies. No one under 21 years of age can be a member of Parliament. Clergymen of the Church of England, ministers of the Church of Scotland, and Roman Catholic clergymen are disqualified from sitting as members: Government contractors, and sheriffs, and returning officers for the localities for which they act, are also among those disqualified. No English or Scottish peer can be elected to the House of Commons, but non-representative Irish peers are eligible. Under the Parliament (Qualification of Women) Act, 1918, women are also eligible, and the first woman member took her seat in December, 1919.

In August, 1911, by resolution of the House of Commons, provision was first made for the payment of a salary of 400*l.* per year to members, other than those already in receipt of salaries as officers of the House, as Ministers, or as officers of His Majesty's Household. Payment began as from April 1, 1911. This provision does not extend to the House of Lords.

Under the Representation of the People Act, 1918, the franchise was revised and extended, several million women and new male voters being enfranchised. Male electors must be of full age (twenty-one years), and have resided, or occupied business premises of an annual value of not less than ten pounds, in the same parliamentary borough or county, or one contiguous thereto, for six months ending on January 15 or July 15 (in Northern Ireland the latter date alone applies). A woman voter must be thirty years of age, and entitled to be registered as a local government elector (or, as regards Scotland, deemed to be so registered) in respect of the occupation of premises of a yearly value of not less than five pounds, or of a dwelling house; or she must be the wife of a husband entitled to be so registered; lodgers in unfurnished, but not furnished, rooms can vote, if otherwise qualified. There is also a University franchise, to be qualified for which a man must be twenty-one years of age, and a woman thirty years, and each must have taken a degree, or, in the case of a woman, have fulfilled the conditions which would entitle a man to a degree. In Scotland and Northern Ireland other scholastic attainments are admitted as qualifications. Male persons who served in the war are entitled to be registered at the age of nineteen years, if otherwise qualified.

No person may vote at a general election for more than two constituencies, for one of which, in the case of a man, there must be a residence qualification, and, in the case of a woman, a local government qualification, her own or her husband's. The second vote must rest on a different qualification.

Disqualified for registration are (among others) infants, peers, idiots and lunatics, aliens, bankrupts; and, for five years after the war, conscientious objectors who have not fulfilled certain conditions as to the performance of war work or other work of national importance. Receipt of poor relief or other alms does not count as a disqualification.

Two registers of electors must be prepared each year, one in the spring, and the other in the autumn, except in Ireland, where only one is required; and the authorised expenses are met by local and State funds in equal parts. University registers may be made up as the governing bodies decide, and a registration fee not exceeding 1*l.* may be charged.

In university constituencies returning two or more members the elections must be according to the principle of proportional representation, each elector having one transferable vote. At a general election all polls must be held on the same day, except in the case of Orkney and Shetland, and of university elections. Provision is made for absent electors to vote, in certain cases by proxy.

Under the same Act the seats in Great Britain were redistributed on the basis of one member of the House of Commons for every 70,000 of the population. By a separate Act, redistribution in Ireland was made on the basis of one for every 43,000 of the population. The total membership of the House of Commons was thereby raised from 670 (as established in 1885) to 707. In 1922 the number was reduced to 615 (including 18 from Northern Ireland), owing to the establishment of separate parliaments in Ireland.

The number of persons qualified for registration as parliamentary electors under the Representation of the People Act, 1918, was in 1920 about 21,776,000 (nearly one-half of the population). Women numbered 8,856,000. Prior to this Act the number qualified was about 8,350,000 (all males).

The following is a table of the duration of Parliaments called since the accession of Queen Victoria (for heads of the Administrations see p. 9).—

The executive government is vested nominally in the Crown, but practically in a committee of Ministers, called the Cabinet, whose existence is dependent on the support of a majority in the House of Commons.

The Cabinet, prior to December, 1916, consisted of the political chiefs of the principal Government Departments, and exceeded twenty in number. With the formation of Mr. Lloyd George's Government at that date, the Cabinet was reduced to about six in number. This Cabinet became known as the 'War Cabinet,' and, as occasion required, was expanded into an 'Imperial War Cabinet' by the inclusion of the Prime Ministers, and other representative ministers, of the various parts of the Empire. The constitution of the 'Imperial War Cabinet' in 1917 may be taken as a formal recognition of the equality of status between the various responsible governments of the Empire. Continuity in the work of this Cabinet was secured by giving in July, 1918, the Prime Minister of each Dominion the right to nominate a Cabinet Minister, either as a resident or a visitor in London, to represent him at the meetings of the Cabinet held between the plenary sessions. A meeting of Prime Ministers was held in 1921, and dealt with many problems of common interest.

In June, 1918, a 'Standing Committee of Home Affairs' was formed from among the political heads of Departments, whose function was to consider questions of internal policy and such domestic questions as required the co-operation of more than one Department, or were of such importance that they would otherwise have called for the consideration of the War Cabinet. Its decisions were circulated to, and, when necessary, revised by the War Cabinet.

In October, 1919, the 'War Cabinet' and the Home Affairs Committee were dissolved, and a full Cabinet of about twenty members re-constituted. The present Cabinet, appointed in October and November 1922, consists of only sixteen members.

The head of the Ministry is the Prime Minister, a position first constitutionally recognised, and special precedence accorded to the holder, in 1905. No salary is attached to the office of Prime Minister, as such, and it is usually held in conjunction with some other high office of State, generally that of First Lord of the Treasury. His colleagues in the Ministry are appointed on his recommendation, and he dispenses the greater portion of the patronage of the Crown.

The present Government (appointed October—November, 1922) consists of the following members:

(a) THE CABINET.

1. Prime Minister, First Lord of the Treasury, and Leader of the House of Commons.—Right Hon. A. Bonar Law, born 1858. Colonial Secretary, 1915-16; Chancellor of Exchequer and Leader of House of Commons, 1916-18; Lord Privy Seal and Leader in Commons, 1919-21. Present appointment, October, 1922.

¹ The Ministry of Health was established for England and Wales in June, 1919, under the Ministry of Health Act, 1919, and replaced or absorbed the Local Government Board and the National Health Insurance Commissions. As regards Wales, a number of the powers and duties of the Ministry are exercised through a Welsh Board of Health. In Ireland, the Chief Secretary became Minister of Health, to act with the advice and assistance of an 'Irish Public Health Council.' Northern Ireland and the Irish Free State now have their own Departments. A corresponding Board of Health was established in Scotland in June, 1919, under the Scottish Board of Health Act, 1919.

² The Board was converted into a Ministry under the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries Act, 1919. The Ministry covers only England and Wales.

II. LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

England and Wales.—In each county the Crown is represented by H.M. Lieutenant for the county, who is generally also custos rotulorum, or keeper of the records. The recommendation of persons for appointment by the Lord Chancellor as justices of the peace rests with the Lieutenants, but local advisory committees are set up, as and when required, to advise the Lieutenants and the Lord Chancellor on these appointments. The Lieutenants are the presidents of the County Associations formed under the Territorial and Reserve Forces Act, 1907, and their duties as such relate to the organisation, equipping and maintenance of the Territorial Forces. Otherwise their duties are almost nominal. There is also a sheriff, who represents the executive of the Crown, an under-sheriff, a clerk of the peace, coroners, who are appointed and paid by the County Councils, and other officers. The licensing of persons to sell intoxicating liquors, and the administration of the criminal law—except that which deals with some of the graver offences—are in the hands of the magistrates.

For the purposes of local government England and Wales are divided into sixty-two administrative counties, including the county of London, differing in area from the old geographical counties, which, except for historical purposes, do not now exist. The new counties are administered by the justices and by a popularly-elected Council, called a County Council, who co-opt a prescribed number of aldermen, either from their own body or from outside it. Aldermen are elected for six years, half of them retiring every third year. A councillor is elected for three years. Women are eligible. The jurisdiction of the County Councils includes all the administrative work formerly performed by the justices and many new powers conferred by recent Acts of Parliament, the principal items being the making of county and police rates; levying of duties on licences for carriages and motor cars, armorial bearings, guns, dogs, killing and dealing in game; borrowing of money; licensing of houses for music and dancing, and of racecourses; maintenance and management of pauper lunatic asylums; maintenance of reformatory and industrial schools; management of bridges and main roads; regulation of fees of inspectors, analysts, and other officers; coroner's salary, fees, and district; Parliamentary polling districts and registration; contagious disease of animals; allotments, weights and measures, sale of food and drugs. Under Acts of 1902, 1903, and 1918 the County Councils are also the local education authorities, and other recent acts have in minor matters extended their jurisdiction. The control of the county police is vested in a standing joint committee composed of an equal number of magistrates and members of the County Council. The London Metropolitan police are, however, under the control of the Home Secretary.

The administrative counties with the exception of the County of London, are subdivided into 'County Districts' which are either 'Urban' or 'Rural,' as the case may be. Generally speaking, an urban district comprises a town or a small area more or less densely populated, and a rural district takes in several country parishes. Women may be elected to these District Councils. The District Councils administer the Public Health and Highway Acts, and also exercise powers under the Housing Acts. Urban District Councils may also take over main roads from the County Councils; provide burial grounds, allotments, baths and washhouses, libraries, open spaces, museums, isolation hospitals, &c.; exercise powers under Provisional Orders or Private Acts for gasworks, tramways, electric light and power works, &c. Any urban district with 20,000 inhabitants may also be a local education authority. The Rural District Councils may also provide allotments, cemeteries, &c.; make arrangements for an adequate water supply; and exercise any 'Urban powers' conferred on them by the Local Government Board, now the Ministry of Health.

In every civil parish in a 'rural district' there is a Parish Meeting, at which every parochial elector may attend and vote. In such parishes of over 300 inhabitants there is in addition a Parish Council. Women are eligible for election. Parishes of less than 300 inhabitants may have Parish Councils if authorised by the County Council. To these Parish Councils have been transferred all the civil powers of the old Vestries, including the election of overseers, and in addition very considerable powers over charities, allotments, and other public matters. Where there is no Parish Council some of these powers, including the appointment of the overseers, are exercised by the Parish Meeting. Urban District Councils can, by petitioning the Ministry of Health—which is the supreme Local Government authority—obtain part or all of the powers of a Parish Council. Only Parish Meetings may have power to adopt the Public Libraries Acts, the Baths and Washhouses Acts, the Lighting and Watching Acts, the Burials Acts, and the Public Improvements Acts.

The main central authority in London, the capital of the Empire, is the County Council, created by the Local Government Act of 1888. It has considerable powers in regard to public health, housing, bridges and ferries, asylums, street improvements, parks, main drainage, fire brigade, sanitary control, education, and numerous other matters. It is also the tramway authority for the county. The City Corporation have powers respecting sanitation, police, bridges, justice, &c., in the City of London. London comprises the ancient city with an area of one square mile, and an area of 118 square miles beyond the city, which is divided into 28 metropolitan boroughs, under the London Government Act, 1899, each with a mayor, aldermen, and councillors (women are eligible). The Councils have powers in regard to public health, highways, rating, housing, education, &c., but they are not boroughs in the statutory sense as in the rest of the Kingdom. The County Council has certain powers of control over them. It sanctions loans, approves the construction of sewers and the carrying out of local improvements, and has considerable public health duties in connection with the boroughs.

In all the great towns, local business is administered by a municipal Corporation, which derives its authority from charters granted by the Crown, as modified by the Great Municipal Corporations Act of 1867, and the Act of 1882. There are three kinds of boroughs, county boroughs, quarter session boroughs, and small boroughs of special and generally ancient jurisdiction. The County Boroughs are outside the jurisdiction of the County Councils, but in other Municipal Boroughs these Councils have certain powers and duties. A municipal Corporation consists of the mayor, aldermen, and burgesses, and acts through a Council elected by the burgesses—practically by the ratepayers. The councillors serve for three years (women are eligible), one-third retiring annually; the aldermen are elected by the Council, and the mayor, who serves for one year, also by the Council. A municipal Corporation has practically all the powers of an urban district council, and in some cases municipal boroughs have a separate commission of the peace and maintain their own police force. As to Poor Law and Education administration, see 'Pauperism' and 'Instruction.'

Scotland.—By the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1894, a Local Government Board for Scotland was constituted. It consists of the Secretary for Scotland as President, the Solicitor-General of Scotland, the Under-Secretary for Scotland, and three other members nominated by the Crown. The Local Government Act which was passed for Scotland in 1889 followed in its main outlines the English Act of the previous year. The powers of local administration in counties formerly exercised by the Commissioners of Supply and Road Trustees were either wholly or in part transferred to the new Councils, which took over their duties and responsibilities in 1890. The Act of 1894 provided that a Parish Council should be established in every parish to take the place of the Parochial Boards and to exercise powers similar to those of the Parish Councils in England. Municipal bodies exist in the towns of Scotland, as in those of England, with bailies and provosts instead of aldermen and mayors. There are in Scotland five kinds of burghs—(1) Burghs of barony; (2) Burghs of regality (no practical distinction between these two); the councils of these two classes of burghs ceased to exist in 1893 by statutory enactment; (3) Royal Burghs, representatives of which meet together annually in a collective corporate character, as the Convention of Royal Burghs, for the transaction of business; (4) Parliamentary Burghs, which possess statutory constitutions almost identical with those of the Royal Burghs; (5) Police Burghs, constituted under general or local Police Acts, in which the local authority is the Police Commissioners. These two latter burghs, by Acts passed in 1879 and 1895, are enabled to send representatives to the convention.

2. Emigration and Immigration.

In the thirty-eight years 1815-1852, the total number of emigrants from the United Kingdom was 3,463,592. Up to 1852 the emigration returns made no distinction between British subjects and foreigners. From 1853 to 1921 inclusive, the number of passengers of British origin, to places out of Europe, was 14,410,000; and the number of foreigners, to such places, was 5,990,000, total, 20,400,000. Figures of the passenger traffic to and from non-European countries in recent years are given as follows:—

The destinations of British subjects leaving the United Kingdom for non-European countries in 1921 were mainly the United States (67,499), British North America (84,145), Australia (34,766), New Zealand (41,367), British South Africa (28,138), India and Ceylon (16,425). The bulk of the aliens travelled to the United States (82,444 in 1921).

The passenger movement between the United Kingdom and European countries (including all ports in the Mediterranean and Black Seas) in recent years is given as follows:—

The total number of Irish who emigrated from Ireland from May 1, 1851, to the end of 1920, was 4,338,199.

Religion.

1. England and Wales.

The Established Church of England is Protestant Episcopal. Civil disabilities on account of religion do not attach to any class of British subjects. Under the Welsh Church Acts, 1914 and 1919, the Church in Wales and Monmouthshire was disestablished as from March 31 1920, and Wales was formed into a separate Archbishopric. Property belonging to the Church in Wales, and a sum of 1,000,000*l.* provided by Parliament, have been assigned to a temporary body not exceeding three persons, called the Welsh Commissioners, for distribution to a body representing the Church (called the Representative Body), and to certain other authorities including the University of Wales.

The King is by law the supreme governor of the Church in England, possessing the right, regulated by statute, to nominate to the vacant archbishoprics and bishoprics. The King, and the First Lord of the Treasury in his name, also appoint to such deaneries, prebendaries, and canonries as are in the gift of the Crown, while a large number of livings and also some canonries are in the gift of the Lord Chancellor.

There are 3 archbishops (at the head of the three 'provinces' of Canterbury, York and Wales) and 43 bishops, and 36 suffragan and assistant bishops in England and Wales. Each archbishop has also his own particular diocese, wherein he exercises episcopal, as in his province he exercises archiepiscopal jurisdiction. Under the bishops are about 30 deans and 100 archdeacons. Under the Church of England Assembly (Powers) Act, 1919, there is a National Assembly, called 'the Church Assembly,' in England, consisting of a House of Bishops, a House of Clergy, and a House of Laymen, which has power to legislate regarding Church matters. The first two Houses consist of the Convocations of Canterbury and York, which in turn consist of the bishops (forming an Upper House), archdeacons, and deans, and a certain number of proctors, as the representatives of the inferior clergy (forming the Lower House). The House of Laymen is elected by the lay members of the Diocesan Conference. Parochial affairs are managed by a Parochial Church Meeting and Church Council. Every measure passed by the Church Assembly must be submitted to an Ecclesiastical Committee, consisting of fifteen members of the House of Lords nominated by the Lord Chancellor, and fifteen members of the House of Commons nominated by the Speaker. This Committee reports on each measure to Parliament, and the measure becomes law if each House of Parliament passes a resolution to that effect.

The number of civil parishes (districts for which a separate poor rate is or can be made) at the census of 1911 was 14,614. These, however, in most cases, do not coincide with ecclesiastical parishes, which have lost their old importance. Of such parishes there were (1911) 14,387, inclusive of the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands. Each parish has its church, presided over by an incumbent or minister, who must be in priest's orders, and who is known as rector, vicar, or perpetual curate, according to his relation to the temporalities of his parish. Private persons possess the right of presentation to about 9,500 benefices; the patronage of the others belongs mainly to the King, the bishops and cathedrals, the Lord Chancellor, and the universities of Oxford and Cambridge. In 1922 there were about 13,500 beneficed clergy, and

Of 33,998 churches and chapels registered for the solemnisation of marriage at the end of 1920, 16,140 belonged to the Established Church and 17,858 to other religious denominations. Of the marriages celebrated in 1919, 59·7 per cent. were in the Established Church, 5·2 per cent. in the Roman Catholic Church, 11·5 per cent. were Nonconformist marriages, 0·04 per cent. were Quaker marriages, 0·5 per cent. Jewish, and 23·1 per cent. civil marriages in Registrar's Office.

The Unitarians have about 350 places of worship, the Catholic Apostolic Church about 80, the New Jerusalem Church about 75. The Salvation Army, a religious body with a semi-military organisation, carries on both spiritual and social work at home and abroad, and had (December, 1921) about 27,400 officers and emloyes, 13,000 corps and outposts, and 80,000 local officers; their places of worship in the United Kingdom have about 550,000 sittings. There are about 300,000 Jews in the United Kingdom with about 200 synagogues.

Roman Catholics in England and Wales are estimated at 1,930,000. There are (1922) four archbishops of whom one is a cardinal, thirteen bishops, and one archbishop and three bishops auxiliary; about 3,950 priests (not all officiating); and over 1,900 churches, chapels, and stations.

2. Scotland.

The Church of Scotland (established in 1560 and confirmed in 1688) is presbyterian, the ministers all being of equal rank. There is in each parish a kirk session, consisting of the minister, and of several laymen called elders. There are 84 presbyteries (formed by groups of parishes), meeting frequently throughout the year, and these are grouped in 16 synods, which meet half-yearly and can be appealed to against the decisions of the presbyteries. The supreme court is the General Assembly, which consists of over 750 members, partly clerical and partly lay, chosen by the different presbyteries, with a few representatives from royal burghs and universities. It meets annually in May (under the presidency of a Moderator appointed by the Assembly the Sovereign being represented by a nobleman known as Lord High Commissioner), and sits for ten days. Any matters not decided during this period may be left to a Commission.

The number of parishes is 1,463 and the number of churches, chapels, and stations about 1,700. Under regulations enacted by the General Assembly, the parishioners choose their own ministers. The entire endowments of the Church from all sources, including manse and glebes, amount to about 410,000*l.* per annum. The voluntary contributions of the congregations for religious and charitable purposes in 1921 amounted to 790,000*l.* The number of communicants in 1921 was about 746,000; ministers, about 1,800; lay missionaries, 105; Sunday scholars, 190,000; attending Bible classes, 56,000.

On October 31, 1900, the Free Church of Scotland and the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland (formed by secessions at various times from the Church of Scotland) constituted themselves into the United Free Church of Scotland. A minority, representing 26 congregations, regarding themselves as the Free Church of Scotland, claimed all the property and endowment funds. A Royal Commission reported that the Free Church was unable adequately to carry out all the trusts of the property. The Churches (Scotland) Act, 1905, was passed for the apportionment of the church property between the Free and the United Free churches by an Executive Commission of five, and the result was that funds amounting to 459,469*l.* were allocated to the Free Church (310,000*l.* for general provision and the remainder for College provision and various other purposes). The United Church's foreign mission was extended in 1918 to the oversight of the Basel Mission (formerly under German domination) in the Gold Coast. The foreign mission agents (including natives) exceed 5,000, and income 450,000*l.* The United Church had, on December 31, 1921, 1,482 congregations, and 42 preaching stations; 530,000 members, besides adherents; 2,038 Sunday schools, with 22,900 teachers and 198,000 children in attendance. The Church courts are the General Assembly, 12 synods, 64 presbyteries, and 2 continental presbyteries. Revenue in 1920-21 was about 1,460,000*l.* The Church has three theological colleges (at Edinburgh, Glasgow and Aberdeen) with 19 professors and lecturers. The Free Church had in 1921, 176 congregations and stations, 91 ministers and probationers, and one college. Contributions to schemes amounted to 20,599*l.*, and other income to 33,033*l.* There are in Scotland some small outstanding Presbyterian bodies and also Baptists, Congregationalists, Methodists, and Unitarians. The Episcopal Church in Scotland has 7 bishoprics, 418 churches and missions, 330 clergy, and 59,000 communicants.

The Roman Catholic Church had in Scotland (1922) two archbishops, four bishops and one bishop-auxiliary; about 600 priests, 454 churches, chapels, and stations, and about 600,000 adherents.

The proportion of marriages in Scotland according to the rites of the various Churches in 1920 was: Established, 19.0 per cent.; United Free, 22.9; Roman Catholic, 11.3; Episcopal, 2.9; others, 7.1; irregular, 16.8.

3. Ireland.

The Roman Catholic Church in Ireland is under four archbishops, of Armagh, Cashel, Dublin, and Tuam, and 24 bishops, besides one bishop-auxiliary. On a vacancy the clergy of the diocese nominate a successor in whose favour they postulate or petition the Pope. The bishops of the province also present the names of two or three eligible persons to the Pope. The new bishop is generally chosen from this latter number; but the appointment virtually rests with the cardinals. The emoluments of a bishop arise from his parish, which is generally the best in the diocese, from licences of marriage, &c., and from the cathedra-ticum, a small contribution paid by incumbents of parishes. The incomes of all classes of the Roman Catholic clergy of Ireland arise partly from fees, but principally from Christmas and Easter dues, and other voluntary offerings. Number of priests in Ireland (1922), about 3,830.

The Church of Ireland (Protestant Episcopal) ceased to be 'established by law' by Act of Parliament (1869) 32 & 33 Vict. cap. 42. It has (1922) two archbishops, 11 bishops, and 1,500 clergymen; 1,400 churches, membership (1911) 524,000. Previous to disestablishment its income was 600,000*l.*, and its entire capital was estimated at 14,000,000*l.* By the Disestablishment Act about 7,600,000*l.* was allotted to it by way of commutation, and 500,000*l.* in lieu of private endowments. The Church is governed by a General Synod, consisting of a House of Bishops (13 in number) and House of Representatives (208 clerical and 416 lay members). There are also 23 diocesan synods. The funds of the Representative Body on December 31, 1921, amounted to 9,887,276*l.*

The largest Presbyterian body consists of 35 presbyteries, and has 611 ministers and 562 congregations, with 106,000 members; contributions during year (1921-22), 381,000*l.*; total church income, 484,000*l.* This Church has two colleges, one in Belfast purely theological, the other (Magee College) in Londonderry with theological, literary, and scientific departments. The two together have 14 professors and lecturers.

The proportion of marriages in Ireland in 1921 according to the modes of celebration was: Roman Catholic, 69·7 per cent.; Church of Ireland, 14·3 per cent.; Presbyterian, 11·4 per cent.; civil contract, 2·3 per cent.; other denominations, 2·3 per cent.

Instruction.

University Education.

In England the highest education is given at the ancient universities of Oxford and Cambridge, the former having 22 colleges and 3 private halls, and the latter 17 colleges and 1 hall; the university of Durham, founded in 1831, with a college of medicine, and since 1871, a college of science at Newcastle; the university of London, founded in 1836 and reorganised in 1900 so as to be a teaching as well as an examining body, with 2 Incorporated Colleges, 31 "Schools," and 23 Institutions giving instruction in 8 faculties; the Victoria University (Manchester), founded in 1880; the Birmingham University, founded in 1900; the Liverpool University, founded in 1903; the Leeds University, founded in 1904; the Sheffield University, founded in 1905; and the Bristol University, founded in 1909. There are also University colleges at Exeter, 43 lecturers, &c., 675 students, 1922-23; Nottingham (founded 1881), 134 lecturers, and 2,170 students, 1922-23; Reading (started with the establishment of art classes in 1860), 135 lecturers, &c., 1,475 students, 1922; and Southampton (founded 1850), 39 lecturers, &c., 900 students, 1921. There are special Agricultural Colleges at Carlisle, Cirencester, Glasgow, Newport (Shropshire), Kingston-on-Soar (Derby), Wye (Ken.), Uckfield (Sussex), and Ripley (Surrey). The university of Wales, founded in 1903, has 3 colleges (Cardiff, Aberystwyth, and Bangor). In Scotland there are 4 universities, viz., at St. Andrews, founded 1411; Glasgow, 1450; Aberdeen, 1494; Edinburgh, 1582. The Carnegie trust, founded in 1901 with a capital of 2,000,000*l.*, has an annual income of 100,000*l.*, of which half is devoted to the equipment and expansion of the Scottish Universities and half to assisting students. The following table gives the approximate number of professors, lecturers, &c., and students of the Universities for 1922-1923.

⁶ Estimated.

At most of the Universities and University Colleges women students are admitted on equal terms with men. There are, however, several colleges exclusively for female students:—Bedford (61 teachers, &c., 599 students), Royal Holloway (93 teachers, 201 students) and Westfield Colleges (18 teachers, &c., 120 students) in London; Newnham (13 teachers, &c., 260 students) and Girtton (24 teachers, &c., 240 students) Colleges in Cambridge; Lady Margaret Hall (6 teachers, &c., 105 students), Somerville College (13 teachers, &c., 137 students), St. Hugh's College (9 tutors, 143 students), St. Hilda's College (7 teachers, 103 students), in Oxford. The Society of Oxford Home Students numbered 225 students in 1922. Women were first admitted to membership of Oxford University, and to take degrees, in October, 1920.

Secondary and Technical Education, &c.

In England and Wales the councils of counties, of county boroughs, of non-county boroughs with population over 10,000, and of urban districts with population over 20,000, are the local authorities for higher education. Under the Education Act, 1918, County and County Borough Councils are required (with the approval of the Board of Education, and in co-operation, if necessary, with other educational authorities) to provide for the development and organisation of education in their several areas, and in any schemes submitted for approval to the Board of Education in furtherance of this object, provision must be made to secure that children and young persons under 18 years of age shall not be debarred by inability to pay fees from receiving the benefits of any form of education from which they are capable of profiting. Continuation schools are to be established, providing courses of study, instruction, and physical training, without payment of fees, for persons under 16 years of age, and subsequently for those under 18 years of age; subject to certain exemptions, attendance at these schools is compulsory for 320 hours

(in some cases 280 hours) each year.¹ The students' employment may be suspended, if required by the Education Authority, on any day during which attendance is necessary at these schools. 'Works schools' may be recognised, and must be inspected. Local education authorities may also (with the approval of the Board of Education) provide or aid the supply of holiday or school camps; centres and equipment for physical training, playing fields, school baths and swimming baths; and other facilities for social and physical training. Provision must be made for the supply and training of teachers; and teachers and students may be aided to carry on research. County and County Borough Councils must also provide for the medical inspection of children and young persons in secondary schools, continuation schools, and certain other non-elementary schools and educational institutions. To these purposes the local education authorities may apply money raised by rates, besides devoting to them the residue under the Local Taxation (Customs and Excise) Act, 1890, and they may borrow money. Grants are to be made to them by the Board of Education, amounting to not less than half the net expenditure recognised by the Board. They have power to provide scholarships, including allowances for maintenance, and to pay fees: in schools provided by them they must not pay for religious instruction; in schools not provided by them they can neither impose nor forbid religious instruction.

In 1920-21, there were in England and Wales 1,205 recognised secondary schools on the Grant List, with 340,000 full-time pupils (174,000 boys and 166,000 girls). In addition there were 261 other secondary schools recognised by the Board of Education as efficient, with about 46,000 pupils (25,000 boys and 21,000 girls). The latter numbers include 60 preparatory schools (i.e., preparatory to secondary schools proper) with 5,040 pupils. There were about 17,950 full-time teachers in the secondary schools on the grant list in 1920-21. The Board also recognised a number of institutions providing technical instruction courses, and day technical classes; schools of nautical training; university tutorial classes; schools of art; and evening and other part-time schools. Examinations in science and art are held by the Board, and scholarships, exhibitions, &c., are awarded to successful competitors.

In Scotland, under the Education (Scotland) Act, 1918, the local authorities for the purposes of education are called 'education authorities,' and the 'education areas' for which they are elected are the burghs of Edinburgh, Glasgow, Aberdeen, Dundee, and Leith, and the counties, including the remaining burghs. These authorities work through 'school management committees,' representing the authority, the parents, and the teachers. Adequate provision of all forms of primary, intermediate, and secondary education in day schools, without payment of fees, must be made by these authorities. They may grant assistance, by payment of fees (in cases where fees are payable), travelling expenses, maintenance allowances, &c., to suitable persons, to facilitate their attendance at intermediate or secondary schools, or at universities, training colleges, or other educational institutions. A county education authority may also provide books for the use of the resident adult population. Continuation classes must be provided for young persons under the age of 16 years on a certain date, the age limit ultimately becoming 18 years, and attendance is required for at least 320 hours per year between the hours of 8 a.m. and 7 p.m. In 1921-22 there were 1,108 continuation class centres. In 1920-21 there were 179,000 pupils. Exemption from such attendance may be granted in certain circumstances. In 1920-21 there were 148 grant-receiving secondary schools, with an average number of scholars on the register of 47,516. There were 126 reparatory departments of secondary schools, with 45,704 scholars.

Elementary Education.

England and Wales.—Elementary education in England and Wales is under the control of the Board of Education. The local administration is in the hands of the Councils of counties, of county boroughs, of non-county boroughs with population over 10,000, and of urban districts with population over 20,000. The last two authorities can transfer their powers to the local county councils. The education authorities work through committees (consisting of members of their own bodies, other persons with special qualifications, and women) and school managers. Schools aided, but not provided, by local authorities have 4 'foundation' managers and 2 managers appointed by Councils. Women may be managers. On July 31, 1918, the number of Local Education Authorities in England and Wales for enforcing school attendance was 318.

The local education authorities maintain all public elementary schools and control the expenditure necessary for this purpose. The only financial responsibility resting on the managers of 'non-provided' schools is to supply the buildings. In the case of schools not provided by the local authorities, their directions as to secular instruction (including the number and qualification of teachers) must be complied with; they have power to inspect the schools, and they must receive, free of charge, the use of the school-house for elementary school purposes. Education funds are derived from State grants (to the extent of at least half the net expenditure recognised by the Board of Education), local rates, &c., and the education authorities have borrowing powers. Income from endowments for such purposes of elementary education as fall within the scope of the local education authorities is paid to these authorities and applied in aid of the rates.

Elementary education is free. Attendance at school is compulsory between the ages of 5 and 14 years, and bye-laws may be made in any area requiring attendance up to the age of 15 years, either for children generally, or with certain exceptions. (For attendance at Continuation Schools, see above, p. 30.) Provision must be made for courses of advanced instruction for the older or more intelligent children; and for 'practical' instruction in cookery, laundrywork, housewifery, dairywork, handicrafts, gardening, &c. The local education authorities may supply, or aid the supply of, nursery schools and classes for children between 2 and 5 years of age, or such later age as may be approved by the Board of Education, and may make arrangements for attending to the health, nourishment, and physical welfare of such children.¹ During 1920-21 there were 22 Nursery Schools with an average attendance of 620. Arrangements must also be made for the education of physically or mentally defective children, and epileptic children. Provision may also be made for holiday or school camps, centres for physical training, school baths, and other facilities for social and physical training. In exceptional circumstances (such as remoteness of the homes from the school) board and lodging, and other facilities, may be provided.

Provision must be made by local education authorities for attending to the health and physical condition of children in public elementary schools, and for the supply of meals.

Employment of children under the age of 12, and street-trading under the age of 14, are prohibited.

In 1921, the number of schools (public elementary, special, and certified efficient) in England and Wales for elementary education was 21,634, with accommodation for about 7,150,000 pupils. In 1922 there were 12,009 voluntary schools for ordinary public elementary education, with accommodation for about 2,685,000 pupils; and 8,882 Council schools, with accommodation for about 4,401,000 pupils; total ordinary public elementary schools, 20,891, with total accommodation for about 7,086,000. The average attendance at these schools in 1920-21 was about 5,220,000. The number of scholars on the books of these schools in 1920 was: 187,000 aged under 5; 4,494,000 aged 5 and under 12; 1,250,000 aged 12 and over; total, 5,931,000. The number of teachers in 1921 was 170,000. 'Special' schools comprised, in 1921, 61 for the blind, with accommodation for 3,466 pupils; 49 for the deaf, with accommodation for 4,599 pupils; 202 for mentally defective children, with accommodation for 16,328 pupils; 183 for physically defective children, with accommodation for 13,425 pupils; 6 for epileptic children with accommodation for 508 pupils; and 45 'certified efficient' schools. There were also 61 poor law schools, on March 31, 1921. During 1920-21, there were 25 Nursery schools recognised by the Board, and about 379 play centres. In 1920-21 there were 92 training colleges for teachers for elementary schools in England and Wales, with 15,451 students.

Scotland.—Under the Education (Scotland) Act, 1918, elementary education is controlled by specially elected 'education authorities' (sec under Secondary Education, &c., p. 30). Education is compulsory up to the age of 15 years, with exemption, on certain conditions, for children over 13. 'Nursery schools' may be provided for children over 2 and under 5 years of age (or a later age, if approved by the Scottish Education Department). Existing 'voluntary' schools may be transferred to the education authorities, who must accept such transfer. After November, 1920, grants to voluntary schools, made under the Education (Scotland) Act, 1897, ceased, except in special circumstances.

Employment of children under the age of 13, and street-trading under the age of 17, are prohibited.

The number of elementary schools in receipt of grants in 1921 was 3,113, with accommodation for 957,000 pupils. The average attendance during the year ended August 31, 1921, was 682,000, and the average number of children on the register, 769,000. These figures include 104 intermediate schools; accommodation, 16,400; average number on register, 13,200; and 102 primary departments in intermediate schools, with 49,200 scholars.

In 1920-21 there were 50 special schools and 55 special classes in primary schools, for blind, deaf and defective, etc. children, with 7,200 scholars.

There were, in 1921, 24,358 certificated teachers and 123 assistant teachers. In 1921-22 there were, at 4 training centres and 3 training colleges, 2,027 senior students; and 3,463 junior students, &c., at a large number of training centres.

The total expenditure (including that on administration) from public funds for education in England and Wales in 1921-22 and for Scotland 1920-21 was:—

	From rates	From taxes	Total
Elementary	£ 27,278,589	38,098,947	65,377,536
Higher	6,795,408	10,934,002	17,731,410
Total England and Wales 1921-22	34,073,997	49,032,949	83,106,946

Justice and Crime.

England and Wales.

The Supreme Court of Judicature is the ultimate authority in all cases, civil and criminal, in England and Wales. It exercises its power through the High Court of Justice and a variety of subordinate local courts. The principal courts having criminal jurisdiction are the petty sessional courts, the general or quarter sessions, the court of oyer and terminer and gaol delivery, more popularly known as 'assizes,' and the Central Criminal Court. Two or more justices of the peace, the Lord Mayor or any alderman of the City of London, or any metropolitan or borough police magistrate or other stipendiary magistrate, sitting in a court house, constitute a petty sessional court. The courts of quarter sessions are held four times a year by the justices of the county. Similar courts can be held at other times, and are then called 'general sessions.' Two justices constitute a court, but usually a larger number attend. Women may be magistrates. Certain cities and boroughs have a court of quarter sessions, with similar jurisdiction to the county justices in quarter sessions assembled, in which the recorder of the borough is the judge. The assize courts are constituted by Judges of the High Court (or in some cases by King's Counsel bearing His Majesty's special commission). These go on circuit twice or four times a year, visiting every county in turn, and hearing and determining all civil cases entered for trial and all criminal cases presented by the Grand Jury of the County or Riding of the County. Trials are, in general, by jury, and the jury, subject to the direction of the Judge on points of law, are the sole judges of the facts of the case. Women are liable to serve on juries. The Central Criminal Court is the court of oyer and terminer and gaol delivery for the City of London and a large surrounding district. The sessions of this court are held at least twelve times a year and more often if necessary. The Recorder and the Common Serjeant, and, if the number of the prisoners makes it necessary, the judge of the City of London Court, sit on the first two days after which they are joined by one of the judges of the High Court on the rota, for whom the more serious cases are reserved. Criminal cases of special importance or complexity arising in any part of the country may, by direction of the Lord Chief Justice, be brought for trial in the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice before three High Court Judges, the Lord Chief Justice himself presiding. A petty sessional court deals summarily with minor offences. Cases of a more serious nature are usually investigated by a petty sessional court before being tried at the sessions or the assizes. To every sessions, assize, and to every sitting of the Central Criminal Court, the sheriff cites 24 of the chief inhabitants of the district, of whom not less than 12 and not more than 23 are sworn and constitute a grand jury, which examines the bill of indictment against the accused person, hears the evidence of witnesses for the prosecution, and if it thinks a prima facie case for trial is made out, endorses the bill 'a true bill.' All criminal trials, except those which come before a court of summary jurisdiction, take place before a judge and a petty jury of twelve persons. Appeal is allowed in criminal cases: (i.) on a point of law; (ii.) on a question of fact or other sufficient ground if the judge certifies the case as fit for appeal, or the Court of Criminal Appeal grants leave to appeal; and (iii.) against the sentence (if not fixed by law) with the leave of the Appeal Court. On a conviction the judge can, if he think fit, reserve a question of law (but not of fact) for the Court of Criminal Appeal, which can reverse, amend, or affirm the judgment. The only other method of securing the revision of a sentence is by the Royal prerogative, exercised on the advice of the Home Secretary, by which a sentence can be modified or annulled. No man can be tried again for the same crime after a petty jury has found him 'not guilty.' Nominally all the judges are appointed by the King, but in practice the Lord Chancellor (who is a minister, ex-officio president of the House of Lords, and goes out with the ministry), the Lord Chief Justice, the Lords of Appeal, who sit in the House of Lords and on the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, and the Lords Justices of Appeal who sit in the Court of Appeal, are appointed on the recommendation of the Prime Minister, and all the other judges on the recommendation of the Lord Chancellor.

The courts having jurisdiction in civil cases are the County Courts, created in 1846, As-sizes, and the High Court. Above the High Court is the Court of Appeal, and above that the House of Lords.

The authorised strength of the police force in England and Wales on September 29, 1921, was 56,908 (including 19,307 Metropolitan police). The estimated cost in 1921-22 is 18,991,000*l*.

Scotland.

The High Court of Justiciary is the supreme criminal court in Scotland. It consists of all the judges of the Court of Session, and sits more or less frequently, as the number of cases before it may require, in Edinburgh or in the circuit towns. One judge can, and usually does, try cases, but two or more preside in cases of difficulty or importance. It is the only competent court in cases of treason, murder, robbery, rape, fire-raising, deforcement of messengers, and generally in all cases in which a higher punishment than imprisonment is by statute directed to be inflicted; and it has moreover an inherent jurisdiction to punish all criminal acts, both those already established by common law or statute, and such as have never previously come before the courts and are not within any statute.

The sheriff of each county is the proper criminal judge in all crimes occurring within the county which infer only an arbitrary punishment, and if the case is tried with a jury the High Court has no power of review on the merits. Even in cases indicted to the High Court the accused is, under the Criminal Procedure (Scotland) Act of 1887, regularly asked to plead in the sheriff court, and minor objections to the indictment can be wholly or in part disposed of there. Borough magistrates and justices of the peace have jurisdiction in petty cases occurring within the burgh or county, and in a number of minor offences under various statutes.

The Court of Session exercises the highest civil jurisdiction in Scotland, with the House of Lords as a Court of Appeal.

The police force in Scotland at the end of 1921 had an authorised strength of 6,544.

National Insurance.

Under the National Insurance Acts, 1911 to 1921, provision is made for compulsory insurance against loss of health, for the prevention and cure of sickness, and for compulsory insurance against unemployment.

(i) National Health Insurance.—This is administered by the Ministry of Health in England and Wales and corresponding Departments in Scotland and Ireland; by other specially constituted authorities; and by approved friendly societies, trade unions, &c. The persons who are compulsorily insured, known as employed contributors, comprise, with certain exceptions, all males and females aged 16 and under 70, whether British subjects or not, employed under contract of service express or implied, whether paid by time or piece. Among persons excluded are those employed otherwise than in manual labour at a rate of remuneration exceeding 250*l.* per year. Insured persons who are not members of an Approved Society must contribute to a Post Office Fund and are known as deposit contributors; their benefits are limited. Special provisions exist for married women, the army, navy, and air force, mercantile marine, and certain other classes. Certain persons not compulsorily insured may become voluntary contributors. The funds are provided by the employer (3*d.* per week per employed person), the worker (5*d.* per week by male; and 4*d.* by females), and the State. Special rates are applicable in cases of voluntary insurers, and low wage-earners, and the rates in Ireland are 1*d.* lower for contributors and 4*d.* lower for employers than in Great Britain. Contributions cease at the age of 70 when the Old Age Pension Acts (q.v.) come into play. The benefits include medical treatment, sanatorium treatment, payments during sickness (ordinary rate 15*s.* per week for men, and 12*s.* for women), and disablement (7*s.* 6*d.* per week), and (in the case of women) a payment of 10*s.* on confinement. Other benefits are also possible if funds permit.

The number of insured persons under the Health Insurance Scheme in England and Wales in 1922 was about 15 millions.

(ii) Unemployment Insurance.—This is administered by the Board of Trade through the Employment Exchanges, Trade Unions, and Friendly Societies. Under the Unemployment Insurance Acts, 1920 to 1922, substantially all persons covered by the Health Insurance scheme are compulsorily insured against unemployment, except out-workers and persons employed in agriculture and private domestic service. Employees of local authorities, railways, and certain other public utility undertakings, and persons with rights under statutory superannuation schemes, are also exempted where the Minister of Labour certifies that they are employed under conditions which make the National Insurance unnecessary. The contributions are: Men of 18 and over, 10*d.* per week from employer and 9*d.* from employee; women of 18 and over 8*d.* from employer and 7*d.* from employee; boys between 16 and 18, 5*d.* from employer and 4*d.* from employee; girls between 16 and 18, 4*d.* from employer and 4*d.* from employee. The State contributes, in addition, amounts ranging from 3*d.* up to 6*d.* per person. The ordinary benefit consists of a weekly payment of 15*s.* for men, 12*s.* for women, and half these amounts to contributors under 18, during a maximum period of 26 weeks per year, subject to certain conditions but at the present time additional benefit may be paid for dependents, and the period of benefit is extended. At the age of 60 insured contributors may, under certain conditions, obtain a refund of their own contributions, less any benefits paid, together with interest. Industries may, with the approval of the Minister of Labour, contract out of this scheme by setting up suitable schemes of their own.

The number of persons covered by the unemployment scheme is estimated to be about 12,000,000 (8½ millions men and 3½ millions women). The contributions to the unemployment fund in 1922 amounted to 46,200,000*l.* (18,100,000*l.* by employers, 15,800,000*l.* by employees and 12,300,000*l.* by the State). The benefit paid in 1921 amounted to 58,500,000*l.*, and in 1922 to 47,900,000*l.*

Old Age Pensions, War Pensions, etc.

Under the Old Age Pensions Acts, 1908 to 1919, every person over 70 years of age who has been a British subject for at least 10 years up to the date of the receipt of pension; who, if a natural-born British subject, for twelve out of the twenty years, and if not a natural-born British subject, for twenty years up to the date of receiving a pension has resided in the United Kingdom (residence abroad is allowed to count in certain circumstances); and whose yearly means do not exceed 49*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*, is entitled to a pension: provided he is not in receipt of indoor poor relief (medical and surgical relief for three months does not disqualify), or is not a lunatic in an asylum. The minimum age for blind persons has been reduced to 50 years. An existing pensioner may in certain circumstances be disqualified for receiving further pensions. For every borough and urban district with a census population of at least 20,000,¹ and for every county (excluding borough and district areas) a local pension committee (who may appoint sub-committees) is appointed by the borough, district, or county council. Pension officers (to investigate and report to the committees) are appointed by the Treasury. The central pension authority is the Local Government Board. The weekly amount of the pension is 10*s.* if the yearly means of the pensioner do not exceed 26*l.* 5*s.* If the yearly means exceed 26*l.* 5*s.*, the weekly pension decreases by 2*s.* for every 5*l.* 5*s.* by which this limit is exceeded, up to 47*l.* 5*s.*, when the rate becomes 1*s.* per week. If the yearly means exceed 49*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*, no pension is payable. On March 31, 1922, there were 1,029,367 pensions payable in the United Kingdom (366,255 to men and 663,112 to women), including 101,154 in Ireland. The total amount paid in pensions in 1921-22 was over 26,000,000*l.*

The number of war pensions or allowances paid by the Ministry of Pensions in November, 1921, was approximately 3,200,000, and the estimated cost in 1921-22 was 107,000,000*l.* (exclusive of 4,000,000*l.* for administration expenses).

The total provision for pensions in the Imperial estimates for 1922-23 was approximately 136,000,000*l.*, namely, war pensions (excluding cost of administration) 85,400,000*l.*; old age pensions, 22,600,000*l.*; civil service, 5,000,000*l.*; navy, army and air force, 19,000,000*l.*; Irish police, 2,000,000*l.*; school teachers, 2,000,000*l.*; judicial, etc., 160,000*l.*

Pauperism.

There is a Poor Law, under a variety of statutes, applicable to the three Kingdoms, by which paupers, under certain conditions, are to be relieved in their own houses or lodged in workhouses or poor-houses built for the purpose. The law is administered by the Local Government Board, through Boards of Guardians elected for the purpose. England and Wales, including the Metropolis and the municipal boroughs, are divided into 653 poor law unions, for each of which there is elected a Board of Guardians. In urban districts and in the Metropolis guardians are separately elected, but in rural districts the rural district councillors act as guardians for the parishes they represent on the district council. Guardians are elected on the same popular franchise as district councillors. Women are eligible. In every civil parish overseers are appointed whose duty it is to make and collect the poor rate.

¹ In Scotland the population limit does not apply; in Ireland the limit is 10,000 instead of 20,000.

Amount expended in poor-relief for year ended in March for England and Ireland, and May 15 for Scotland. For Scotland, the amount includes expenditure on buildings and loans repaid and interest :—

The estimated expenditure chargeable against Capital in 1922-23 was as follows :—

Telegraph (Money) Act, 1913 and 1920	9,500,000
Housing Act, 1914	50,000
	10,050,000

The net expenditure for the Revenue Departments in 1922-23 was estimated as follows : Customs and Excise, 5,120,000*l*.; Inland Revenue, 7,154,781*l*.; Post Office, 53,822,000*l*.; total, 66,096,781*l*. Thus the total expenditure for Civil Service and Revenue Departments for the year was estimated at 383,551,781*l*.

II. TAXATION.

² Pre-war year.

³ Budget estimates for Great Britain and Northern Ireland. In previous years the whole of Ireland is included.

An Excess Profits Tax of 50 per cent. upon the excess of profits over pre-war standards was introduced in 1915, and produced 187,846*l.* in 1915-16. The rate was later increased to 60 per cent.; then to 80 per cent. for 1917 and 1918; for 1919 the rate became 40 per cent. and on and after January 1, 1920, 60 per cent. The duty was terminated in 1921, but large arrears remained to be collected. The yield is shown in the above table.

The gross amount of income brought under the review of the Inland Revenue Department in the year ended April 5, 1920, in the United Kingdom, was 2,970,604,000*l.*; in 1913-14 it was 1,167,184,000*l.*; in 1920-21 it was estimated to be approximately 3,000,000,000*l.* The income on which tax was actually received in 1919-20, after allowing for exemptions and abatements, was 1,416,223,000*l.* The estimated number of incomes above 130*l.* a year in 1919-20 was 7,800,000; the number actually chargeable with tax was estimated at 3,900,000, of which 2,790,000 did not exceed 300*l.* The total number of incomes exceeding 130*l.* a year in 1922-23 is provisionally estimated at 4,750,000.

Prior to April 6, 1915, incomes of and below 160*l.* per year were exempt from income tax. From April, 1915, to April, 1920, the limit was 130*l.* per year. In the case of taxable incomes, abatements were made, and also allowances for children, wife, and insurance premiums, on the lower range of incomes. The rates of tax per £ of taxable income varied as follows:—

	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.
1913-14	0	9 to 1	2
1914-15	1	0 „ 1	8
1915-16	1	9 ½ „ 3	0
1916-17 and 1917-18	2	3 „ 5	0
1918-19 „ 1919-20	2	3 „ 6	0

From April, 1920, exemption is allowed to bachelors with earned incomes below 150*l.* (or unearned below 135*l.*), and to married persons with earned incomes below 250*l.* (or unearned below 225*l.*) There are abatements and allowances (for children, dependent relatives, life assurance premiums, &c.), on higher incomes. The “standard” rate of tax was 6*s.*, but on the first 225*l.* of a person’s “taxable” income the rate is half the standard rate. From April 5, 1922, the standard rate was reduced to 5*s.*

The gross income and income on which tax was received in 1919-20 were distributed as follows:—

	Gross income £	Income taxed £
Profits from the ownership of Lands	51,940,000	175,247,480

The estimated aggregate income of the super-tax payers in 1920-21 was 500,000,000£., the estimated yield 66,500,000£., and the estimated number of persons chargeable, 77,000. Super-tax is payable by persons with incomes exceeding 2,000£. per year (prior to 1914-15, 5,000£. per year; from 1914-15 to 1917-18, 3,000£. per year, and in 1918-19 and 1919-20, 2,500£. per year).

In accordance with various Acts passed between 1888 and 1911, there are paid out of the Consolidated Fund to the Local Taxation Accounts of England, Scotland, and Ireland sums equivalent to the proceeds (in some cases, of the year 1908-9, and in other cases of the current year) of certain excise licence duties, part of the beer and spirit duties, and part of the probate and estate duties. Certain other grants are also payable.

The payments actually made to the Local Taxation Accounts in 1921-22 are given as follows :—

III. NATIONAL DEBT.

Borrowing by the State on the security of taxes was practised in Norman times, but the National Debt really dates from the time of William III. The acknowledged debt in 1689 was about 664,000£., on which the annual charge for interest and management was only 40,000£. At various subsequent dates the amounts were as follows (including the Irish debt throughout) :—

The estimated expenditure of the London County Council (exclusive of revenue-producing undertakings) for the year ending March 31, 1921, amounted to 20,040,299l. Of this amount 11,725,508l. was to be raised by rates. The total debt of the local authorities of London on March 31, 1921, was 110,517,889l.

The outstanding local debt of England and Wales amounted to 544,185,000l. in 1919 (including 49,807,000l. outstanding in respect of loans taken over or raised by the Metropolitan Water Board, and 28,340,000l. outstanding in respect of loans accounted for by the Port of London Authority); that of Scotland to 61,888,000l. in 1918; of Ireland to 25,453,000l. in 1919. The local debt of England and Wales outstanding in March, 1920, was 556,000,000l.

Defence.

During the later years of the Great War important questions of naval and military policy were determined by the War Cabinet, which developed from an amalgamation of the Cabinet with the Committee of Imperial Defence. In 1920 the Committee of Imperial Defence was revived, and again became responsible, as it was before the war, for the co-ordination of naval, military, and air policy. Of this Committee the Prime Minister is ex-officio President, and he has power to call for the attendance at its meetings of any naval or military officers, or of other persons, with administrative experience, whether they are in official positions or not. The usual members are the Secretaries of State for Foreign Affairs, for War and Air, the Colonies, India, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the First Lord of the Admiralty, the First Sea Lord, the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, the Chief of the Air Staff, Directors of the Intelligence Departments of the War Office and the Admiralty.

I. ARMY.

The land forces of the United Kingdom consist of the Regular Army, the Territorial Army, and the Reserve Forces. The British troops of the Regular Army serve both at home and overseas and are commonly referred to as the British Army in contradistinction to the Indian Army or Native Army, and to the Local Forces in certain British Colonies and Dependencies, the personnel of which is native with a proportion of British officers.

The Regular Army, whether at home or abroad, except India, is paid for by the Imperial Exchequer (although certain Dominions pay contributions towards its upkeep); India pays a contribution towards the cost of troops at home, owing to these serving as a dépôt for the regular troops in India. The Imperial Exchequer pays for Indian and Colonial troops serving outside their own countries. The Territorial Army serves only at home in peace time, but as the destruction of the German fleet and the supreme position of the British Navy in Home Waters has practically eliminated all risk of invasion, members of the Territorial Army are now asked to accept liability for service overseas in time of war, subject to the consent of Parliament. The rank and file for both Regular Army and Territorial Army are obtained by voluntary enlistment. The Reserve Forces consist of the Army Reserve, the Militia and the Channel Islands and Colonial Militia, and the Territorial Reserve. The Army Reserve is composed of men who have completed their period of colour service with the Regular Army; its strength in 1922-23 was 101,000. The Militia, which is intended to serve as a supply source to the Regular Army after the Army Reserve is exhausted, is in process of reconstruction. The Channel Islands and Colonial Militia consist of the Channel Islands Militia, the Malta Militia, the Bermuda Militia, and the Isle of Man Volunteers. The Territorial Reserve is in process of formation.

Service is for 12 years, with permission to extend to 21 years in certain circumstances. Of the original 12 years, from 3 to 9 are spent 'with the colours,' i.e., on permanent service, and the remainder of the time in the Army Reserve; the majority of the men serve for 7 years with the colours and 5 years in the Army Reserve, which is the rule for infantry other than the Foot Guards. Men enlist between 18 and 25 years of age.

The Peace establishment of the various formations has not yet been fixed, but the normal rule is that formations serving at home are on a low establishment, while the establishment abroad is higher, and in India peace and war establishments are practically identical. On mobilisation for war the ranks are brought up to war establishment, after eliminating recruits and young soldiers, by calling up men from the Reserve. •

For purposes of training and command the fighting troops are for the most part organised in divisions, which consist of 3 infantry brigades, divisional artillery and engineers, together with the necessary auxiliary services. The cavalry is organised in brigades. The infantry brigades are composed of 4 battalions, the cavalry brigades of 3 regiments. The organisation of the Territorial Army is analogous to that of the Regular Army, and it consists of 14 divisions, composed of infantry, artillery, engineers, and auxiliary services, and of the Mounted brigades, chiefly composed of yeomanry.

• For purposes of command Great Britain is divided up into six 'commands' and the London and Northern Ireland Districts. The commands are (1) Aldershot, of very limited area, (2) Eastern, including the eastern and southern counties, (3) Northern, including the northern midlands and north-eastern counties, (4) Scottish, (5) Southern, including the southern midlands and south-western counties, (6) Western, including Wales, Lanca-hire and north-western counties. These commands (except the Aldershot command) are divided up into Territorial Recruiting districts for the Regular Army. The Eastern, Northern, Scottish, Southern, and Western commands and the London District each include from 1 to 4 Territorial mounted brigades, and 2 or 3 Territorial divisions. There are normally two Regular divisions in the Aldershot, one Regular division in the Eastern and one in the Southern command, but in 1922 owing to the increase in the garrison of Constantinople and the Dardanelles, none of these divisions in England was complete. At the head of each command is a general officer (styled the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief). He is assisted by a general officer of lower rank who is responsible for questions of administration apart from training and defence questions.

The land forces are administered by an Army Council which is composed of the Secretary of State for War, who is its President; the heads of the departments into which the War Office is primarily divided, namely, the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, who is responsible for drawing up plans of attack and defence, for military training, for intelligence work, and for education; the Adjutant-General, who is responsible for recruiting, interior economy, discipline, and for the medical service; the Quartermaster-General, who is responsible for equipment, supply, transport, and remounts; the Master-General of the Ordnance, who is responsible for armament and works; the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, who is the Vice-President of the Council and is responsible for the Territorial Army; the Finance Member, who is responsible for finance; and the two permanent Secretaries of the War Office. The Territorial Army is to a large extent administered by County Associations over which the War Office merely maintains a general control as regards expenditure.

The principal military educational establishments are the Royal Military Academy, educating youths to be officers in the artillery and the engineers, the Royal Military College whence officers are obtained for cavalry and infantry, and the Staff College, which trains officers for the staff. The Officers' Training Corps in two divisions representing respectively the universities, and public schools, is intended to provide officers for the Territorial Army.

The gross estimated expenditure for the army for the year 1922-23 amounted (April, 1922) to 77,977,000*l.*, and appropriations in aid to 15,877,000*l.*, leaving a net expenditure of 62,800,000*l.* The estimates for 1923-24 are : gross, 81,200,000*l.* ; appropriations in aid, 9,200,000*l.* ; net, 52,000,000*l.*

The total personnel charged to British votes in 1922-23 was 215,000, of whom 154,231 were British troops, 55,295 were men in course of reduction and troops in the Middle East about to pass under control of the Air Ministry, and 5,474 were Colonial and Native Indian troops. There were in India and Aden 71,357 British troops, so that the actual establishment of the Regular Army in 1922-23 was $154,231 + 71,357 = 225,588$. The strength of the Territorial Force in December, 1922, was 135,000.

The distribution of this establishment was as follows :

By Regiments, Corps, and Departments (British, exclusive of India).

The estimated number charged to British votes in 1923-24 is 170,800.

II. NAVY.

The Washington Treaty of 1922, which relates to the British Navy and the Navies of the United States, France, Italy, and Japan, is concerned mainly with capital ships, defining for each Power what her replacement tonnage shall be, and fixing the maximum displacement of such ships at 35,000 tons, and their heaviest armaments at the 16 in. gun. There is no restriction as to the number of cruisers, but they are not to exceed 10,000 tons, nor to have a heavier gun than the 8 in. Destroyers and submarines are not affected. There are special restrictions for aircraft carriers. Under the Treaty Great Britain is to retain her 22 capital ships, with a displacement of 580,450 tons.

The Navy is still passing through a critical period. The Geddes Committee caused a reduction of expenditure, and the Washington Conference had its effect in a further reduction of ships and retrenchment in officers and men. Already financial stringency had caused the abolition of the South American Squadron, the reduction of the Atlantic and Mediterranean Fleets, and the placing of the latter on a Reserve basis, and now the Reserve Fleet and the flotillas have been reduced. Many fighting ships of Dreadnought type have been scrapped, and the Washington Treaty imposes no such scrapping upon other Powers. The personnel is being reduced in proportion to the reduction of the Fleet.

As a result of the Washington Conference two battleships, the Nelson and Rodney, not exceeding 35,000 tons are to be built. The position is that the Fleet is ultimately to be maintained at a strength equal to that of the United States, each with a total replacement tonnage of 525,000 tons in capital ship strength. The strategy of supremacy appears to have been abandoned.

The Navy estimates for 1921-22 amounted to 91,554,896*l.* gross and 82,479,000*l.* net. The gross estimate in 1922-23 was 69,476,657*l.*, and the net estimate 64,883,700*l.* The first sum does not include the Supplementary Estimate for the calling out of the Royal Fleet Reserve in the Irish emergency, nor the second the cost of the operations at the Dardanelles. For 1922-24 the gross estimates are 61,401,165*l.*, and the net 58,000,000*l.*

The British Navy is a permanent establishment, governed by statutes and orders. Its administration was formerly in the hands of a Lord High Admiral, but by the Act 2 Will. and Mary, c. 2, this office was vested in a Commission. With the exception of periods in which the office has been revived—in the person of the Earl of Pembroke in the reign of William III., of Prince George of Denmark (1702-8), and of the Duke of Clarence (May, 1827-August, 1828)—it has continued to be held in commission by the Board of Admiralty. The First Lord of the Admiralty, a Cabinet Minister, is responsible for the Navy.

The duties of the Admiralty are grouped under the two headings of Operations and Maintenance. The First Sea Lord and Chief of the Naval Staff, the Deputy Chief of the Naval Staff, and the Assistant Chief of the Naval Staff have charge and direction of the Operations Division. This Division is concerned with Naval policy and the general direction of operations, war operations in Home waters and elsewhere, strategy, tactics, the development and use of material, including types of vessels and weapons, and with trade protection and anti-submarine considerations. The officers in charge and direction of the Maintenance Division are the Second Sea Lord and Chief of the Personnel, the Third Sea Lord and Controller of the Navy, the Fourth Sea Lord and Chief of Supplies and Transport, and the Civil Lord. The Parliamentary Secretary and the Permanent Secretary are concerned with Finance and Admiralty business.

The number of officers, seamen and marines borne on January 1, 1914, was 144,871. The estimates for 1923-24 provide for 99,500. Officers were reduced to 8,497 in 1922, and the number will be brought under 8,000.

SUMMARY OF THE BRITISH FLEET.

All pre-Dreadnought and early Dreadnought battleships have been removed from the lists. The classification of capital ships into Dreadnoughts and pre-Dreadnoughts is dying out, and that of pre-Jutland and post-Jutland ships coming in. Of the last-named class the British Navy is destitute, though the Hood was modified in the light of war experience. The following summary shows the position.

Class.	Completed by end of
	1921	1922	1923
Dreadnoughts	39	29	22
Light Cruisers (including seaplane carriers)	80	71	63
Destroyers	190	205	205
First Class Torpedo boats	7	47	—
Submarines	98	89	93

The flotilla leaders are included in the total number of destroyers. Eight submarines are returned as building. Ships and vessels of the Dominions are included in the above table. See notes following the ship lists.

There were 37 monitors in 1919, but all have been removed from the fleet. Two new classes of river gunboats have been added (640 and 98 tons), 12 of each class.

In the following tables the ships are grouped in classes according to type. The dates of the Naval Estimates under which they were sanctioned are given in certain cases, but, with reference to the capital ships affected by the Washington Treaty, the years are substituted in which they are due to be scrapped.

² Mine layer. ³ Royal Australian Navy, flotilla leader.

There are also cruisers and other vessels employed as dépôt ships, store-ships, repair ships, mine-sweepers, fleet sweeping sloops and otherwise as auxiliaries.

The destroyers of the post-war Fleet are of the following classes: flotilla leaders, 1610–1800 tons, 34–36·5 knots, 22 (including 2 not yet completed); R class, 883–1040 tons, 55; S class, 885–1090 tons, 63 (including 5 Australian); V class, 1275–1300 tons, 21; W class, 1275–1350 tons, 36; Paramatta class (Australia) 6; M class (Canada), 2; total number 205. About 25 sloops remaining from the war fleet, 50 mine-sweepers, and 16 patrol boats.

The submarines are of successive classes. E class (660–800 tons) 14; G class, 3; H class (440–500 tons) 23; K class (1880–2650 tons) 7; L class (890–1070 tons) 32; M class (not described—one 12in. gun) 3; R class (420–500 tons) 10; total number 92; in addition 8 Dominion submarines. The G and other classes are being reduced, and the total number (excluding Dominions) may be about 70. One of the K boats has not yet been completed.

Dominion Navies.—When Lord Jellicoe made a tour of the Dominions with the object of arriving at an understanding with the Governments on the naval defence of the Empire, his report to the Government of Australia emphasized the desirability of the Commonwealth becoming self-contained in regard to shipbuilding and the manufacture of guns, mountings, explosives, and aircraft, but no action of much importance has been taken on the proposals. The Imperial Cabinet (July, 1921) left on record its view that co-operation among the constituent parts of the Empire was necessary, but that the details must be left to the Dominion Parliaments and recommendations be deferred until after the Washington Conference.

The Royal Australian Navy, in addition to the light cruisers and the flotilla leader named in the list above, has 6 destroyers of the River class and 5 of the S class, 6 J class submarines and various sloops and other vessels.

The New Zealand Navy, in addition to the Chatham, has the Philomel as a training ship.

The Royal Canadian Navy, in addition to the light cruiser Aurora, has 2 M class destroyers and 2 H class submarines.

Newfoundland has one sloop of the 'flower' class, the Lobelia, 1250 tons.

III. AIR FORCE.

In May, 1912, the Royal Flying Corps first came into existence. It was then divided into two wings, the Royal Naval Air Service and the Royal Flying Corps, administered by the Admiralty and War Office respectively, while a joint Air Committee was formed, consisting of representatives of both services, to secure co-operation. The powers of this body were limited, and it failed to secure its object. A second Committee, formed in February, 1916, was equally unsuccessful. It was followed by an Air Board in May, 1916, and by a second Air Board in January, 1917. Both of these had inadequate powers. On January 2, 1918, an Air Ministry was formed, and the control of the Royal Air Force was vested in an Air Council analogous to the Army Council. The Air Minister was given the status of a Secretary of State and became President of the Council. In April, 1918, the naval and military wings were amalgamated, under the Ministry of the Air, as the Royal Air Force.

The Air Force is administered by the Air Council, which is composed of the Secretary for Air, who is President, the Under-Secretary for Air, who is Vice-President, the Chief of the Air Staff, the Director-General of Supply and Research, the Air Member for Personnel, and the Secretary of the Air Ministry. Under the direction of the Secretary for Air, the Under-Secretary for Air is responsible for Finance, for Civil Aviation, and the control of landed property of the Ministry; the Chief of the Air Staff is responsible for plans of operations, for the collection and distribution of intelligence, for the training and organization of the Air Service; the Director-General of Supply and Research is responsible for design, research, armament, the supply of aircraft, and aeronautical inspection; the Air Member for Personnel is responsible for recruiting, discipline and medical services.

The Force consists of the Royal Air Force, the Air Force Reserve, and the Territorial Air Force. The establishment of the Royal Air Force for the year 1922-23 is 31,176 exclusive of those serving in India, who are paid for by the Government of India. The Air Force is organised into commands as follows:—

I. United Kingdom: (a) Inland Area, (b) Coastal Area, (c) Irish Wing, (d) Cranwell, (e) Halton.

II. Overseas: (a) Middle East Area, (b) Iraq, (c) India, (d) Mediterranean, (e) Rhine, (f) Palestine.

Areas are subdivided into groups and wings, a certain number of squadrons being allotted to each group or wing. Squadrons are subdivided into flights. At the end of 1922 the Royal Air Force maintained 32 squadrons, each of 12 aeroplanes: 12 squadrons were in Great Britain and 20 abroad. During 1922 the Air Ministry took over control of Iraq and Palestine.

The chief educational establishments of the Air Force are the Cadet College at Cranwell and the Staff College at Andover.

The Air Estimates for 1922-23 amount to gross £5,666,500; appropriate tions in aid 4,771,500*l.*; net 10,895,000*l.* The net estimate for 1923-24 is 12,011,000*l.*

The Director of Civil Aviation is, under the Under-Secretary of State responsible for the control and development of Civil Aviation and for the organization of air routes and for meteorological information.

During 1922-23 the sum allotted to Civil Aviation was 364,000*l.* The air routes maintained were London-Manchester, London-Amsterdam, London-Brussels-Cologne, London-Paris.

The number of holdings in Great Britain (from 1 acre upwards) is given as follows for 1922 :—

Size of Holdings, 1922	England and Wales	Scotland	Great Britain
1—5 acres	79,364	17,202	96,566
5—50 „	194,166	33,076	227,242

Over 300 acres	12,923	2,519	15,442
Total	414,715	76,001	490,716

The Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908, makes the County Councils and the Councils of County Boroughs responsible for the provision of small holdings (each covering from one to 50 acres, or even more), and allotments (each up to five acres in area). Up to the end of 1914 the total quantity of land acquired for small holdings by the various local authorities in England and Wales was 198,104 acres, let to 13,327 individual tenants and 6 associations; and the land acquired for allotments was 33,522 acres, let to 130,526 individual tenants and 52 associations. On the 1st May, 1918, there were estimated to be about 1,400,000 allotments in England and Wales. Before the war there were about 500,000.

The above figures are not comparable with those published for years prior to 1910. In many cases farms in Ireland extend into two or more townlands, and in former years that portion of a farm in each townland was enumerated as a separate holding. The total number of holdings published was therefore somewhat too large. A change was made in the method of enumeration in 1910, and the present figures are believed to be a very close approximation for the year 1918.

Of the holdings in 1918, 372,815 were owned and 199,170 rented. The 571,985 holdings in 1918 were in the hands of 561,807 separate occupiers.

The Irish Land Acts are of two classes—The Fair Rent Acts, and the Land Purchase Acts. The Fair Rent Acts commenced with Mr. Gladstone's Land Law (Ireland) Act, 1881, which gave the Irish Tenant the '3 Fs'—Fair Rent, Free Sale and Fixity of Tenure. Under this Act, the great body of agricultural tenants had Fair Rents judicially determined. The rent is fixed by the Land Commission for terms of 15 years, and, on the expiration of each term, a new rent may be fixed for another term. Up to March 31, 1920, the number of Fair Rents fixed under the Irish Land Acts for a First Statutory Term was 382,975, with an average reduction of 20·7 per cent. on previous rents; for a Second Statutory Term, 144,094, with an average reduction of 19·3 per cent. on first term rents; and for a Third Statutory Term, 6,032, with an average reduction of 9·1 per cent. on second term rents.

The Land Purchase Acts commenced with the 'Bright Clauses' of the Act of 1870, but the system was greatly extended by the 'Ashbourne Act' of 1885, under which 9,992,536*l.* cash was advanced for Land Purchase. A new system was adopted under Mr. Balfour's Act of 1891, which created a special Land Stock for Land Purchase purposes. Under the Irish Land Act of 1903 cash advances are made to enable tenants to purchase their holdings under the supervision of three Estates Commissioners, the money for advances being raised by the issue of Land Stock bearing interest at 2½ per cent. The State is secured by a Guarantee Fund which consists of the various Funds voted by Parliament for Irish Local purposes. The Land Stock could not be issued except at a large discount, and the Land Act of 1909 provided that for future purchasers the money may be raised by the issue of a 3 per cent. stock, and in making advances the Treasury may give the vendor such stock instead of paying cash. Under this Act the Congested Districts Board was reconstituted, the area of its work extended and its income increased. Compulsory powers of purchase were also given to the Estates Commissioners and the Congested Districts Board.

The total amount of the purchase money for which advances have been made under the Irish Land Purchase Acts, 1870 to 1909, up to March 31, 1920, was 108,795,258*l.*, of which 106,933,839*l.* was advanced and 1,861,419*l.* was lodged in cash by purchasers. In addition, 4,609,131*l.* was advanced to that date by the Land Commission to Rural District Councils, for the erection of labourers' cottages, under the Labourers (Ireland) Acts.

In England and Wales, the Board of Agriculture make grants for, and, to some extent, supervise vocational education and scientific research in agriculture. The Board of Agriculture for Scotland dispenses certain grants for the development and improvement of agriculture, including agricultural education and research, in that country. In Ireland the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction provides itinerant lecturers who give instruction in agriculture, horticulture, bee-keeping, butter-making, poultry-keeping, &c. There are 3 agricultural stations where farm apprenticeships are provided, and numerous agricultural schools and colleges. There are also winter agricultural classes and schools of rural domestic economy.

Under the Development and Road Improvement Funds Acts, 1909 and 1910, there are eight "Development Commissioners," appointed to advise the Treasury in the administration of a national fund for the development of agriculture, fisheries, forestry, and analogous resources of the United Kingdom. The total sum guaranteed to the Fund was 2,900,000*l.*; interest on investments, and other receipts, up to 31 March, 1920, made the total available funds, 3,541,000*l.* In 1921-22 a further 850,000*l.* was paid to the Fund under the Corn Production Acts (Repeal) Act, 1921, for the purpose of aiding and developing agriculture in England and Wales. Under the same Act 150,000*l.* was paid to the Agriculture (Scotland) Fund for similar purposes in Scotland. During 1921-22 the Commissioners recommended the payment of grants amounting to 327,078*l.* and loans amounting to 41,372*l.* The total grants from 1909 down to March 9, 1923, were 2,689,043*l.*, and the total loans, 657,782*l.*

Forestry.—The woodland area of Great Britain in 1908 was 2,781,963 acres (England, 1,720,330; Wales, 186,723; and Scotland, 874,910). Included in these figures are 127,509 acres of plantations, i.e., land planted within the preceding 10 years (England, 72,008; Wales, 11,355; and Scotland, 44,146).

In Ireland in 1918, 289,914 acres were under woods and plantations.

The total number of persons ordinarily employed at all mines under the Coal and Metalliferous Mines Regulation Acts during 1921 was 1,156,938.

The number of mines at work was 3,428. 924,629 persons (males) worked underground, and 226,071 males and 6,238 females above ground. The number employed at quarries under the Quarries Act was 69,979 (excluding persons occasionally employed), of whom 44,017 (males) worked inside the quarries, and 25,962 (including 410 females) outside. The number of quarries at work was 5,466.

Professor H. S. Jevons has estimated the resources of British coal in 1915, within 4,000 feet of the surface, at 197,000 million tons. Coal raised in the United Kingdom, and coal, coke, and patent fuel exported (the figures in the following tables, for the war period, exclude coal exported from Government stores, etc.):—

1 Not included in exports. Bunkers for ships in foreign and coastwise trade, and Admiralty shipments totalled 38½ million tons in 1917 and 34½ million tons in 1918.

2 There was a stoppage of coal mining during the three months April to June, 1921.

In the year 1921, the coal available for home consumption is estimated to have been 129,063,000 tons, some of the principal uses being: Railways, for locomotive purposes, 10,492,000 tons; gas works, 15,913,000 tons; coke ovens, 6,398,000 tons; blast furnaces, manufacture of pig-iron, 651,000 tons (plus 3,076,000 tons of coke); colliery engines and mines, 18,550,000 tons; bunkers for ships in coasting trade, 1,234,000 tons; electricity generating stations, 6,524,000 tons; domestic use and general manufacturing purposes, etc., 69,221,000 tons.

IV. TEXTILE INDUSTRY.

(The following information is furnished by Mr. Thomas R. Ellison of Liverpool.)

The progress made by each branch of the textile industry since 1892 is shown in the subjoined statement of the weight of raw material used and the value of yarns and goods exported:—

Annual Average: Periods of Three Years	Weight consumed in Millions of lbs.				Value of Products exported (in Thousands of £s)

The home production of wool in 1921 is estimated at 102 million lbs. ; and that of flax at 22 million lbs. Exports in 1921 were : piece goods, &c. ; cotton, 2,927 million yards ; woollen, 123 million yards ; linen, 40 million yards. Yarn : cotton, 147 million lbs. ; woollen, 30 million lbs. ; and linen, 5 million lbs.

V. WATER POWER.

The available water-power resources of Great Britain are estimated to be 900,000 B.H.P., of which 200,000 B.H.P. are developed (1922)

Commerce.

The principal imports on which customs duties are levied are beer, chicory, cinema films, clocks and watches, cocoa, coffee, dried fruits, matches, motor cars and motor cycles, musical instruments, spirits, sugar, tea, tobacco, and wine—spirits, sugar, tea, tobacco, and wine yielding the bulk of the entire levies. In 1919 the imports free of duty (exclusive of bullion and specie and diamonds) amounted to 1,381,634,807*l.*, 84·9 per cent., and those subject to duty to 244,521,405*l.*, 15·1 per cent. of the total imports.

Value of the imports and exports of merchandise (excluding bullion and specie and foreign merchandise transhipped under bond) of the United Kingdom:—

² Provisional figures. The values of the trade in 1922 on the basis of prices in 1913 were in millions of £: imports, 659; exports, 362; re-exports, 89.

The value of goods imported into the United Kingdom is generally taken to be that at the port and time of entry, including all incidental expenses (cost, insurance, and freight) up to the landing on the quay. For goods consigned for sale, the market value in this country is required and recorded in the returns. This is ascertained from the declaration made by the importers, and is checked by the expert knowledge available in the Customs Department, with the help of current price-lists and market reports. For exports, the value at the port of shipment (including the charges of delivering the goods on board) is taken. Imports are entered as from the country whence the goods were consigned to the United Kingdom, which may, or may not, be the country whence the goods were last shipped. Exports are credited to the country of ultimate destination as declared by the exporters.

Imports by air in 1920 amounted to £677,000*l.* and exports to 330,000*l.* The trade was mainly in clothes and furs.

The total estimated value of the imports and exports of Ireland (including the trade with Great Britain) is given by the Irish Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction, as follows:—

³ Including 23.3 million passengers in 1919 carried 'free' on behalf of the Government, and 1.9 million in 1920. The equivalent number of annual tickets representing season ticket holders in 1919 was 923,000, and 1,038,000 in 1920.

The financial figures for 1913 are not comparable with those for 1919 onwards because, in the later years, there are certain small variations in the list of undertakings, capital figures have been adjusted in respect of duplication, and gross receipts and working expenses include the figures of non-working companies. From August, 1914, to August, 1921, most of the railways were controlled by the Government, and complete statistics for the years 1914-18 inclusive are not available. Under the Railways Act, 1921, as from January 1, 1923, the railways of Great Britain are grouped into four systems, namely: London, Midland and Scottish (7,464 miles); London and North-Eastern (8,464 miles); Great Western (3,785 miles); Southern (2,129 miles); total, 19,822 miles of route.

Tramways.—In 1919–20 there were in the United Kingdom 2,729 miles of tramways and light railways open for public traffic, of which 2,647 miles were operated by electric traction; 1,754 miles were worked by local authorities, and 975 miles by companies. The total number of passengers carried in 1919–20 was 4,987,526,000.

II.—CANALS AND NAVIGATIONS.

The total length of canals in the United Kingdom in 1905 was 4,673 miles, of which 3,641 miles were in England and Wales, 184 in Scotland, and 848 in Ireland.

Government control of railway-owned canals commenced in August, 1914, and ceased on August 15, 1921; in the case of independently owned canals, control commenced in March, 1917, and ceased on August 31, 1920.

The total tonnages originating on the principal canals of the United Kingdom in 1921 were: Independently owned canals (length, 1,538 miles), 10,237,000 tons; railway owned or controlled canals (length, 1,145 miles), 1,543,000 tons; River Thames (above Teddington), (length, 126 miles), 31,000 tons; Caledonian and Crinan Canals (length, 70 miles), 82,000 tons; total length, 2,879 miles; 11,893,000 tons.

The Manchester Ship Canal, opened in 1894, is 35½ miles in length and 28 ft. in depth. The bottom width of the canal is not less than 120 ft. except for ½ mile near Latchford, where it is 90 ft. The maximum width of the locks is 65 ft., with the exception of the entrance lock, which is 80 feet wide. The canal is in direct communication with all the principal railway systems and barge canals of the Kingdom. The total paid-up capital of the Company at December 31, 1922, was 17,423,273*l.* The gross revenue of the canal in 1922, including the Bridgewater department and the railways, amounted to 1,964,813*l.*, and the net revenue, including miscellaneous receipts, to 792,827*l.* The traffic receipts in 1922 amounted to 1,382,490*l.* The merchandise traffic paying toll in 1922 amounted to 4,273,544 tons.

III.—POST, TELEGRAPHS, AND TELEPHONES.

Post-offices in the United Kingdom, March, 1922, 23,649, besides 50,285 road and pillar letter-boxes (1915); employed by the Post Office in Great Britain and Northern Ireland, March, 1923, 209,735 persons (160,115 males, and 49,260 females); of these, 7,185 (2,764 females) were temporary officers.

The telegraphs were transferred to the State on February 5, 1870. On March 31, 1922, mileage of Post Office wires used for telegraph purposes was 287,652. The total mileage of Post Office wires, Telegraph, Telephone, and spare wires, was 4,303,241 miles. Of this total, 1,056,801 miles were aerial, 3,225,395 underground, and 21,045 submarine.

The total number of telegraph offices (including those at railway stations which transact public telegraph business) open on March 31, 1922, was 13,389. In 1909-10 the Post Office acquired from the Marconi Company and Lloyd's their wireless telegraph stations on the coast of the United Kingdom, except certain long-distance Marconi stations. The Post Office has since provided additional stations (long-distance and others). On February 28, 1923, there were 16 Post Office wireless stations in operation and several "standby" stations exist for emergency purposes. The Marconi Company are working certain stations under licence.

All exchanges deal with trunk telephone business, but on March 31, 1922, there were 31 exchanges which dealt with trunk work only. On that date there were 8,520 trunk circuits containing 497,981 miles of wire; the number of calls during the year was 52,000,000. The London local exchange system had 87 exchanges, 1,358,149 miles of working wire, and 351,841 telephones. The provincial local exchange system had 3,191 exchanges, 1,801,424 miles of working wire, and 643,512 telephones. The approximate number of originated effective calls in 1921-22 was 482 millions (252 millions in London). For private wires the rentals amounted to 338,000l. in 1921-22.

Trustee Savings Bank.—The number of depositors in these banks in 1920 was 2,261,849, and the amounts due to them were: in the General or Government Departments, 75,084,000*l.* Cash, and 27,246,000*l.* (face value) Stock; in the Special Investment Departments, i.e., money invested otherwise than with the National Debt Commissioners, 16,185,000*l.* Cash, and 45,000*l.* (face value) Stock; total Cash, 91,269,000*l.*; total face value of Stock, 27,291,000*l.* In 1913, the number of depositors was 1,912,820: the total Cash due to depositors, 68,548,000*l.*, and the face value of Stock, 2,795,000*l.*

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The sovereign weighs 123·274 grains, or 7·9881 grammes, ·916 (or eleven-twelfths) fine, and consequently it contains 113·001 grains or 7·3224 grammes of fine gold. The shilling weighs 87·27 grains or 5·6552 grammes, and down to 1920 was ·925 (or thirty-seven fortieths) fine, thus containing 80·727 grains or 5·231 grammes of fine silver, but under the Coinage Act, 1920, the fineness has been reduced to ·500 (one half). Bronze coins consist of a mixture of copper, tin, and zinc. The penny weighs 145·83 grains, or 9·45 grammes. The standard of value is gold. Silver is legal tender up to 40 shillings; bronze up to 12*d.*, but farthings only up to 6*d.* Bank of England notes are legal tender in England and Wales, except at the Bank itself (3 and 4 Will. 4, cap. 98). The 1*l.* and 10*s.* Treasury Notes issued since the outbreak of the War are also legal tender. The note circulation at March, 7, 1923, was: currency notes and certificates, 279,636,000*l.* Bank of England notes, 145,428,000*l.*; total, 425,064,000*l.* The amount of currency in June, 1914, is estimated at 128,000,000*l.* in circulation, and 75,000,000*l.* in banks: total, 203,000,000*l.* In December, 1919, the amount is estimated at 393,000,000*l.* in circulation, and 191,000,000*l.* in banks: total, 584,000,000*l.* The silver circulation at the end of 1920 was estimated at about 60,000,000*l.*

Standard units are: of length the standard yard, of weight the standard pound of 7,000 grains (the pound troy having 5,760 grains), of capacity the standard gallon containing 10 pounds avoirdupois of distilled water at 62° F., the barometer at 30 inches. On these units all other legal weights and measures are based.

NORTHERN IRELAND.

Constitution.

UNDER the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, as amended by the Irish Free State (Consequential Provisions) Act, 1922 (Session 2), a separate parliament and executive government were established for Northern Ireland, which comprises the parliamentary counties of Antrim, Armagh, Down, Fermanagh, Londonderry, and Tyrone, and the parliamentary boroughs of Belfast and Londonderry. The Parliament consists of a Senate of 24 ex-officio and 24 elected persons and a House of Commons of 52 elected members. It has power to legislate for its own area except in regard to (1) matters of Imperial concern, and (2) certain matters 'reserved' to the Imperial Parliament (police, postal service, Post Office and Trustee savings banks, designs for stamps, registration of deeds, Public Record Office of Ireland, land purchase). Certain funds derived from Imperial taxation, levied in Northern Ireland, are allocated to the Northern Irish Exchequer, after deduction of (1) a contribution towards Imperial liabilities and expenditure (originally fixed at 7,920,000*l.* a year), and (2) the cost of 'reserved' services, while the Parliament has certain powers of independent taxation. The executive power is vested in the Governor (appointed for six years), advised by ministers responsible to Parliament. Senators hold office for a fixed term of years: the House of Commons is to continue for five years, unless sooner dissolved. The qualifications for membership of the Parliament are similar to those for membership of the Imperial House of Commons, and Northern Ireland continues to return 13 members to the latter. In case of a disagreement between the two Houses they are to have a joint sitting and decide the question at issue by an absolute majority.

Pending the establishment of a Council of Ireland and the legislative and administrative powers relating to Railways, Fisheries, and the Contagious Diseases of Animals reside temporarily in the Parliament and Government of the United Kingdom.

The Northern Irish Parliament met for the first time in June, 1921. On the establishment of the Irish Free State in December, 1922 (see below), the Parliament of Northern Ireland resolved that the powers of the Free State should not extend to Northern Ireland, the separate existence of the latter under a parliament of its own being thus established.

Governor.—The Duke of Abercorn, appointed December 11, 1922. Salary, 8,000*l.* per year (of which 6,000*l.* is payable out of Imperial revenues).

The Ministry is composed as follows:—

Finance.—Rt. Hon. H. M. Pollock (salary, 2,000*l.*).

Labour.—Rt. Hon. J. M. Andrews (salary, 2,000*l.*).

Education.—Rt. Hon. The Marquis of Londonderry (salary, 2,000*l.*).

Commerce and Agriculture.—Rt. Hon. E. M. Archdale (salary, 2,000*l.*).

The usual channel of communication between the Northern Irish Government and the Imperial Government is the Home Office.

Local Government.

In the two chief cities, Belfast and Londonderry, local administration is vested in Corporations, who are responsible for roads, public health, rating, housing, lighting, etc.

In each of the six counties there is a County Council responsible for the construction and maintenance of roads and other public works, collection of rates, supervision of the arrangements for dealing with tuberculosis and special diseases; also of lunatic asylums, county infirmaries and county fever hospitals.

The counties are divided into thirty-two rural districts, in each of which is a Rural District Council, which is the sanitary authority for the district, and is also responsible for such matters as provision of labourers' cottages, burial boards &c. These Councils have also certain powers in regard to the formulation of proposals for construction and maintenance of roads. Urban District Councils to the number of thirty have been established in the majority of the towns in Northern Ireland. These Councils are road and sanitary authorities, and are responsible, amongst other things, for the cleaning and lighting of their towns.

The administration of poor relief and dispensary medical relief is vested in Boards of Guardians, who, in the majority of cases, are the Rural District Councils, but in a few cases their area extends over two Rural Districts. Their functions are confined to the administration of the poor law, vaccinations, registration of births, marriages and deaths, dispensary medical relief, and boarding-out of children.

Area and Population.

For the population of Ireland prior to 1921, see under United Kingdom, above.

No census has been taken in Ireland since April, 1911. The area and population of Northern Ireland at that date were as follows:—

Counties and County Boroughs.	Area in statute acres (exclusive of water)	Males.	Females.	Total.
Antrim	702,654	93,651	100,218	193,869
Armagh	312,772	58,578	61,713	120,291
Belfast C. B.	14,937	181,268	205,679	386,947
Down	608,862	97,951	106,352	204,303
Fermanagh	417,912	31,690	30,146	61,836
Londonderry Co.	512,691	49,138	56,707	99,845
Londonderry C. B.	2,579	18,525	22,235	40,760
Fyrone	779,583	71,738	70,927	142,665
Totals	2,351,970	602,530	647,992	1,250,531

The estimated population of Northern Ireland at June 30, 1922, was 1,281,000, and of Belfast, 425,000.

Religion.

The principal religious professions in Northern Ireland, as recorded at the census of 1911, were: Roman Catholics, 420,161; Protestant Episcopalians, 327,076; Presbyterians, 395,039; Methodists, 45,942; Other professions, 52,313; Total, 1,250,531.

For later information respecting religious bodies in Ireland, see under United Kingdom, above.

Instruction.

Prior to February 1, 1922, the educational services for all Ireland were in the hands of various bodies, including the Commissioners of National Education, the Board of Intermediate Education, the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction, and the Educational Endowments Commission. The functions of these bodies in Northern Ireland are now consolidated under the Ministry of Education, and the Ministry is now actively engaged in co-ordinating the whole educational system.

The following are the latest available statistics:—

University: Queen's University of Belfast (founded in 1909), 70 Professors and Lecturers, etc., and 1,082 students. Secondary Education: 78 intermediate schools with 6,895 pupils between the ages of 12 and 19 years. Technical Instruction: 39 technical schools with about 18,000 pupils. Elementary Education: 2,076 national schools with 198,262 pupils on rolls.

Justice.

Under the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, a Supreme Court of Judicature of Northern Ireland has been established, consisting of the Court of Appeal in Northern Ireland and the High Court of Justice in Northern Ireland. An appeal lies direct, in certain conditions, from the former to the House of Lords.

The Police Force consists of (a) the Royal Ulster Constabulary, with a strength of 3,000; and (b) the Special Constabulary, a temporary force.

Finan ce.

The bulk of the taxation of Northern Ireland is imposed and collected by the Imperial authorities, who make certain deductions and remit the balance to the Northern Irish Exchequer. The exact share of the latter in the proceeds of such taxation is determined by the Joint Exchequer Board, a special body consisting of one representative of the Imperial Treasury, one of the Northern Irish Treasury, and a chairman appointed by the King. The deductions made by the Treasury represent a contribution towards Imperial liabilities and expenditure (originally fixed at £,920,000 a year but subject to negotiation), and the net cost to the Imperial Exchequer of Northern Irish services 'reserved' to the Imperial Parliament. The Northern Irish Parliament has independent powers of taxation, except as regards customs duties, excise duties on articles manufactured or produced, excess profits duty, corporation profits tax, a general tax on capital, or any tax substantially the same in character as any of these duties or taxes, and its powers respecting income tax are also limited.

The estimated revenue accruing to the Northern Irish Exchequer in 1922-23 is 13,705,000£., and the estimated expenditure is 13,636,000£.

Production.

Agriculture.—The acreage under crops in Northern Ireland in 1921 and 1922 was as follows:—

Crops,	1921	1922	Crops,	1921	1922
	Acres.	Acres.		Acres.	Acres.
Wheat	6,976	6,325	Potatoes	162,661	168,567

			Total Green Crops	220,824	223,650
			Flax	32,432	29,117
			Fruit	10,265	10,379
			Hay	469,936	481,710
			Total under Crops	1,147,545	1,156,786

The yield in 1922 was (in tons) : oats, 306,594 ; potatoes, 1,251,709 ; turnips, 764,005 ; flax, 4,699 ; hay, 782,557.

The livestock in 1922 was : cattle, 830,331 ; sheep, 499,048 ; pigs, 117,277 ; goats, 58,145 ; horses used in agriculture, 99,792 ; unbroken horses, 15,571 ; mules and jennets, 508 ; asses, 10,447.

There were 126,817 agricultural holdings in 1917.

Mining.—The mineral output in 1921 was :—

	Tons.		Tons.
Chalk	88,147	Igneous rocks	254,030
Chert, flint, etc. . . .	216	Iron ore	25,164
Clay	18,650	Limestone	11,154
Coal	305	Rock salt	11,574
Gravel and sand	2,300	Sandstone and ganister .	30,207
Gypsum	80	Other materials	2,269

The number of persons employed was 1,440.

Manufactures.—The two principal manufactures are linen and ship-building, both centred in Belfast. The former provides employment for approximately 85,000 persons, excluding those engaged in growing the fibre; 1,000,000 spindles, and 40,000 looms. The value of linens exported from the United Kingdom during 1922 was 11,595,161*l.*, practically the whole of which came from Northern Ireland. The Belfast shipyards employ approximately 30,000 persons, and possess an output capacity exceeding 250,000 tons a year. Other important manufactures are ropes and twines, tobacco, soaps, aerated waters, biscuits, spirits, hosiery and underwear.

Communications.

The total railway mileage of Northern Ireland amounts to 765 miles. The area is also well served by inland waterways, and possesses 180 miles of canals.

ISLE OF MAN.¹

The Isle of Man is administered in accordance with its own laws by the Court of Tynwald, consisting of the Governor, appointed by the Crown; the Legislative Council, composed of the Lord Bishop of Sodor and Man, two Deemsters, the Attorney-General, two members appointed by the Governor, and four members elected by the House of Keys, total 11 members, including the Governor; and the House of Keys, a representative assembly of 24 members chosen on a property qualification for 5 years by the 6 sheadings or local sub-divisions, and the 4 municipalities. Women have the franchise as well as men. Number of voters 1921-22, 35,214. The island is not bound by Acts of the Imperial Parliament unless specially mentioned in them.

Lieut.-Governor.—Major-General Sir W. Fry, K.C.V.O., C.B.

The principal towns are Douglas (population in 1921, 20,192), Ramsey (4,121), Peel (2,455), Castletown (1,860). Births (1921), 847; deaths, 797. In 1921¹ there were 45 elementary schools, 41 being board schools. The enrolled pupils numbered 6,001, and the average attendance 5,271. The expenditure of school boards and of non-board schools for the year 1921, amounted to 42,976*l.*¹ There were, in 1921, 1 secondary school (548 registered pupils), 9 supplementary classes (193 registered pupils), and 7 evening classes (461 registered pupils). The expenditure of higher education boards in 1921 was 14,575*l.* On December 31, 1921, 931 persons received poor-relief (103 indoor and 828 outdoor). In 1921 the police force numbered 74; in the year there were 1,042 persons convicted.

¹Area and population, see p. 12.

Revenue is derived mostly from Customs. In 1921-22 the revenue amounted to 256,647*l.*; and expenditure to 229,424*l.*, of which 10,000*l.* was paid to the Imperial Exchequer as contribution from the Customs revenue. Public debt (1922) 109,227*l.*

The principal agricultural produce of the island consists of oats, barley, turnips and potatoes, and grasses. The total area of the island, excluding water, is 140,986 acres; the total area of arable land in 1922 was 65,690 acres and of permanent grass, 17,955 acres. The total acreage under corn crops in 1922 was 20,263 acres, including 19,472 under oats, 220 under wheat, and 534 under barley or bere. There were also 6,526 acres under turnips and swedes, 2,208 under potatoes, and 34,656 under clover, sainfoin and grasses under rotation. The number of agricultural holdings in 1922 above 1 acre in size was 1,516. The live stock in 1922 consisted of 5,764 horses; 19,291 cattle; 72,150 sheep; and 3,709 pigs. The chief mineral products in 1921 were clay, 5,840 tons; igneous rocks, 26,819 tons; iron ore, 50 tons; limestone, 3,901 tons; slate, 1,641 tons. Persons employed in mining numbered 194. In 1921 there were belonging to the Isle of Man 213 fishing boats of an aggregate tonnage of 1,615 net tons.

The registered shipping (1921) comprised 21 sailing vessels (990 net tons) and 54 steamers (8,200 net tons); total tonnage 9,190 net tons. The tonnage of vessels arrived at ports of the island in 1921 was 678,139 net tons (675,670 tons coastwise), and departed 716,722 net tons, (715,070 tons coastwise). The railways have a length of 46½ miles, and there are 25 miles of electric railways.

The Channel Islands are administered according to their own laws and customs. Jersey has a separate legal existence; it is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor appointed by the Crown, and a Bailiff also appointed by the Crown. The Lieutenant-Governor has a veto on certain forms of legislation. He and the Crown officers may address the States but not vote. The qualification for a vote is the possession of a minimum value of 80*l.* real or 120*l.* personal property. The Royal Court consists of a tribunal of first instance and an appeal court. The States for deliberation and legislation consist of a Bailiff, 12 Jurats, 10 rectors, 2 Crown officers, 15 delegates of parishes, and 18 deputies for parishes elected by the ratepayers. The sheriff and jurats are chosen by indirect election. Guernsey, Alderney, and Sark are under one Lieutenant-Governor, but Guernsey and Alderney have a government of their own, and Sark is a dependency of Guernsey and under its jurisdiction. On May 10, 1901, a law was passed for the Island of Guernsey requiring the approval of the Lieut.-Governor and of the Royal Court of the Island previously to the acquisition, or leasing, or occupation of immovable property by aliens or alien companies, registration and liability to local rates, &c., being also provided for. The Channel Islands are not bound by Acts of the Imperial Parliament unless specially named in them.

Births: Jersey (1921), 831; Guernsey, &c. (1919), 683. Deaths: Jersey (1921), 479; Guernsey, &c. (1919), 649.

Lieutenant-Governor of Jersey.—Major-General Sir William Douglas Smith K.C.B., K.C.V.O. Appointed October, 1920.

Lieutenant-Governor of Guernsey, &c.—Major-General Sir J. E. Capper K.C.B., K.C.V.O. Appointed June, 1920.

Finance.—Jersey, (1922): revenue, 191,398*l.*; expenditure, 174,846*l.*; public debt (1922), 538,025*l.* Guernsey, &c (1920): revenue, 92,221*l.*; expenditure, 91,656*l.* Public debt (1920), 368,010*l.*

The total area, and the acreage under crops and grass and the numbers of live stock in 1922 were:—

INDIA, THE DOMINIONS, COLONIES, PROTECTORATES, AND DEPENDENCIES OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

In the following pages the various sections of the British Empire outside Great Britain and Northern Ireland are arranged in alphabetical order under the divisions of the world to which they belong:—1. Europe; 2. Asia; 3. Africa; 4. America; 5. Australasia and Oceania.

The term 'Dominion' is used officially as a convenient abbreviation of the complete designation 'self governing Dominion.' The Dominions are Australia, Canada, Newfoundland, New Zealand, South Africa, and the Irish Free State. The term 'Colony' is an abbreviation of the official designation 'Colony not possessing responsible Government,' and includes all such Colonies whether or not they possess an elective Legislature, but does not include Protectorates or Protected States. The term 'Crown Colonies' is properly applicable only to those Colonies in which the Crown retains control of legislation.

Under the recent Peace Treaties certain ex-German and ex-Turkish territories are administered by parts of the British Empire under mandates approved by the League of Nations. These territories include Samoa, New Guinea, Mesopotamia, Palestine, and parts of the former German Colonies in Africa.

The Colonial Office is divided into four branches, the first of which, called the Dominions Department, deals with business connected with the self-governing Dominions, and is linked with the secretariat of the Imperial Conference. The second Department, called the Crown Colonies Department, deals with the administrative and political work of the Crown Colonies and Protectorates. The third or General Department, which is also a Legal Department, deals with matters common to all Crown Colonies, such as currency, banking, posts and telegraphs, education, &c. Connected with this department are standing committees to deal with promotion, railways and finance, concessions, and pensions. The fourth Department was established in March, 1921, to deal with the "Middle East" (Palestine and Mesopotamia, and also questions of policy in other Arab areas within the British sphere of influence).

EUROPE.

THE IRISH FREE STATE (SAORSTÁT EIREANN).

THE political relations between Great Britain and Ireland had been in a state of almost continuous tension since the Union in 1800, periodically becoming acute. A crisis was reached with the outbreak of the Great War. On Easter Monday, 1916, there was a rising in Dublin, but the rebellion was abortive, although the political results were far reaching. The old 'Home Rule' party was discredited, and its place taken by the 'Sinn Féin' and physical force parties, whose nominees, at the General Election of 1918, swept the country with the exception of six of the nine Ulster counties, where the majority of the electors with equal determination declared for continued membership of the United Kingdom. To meet the difficulty an Act was passed in 1920, under which separate Parliaments were set up for "Southern Ireland" (26 counties), and "Northern Ireland" (6 counties). The Ulster Unionists accepted this scheme, and the Northern Parliament was duly elected on May 24, 1921, and opened by the King in person in the following June.

The rest of Ireland, however, having proclaimed a Republic in January, 1919, refused to work the Act. A period of complete chaos followed, but at length, after much bloodshed and destruction of property, a truce was declared on July 11, 1921, and the British Government and the Government of the Irish 'Republic' each appointed a Delegation for the purpose of discussing a settlement. As a result a treaty was signed on December 6, 1921, and embodied in the Irish Free State (Agreement) Act, 1922.

Under the Treaty, a Provisional Government was set up in 'Southern Ireland' to carry on for a period not exceeding twelve months, until a legal administration was ready to take its place. This Government was constituted on January 16, 1922.

The Treaty contains the following provisions:—

Ireland to have the same constitutional status 'in the community of nations known as the British Empire' as the Self-Governing Dominions, and to be called the Irish Free State.

Its position in relation to the Imperial Parliament and Government to be that of the Dominion of Canada, and the representative of the crown in Ireland to be appointed in like manner as the Governor-General of Canada.

The share of the Free State in the debt of the United Kingdom and other charges to be determined, in default of agreement, by 'the arbitration of one or more independent persons being citizens of the British Empire.'

The Irish Free State to undertake its own coastal defence, the defence by sea of Great Britain and Ireland being undertaken by the Imperial forces: these provisions to be reviewed at the expiration of five years. The Free State to afford, in time of 'war or strained relations' with other powers, such harbour and other facilities as the British Government may require. The establishments of the Irish defence force not to exceed such proportion to the British military establishment as the population of Ireland bears to the population of Great Britain.

The ports of Great Britain and of Ireland to be freely open to the ships of 'the other country' on payment of the customary dues.

- There is to be no State endowment of any religion.

For one month after the passing of the Act of Parliament constituting the Irish Free State, that State to exercise no powers in respect of Northern Ireland; and if before the expiration of such month both Houses of the Parliament of Northern Ireland passed a resolution to the effect that the powers of the Free State shall no longer extend to Northern Ireland, then the provisions of the Act of 1929 were to continue to be of full power and effect so far as they relate to Northern Ireland, subject to any necessary modifications. In this case a Commission was to be appointed to determine 'in accordance with the wishes of the inhabitants, so far as may be compatible with economic and geographic conditions,' the true boundary between Northern Ireland and the Irish Free State.*

Constitution.

In September, 1922, the Provisional Parliament met as a Constituent Assembly to adopt a Constitution for the Irish Free State. This was passed on October 11, and duly enacted by the Imperial Parliament on December 4 (see the Irish Free State Constitution Act, 1922 [Session 2], 15 Geo. V. ch. 1). On December 6, 1922, the Free State was established by Royal Proclamation.

The Constitution declares the Irish Free State to be a co-equal member of the Community of Nations forming the British Commonwealth, and that 'all powers of Government, and all authority, legislative, executive, and judicial in Ireland, are derived from the people of Ireland.' Every person domiciled within the area of the Free State on December 6, 1922, who was born in Ireland, or either of whose parents was born in Ireland or had been ordinarily resident within the area of the Free State for at least seven years, automatically became a citizen of the new State unless he or she elected not to accept such citizenship. The Irish language is declared to be the national language, but English is equally recognized as an official language. Liberty of person and the dwelling of the citizen are inviolable. There is to be no endowment of any religion. Freedom of religious opinion, and the right of association are guaranteed. Elementary education is free.

The Legislature, known as the Oireachtas, consists of the King, a Chamber of Deputies (Dáil Éireann), and a Senate (Seanad Éireann). There must be at least one Session each year. Provision is to be made for payment of members, and there may be free travelling facilities. Legislative authority in respect of money bills is reserved to the Chamber alone, but the Senate may make recommendations. Other bills must be passed (or 'accepted') by both Houses, but if the Senate does not pass a bill within 270 days or other longer agreed period, after it has first been sent to the Senate by the Chamber, the bill shall be deemed to have passed both Houses in the form in which it was last passed by the Chamber. There may be a joint sitting of the two Houses, if required by the Senate, to debate, but not vote upon, a non-money bill. The Crown's Representative may refuse the King's Assent to any bill or reserve the bill for consideration, provided that the law, practice, and constitutional usage governing such cases in the Dominion of Canada are followed.

Provision is made for a Referendum of the people, on demand by a certain proportion of members of either House, in respect of any bill other than a money bill, or bills necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, or safety. Provision may also be made by the Legislature for the initiation by the people of proposals for laws or constitutional amendments.

Amendments of the Constitution, made after eight years from the date of its first operation, can only become law after submission to a Referendum of the people.

Save in the case of actual invasion, the Irish Free State is not to be committed to actual participation in any war without the assent of the Oireachtas.

All members of the Oireachtas must take an oath of allegiance to the Constitution and of fidelity to the King. Citizens aged 21 and over, without distinction of sex, who comply with the prevailing electoral laws, can vote for members of Dáil Eireann, and take part in the Referendum and Initiative, and citizens aged 30 and over, who comply with such laws, can vote for members of Seanad Eireann. Each voter has only one vote for either House, and voting is by secret ballot.

Every citizen aged 21 and over, not otherwise disqualified, is eligible for election to the Dáil. Election is upon principles of Proportional Representation. The number of Deputies is fixed on a population basis, and is at present 153. Each University existing in 1922 is entitled to elect three Deputies. The General Election is to be held on the same day throughout the country, and the Dáil continues for four years, unless sooner dissolved.

The Senate consists of 60 members. To be eligible for membership, citizens must be at least 35 years of age and eligible for election to the Dáil. The members must be citizens who 'have done honour to the nation by reason of useful public service,' or who represent important aspects of the nation's life. The term of Office is normally to be 12 years. One-fourth of the members are to be chosen by the electors every three years from a panel chosen by the two Houses, all the elections to be on principles of Proportional Representation.

The first Senate consists of 30 members elected by Dáil Eireann and 30 nominated by the President of the Executive Council. Of the latter, 15 hold office for twelve years and 15 for six years.

A person may not be a member of both Houses.

The executive consists of a Council of not more than seven nor less than five ministers. They must be members of the Dáil and responsible to it, and must include the President and Vice-President of the Council, and the Minister of Finance. The President is nominated by the Dáil. He nominates the Vice-President and other members of the Council, but the latter must be approved by the Dáil. Other ministers may be nominated by the Dáil, and are responsible to the Dáil alone; but the total number of ministers, including those in the Executive Council, must not exceed twelve. Every minister may speak in the Senate.

The Chairman receives a salary of 1,700*l.* a year; the Deputy-Chairman 1,000*l.*; members, except ministers and officials, 30*l.* a month, and free first-class railway facilities between Dublin and their constituencies.

The representative of the Crown is the Governor-General of the Irish Free State (Saorstát Éireann).

The Free State Parliament met for the first time, as such, on December 6, 1922.

The first Executive Council was constituted on December 6, 1922, as follows:—

President and Minister of Finance.—William T. Cosgrave.

Minister of Home Affairs.—Kevin O'Higgins.

Minister of Foreign Affairs.—Desmond Fitzgerald.

Minister of Education.—Eoin MacN*í* Ull.

Minister of Local Government—Ernest Blythe.

Minister of Industries and Commerce.—Joseph McCarthy.

Minister of Defence.—General Richard Mulcahy.

Other ministers not members of the Executive Council, are:—

Minister of Agriculture.—P. J. Hogan.

Postmaster-General.—J. J. Walsh.

Minister of Fisheries.—Finian Lyach.

Attorney-General.—Hugh Kennedy, K.C.

The President receives a salary of 2,500*l.* per year; and other ministers 1,700*l.*

The usual channel of communication with the Imperial Government is the Colonial Office.

High Commissioner in London.—J. MacN*í* Ull.

Total	1,162,041	1,033,495	331,165	610,954	3,139,688

Instruction.—University Education is given at the University of Dublin (Trinity College), founded in 1591, and at the National University of Ireland, founded in Dublin in 1909. The latter has three constituent colleges, namely, the University Colleges of Cork, Galway, and Dublin. The numbers of professors, &c., and students, in 1922, were as follows:—

Universities.	Professors and Lecturers.	Students.
Trinity College, Dublin	82	1,400
University College, Cork	44	570
" Galway	39	220
" Dublin	54	1,200
Total	219	3,410

Secondary Education.—The secondary schools are under private control and are conducted in many cases by Religious Orders. State assistance consists chiefly of grants based upon the results of the annual examinations. Estimated expenditure for 1922-23, 132,750*l*.

Primary Education.—The State pays the teachers and contributes in certain cases towards the cost of school buildings and equipment and certain other expenses. A scheme of compulsory attendance is in force in many parts of the country. Estimated expenditure for 1922-23, 3,863,921*l*.

Justice.

Courts of First Instance (including a High Court), and a Court of Final Appeal, are to be established. The High Court will exercise original jurisdiction in questions involving the Constitutional validity of any law. The Supreme Court of the Irish Free State will have appellate jurisdiction from decisions of the High Court. Every person has the right to petition the King for special leave to appeal from the Supreme Court to His Majesty in Council. No one is to be tried save in due course of law and extraordinary courts are not to be established, save Military Tribunals duly authorized by law. The jurisdiction of Military Tribunals shall not be extended to or exercised over the civil population, save in time of war or armed rebellion.

An unarmed police force, the Civic Guard, has been established.

Finance.

The taxation in force at the time of the establishment of the Free State was to continue unaltered until March 31, 1923.

The estimated expenditure of the Free State for 1922-23 is 37,709,000*l*., including 10,000,000*l*. to cover compensation for outrages and destruction of property; 7,245,000*l*. for the army; 693,000*l*. for the civic guard; 3,326,000*l*. for old-age pensions; 3,863,000*l*. for education; and 2,756,000*l*. for the Post Office. The estimated revenue is 27,000,000*l*.

GIBRALTAR.

Governor.—General Sir Horace L. Smith-Dorrien, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., D.S.O., salary, 5,500*l.* with 2,000*l.* allowances. Appointed July 9, 1918.

Governor-Elect.—Sir Charles C. Monro, Bt., G.C.B., G.C.S.I., G.C.M.G. (From September, 1923.)

Colonial Secretary.—Major C. W. J. Orr, C.M.G.

The Rock of Gibraltar was under the dominion of the Moors till the 15th century, when it was joined to the Kingdom of Granada. It was captured by the British in 1704, and ceded 1713. It is a Crown colony, situated in 36° 7' N. latitude and 5° 21' W. longitude, in the Province of Andalusia, in Spain, commanding the entrance to the Mediterranean. The Governor, who is also Commander-in-Chief, is assisted by an Executive Council, on which non-official inhabitants are represented. Area, 1½ square mile. Population, including port and harbour (census 1921), civil, 17,160 (8,471 males, and 8,689 females); military, 2,932 (2,270 males, and 662 females); naval, 546 (males 477, and females 69); total, 20,638 (11,218 males, and 9,420 females). Estimated fixed civil population, January 1, 1922, 16,174 (7,852 males, and 8,322 females). In addition there were at that date about 1,400 aliens. The settled population are mostly descendants of Spanish and Italian settlers. Civil population births (1921), 434; marriages, 135; deaths, 325. Birth-rate per 1,000 of fixed civil population, 22.41; death-rate, 17.53. Religion of fixed population mostly Roman Catholic; one Protestant cathedral and four Roman Catholic churches; annual subsidy to each communion, 500*l.* Education is compulsory between ages 5 and 14 years. Several private English schools; Government-aided elementary schools, 16 (12 Roman Catholic). Pupils, 2,629 in 1921-22; average attendance, 2,230. There are 5 secondary schools. Government grant, 9,200*l.* One magistrate's court and a supreme court. In 1921 there were 3 convictions of serious crime, and 1,339 summary convictions.

	£	£	£	£	£	£
Revenue	104,634	125,876	158,694	239,397	287,051	249,133

¹ Including provision for depreciation of invested funds (117,887*l.* in 1920, and 38,469*l.* in 1921).

Chief sources of revenue, 1921:—Customs, 95,000*l.*; post office, 18,000*l.*; rents of Crown property, 14,000*l.*; fees and re-imbursements in aid, 24,000*l.*; port, harbour, and wharf dues, 28,000*l.*; interest on investments, 29,000*l.*; licences and internal revenues, 6,000*l.* Chief branches of expenditure, 1921:—Establishments, 101,000*l.*; public works, 59,000*l.*; pensions, 3,000*l.*; ecclesiastical grants, 1,000*l.* Contribution by Home Government, nil. Public debt, nil. Total net assets, 148,000*l.* Industries unimportant. The trade of the port is chiefly transit trade, and the supply of coal to ships. There are import duties on malt liquors, wine, spirits, and tobacco, and on these articles the duties are low.

Government savings-bank, with 3,500 depositors, had 157,000*l.* deposits at the end of 1921.

Gibraltar is a naval base and position of great strategic importance, which is now largely increased in strength and stability. There is a deep harbour of 260 acres, which suffices for all the wants of the Mediterranean fleet. The merchant vessels registered at the port were (1921) 8 steamers of 7,207 tons net, 11 motor and sailing vessels of 150 tons net, and 1 sailing vessel of 33 tons net; total, 20 vessels of 7390 tons net. Vessels entered, 1921, 4,900; tonnage, 7,333,000; cleared, 3,700; tonnage, 7,161,000. Three miles of internal telegraph under military and about one mile under the Eastern Telegraph Company. Postal communication daily with England. Letters and post-cards in 1921, 3,129,000; newspapers, book packets, etc., 524,000. There is cable communication with the Continent, Tangier, the Mediterranean Eastern ports, and England, via Eastern Telegraph Company's lines.

A regular motor-omnibus and carriage service connects Gibraltar with Linea, a neighbouring town, and a road connects Linea with the village of Campamento.

The legal currency is that of Great Britain; but Spanish money continues to circulate freely. Since the outbreak of the great war in 1914 there are also currency notes issued by the local Government. There are four private banks.

MALTA.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Field-Marshal the Right Hon. Lord Plumer, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O.; appointed 1919.

Lieut.-Governor.—W. C. F. Robertson, C.M.G.

Legal Adviser.—R. P. Mahaffy.

Constitution and Government.—Malta was held in turn by Phoenicians, Greeks, Carthaginians and Romans, and was conquered by Arabs in 870. From 1090 it was joined to Sicily until 1530, when it was handed over to the Knights of St. John, who ruled until dispersed by Napoleon in 1798. It was blockaded by the British Fleet, aided by the Maltese, from 1798 to 1800, and was finally annexed to the British Crown by the Treaty of Paris in 1814. It is one of the most important ports of call in the world, and is the base and resort for repair and refitment of the British fleet in the Mediterranean. Its harbour, as a naval station, is too small for the fleet. A breakwater was constructed in 1909.

Under the Malta Constitution Letters Patent, 1921, there is an elected Legislature to control purely local affairs, consisting of a Senate (partly nominated) of 17 members, and a Legislative Assembly of 32 elected members. Elections are on a proportional representation basis. There is a responsible ministry, as follows:

Prime Minister and Treasury—Mr. Joseph Howard, O.B.E.

Justice—Count A. Caruana Gatto, B.A., LL.D.

Public Works—Mr. Antonio Dalli.

Public Instruction—Most Rev. Mgr. Can. F. Ferris, D.D., LL.D.

Industries and Commerce—Dr. Ugo P. Mifsud, LL.D., B.Lit.

Public Health—Lt.-Colonel M. Dundou, M.D.

Posts and Agriculture—Lt.-Colonel W. Sazona, LL.D., M.B.E.

Certain 'reserved' matters, including control of naval, military and air forces, Imperial interests, external trade, coinage, immigration, treaties, and relations with foreign States, are dealt with by the Governor, who is assisted by two Councils—an Executive Council consisting of such ministers as he selects, and a 'Nominated Council,' consisting of the Lieutenant-Governor, a Legal Adviser, and three officers of the navy, army, and air force.

English is the official language of the Colony, Maltese being allowed in the elementary schools, and Italian the official language of record in the Law Courts.

Area and Population.—Malta is 17 miles long; area, 91½ square miles; and the neighbouring island, Gozo, 26 square miles; total area (with Comino), 118 square miles. Population, Census 1911, 228,531. Civil population on April 2, 1911, 211,864; civil population on April 1, 1921, 213,021. Births, 1920 21, 7,813; deaths, 4,584; number of marriages, 1,637. Chief town and port, Valletta.

Instruction.—102 public schools, with 20,000 pupils at the beginning of the scholastic year, 1920-21; a university with 6 faculties and 130 students; a government lyceum for boys with 770 students; 2 government secondary schools, one for boys with 44 pupils, and one for girls with 226 pupils; and 7 technical manual schools. Expenditure on elementary education, 1920-21, 56,000*l.*; secondary, 7,300*l.*; university, 8,900*l.* There are 65 unaided private schools with 5,244 pupils.

Archæology.—There is a Museum of Archæology with an extensive collection of prehistoric and historic objects found in Malta, together with a rich collection of relics of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem. There is also a Free Public Library, originally founded by the Knights of the Order of St. John, which is rich in MSS., Charters, illuminated books and rare editions with superb old bindings.

Justice.—In 1919-20, 3,977 persons were committed to prison; 164 persons were convicted of serious crime and 48,592 summarily. Police numbered 510 officers and men on March 31, 1920.

Finance.—The revenue and expenditure in 5 years were :—

ADEN, PERIM, SOKOTRA, AND KURIA MURIA ISLANDS.

ADEN is a volcanic peninsula on the Arabian coast, about 100 miles east of Bab-el-Mandeb. It forms an important coaling-station on the highway to the East, and is strongly fortified. The settlement includes Little Aden, a peninsula very similar to Aden itself, and the settlement and town of Shaikh Othman on the mainland, with the villages of Imad, Hiswa, and Bir Jabir.

In April, 1905, after demarcation of the frontier, Ottoman and British Commissioners signed an agreement which determines the boundary of the hinterland from Sheikh Murad on the Red Sea to Bana river, and thence north-east to the great Desert. By the Anglo-Turkish Convention of 1914, the boundary was prolonged through the desert to a point on the coast opposite Bahrein in the Persian Gulf. The settlement also includes the island of Perim at the entrance to the Red Sea, and is subject to the Bombay Government. The Government is administered by a Political Resident (who is also General Officer Commanding the troops) with four assistants. The India Office has hitherto exercised internal administrative control (through the Government of India); the Foreign Office has been responsible for political questions, and the War Office for military questions, but it is under consideration (March, 1921) to transfer Aden to the Colonial Office.

Political Resident and General Officer Commanding.—Major-General T. E. Scott, C.B., C.I.E., D.S.O.

Area 75 square miles; including the Protectorate, about 9,000 square miles; of Perim, 5 square miles. Population of Aden and Perim in 1921, 54,923 (36,878 males and 18,045 females), against 46,165 in 1911.

The only Government revenue is from duties on liquor, opium, and salt, and from income tax, court fees and judicial fines; local taxes go to the Aden Settlement Fund. There is a Port Trust. The gross revenue of the settlement in 1921-22 was Rs. 5,73,500. Imports (1921-22), by sea, 5,322,000*l.*; by land, 193,000*l.*; treasure (sea and land), 496,000*l.*; total imports, 6,011,000*l.* (total, 1920-21, 6,495,000*l.*). Chief imports: Cotton piece goods, grain, hides and skins, tobacco, coal, coffee, sugar, fruits, vegetables, and other provisions. Exports, by sea, 4,128,000*l.*; by land, 214,000*l.*; treasure (sea and land), 813,000*l.*; total exports, 5,155,000*l.* (total, 1920-21, 5,367,000*l.*). Chief exports: Coffee, gums, hides and skins, cotton goods, tobacco, grain and pulse, provisions and sugar. These statistics are exclusive of government stores and treasure. In 1921-22, 999 merchant vessels of 2,949,000 tons (net) entered the port of Aden, of which 565 were British; in the same year 1,039 country (local) craft of 35,000 tons entered. At Perim 381 vessels entered, of which 34 were Government vessels. Aden itself produces little, its chief industries being the manufacture of salt and cigarettes. The trade is largely a transshipment one, and is divided into foreign, Indian, and inland. There is a branch of the National Bank of India, Limited, and there is also one firm of private bankers.

A railway was begun in 1915, for military purposes, from Aden to Lahaj, 25 miles, and has now been extended a few miles beyond that oasis. The gauge is one metre.

The island of Sokotra off the coast of Africa is under British protection, and the Kuria Muria islands, off the coast of Arabia, are attached to Aden. Area of former, 1,382 square miles. Population about 12,000, mostly pastoral and migratory inland, fishing on the coast. Religion, at one time Christian, Mohammedan since the end of the 17th century. The island came under British protection in 1876, by treaty with the Sultan. Chief products, dates and various gums; sheep, cattle, and goats are plentiful; butter is exported. The Kuria Muria Islands, five in number, were ceded by the Sultan of Muskat for the purpose of landing the Red Sea cable.

BAHREIN ISLANDS.

Group of islands in the Persian Gulf, 20 miles off the coast of El Hasa, in Arabia. Bahrein, the largest, is 27 miles long by 10 wide; Muharrak, to the north-east of Bahrein, 4 miles long, $\frac{1}{2}$ mile wide. Other islands are, to the east, Sitra, 3 miles long and 1 mile broad, half its area being fertile; Nabi Saleh, about 2 miles in circumference, very fertile; Jezeyra, a small islet with a date plantation; to the west are three rocky and uninhabited islets, Um Nahsan, Jidi, and Raka. The regular population of the islands is put at about 110,000. Manama, the capital and commercial centre, extends 3 miles along the shore and has 35,000 inhabitants. Muharrak on the island of that name has about 20,000 inhabitants. Other towns are Budaiya on Bahrein Island and Hadd on Muharrak Island. There are about 100 villages in the islands. There are thousands of tombs in the shape of conical mounds situated in the interior of the islands. They vary considerably in size, some of them being as much as 100 yards in diameter, and 40 feet in height, entailing vast labour of construction. Inside are regular masonry burial chambers. No certainty as to their origin yet exists owing to want of inscriptions, but they are undoubtedly extremely ancient.

The ruling family, Al Khalifa, and most of the townsmen are Mohammedans of the Sunni (Maliki) sect. The town population consists of Arabs who have come from Nejd within the last 200 years, and negroes. The agricultural population and the Bahrein pearl divers are mostly of the Shiah sect. There is a large Persian (mostly Shiah) community, and a number of Indian (mostly Hindu) merchants and tradesmen live in Manama. The present chief of Bahrein is Sheikh Sir Isa bin Ali Al Khalifah, K.C.I.E., C.S.I. His uncle, Mahomed, was deposed by the British in 1867, and Sheikh Ali, his father, installed in his place. In 1869 Ali was killed, and Sheikh Isa succeeded to power.

The great industry is the pearl fishery, in which over 1,000 boats, of from 8 to 60 men each, from Bahrein alone, are engaged. The Bahrein Islands also produce dates, and a remarkably fine breed of white donkeys. Sail cloth is manufactured extensively, and also reed mats. In 1919-20, imports amounted to 1,414,423*l.*; exports, 946,344*l.* There are 5 per cent. ad valorem import duties. The importation of arms and ammunition is subject to the consent of the British Government.

The chief imports in 1920-21 were: specie, 14,793*l.*; rice, 524,064*l.*; coffee, 50,974*l.*; ghee, 54,697*l.*; sugar, 55,985*l.*; tea, 24,192*l.*; piece goods, 177,387*l.* The chief exports were: rice, 218,322*l.*; coffee, 21,612*l.*; sugar, 12,311*l.* Owing to its situation, harbour, and good service of steamers, the port is largely used as a place of transhipment for mainland goods.

In 1920-21 there entered the port of Bahrein 74 British ships of 141,249 tons, and 1 American ship of 3,170 tons. The greater part of the trade of Najd and Hasa passes through Bahrein, where transhipment between steamers and dhows takes place.

There is a British Post office which is worked as an Indian Inland office, with the exception of insurance. Letter rates between Great Britain and Bahrein are the same as between Great Britain and India. There is a wireless station.

The principal coins in use are Indian rupees, Austrian (Maria Theresa) dollars worth from 4*d.* to 48*d.*, and Turkish lire worth from 20*s.* to 20*s.* 5*d.* according to the rate of exchange. The rupee is the coin in general use. The Persian double kran, value about 1s. 1d. is also used. The measure employed is the ahirau of 18½ inches. The weights are: the miscal shirazi of 72 grains; the miscal bar of 720 grains; the rubaa of 4·114 lbs. avoird. ; the mann of 57·6 lbs. avoird. ; and the rafaa of 576 lbs. avoird.

The political relations between the Government of India and the Chief of Bahrein are conducted through the Political Resident in the Persian Gulf and a Political Agent, who tries all cases in which British or Foreign subjects are concerned.

BORNEO (BRITISH).

British North Borneo.—Governor.—Major-General Sir W. H. Rycroft.

British North Borneo occupies the northern part of the island of Borneo. The interior is mountainous, Mount Kina Balu being 13,455 feet high.

Area, about 31,106 square miles, with a coast-line of over 900 miles. Population (1911 census) 208,183, consisting mainly of Mohamedan settlers on the coast and aboriginal tribes inland. The Europeans numbered 355; Chinese, 26,032; Malays, 1,612; East Indians, 5,511; Sulus, 5,700. The number of natives cannot be more than approximately estimated, but is placed at about 170,000. The most numerous are the Dusuns, about 88,000; the Muruts, 25,300; and the Bajaus, 22,600. Chief towns, Sandakan (population 8,256), on the east coast, and Jesselton, on the west coast.

The territory is under the jurisdiction of the British North Borneo Company, being held under grants from the Sultans of Brunei and Sulu (Royal Charter in 1881). The territory is administered by a Governor (appointed with the approval of the Secretary of State) in Borneo, and a Court of Directors in London, appointed under the Charter. On May 12, 1888, the British Government proclaimed a formal protectorate over the State of North Borneo. In 1898 certain border lands were acquired from the Sultan of Brunei, and more recently certain inland territories have been occupied. For administrative purposes the whole country is divided into five Residencies, which are sub-divided into Districts. In December, 1904, an area of about 200 square miles was transferred to Sarawak in exchange for rights over coal mines on Brunei Bay.

There are Protestant and Catholic missions. The laws are based on the Indian Penal, Criminal, and Civil Procedure Codes, and local Ordinances. There is an Imam's Court for Mohamedan law. Native and Indian constabulary, 800 men under European officers.

The revenue includes sums realised by land sales, and the expenditure includes sums spent on capital account.

Sources of revenue: Opium, birds' nests, court fees, stamp duties, licences, import and export duties, royalties, land sales, &c. No public debt.

Most of the trade is carried on through Singapore and Hong Kong with Great Britain and the colonies. The chief products are timber, sago, rice, coconuts, gums, coffee, many fruits, rattangs, cinnamon, pepper, gambier, gutta-percha, rubber, camphor, rattans, tapioca, sweet potatoes, and tobacco, which is being planted on a large scale. Coal, iron, gold, and mineral oil have been found. The exports comprise the products mentioned, with birds' nests, seed pearls, bêche-de-mer, &c. Exports of leaf tobacco: 1920, 191,000Z; 1921, 143,000Z; of Estate rubber, 1920, 789,000Z; 1921, 290,000Z; of timber, which is the greatest natural resource of the country, 1920, 155,000Z; 1921, 170,000*l*. Merchant Shipping (Men-of-War and Government vessels excluded), 1920, entered 285,040 tons, cleared 284,276 tons; 1921, entered 333,000 tons, cleared 333,000 tons.

A railway, 127 miles, runs from Jesselton on Gaya Bay to Melalap in the Interior, with a branch from Beaufort to Weston on Brunei Bay. Borneo is now connected by cable with the outer world. There is a telegraph line from Menumbuk, where the cable reaches land, to Jesselton via Beaufort. At the latter station a branch line leads to Tenom in the Interior. Communication between Jesselton and Sandakan, Kudat and Tiwan is maintained by wireless telegraphy. A land line extends from Sandakan to Lahad Datu. Telephone exchanges are operated at Sandakan and Jesselton, while an elaborate system of telephone lines maintains communication between smaller stations and bigger Government centres.

At Jesselton and Sandakan there are agencies of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, the Chinese Commercial Bank, and the Bank of Taiwan. A State Bank has been established, with Head Office in Sandakan and a branch at Jesselton.

The Government issues its own copper coinage (cents and half-cents); nickel coinage of 1, 2½ and 5 cents; also notes of one, five, ten, and twenty-five dollars, and of 25 and 50 cents. Accounts are kept in dollar currency.

Brunei.—In 1838 the neighbouring territories on the north-west coast of Borneo, Brunei and Sarawak, were placed under British protection. On January 2, 1906, by treaty, the Sultan of Brunei handed over the general administration of his State to a British Resident. The Sultan, Sir Mohamed Jemalulalam, K.C.M.G., born in 1889, succeeded his father in May, 1906. He receives an allowance of 1,500*l*. a year from State funds, and his two principal ministers 700*l*. a year each. Area about 4,000 square miles, and population, 1921 Census, 25,454 (Europeans, 35; Malays and Bornean races, 23,938; Chinese, 1,434; Indians, 37). The chief town is Brunei (pop. 10,000). The old town is built over the water on the Brunei river, and a new town has developed on the mainland since 1910. Police force, 1922, 38 non-commissioned officers and men. The climate is hot and moist, and the nights cool. Average annual rainfall is a little over 100 inches. The native industries in Brunei town include boat building, cloth weaving, brass foundries, and manufacture of silver ware. The principal products are cutch (mangrove extract), coal, rubber, jelutong, and sago. Most of the interior is under jungle, comprising numerous kinds of serviceable timber. There is abundant evidence of oil, but it has not yet been found in payable quantities. There are vernacular schools at Brunei, and in some out-districts. Revenue 1921, 18,800*l*.: (Customs, 6,900*l*., monopolies, 3,100*l*., licences, 1,400*l*.; land revenue, 2,000*l*., session moneys, 2,300*l*.); expenditure, 23,000*l*. Public debt, Dec. 31, 1921, 49,860*l*.

Imports 1921, mainly rice, 19,000*l*., tobacco, 5,800*l*., piece goods, 11,200*l*., sugar, 3,500*l*., kerosene oil, 3,400*l*.; exports, cutch, 50,000 cwt., 28,000*l*., coal, 16,200 tons, 32,000*l*., rubber, 199,000 lb., 9,600*l*., jelutong 3,600*l*., sago, 5,100*l*., dried prawns, 5,500*l*., live stock 4,000*l*., forest produce 3,500*l*. The post office dealt with 31,000 articles in 1921.

There is a central Wireless Station at Brunei, and a subsidiary station at Labuan, which enables telegraphic communication to be maintained with Labuan and thence by cable with Singapore and Europe. There is another Wireless Station in the Temburong District.

The distance from Labuan is about 42 miles. Communication by steam launches from Brunei is regularly maintained. The passage between Singapore and Labuan takes about 4 days.

Sarawak: Area about 42,000 square miles, coast line 400 miles, many rivers navigable. The government of part of the present territory was obtained in 1842 by Sir James Brooke from the Sultan of Brunei. Various accessions were made between 1861 and 1890. Under an agreement of 1888 Sarawak is recognised as an independent State under the protection of Great Britain. The Rajah, H. H. Charles Vynar Brooke, son of the late Rajah, born Sept. 26, 1874, succeeded May 17, 1917. Population estimated at about 600,000, Malays, Dyaks, Kayans, Kenyahs, and Muruts, with Chinese and other settlers. The chief towns are the capital, Kuching, about 23 miles inland, on the Sarawak River, Sibu, 60 miles up the Rejang River, which is navigable by large steamers, and Miri, the headquarters of the Sarawak Oilfields, Ltd. At Kuching are Church of England and Catholic missions with schools. The revenue is derived chiefly from Customs, the opium, gambling, arrack and pawn farms, exemption tax payable by Malays, and from Dyak and Kayan revenue. There are import duties on tobacco, salt, kerosene oil, wines, spirits, firearms, jars, liquid fuel, benzine, methylated and other spirits; export duties on sago, gambier, pepper, all jungle produce, dried fish, copra, cutch, tuba root, nipa sugar. The revenue in 1921 was 331,000*l.*; expenditure, 272,000*l.* Public debt, nil. Coal exists in large quantities. A considerable oil field is being developed at Miri and Bakong in the Baram district. Foreign trade: 1921: imports, 1,501,000*l.*; exports, 1,788,000*l.* The chief exports (1921) included sago flour, 170,000*l.*; pepper, 90,000*l.*; gold, 65,000*l.*; plantation rubber, 143,000*l.*; gutta jelutong, 49,000*l.*; cutch, 69,000*l.*; benzine, 386,000*l.*; kerosene, 300,000*l.*; liquid oil fuel, 140,000*l.*; fish, 19,000*l.*; damar, 18,000*l.* The trade is mostly with Singapore. Shipping entered and cleared in the foreign trade, 1921, 399,000 tons. There are military and police forces, consisting of about 700 men, principally Dyaks and Malays, under British army officers. Round Kuching are about 45 miles of roads, besides bridle paths. There are 23 post offices. The Government offices have a telephone system extending over Kuching and Upper Sarawak, and there is communication by wireless with Singapore, &c. There are also wireless stations at Sadong, Sibu, Miri, and Goebilt. Distance from London, 8,700 miles; transit, not less than 30 days, generally more. Telegrams are sent by wireless from Singapore.

CEYLON.

Constitution and Government, &c.

Ceylon, the ancient Taprobane (Tamraparnu, the island of "dusky leaves"), is an island in the Indian Ocean, off the southern extremity of Hindustan, lying between 5° 55' and 9° 50' N. lat., and 79° 42' and 81° 53' E. long.; its extreme length from north to south, i.e., from Point Palmyra to Dondra Head, is 270 miles; its greatest width 140 miles, from Colombo on the west coast to Sangemankande on the east. Its area is 25,332 square miles, or about equal to that of Holland and Belgium.

The climate of Ceylon, for a tropical country, is comparatively healthy; the heat in the plains, which is nearly the same throughout the year, is much less oppressive than in Hindustan. Along the coast the annual mean temperature is about 81° Fahr., at Kandy, 1,665 feet above sea level, it is 76·3° Fahr. At Colombo the average monthly temperature varies from a mean minimum of 71° Fahr. in January and February, to a mean maximum of 90° Fahr. in March and April. The highest temperatures are experienced in the district to the north of the hills, and to the north-east, but it is only in a very few days in the year that a temperature of 100° Fahr. or over is experienced. The average annual rainfall varies from 40 to 50 inches in the dry zones to the north-west and south-east of the island, to above 150 inches at certain places on the south-west slopes of the hills. The rainy season extends from April to June and from September to November, but there is hardly a month without some rain, and the result is the luxuriant vegetation for which this island is famous.

The authentic history of Ceylon begins in the fifth century B.C., when an invasion of Hindus from Northern India established the Sinhalese dynasty. As a result of many generations of warfare the northern districts were occupied by Parais from South India, and the population of these districts is almost wholly Tamil, and mainly Hindu in religion. Buddhism was introduced from India in the third century B.C., and is still the religion of the majority of the inhabitants, especially in the southern part of the island.

In 1505 the Portuguese formed settlements on the west and south, which were taken from them about the middle of the next century by the Dutch. In 1796 the British Government annexed the foreign settlements to the Presidency of Madras; in 1802 Ceylon was separated from India and formed into a Crown colony. In 1815, the districts of the interior, which had maintained their independence under the Kings of Kandy, were acquired by Great Britain as the result of a rebellion against the king, and the whole island was thus united under British rule.

According to the terms of the Constitution established in 1833, modified on various occasions, and now embodied in the Order in Council dated August, 1920, the administration is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council of seven members—viz., the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Colonial Treasurer, the Government Agent of the Western Province, and three unofficial members nominated by the Governor, and a Legislative Council of 37 members (14 official and 23 unofficial) exclusive of the Governor, who presides. Of the unofficial members, 11 are elected to represent territorial divisions, 2 to represent the Europeans, 1 the Burgher Community, 1 the Chamber of Commerce, 1 the Low Country Products Association. The remaining 7 are nominated by the Governor as follows: 2 Kandyan, 1 Muhammadan, 1 Indian, and 3 to represent Special Interests.

Governor.—Brigadier-General Sir William Henry Manning, G.C.M.G., K.B.E., C.B. (appointed April 30, 1918). Salary 7,000*l.*

Colonial Secretary.—

For purposes of general administration, the island is divided into nine provinces, presided over by Government Agents, with assistants and subordinate head men. There are three municipalities, with two Urban District Councils and twenty-one local boards mainly for sanitary purposes.

Area and Population.

The population of Ceylon (exclusive of the military and the shipping) at the Census held on March 18, 1921, showed an increase of 9.6 per cent. since.

1911. The distribution by Provinces, and the average number of persons per square mile in each Province, are shown in the following table:—

The race distribution of the population at the census of 1921 and the increase per cent. since 1911, were as follows:—

Races	Population, 1921, exclusive of mili- tary shipping, and miscellaneous	Increase per cent. since 1911	Military, shipping, and miscellaneous Population
Europeans	8,999	6·7	838
Burglars	29,403	10·3	129

Verdhas	4,510	—15·4	—
Others	21,130	72·4	2,626
	4,497,854	9·6	6,695

Occupational statistics based on the results of the 1921 census are not yet available. Of the 4,106,350 persons (exclusive of the military and the shipping) at the census of 1911, the occupation of 2,631,622 or 64·1 per cent. (of whom 1,096,301 were earners and 1,535,321 dependents) was returned as agriculture; 442,011 or 10·8 per cent. (191,130 earners, 250,881 dependents) industrial occupation; 323,568 or 7·9 per cent. (186,259 earners, 137,309 dependents) trade.

The population on the principal estates, mainly consisting of immigrant Tamils from Southern India, numbered, at the census of 1921, about 569,000, and formed 12·6 per cent. of the total population. The Indian Tamils on Estates numbered 494,000.

Marriages registered, 1921, 23,100¹; births registered, 183,917 (93,519 males and 90,398 females); deaths registered, 140,749 (71,081 males and 69,668 females).

The urban population is about 13 per cent. of the total population. The principal towns and their population (exclusive of the military, shipping, and estates), according to the census of 1921, are:—Colombo, 244,000; Galle, 39,100; Jaffna, 42,400; Kandy, 32,000.

Religion and Instruction.

At the census of 1921 the numbers of adherents to the principal religions were:—Buddhists, 2,770,000; Hindus, 982,000; Muhammadans, 303,000; Christians, 443,000, exclusive of the military and the shipping.

Buddhism in Ceylon (unlike that in Tibet, China, and Japan) is, in its philosophy, materialistic and atheistic, and in popular usage has a large admixture of the doctrines and practices of popular Hinduism and of the aboriginal wild tribes.

Education is under a separate Government department with a Director, an Assistant Director, an office assistant, and a staff of Inspectors.

The number of vernacular schools in 1921 was: Government schools, 942 (attendance, 95,000 boys and 37,000 girls); Aided schools, 1,861 (attendance, 123,000 boys and 77,000 girls); Unaided schools, 1,168 (attendance, 13,000 boys and 5,300 girls). There were also 352 English and Anglo-vernacular schools, attended by 42,000 boys and 9,200 girls.

The total sum spent by Government on vernacular education in 1921 was 1,783,491 rupees.

Education is free in vernacular schools, fees are charged in English schools. The Royal College and the Government Training College with the English school attached to it are Government institutions. The other English schools are grant-in-aid schools. The total grants to English schools in 1920-21 amounted to 862,625 rupees. The Government also gives three scholarships of 300*l.* a year, each tenable for three years, with outfit allowances of 50*l.* each and free passages, to enable the best three students of each year to complete their course of education in England, and other scholarships are given locally. The Cambridge school certificate examinations, and examinations of the London University, up to and including the final bachelor's degree in arts, science and law, are held annually in Ceylon by arrangement. Technical education is given in the "Technical Schools" (520 students in 1921). There are 65 industrial schools.

Justice, Crime, and Pauperism.

The law is Roman-Dutch, modified by colonial ordinances. Kandyan Law is to a certain extent in force in the Kandyan Provinces, and special systems of personal law are recognised for the Muhammadan community, and for the Tamils of the Jaffna District. The criminal law has been codified on the principle of the Indian Penal Code. There are a Supreme Court, police courts and courts of requests, and district courts, intermediate between the latter and the Supreme Court. Village councils deal with petty offences. In 1921 the number of cases instituted in the police courts and municipal magistrates' courts was 91,010. The number of "fine" cases of cognisable crime was 14,000, and the convictions, 4,961; 12,800 convicted persons were sent to prison. Police force, December 31, 1921, 3,000 of all ranks.

There is no poor law, though a few old persons receive a charitable allowance from the Government varying from Rs. 1 to Rs. 12.50 each per mensem.

The net public debt on September 30, 1921, was 7,794,000*l.*, incurred entirely for public works, such as the construction of railways, harbour works, waterworks, etc.

Defence.

The harbour of Colombo, on the west, is protected.

In normal times Ceylon pays three-fourths of the cost of the Imperial garrison. At present the defence of the Colony is almost entirely in the hands of local troops. Compulsory service for Europeans was introduced in 1917.

Production and Industry.

The area of the colony is 16,212,000 acres, of which it is estimated that about 3,000,000 acres are under cultivation, and about 760,000 acres pasture land. The approximate areas under the principal products in 1921 were: paddy, 808,000 acres; other grain, 55,000 acres; cacao, 29,500 acres; cinnamon, 24,700 acres; tea, 418,000 acres; coconuts, 820,000 acres; rubber, 390,000 acres. In 1921, the exports of tea were 162 million lbs., of which 111 million lbs. were sent to the United Kingdom. The exports of desiccated coconuts were 871,000 cwt., copra, 1,367,000 cwt., and coconut-oil, 485,000 cwt. In the same year, 88,125,000 lbs. of rubber were exported, of which 29,582,000 lbs. went to the United Kingdom, 51,797,000 lbs. to America. In 1921, 15,230 acres of crown land were sold and settled. The live stock in 1921 was reported to amount to 2,000 horses, 1,386,000 horned cattle, 57,200 sheep, 46,100 pigs, and 150,000 goats. There is a Government Dairy, possessing over 300 head of cattle, imported from Scinde. There were 26 plumbago mines working at end of 1921. The exports of plumbago in 1921 were 87,000 cwt. Other minerals, such as gold, thorium, and monazite, exist, but, except the last-named, so far have not been found in quantities of commercial importance. There are some hundreds of small-gem quarries, from which sapphires, rubies, moonstones, catsoyes, and other gems are obtained. Native manufactures, which are at present of very minor importance, are weaving, basket work, tortoise-shell boxes, &c., earthenwares, jewellery, metal work, lacquer work, carving, &c. Manufactures on any large scale are confined to the products of agriculture, such as the production of coconut oil. In 1921 there were 1,299 registered factories, including 1,036 tea, rubber and cacao factories, 141 coconut fibre, oil, &c., factories, 56 engineering and saw mills, and 19 aerated water, ice, &c., factories.

The values of imports and exports are declared, and represent the wholesale values at the place of import or export. Declarations are subject to scrutiny and penalty. The Chamber of Commerce, as representing the trade of the island, assists by supplying the value on which a rated duty is levied. Quantities of imports are ascertained from invoices or by actual examination; of exports, from declarations and by examination of the shipping documents, shippers being liable to penalties for misstatement. The origin and destination of goods are also obtained from the shipping documents. In some cases, however, goods intended for transshipment abroad are so entered, e.g. to New York, via London. The transit trade includes all goods transhipped direct in port, as well as goods landed into transshipment warehouses. The transit trade of Colombo has largely increased of late years, but, as no bills of entry are required in respect of transshipment goods, the returns as to quantity are only approximately correct, and no returns as to value can be prepared.

Principal exports in 1921: Cacao, 135,000*l.*; cinnamon, 120,000*l.*; coir (and manufactures), 135,000*l.*; copra, 1,620,000*l.*; coconut oil, 1,002,000*l.*; tea, 7,514,000*l.* (161,611,000 lbs.); plumbago, 51,000*l.*; coconut, fresh, 157,000*l.*; coconut, desiccated, 1,773,000*l.*; areca nuts, 220,000*l.*; rubber, 3,585,000*l.* (821,000 cwt.); citronella oil, 73,000*l.*

Principal imports in 1921: Cotton manufactures, 1,647,000*l.*; rice, 4,610,000*l.*; coal and coke, 2,024,000*l.*; spirits, 140,000*l.*; sugar, raw and refined, 704,000*l.*; manures, 151,000*l.*; bullion and specie, 81,000*l.*

According to Ceylon returns the total imports from the United Kingdom in 1921 amounted to 4,363,000*l.*, and exports thereto, to 7,906,000*l.*

In 1921 (British Board of Trade Returns) the value of tea imported into the United Kingdom from Ceylon was 6,654,729*l.* (quantity, 118,755,568 lbs.). Other imports in 1921 were: rubber, 1,586,600*l.* (33,111,400 lbs.); coconut oil, 911,278*l.*; coconut, desiccated, 712,529*l.*; nuts and kernels, 262,005*l.* The principal exports of United Kingdom to Ceylon in 1921 were: cotton goods, 933,566*l.*; iron and steel goods, 652,763*l.*; machinery, 278,617*l.*; tobacco, 126,659*l.*; coal, 252,229*l.*; paper, etc., 118,993*l.* Total imports into United Kingdom, 1921, 10,683,006*l.*; 1922, 10,322,084*l.*; total exports of British produce to Ceylon, 3,949,940*l.*; 1922, 3,581,159*l.*

Shipping and Communications.

Shipping entered and cleared, 1921, 13,329,000 tons (British, 9,069,000¹ tons). In 1920, the total tonnage was 11,873,000, and British, 4,469,000. On January 1, 1922, 126 sailing vessels of 12,000 tons, and 7 steamers of 737 tons net, were registered as belonging to Ceylon.

¹ Excluding vessels which called to coal.

731 miles of railway were open at September 30, 1921, and several extensions are under construction.

In 1921 there were 566 post offices of various classes; money order offices, 199; telegraph offices, 170; postal packets or postcards passed through the post office, 54,000,000 (exclusive of parcels). 7,815 miles of telegraph wire; telegrams dealt with, 1,481,000.

Money and Credit.

Seven banks have establishments in Ceylon: the Mercantile Bank of India, the Imperial Bank of India, the National Bank of India, the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, the Eastern Bank, and the P. & O. Banking Corporation, Ltd. The Ceylon Savings Bank on December 31, 1921, had 47,000 depositors, and deposits amounting to Rs. 4,504,000; and the Post Office Savings Bank, 136,000 depositors, and deposits, Rs. 4,868,000.

The weights and measures of Ceylon are the same as those of the United Kingdom. The currency consists of:—Copper: Ceylon 1-cent and $\frac{1}{2}$ -cent pieces, $6\frac{1}{2}$ cents being equivalent to 1*l.* English. Nickel: Ceylon 5-cent piece. Silver: Indian rupee (=100 cents), equivalent to 2*s.* English; and Ceylon 50-cent, 25-cent, and 10-cent pieces. Ceylon Government currency notes of Rs. 1,000, 100, 50, 10, 5, 2, and 1. On September 30, 1921, the value of currency notes in circulation was Rs. 45,736,000.

Dependency.

The Maldivé Islands, 460 miles west of Ceylon, are governed by an elected Sultan, who resides in the island of Male, and pays a yearly tribute to the Ceylon Government. Next to the Sultan is the first Wazir, or Prime Minister, then the Fandiari, the head priest or judge, and besides them 6 Wazirs or Ministers of State. The Maldives are a group of 13 coral islets (atolls), richly clothed with coconut palms, and yielding millet, fruit, and edible nuts. Population over 70,000 Muhammadans at the 1921 census. The people are civilised, and are great navigators and traders.

CYPRUS.

Constitution and Government.—Cyprus is 40 miles from the coast of Asia Minor and 60 from the coast of Syria. At a very early date important Greek and Phœnician colonies were established in Cyprus, and later it formed part of the Persian and Roman Empires. Its government frequently changed hands until 1571, when the Turks conquered the island from the Venetians, and retained possession of it until its cession to England for administrative purposes under a convention concluded with the Sultan at Constantinople, June 4, 1878. On the outbreak of hostilities with Turkey on November 5, 1914, the island was annexed. The High Commissioner has the usual powers of a Colonial Governor. There is an Executive Council, consisting of the Chief Secretary, the King's Advocate, the Treasurer, with three locally resident additional members. The Legislature consists of eighteen members, six being office-holders, including the Chief Secretary, the King's Advocate, and the Treasurer, and twelve elected (for five years), three by Mohammedan and nine by non-Mohammedan voters. The voters are all male British subjects, or foreigners twenty-one years of age, who have resided five years, and are payers of any of the taxes known as 'Verghis.' Municipal councils exist in the principal towns, elected practically by all resident householders and ratepayers. Those eligible to the council must be voters rated upon property of the annual value of from 10*l.* to 20*l.*, according to population.

Area and Population.—Area 3,584 square miles. Population at 1921 Census: 310,709, including 61,422 Mohammedans. Population, Census 1911:—Mohammedans (Ottoman Turks) 56,428; Christians (Autocephalous Church of Cyprus), 214,480; others, 3,200; total, 274,108. Inhabitants per square mile, 76.48. Births registered 1921, 8,341; deaths, 6,213.

The principal towns are Nicosia (the capital), 18,461; Larnaca, 10,652; Limasol, 11,843; Famagusta and Varosha, 6,127; Paphos and Ktima, 3,946; Kyrenia, 1,986. There are six administrative districts named after these towns.

Instruction.—The system of Elementary Education is designed so that each race has its own schools. Besides elementary schools there were in 1921 3 Gymnasiums, a commercial Lyceum, 8 'Greek high schools' for boys and a 'high school' for girls, a Priests' Training School, and two Moslem High Schools, one for boys and one for girls. Total number of elementary schools in 1921, 762 (508 Greek-Christian, 241 Moslem, 5 Armenians, 4 Maronite, 3 Roman Catholic, and 1 Jewish); teachers, 964 in elementary schools, of whom 674 were Greek-Christian, 278 Moslem, and 12 of other denominations. Total enrolment in elementary schools, 43,690, comprising 7,400 Moslem, 35,500 Greek-Christian, 220 Armenians, 110 Maronites, 430 Latins, and 30 Jews. The Government contributed (1921) 19,000*l.* to education. Total expenditure on elementary and secondary education, 92,000*l.* There are 6 weekly newspapers in Turkish, 25 in Greek, and one in Armenian.

Justice.—The law courts are (1) a supreme court of civil and criminal appeal; (2) six assize courts, having unlimited criminal jurisdiction; (3) six district courts, having limited criminal jurisdiction and unlimited civil jurisdiction; (4) six magisterial courts with summary jurisdiction; (5) ten village judges' courts. In all, except supreme court, native (Christian and Mohammedan) judges take part. There are also 4 Sheri Courts, for Mohammedans only, which administer the Moslem Sheri or ecclesiastical law. In the year 1921 the number of offences was 14,000, and the number of persons committed to prison was 3,700. Strength of police force, December 31, 1921, 27 officers and 914 men; total, 941.

Finance.—The revenue and expenditure for five years, exclusive of Grant-in-Aid, and share of the Turkish debt charge, were:—

Chief sources of revenue, 1921:—Tithes, 187,000*l.*; excise, 78,000*l.*; customs, 124,000*l.*; sheep, goat, and pig taxes, 13,000*l.*; verghis, 29,000*l.*; court receipts and stamps, 35,000*l.*; port dues, &c., 15,000*l.*; railway, 33,000*l.* Annual grant from imperial funds to revenue (not included above), 50,000*l.* per year. Cyprus' share of Turkish national debt, 92,800*l.* per year (excluded from above table).

Public debt, 1921-22, 215,000*l.*, for harbour, railways, and irrigation.

Production.—Chief agricultural products in 1921: wheat, 2,425,000 kiles; barley, 2,145,000 kiles; vetches, 173,000 kiles; oats, 209,000 kiles; olives, cotton. Grapes are produced in large quantities. Other products are raisins, carobs (locust beans), fruit, potatoes, linseed, silk, cheese, wool, hides, and (by the Department of Agriculture) origanum oil. In 1922 there were 291,000 sheep, and 230,000 goats. One-third of cultivable land is under cultivation. There are irrigation works for the storage and distribution of rain-water. The Forest Department has done much for the preservation and development of the forests existing at the time of the British occupation, and for the re-afforestation of denuded districts. The area of delimited forest is 700 square miles. Sponge fisheries are carried on, the take in 1921 being about 3,929 sponges (224 lbs). Gypsum, terra umbra and marble are found in abundance; mining for copper has commenced; asbestos is mined, 4,500 cwts. being exported in 1918; 27,000 cwts. in 1919; 18,000 cwts. in 1920; and 18,000 cwts. in 1921.

Commerce.—The commerce, and the shipping, exclusive of coasting trade, for five calendar years were:—

—	1913 (pre-war)	1918	1919	1920	1921
Merchandise:—	£	£	£	£	£
Imports . . .	619,337	1,013,582	1,525,427	2,068,759	1,449,247

The import value is that at the port of arrival, and includes cost, freight, and other charges; the export value is that at the port of shipment when the goods are ready for exportation. Quantities and values are ascertained from declarations by importers and exporters, verified in the case of dutiable imports by actual weighing and measuring. The countries of origin and of destination of goods are also obtained from declarations checked by invoices or bills of lading when necessary.

Chief imports, 1921:—Butter, 10,000*l.*; coffee, raw, 17,000*l.*; flour, 81,000*l.*; fish, 14,000*l.*; rice, 24,000*l.*; sugar, 69,000*l.*; tobacco in leaf, 65,000*l.*; coal, 15,000*l.*; petrol and benzine, 21,000*l.*; petroleum, 56,000*l.*; cotton yarn and thread, 87,000*l.*; cotton piece goods, 166,000*l.*; chemical manure, 1,000*l.*; glass and glass-ware, 11,000*l.*; haberdashery and millinery, 21,000*l.*; hardware and cutlery, 13,000*l.*; iron and steel manufactures, 16,000*l.*; leather and leather manufactures, 69,000*l.*; machinery, 38,000*l.*; medicines, 17,000*l.*; motor car, 23,000*l.*; paper (cigarette), 12,000*l.*; sacks, 16,000*l.*; silk manufactures, 22,000*l.*; soap, 37,000*l.*; woollen manufactures, 56,000*l.*

Money, etc.—The Bank of Cyprus, the Imperial Ottoman Bank and the Bank of Athens have establishments in the island. The Government Savings Bank (begun in 1903) had, at the end of 1921, 313 depositors, with 18,000*l.* to their credit. Coins current—Cyprus silver, namely, 18 copper piastres, 9 c.p., 4½ c.p. and 3 c.p. (9 piastres=one shilling). Government currency notes, of 10*l.*, 1*l.*, and 10*s.* denominations, are also in circulation under Proclamations under martial law, the value at March 31, 1922, being 524,000*l.* Weights and measures are as follows:—Length: 1 Cyprus Pic = ½ yard; Weight: 1 Oke = 2·8 lb.; Capacity: 1 Kile = 8 Imperial gallons.

Communications, etc.—There are 466 miles of motor roads, 342 miles of good carriage roads, and 1913 miles of village roads; 245 miles of telegraph lines; cable connects with Alexandria. A narrow gauge Government railway runs from Famagusta (where harbour works were completed in 1906) through Nicosia and Morphou to Evrykhon (76 miles). Total number of letters, postcards, newspapers, book-packets, and parcels delivered in Cyprus, 1921-22: local, 1,491,000; received from abroad, 788,000; posted for foreign countries, 569,000. Telephones are extensively used for the conduct of government business.

HONG KONG.

Constitution and Government.

THE Crown Colony of Hong Kong was ceded by China to Great Britain in January, 1841; the cession was confirmed by the treaty of Nanking, in August, 1842; and the charter bears date April 5, 1843. Hong Kong is the great centre for British commerce with China and Japan, and a military and naval station of first-class importance.

The administration is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, composed of the General Officer Commanding the Troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Treasurer, the Secretary for Chinese Affairs, and the Director of Public Works (the last two being special appointments), and three unofficial members. There is also a Legislative Council, presided over by the Governor, and composed of the General Officer Commanding the Troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Treasurer, the Director of Public Works, the Director of Education, the Secretary for Chinese Affairs (the last three being special appointments), and six unofficial members—viz., four nominated by the Crown (two of whom are Chinese), one nominated by the Chamber of Commerce, and one by the Justices of the Peace.

Governor—Sir R. E. Stubbs, K.C.M.G. Appointed 1919. Salary 6,000*l.*, including 1,200*l.* allowance.

Area and Population.

Hong Kong is situated at the mouth of the Canton River, about 90 miles south of Canton. The island is an irregular and broken ridge, stretching nearly east and west about 11 miles, its breadth from 2 to 5 miles, and its area rather more than 32 square miles; separated from the mainland by a narrow strait, the Lyeemoon Pass, about half a mile in width. The opposite peninsula of Kowloon, on the mainland, was ceded to Great Britain by treaty in 1861, and now forms part of Hong Kong. The city of Victoria extends for upwards of five miles along the southern shore of the beautiful harbour. By a convention signed at Peking on June 9, 1898, there was leased to Great Britain for 99 years a portion of Chinese territory mainly agricultural, together with the waters of Mira Bay and Deep Bay and the island of Lan-tao. Its area is 356 square miles, with about 94,000 inhabitants, exclusively Chinese. Area of Old Kowloon is 3 square miles. Total area of colony, 391 square miles. A scheme was begun at the end of 1916 for reclaiming 12 million square feet of land from the sea in Kowloon Bay, and erecting thereon a model town.

The population of Hong Kong, excluding the Military and Naval establishments, was estimated to be in the middle of 1921 as follows:—Non-Chinese civil population, 14,100; Chinese civil population: City of Victoria (including Peak), 360,000; villages of Hong Kong, 18,360; Kowloon (including New Kowloon), 120,000; New Territories (land), 100,800; population afloat, 73,420; total Chinese population, 672,580; total civil population, 686,680; 1921 Census returns: 12,856 Non-Chinese, 612,310 Chinese; total 625,166.

The registered births and deaths for five years were as follows:—

Year	Births	Deaths	Births per 1,000 ¹	Deaths per 1,000 ¹
1914	3,001	9,585	7.3	23.3
1918	2,321	13,714	4.1	24.4
1919	2,194	11,647	4.3	23.2
1920	2,420	12,419	4.4	21.2
1921	3,618	11,880	6.1	20.3

In 1917 the number of Chinese emigrants was 96,298, and the number of immigrants 98,232; in 1918, 43,830 and 74,109; in 1919, 59,969 and 136,020; in 1920, 105,258 and 122,438; and in 1921, 156,011 and 159,064 respectively.

Instruction.

Education is not compulsory, but all schools are State-inspected, and required to maintain a certain standard of efficiency. There are 3 secondary Government schools for children of British parentage, with an average attendance of 209 (1921), and 9 Government schools for Chinese boys and one for Chinese girls, with a total average attendance of 2,542. There is one school for Indians, with an average attendance of 93 (1921). There are also numerous schools in receipt of grants. The total number of pupils in all schools in 1921 was 35,282. The University Matriculation Examination serves the purpose of a leaving examination. The total expenditure on education in 1921 was 478,583 dollars, net.

The Hong Kong University was formally opened in March, 1912, and in 1922 the number of students was 250, mostly Chinese. Faculties of Medicine, Engineering and Arts have been established, with a large staff of British professors and lecturers. There are well-equipped scientific laboratories, and recent additions are schools for instruction in physiology, pathology, and tropical medicine. In 1922, the Rockefeller Foundation contributed the sum of 500,000 dollars as endowment for chairs of surgery and medicine, and in 1921 Sir Robert Ho Tung, LL.D., contributed the sum of 100,000 dollars for the erection of the Ho Tung engineering workshops. The engineering laboratories have been equipped with machinery presented by various firms who are interested in technical education. It is the only British University in the Far East.

Justice and Crime.

There are Courts of Justice consisting of a Supreme Court, the second court or Court of Summary Jurisdiction, and a third court or Appeal Court, a police magistrate's court, and a marine magistrate's court. In 1921, 1,732 were committed to Victoria gaol for criminal offences; in 1920, 1,999. The daily average of prisoners in gaol was 755 in 1920, and 764 in 1921. There is a police force in the colony numbering 1,341 men, of whom 185 are Europeans, 430 Indians, and 726 Chinese.

Finance.

The public revenue and expenditure of the colony were as follows in five years. The dollar of Hong Kong is of variable value; for 1913 it is here taken at 2s., for 1917 at 2s. 7½d., for 1918 at 3s. 2½d., for 1919 at 3s. 8½d., for 1920 at 3s. 8½d., for 1921 2s. 8d.

Year	Revenue	Expenditure
1913 (pre-war)	851,230	865,801
1917	1,960,690	1,834,743
1918	3,613,676	2,624,027
1919	3,981,220	3,340,574
1920	2,738,000	2,701,600
1921	2,363,750	2,098,620

The revenue is derived chiefly from land-taxes, licences, quarry rent, liquor and tobacco duties, and an opium monopoly. A large portion of the expenditure has to be devoted to the maintenance of a strong police force. Expenditure on establishments in 1921, 7,224,963 dollars. The estimates for 1922 are: revenue, 17,276,260 dollars; expenditure, 20,198,980 dollars.

Public debt, 341,800*l.*, raised in 1887 and 1893 for public works. Another loan, 1,143,933*l.* in Inscribed Stock at 3½ per cent., was raised in 1906 for purposes of railway construction, also a 6 per cent. War Loan of 3,000,000 dollars was authorised. On December 31, 1921, the balance of assets over liabilities was 6,478,746 dollars.

Defence.

The military contribution payable to the Imperial Government was 2,286,786 dollars for 1921. The Defence Corps cost 31,867 dollars for 1921. Hong Kong is the headquarters of the China Squadron.

Industry, Commerce, Shipping, and Communications.

The chief industries of Hong Kong are sugar refining, ship-building and repairing, rope-making, tin refining, tobacco manufacture, the manufacture of cement, and the manufacture of knit goods. Deep-sea fishing is important, especially for the New Territories.

The commerce of Hong Kong is chiefly with Great Britain, India and Ceylon, Australia, United States, China, Japan, Indo-China, and Siam. Hong Kong is a freeport (except as regards the importation of intoxicating liquor and tobacco). There were no complete official returns of trade prior to 1918, but complete trade and shipping returns are now officially compiled and published quarterly and annually. Hong Kong is the centre of trade in many kinds of goods. Among the principal are sugar and flour, rice, cotton, cotton yarn and cotton piece goods, silk, hemp, leather, tin, wolframite, bulk and case oil (kerosene), oils and fats, peanuts, Chinese medicines, fish and fishery products, tea, coral, cement, condensed milk, matches. The Chinese tea and silk trade is largely in the hands of Hong Kong firms.

Imports into Hong Kong in 1921 : from the British Empire, 17,297,113*l*. (United Kingdom only, 8,457,269*l*.); from foreign countries, 64,643,041*l*.; total imports, 81,940,154*l*. (1920 total, 135,686,936*l*.). Exports from Hong Kong in 1921 : to the British Empire, 9,336,519*l*. (United Kingdom only, 781,741*l*.); to China, 55,392,945*l*.; to other foreign countries, 20,943,770*l*.; total exports, 85,673,234*l*. (total, 1920, 153,662,582*l*.).

26,063 vessels, including 13,742 junks and 3,336 steam-launches, representing altogether 13,948,083 tons, entered in 1921, and 26,134 vessels, including 13,783 junks and 3,351 steam-launches, representing 13,904,531 tons, cleared in 1921.¹ The number of fishing and other boats frequenting the harbour and bays of Hong Kong in 1921 may be estimated at about 19,000.

There is an electric tramway of 9½ miles, and a cable tramway connecting The Peak district with the lower levels of Victoria. The British section of the Hong Kong-Canton Railway was begun in 1907, and opened to traffic on October 1, 1910. The branch line from Fanling to Sha Tau Kok was completed and opened to traffic in April, 1912.

There were 17 post offices in Hong Kong in 1921; revenue, postal and telegraphic, 663,914 dollars; expenditure, 306,670 dollars. Telegraph lines, including cables, 1921, 283 miles; telephone wires, excluding military lines, 15,454 miles. There is a wireless telegraph service under the control of the Post Office, besides a military and naval wireless station.

Money and Credit.

The British banking institutions in the Colony are the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, whose head office is at Hong Kong, the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, and the Mercantile Bank of India, Ltd. Note circulation of these banks, end of 1921, 50,790,865 dollars. There are also several Chinese and foreign banks.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The currency of the Colony consists of the notes of the above-mentioned banks, and of British, Hong Kong, and Mexican dollars, besides subsidiary coins. The British Dollar is of 416 grains of silver 990 fine, as compared with 417.74 grains of 902.7 fineness of the Mexican dollar.

Subsidiary coins are 50 cent pieces (209.52 grains 800 fine), 20 cent pieces (83.81 grains 800 fine), 10 cent pieces (41.90 grains 800 fine), 5 cent pieces (20.95 grains 800 fine), and 1 cent copper pieces of 115.75 grains of copper or mixed metal.

The circulation of foreign copper coin was prohibited in 1912, and similar action is being taken with regard to foreign silver and nickel coins and bank notes.

Weights and Measures are:

The Tael	= 1½ oz. avoirdupois.
„ Piul	= 133½ lbs.
„ Catty	= 1½ „ „
„ Chok	= 1½ inches.
„ Chewng	= 12½ feet.

Besides the above weights and measures of China, those of Great Britain are in general use in the Colony.

INDIA AND DEPENDENCIES.

INDIA, as defined by Parliament (52 and 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 18), comprises all that part of the great Indian Peninsula which is directly or indirectly under British rule or protection. In a popular sense it includes also certain countries such as Nepal, which are beyond that area, but whose relations with India are a concern of the Foreign and Political Department of the Government, whose envoy resides in the country concerned. These countries will be found included in the third part of the YEAR-BOOK among Foreign Countries. The term British India includes only the districts subject to British law, and does not include Indian States. The term is so used, unless otherwise stated, in the tables, &c., that follow. The symbol Rx. stands for ten rupees. Rx. 1 = Rs. 10.

Government and Constitution.

The present form of government of the Indian Empire is established by various Parliamentary Statutes which are now consolidated in the Government of India Act, 1915, as amended by the Government of India (Amendment) Act, 1916, and the Government of India Act, 1919. All the territories originally under the government of the East India Company are vested in His Majesty, and all its powers are exercised in his name; all revenues, tributes and other payments, are received in his name, and disposed of for the purposes of the government of India alone. Under the Royal Titles Act, 1876, the King of Great Britain and Ireland has the additional title of Emperor of India.

It is the declared policy of Parliament to provide for "the increasing association of Indians in every branch of the administration and the gradual development of self-governing institutions with a view to the progressive realisation of responsible government in India as an integral part of the British Empire."

Government in England.—The administration of the Indian Empire in England is entrusted to a Secretary of State for India, assisted by a Council of not less than eight and not more than twelve members, appointed for five years by the Secretary of State. At least one-half of the members must be persons who have served or resided ten years in India, and have not left India more than five years previous to their appointment. A member may be removed by His Majesty upon an address from both Houses of Parliament, and the Secretary of State may for special reasons, to be recorded in a minute signed by him and placed before both Houses of Parliament, reappoint a member of the Council for a further term of five years. No member can sit in Parliament. The duties of the Council, which has no initiative authority, are to conduct the business transacted in the United Kingdom in relation to the government of India. The expenditure of the revenues of India, both in India and elsewhere, is subject to the control of the Secretary of State in Council, and no appropriation can be made without the concurrence of a majority of votes of the Council. The Secretary of State regulates the transaction of business. The existence of a Legislative Assembly in India with a large elected majority renders it desirable that the Secretary of State should intervene only in exceptional circumstances in matters of purely Indian interest, where the Government and Legislature of India are in agreement.

In exercise of the power given by the Government of India Act, a High Commissioner for India in the United Kingdom has been appointed to act as agent of the Governor-General of India in Council, and on behalf of provincial governments in prescribed cases, and to conduct any business assigned to him by the Secretary of State in Council.

The salary of the Secretary of State must, and the cost of the India Office for other than agency services may, be borne by the British, and not, as formerly, by the Indian Exchequer.

Central Indian Government.—The supreme executive authority in India is vested in the Governor-General in Council, often styled the Government of India. The Governor-General, or Viceroy, is appointed by the Crown, and usually holds office for five years. The Capital of the Empire and the seat of government was moved from Calcutta to Delhi in 1912, the latter being formed into a separate territory under a Chief Commissioner.

Viceroy and Governor-General of India.—His Excellency the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Reading, P.C., G.C.B., G.M.S.I., G.M.L.E., G.C.V.O. (April, 1921).

The salary of the Governor-General is Rs. 2,56,000 a year.

The following is a list of the Governors-General of India, with the dates of their assumption of office:—

Warren Hastings	1774	Lord Canning	1856
Sir John Macpherson	1785	Earl of Elgin	1862
Earl (Marquis) Cornwallis	1786	Sir John (Lord) Lawrence	1864
Sir John Shore (Lord Teignmouth)	1793	Earl of Mayo	1869
Marquis Wellesley	1798	Lord (Earl of) Northbrook	1872
Marquis Cornwallis	1805	Lord (Earl) Lytton	1876
Sir Geo. H. Barlow	1805	Marquis of Ripon	1880
Earl of Minto	1807	Earl (Marquis) of Dufferin	1884
Earl of Moira (Marquis of Hastings)	1813	Marquis of Lansdowne	1888
Earl Amherst	1823	Earl of Elgin	1894
Lord W. C. Bentinck	1828	Marquis Curzon of Kedleston	1899
Lord Auckland	1836	Earl of Minto	1905
Lord Ellenborough	1842	Lord Hardinge of Penshurst	1910
Sir H. (Lord) Hardinge	1844	Viscount Chelmsford	1916
Earl (Marquis) of Dalhousie	1848	Earl of Reading	1921

Until 1834 these were Governors-General of Fort William in Bengal, not of India.

There is an Indian Legislature consisting of the Governor-General and two Chambers, the Council of State and the Legislative Assembly. The Legislature was formally opened on February 9, 1921. The Council of State consists of not more than 60 members, of whom not more than 20 are officials. The Legislative Assembly contains 144 members, of whom 26 are official members and 103 are elected. The life of the Council of State is five years, and of the Assembly three years, but dissolution may occur sooner, or the period may be specially extended by the Governor-General. Joint sittings of the two Chambers may be held for the settlement of differences between them. The Legislative Assembly is presided over by a President appointed by the Governor-General. This Legislature has power, subject to certain restrictions, to make laws for all persons within British India, for all British subjects within other parts of India, and for all native Indian subjects of the King in any part of the world. The Governor-General, with the assent of His Majesty, conveyed after copies of the proposed enactment have been laid before both Houses of the British Parliament, may enact certain measures against the wish of the Council or Assembly.

The various departments of Government are in charge of the Governor-General's Executive Council. This body has no fixed number of members (there were eight in Dec., 1922), but at least three of them must have had ten years' service in India, and one must be a barrister or pleader of not less than 10 years' standing. There are (1922) eleven departments—Home, Foreign and Political, Finance, Army, Public Works, Revenue and Agriculture, Commerce, Legislative, Education and Health, Railways, and Industries. At the head of each, except Railways, is one of the secretaries to the Government of India. The President of the Railway Board is the head of the Railway Department, and he is authorised to act as if he were a Secretary to the Government of India. The Foreign and Political Department is under the immediate superintendence of the Governor-General.

Madras: Governor, Rt. Hon. Baron Willington of Rotton, G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., G.B.E. (1919); salary, Rs. 1,20,000 per year. Area, 142,000 square miles; population, at 1921 census, nearly 42½ millions, mainly Hindus.

Bengal: Governor, Rt. Hon. the Earl of Lyttel (1922); salary, Rs. 1,20,000 per year. The province was reconstituted from April 1, 1912, and has an area of 78,700 square miles, and a population (1921 census) of over 46½ millions, mainly Hindus and Mahomedans in almost equal proportions.

United Provinces of Agra and Oudh: Governor, Sir W. S. Marris, K.C.S.I., K.C.I.E. (1922); salary, Rs. 1,20,000 per year. Area, over 107,000 square miles, and population at 1921 census, over 45½ millions.

The Punjab: Governor, Sir E. D. MacLagan, K.C.S.I., K.C.I.E.; salary, Rs. 1,00,000 per year. Area, 99,000 square miles; population (1921), over 20½ millions.

Burma¹: Governor, Sir H. Butler, G.C.I.E., K.C.S.I. (1922); salary, Rs. 1,00,000 per year. Area, nearly 231,000 square miles; population (1921), over 13 millions, mainly Buddhists.

Bihar and Orissa: Governor, Sir Henry Wheeler (1922); salary, Rs. 1,00,000 per year. The province was constituted from April 1, 1912, out of Bengal, and contains the three great sub-provinces of Bihar, Orissa, and Chota Nagpur. Area, over 83,000 square miles, and population (1921), nearly 34 millions, mainly Hindus.

Central Provinces and Berar: Governor, Sir F. G. Sly, K.C.S.I. (1920); salary, Rs. 72,000 per year. Area, nearly 100,000 square miles; population (1921) nearly 14 millions, mainly Hindus.

Assam: Governor, Sir J. H. Kerr, K.C.I.E. (1922); salary, Rs. 66,000 per year. The province was separated from Eastern Bengal and reconstituted from April, 1912. Area, 53,000 square miles; population (1921), over 7½ millions, over half being Hindus, and over a quarter Mahomedans.

¹The diarchial system was inaugurated in Burma on Jan. 2, 1923.

N.W. Frontier Province : Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor-General, Sir J. L. Maffey, K.C.V.O., C.S.I., C.I.E. (1921) ; salary, Rs. 48,000 per year. Area, 13,400 square miles ; population (1921) $2\frac{1}{2}$ millions, mainly Mahomadians.

Ajmer-Merwara : Agent to the Governor-General, Rajputana, and Chief Commissioner, The Honourable R. E. Holland, C.S.I., C.I.E. (1919) ; salary, Rs. 48,000 per year. Area, 2,700 square miles ; population (1921), about 500,000, mainly Hindus.

Cooch : Chief Commissioner, The Honourable Mr. W. P. Barton, C.S.I., C.I.E. (1920) ; salary, Rs. 48,000 per year. Area, 1,580 square miles ; population (1921), 164,000, mainly Hindus.

Baluchistan : Agent to the Governor-General and Chief Commissioner, The Honourable Lt.-Col. Sir A. B. Dew, K.C.I.E., C.S.I., (1919) ; salary, Rs. 48,000 per year. Area, over 54,000 square miles ; population (1921), over 420,000, mainly Mahomadians.

Delhi : Chief Commissioner, The Honourable Mr. C. A. Barron, C.S.I., C.I.E. (1919) ; salary, Rs. 36,000 per year. This province was constituted from October 1, 1912, and consists of a small enclave in the Punjab. Area, 557 square miles ; population (1921), about 488,000.

Andaman and Nicobar Islands : Chief Commissioner, Lt.-Col. H. C. Beadon, C.I.E., I.A. (1920) ; salary, Rs. 36,000 per year. Area, 3,140 square miles ; population (1921), nearly 27,000.

High Commissioner in England.—D. M. Dalal, C.I.E. (appointed January 1923), 42, Grosvenor Gardens, London.

Provincial Government.—The Government of India Act, 1919, which came into operation in December, 1920, and January, 1921, effected important constitutional changes, more particularly in the government of the Provinces. The various functions of government are classified as Central and Provincial subjects, the latter being practically definitely committed to the Provincial Governments, while for purposes of convenience, certain Central subjects, such as the collection of income tax, may be dealt with by the Provincial Governments as the agents of the Central Government. The Governor-General in Council retains unimpaired powers of control over the Provincial Governments in their administration of 'reserved' subjects, but in 'transferred' subjects will only be competent to intervene where it is necessary to safeguard Central subjects or to decide questions where two or more Provinces are concerned, or to safeguard the due exercise and performance of any powers and duties possessed by or imposed on the Governor-General in Council in regard to the High Commissioner, to the raising of loans by local Governments, or under rules made by the Secretary of State in Council. The list of subjects transferred to Indian Ministers, with certain reservations, includes local self-government, medical administration, public health and sanitation, education, public works, agriculture, fisheries, co-operative societies, excise, registration, development of industries, adulteration, weights and measures, and religious and charitable endowments. Certain sources of revenue are definitely allocated to the Provinces, which are required to contribute to the Central Government certain annual sums which are to be the first charge on their revenues.

The new Provincial Governments are based upon a scheme of diarchy, or dualised form of government, and consist of the Governor-in-Council and the Governor acting with Ministers. The Ministers, who are elected members of the Legislative Council, have charge of certain Departments of Government known as 'transferred subjects,' while others, the 'reserved subjects,' are administered by the Governor-in-Council. Thus each side has its share in the conduct of the Government, with responsibility for its own work, while co-ordination is achieved by the influence of the Governor, who is associated with both sections.

The Governor's Executive Council consists of not more than four members, one qualified by twelve years' public service in India. The Legislative Council contains not more than twenty per cent. of official members and at least seventy per cent. elected members, and, in addition to its legislative functions, votes all expenditure, subject to certain specified exceptions and to the power of the Local Government to incur expenditure on reserved subjects without the Council's assent if the Governor certifies such expenditure to be necessary. The normal duration of the Legislative Council is three years, but it may be dissolved sooner by the Governor, or its term specially extended for one year. The Ministers who assist the Governor in the administration of transferred subjects are not to be officials. The Governor may not be a member of the Legislative Council, but may address the Council. (In Madras the franchise has been extended to women).

The Provinces to which this new form of government is applied are Bengal, Madras, Bombay, Bihar and Orissa, United Provinces, Punjab, Central Provinces, and Assam. The minimum number of members in each Legislative Council is: Madras, 118; Bombay, 111; Bengal, 125; United Provinces, 118; Punjab, 83; Bihar and Orissa, 98; Central Provinces, 70; Assam, 53. The numbers may be increased, and in several provinces increases have already been made. It has been decided to apply the new form of government to Burma.

The provinces are usually formed into divisions under Commissioners, and then divided into districts, which are the units of administration. At the head of each district is an executive officer (collector and magistrate, or deputy-commissioner), who has entire control of the district, subject to the control of his official superior district officer. Subordinate to the magistrate (in most districts) there are a joint magistrate, an assistant-magistrate, and one or more deputy-collectors and other officials. There are 267 of such districts in British India.

Government of Indian States.—The control which the Supreme Government exercises over the Indian States varies considerably in degree; but they are all governed by the Indian princes, ministers, or councils. The princes have no right to make war or peace, or to send ambassadors to each other or to external States; they are not permitted to maintain a military force above a certain specified limit; no European can be employed by them without special sanction; and the Supreme Government can exercise control in case of misgovernment. Within these limits the more important princes are autonomous in their own territories. Some, but not all of them, are required to pay an annual fixed tribute. The total number of Indian States is about 700, ranging from Hyderabad, with an area of over 82,000 square miles and a population of 12½ millions, to small States consisting of only a few villages.

In recent years the Princes have met in conferences at the invitation of the Viceroy, but in February, 1921, a Council of Princes was established as a permanent consultative body to discuss matters relating to treaties, or affairs of Imperial or common concern.

LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT.

There were at the end of 1919-20, 739 municipalities, with a population of over 17 millions. The total number of members of the municipal bodies was 10,187, of whom 5,886 were elected. The municipal bodies have the care and lighting of the roads, water supply, drainage, sanitation, medical relief, vaccination, and education, particularly primary education; they impose taxes, enact bye-laws, make improvements, and spend money, with the sanction of the Provincial Government. Their aggregate income in 1919-20 was about 11,410,000*l.*, exclusive of loans, sales of securities, and other extraordinary receipts amounting to 9,574,000*l.* The aggregate expenditure was 11,293,000*l.*, excluding extraordinary and debt expenditure of 9,673,000*l.* By the Local Self-Government Acts of 1883-84, the elective principle was extended, in a large or small measure, all over India. In all larger towns, and in many of the smaller towns, the majority of members of committees are elected by the ratepayers: everywhere the majority of town committees consists of Indians, and in many committees all the members are Indians. In many municipalities women have the right to vote, and in a few they are eligible for election. For rural tracts, except in Burma, there were 732 district and sub-district Boards, and 588 Union Panchayats in Madras, 385 Union Committees in Bengal, and 49 in Bihar and Orissa, with 17,496 members in 1919-20, 8,054 being elected. These Boards are in charge of roads, district schools, markets, public health institutions, &c. Their aggregate income in 1919-20, excluding debt items, was 9,295,000*l.*, and expenditure (excluding debt items), 8,735,000*l.* (Rs. 10=1*l.*)

Baroda —This consists of five or six larger, and a considerable number of smaller separate areas. Ruler, H. H. Sir Sayaji Rao Gaekwar, G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., Maharaja of Baroda. There is an executive council of the principal officers of State, and, since 1908, a legislative council of 17 members. Educational policy is progressive, and education is largely free and compulsory. The gross receipts in 1917-18 were about 1,66,10,000 rupees, and the disbursements about 1,49,05,000.

Central India Agency.—This includes some 150 States. The bulk of the population are Hindus. The Indian Government is represented by an Agent at Indore, and under him are Political Agents for Baghelkhand, Bundelkhand, Bhopal, Southern States of Central India, and Malwa. The territories of the different States are much divided and intermingled, and their political relations with the Indian Government and with one another are very varied. Most of the ruling princes and chiefs exercise authority through a Diwan or Minister. Education is progressing, but varies greatly in different States. The annual revenue of the whole group is approximately 600,000*l*.

Gwalior.—Ruler, Lieut.-General H. H. Maharaja Sir Madho Rao Scindia, G.C.S.I., G.C.V.O., G.B.E. The State is in direct relations with the Government of India through a Resident. The administration is carried on by His Highness with the assistance of a State Council. The bulk of the population are Hindus. The revenue of the State in 1919-20 was approximately Rs. 19,000,000.

Hyderabad.—Ruler, Lieutenant-General H. E. H. Sir Usman Ali Khan, G.C.S.I., G.B.E., Nizam of Hyderabad. This is the largest and most populous of the internal States. The administration is carried on, subject to the order of H. E. H. the Nizam, by an executive council. A Legislative Council was established in 1893, and consists of about 20 members. The British Government is represented by a Resident. The bulk of the population are Hindus, but the ruling family is Muhammadan. European officers and experts control and supervise some of the more important branches of administration. The annual revenue is approximately 3,000,000*l*.

Kashmir.—This State occupies most of the northernmost portion of India, and is administered by Lieutenant-General H. H. Maharaja Sir Pratap Singh, G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., G.B.E., Maharaja of Jammu and Kashmir, with the assistance of ministers, the Indian Government being represented by a Resident. The revenue in 1917-18 was 903,000*l*. and the expenditure 859,000*l*. The bulk of the population are Muhammadans, though the ruling family is Hindu.

Mysore.—Ruler, Colonel H. H. Maharaja Sri Sir Krishnaraja Wadiyar Bahadur, G.C.S.I., G.B.E., Maharaja of Mysore. The administration is carried on under him by the Diwan or Prime Minister, assisted by two Councillors. The Indian Government is represented by a Resident. There is a Representative Assembly dating from 1881, elected by the leading ryots, merchants, and local bodies. It meets for a few days annually for discussion, but has no powers. A Legislative Council was formed in 1907 consisting of from 13 to 18 members. The bulk of the population are Hindus. The education system is on a high level. Primary education was made free in all schools in 1908. The revenue in 1919-20 was 3,34,64,000 rupees.

North West Frontier Province.—Only about one-third of this is British territory, lying along the Punjab border. Between this and the Afghan frontier is the tribal territory. The British Government exercises the minimum of interference. The region is divided into five Political Agencies: Northern Waziristan, Southern Waziristan, the Kurram, the Khyber, and Dir, Swat, and Chitral. Only in the last can anything approaching an organised State be said to exist. Free primary education was introduced in April, 1912.

Rajputana Agency.—Rajputana includes 21 States surrounding the British province of Ameer-Merwara. The Indian Government is represented by an Agent at Abu, and under him are three Residents (for Mewar, Jaimur, and W. Rajputana), and three Political Agents (for E. Rajputana, S. Rajputana, Kotah and Jhalawar, and Haroti and Tonk). The bulk of the population are Hindus. The administration varies considerably from State to State, but generally the central authority is in the hands of the ruling prince or chief, who is usually assisted by a Council or by a Diwan or Kamdar. Education is generally backward. The approximate annual revenue of the whole of the States is about 2,500,000/

¹ The rates for the two years are calculated on the 1911 census population.

The registered deaths in 1920 numbered 7,355,654, of which cholera accounted for 130,140; plague, 99,358; fevers, 4,931,202; dysentery and diarrhoea, 218,734. The total deaths from plague in all India (British and native) from 1896 to the end of 1920 exceeded 10 millions, averaging nearly half a million per year.

The number of coolie emigrants from India was in 1917-18, 1,028; 1918-19 351; 1919-20, 221. The emigration of unskilled labour has been prohibited, and it has been decided not to revive indentured emigration. The question of the introduction of a system of assisted emigration is under consideration.

Instruction.

The following statistics are those of the census of 1911 :—

	Able to read and write	Unable to read and write	Total
Males	16,938,668	143,480,620	160,419,288
Females	1,600,763	151,397,030	152,997,793
	18,539,431	294,877,650	313,417,081

This number falls short of the total population of British India by 1,739,315 persons enumerated in tracts where literacy was not recorded.

The persons with a knowledge of English numbered 1·7 millions.

Educational institutions in India are of two classes :—(a) those in which the course of study conforms to the standards prescribed by the Department of Public Instruction or by the Universities, and either undergo inspection by the Department, or regularly present pupils at the public examinations held by the Department or Universities. These institutions are called "Public," but may be under public or private management. (b) Those that do not fulfil these conditions. These are called "Private." As regards public institutions, the system of education operates, in general, through (i) the Primary Schools, which aim at teaching, through the vernacular languages, reading, writing, and other elementary knowledge; (ii) the Secondary Schools, in which the instruction does not go beyond the matriculation or school-leaving certificate standard. The schools are divided into English or vernacular, and also into high and middle schools; (iii) the Colleges, the students in which, having passed matriculation, are reading for a degree. The colleges are affiliated to six federal universities—Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, the Punjab, Allahabad, and Patna. There are also three unitary teaching and residential universities—Dacca, Lucknow and Rangoon; two denominational universities—the Hindu University at Benares, and the Muslim University at Aligarh; and two universities in Indian States—Mysore and Hyderabad (Deccan). Some statistics for the universities in 1920 are given in the following table :—

(a) No examination in M.Sc. or B.Sc. or I.Sc.

(b) There is a School Final Examination also.

NOTE.—Candidates from Indian States and Ceylon are not included in the above table.

140 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—INDIA AND DEPENDENCIES

There are in addition, various institutions of a special character, such as technical schools teaching arts and industries, engineering, &c.; law schools; medical schools and colleges; and training colleges and normal schools for the training of teachers.

The following table gives the number of institutions and scholars in 1919-20 in British India, including Ajmer-Merwara, British Baluchistan, and Civil and Military Station of Bangalore:—

A system of State Scholarships exists by which it is possible for a boy to pass from the village school to the University. There are also State Scholarships, awarded by local Governments, to enable the holders to study in the United Kingdom for two or more years.

Notwithstanding the recent great progress of education, the proportion able to read and write is still very small.

During 1919-20 the following newspapers were published: in Madras, 252; Bombay, 169; Bengal, 122; United Provinces, 135; Punjab, 106; Burma, 58; Bihar and Orissa, 23; Central Provinces and Berar, 36; Delhi, 25. They were published in the following languages or dialects: English, Bengali, Hindi, Uriya, Kanarese, Sindhi, Sanskrit, Burmese, Chinese Urdu, Persian, Gujrathi, Marathi, Karen, Pwo-Karen, Sagau-Karen, Tamil, Telegu, Malayalam, Arabic, Hindustani, Khasi, Lushai, Ajmer, Merwara, and Gurmukhi. (The figures include bilingual and polylingual publications.)

Justice and Crime.

The Presidencies of Madras, Bombay, and Bengal, and also the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the province of Bihar and Orissa, and the provinces of the Punjab and Delhi, have each a supreme high court, with 12, 8, 15, 9, 3, 7 and 8 judges, respectively, in 1920. There is appeal to the Privy Council in England. The Central Provinces and Berar, Oudh, North-West Frontier Province, Coorg, Sind, Upper Burma, and Chota Nagpur have judicial commissioners. Lower Burma has a chief court with five judges (in 1920). For Assam the high court of Calcutta is the highest judicial authority. Below these courts are, for criminal cases, Courts of Session, and below these, Courts of Magistrates (first, second, and third class). The inferior civil courts are determined by special acts or regulations in each province. The most extensive system consists of the sessions judge acting as a 'District Judge'; subordinate judges; and below them 'Munsifs'. There are also numerous special courts to try small causes. Side by side with the civil courts there are revenue courts, presided over by officers charged with the duty of settling and collecting the land revenue.

The number of officers exercising civil and criminal jurisdiction on December 31, 1919, was as follows:—

Courts	Civil	Criminal	Total
Provincial	96	198	294
District	731	929	1,660
Subordinate	1,581	7,883	9,464
Total	2,408	9,010	11,418

142 THE BRITISH EMPIRE :—INDIA AND DEPENDENCIES

Nearly all the civil judges, and the great majority of the magistrates, in the courts of original jurisdiction are natives of India; in Bengal, Madras, and Bombay the proportion of natives in the appellate court is considerable.

144 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—INDIA AND DEPENDENCIES

The estimated capital expenditure on State railways in 1922-23 was 30,000,000*l.*, and on irrigation works 27,000*l.*, and initial expenditure on New Delhi, 2,000,000*l.* There was also a capital charge of 100,000,000*l.* in 1917-18, representing India's financial contribution to the war, which was met partly by making over to the British Government the proceeds of the Indian war loans raised in 1917 and 1918, and partly by taking over a portion of the British Government's war debt.

The following table shows the receipts of both the Central and Provincial Governments from the most important sources of revenue in recent years.

² The salt duty was raised from March 1, 1916.

⁵ Includes the proceeds of a super-tax imposed in 1917.

⁶ Estimates.

⁷ Includes the proceeds of an excess profits duty imposed in April, 1919.

⁸ The figures for 1920-21 and later have been converted at the rate of Rs. 10 to the £.

⁹ Estimates of revenue of Central Government only.

Land Revenue.—The most important source of public income is the land. The land revenue is levied according to an assessment on estates or holdings. In the greater part of Bengal, and Bihar and Orissa, about one-fourth of Madras, and some districts of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the assessment was fixed permanently at the end of the 18th century; while it is fixed periodically at intervals of from twelve to thirty years over the rest of India. In the permanently settled tracts the land revenue falls at a rate of 13*as.* 10*p.* per acre of cultivated land. In the temporarily settled tracts, excluding areas under partial assessment or free from assessment, the land revenue averages R. 1 12*as.* 8*p.* per acre of cultivated land, and in the case of privately owned lands, represents something less than one-half of the actual or estimated rental. For details as to the nature of the different tenures of land that prevail in India see the YEAR-BOOK for 188*6*, p. 79*2*. See also under AGRICULTURE.

The land revenue was contributed in 1920-21 as follows :—

Administrations	Rs.	Administrations	Rs.
India, General	22,91,000	Burma	4,90,91,000
N.W. Frontier Province	19,08,000	Bihar and Orissa	1,59,91,000
Madras	5,79,81,600	Central Provinces and Berar	1,22,27,000
Bombay	4,34,74,000	Assam	83,85,000
Bengal	3,03,91,000
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh	6,80,48,000	Total	31,97,48,000 (31,974,800.)
Punjab	2,99,61,000

Opium.—In British territory the cultivation of the poppy for the production of opium is practically confined to the United Provinces, and the manufacture of opium from this region is a State monopoly. The bulk of the opium exported is supplied direct to the Governments of consuming countries in the Far East, while a certain quantity is also sold by auction in Calcutta at monthly sales. Opium is also grown in many of the Native States of Rajputana and Central India, which have agreed to conform to the British system.

Army Expenditure.—The expenditure in recent years is given as follows (Rupees converted at 15 = £1 down to 1919-20, thereafter 10 = £1):—

1914 (pre-war)	19,789,239	1919	12,607,293

1917	24,260,068	1921 (Estimates)	67,122,800
1918	28,933,934	1922 (Estimates)	60,317,100

Debt.—The debt of British India, bearing and not bearing interest was 635,729,148*l.* at March 31, 1922, comprising 492,405,267*l.* "productive" debt, and 143,314,941*l.* other debt.

Out of India's contribution of 100,000,000*l.* to the cost of the war, 77,274,000*l.* representing the proceeds of the Indian War Loans raised in 1917 and 1918 have been paid to the British Government. Some further amounts have since been paid and the total liability outstanding in this account at the end of the year 1920-21 was 20,705,357*l.*

Finance of Separate Governments, and Local Finance.—The revenue and expenditure of each Government in 1919-20 were as follows :—

	Revenue	Expenditure
	Rs.	Rs.
India (General)	56,48,65,165	1,08,53,71,976

Total	1,07,48,59,819	2,21,13,83,146

The above excludes the revenue and expenditure of municipalities and of district and local boards. The income of the former is derived mainly from rates, octroi, taxes on houses, lands, vehicles and animals, tolls, and assessed taxes; and of the latter from leases on land. The revenue for 1919-20 of all municipalities which bank with Government treasuries was Rs.11,43,89,230. The expenditure was Rs.11,36,00,783. The revenue of district local funds was Rs.9,75,63,461, and the expenditure Rs.9,16,01,422. The following table shows the amounts for the chief administrations in 1919-20 (in thousands of rupees):—

Defence.

The military forces in India consist normally of the British Regular forces, the Native Army, the Auxiliary force, and the Imperial Service troops. They are administered by the headquarters staff and the Army and Marine department, both under the supreme control of the Commander-in-Chief, who is a member of the Viceroy's Council. The headquarters staff comprises the branch of the Chief of the General Staff, the Adjutant-General's branch, the Quarter Master-General's branch, the Military Secretary's branch, and the Ordnance branch. The Army and Marine department deals with supply and finance. The Commander-in-Chief is assisted in this department by an Advisory Council analogous to the Army Council and composed of the heads of branches of the headquarters staff, with the addition of the Director-General Indian Medical Services, the Secretary to the Government of India in the Army Department, the Financial Adviser, and the Air Officer commanding Royal Air Force. For purposes of inspection and training the forces are organised into the Northern, Southern, Eastern and Western Commands, and the Burma independent district; the Commands each contain a number of divisions and independent brigades, whose commanders deal with army headquarters direct on most questions of administration.

The British Regular forces in India are paid by the Indian exchequer. They are organised in brigades and divisions with the native army, the normal proportion being 1 British battalion to 3 native; the horse, field and garrison artillery, the Tank Corps and Royal Air Force being wholly British.

The Auxiliary force is organised under the Auxiliary Forces Act, 1920. Under this Act registration is voluntary and confined to those of British extraction. Preliminary training for infantry is 32 days, and 40 days for the other arms. The Auxiliary force is intended to serve as a second line to the Regular Army in India. An Indian Army reserve of officers has been formed and is at present composed of British officers who served in the Great War and have been demobilised.

The Imperial Service troops are raised and maintained by Native States, and are trained under the supervision of British officers. During the war great assistance in raising troops was afforded by the Indian Princes, many of whom themselves served overseas. The Imperial Service troops were largely augmented; the Nepal Durbar in particular supplied 200,000 recruits for the Indian Army 20 battalions of infantry, and maintained a reserve of 20,000 men in training.

The composition of the forces in India was, in October, 1922, except for Imperial Service troops, as follows:—

	Cavalry Regts.	Horse Artillery Batteries	Field Artillery Batteries	Lack Artillery Batteries	Garrison Artillery Batteries	Engineer Co's.	Infantry Battalions	Signal Service Companies	Tank Corps Companies	Railway Battalions

The supply and transport services of the army in India are provided by the Supply and Transport Corps. The medical services of the British troops are provided by the Royal Army Medical Corps, and these of the native army by the Indian Medical Service.

Units of the Indian army serving outside India and paid by the British exchequer were in October, 1922, as follows:—

Mesopotamia—1 civ. lgt.; 9 bns.

Egypt and Palestine—3 pack batteries; 3 bns.

Colonial stations—3 bns.

In accordance with the reform of the constitution of the government of India, a number of substantive commissions in the Indian army are now granted to Indian officers who have done distinguished service during the war, while honorary commissions are also given to Indian officers, who, though they have rendered distinguished service, are not eligible for substantive commissions through age or lack of education. Forty Indian gentlemen are now nominated annually to the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, to enable them to qualify for commissions in the Indian army, while 44 candidates are appointed to the training college at Indore, where they are able to qualify for temporary commissions.

The Royal Air Force in India consists of 8 squadrons organised in 1 wing of 4 squadrons and 1 wing of 2 squadrons; the remaining 2 squadrons, the Air Force School, Aircraft Depot and Factory are administered by R.A.F. Headquarters, India. The Air Force in India is commanded by an Air-Commodore.

Agriculture and Industry.

Agriculture, Land Tenure, &c. The chief industry of India has always been agriculture. The total number of the population supported by agriculture, including forestry and raising of livestock, was, according to the census of 1911, nearly 225 millions (178 millions in British India and 47 millions in the Native States) out of a total population of 313 millions (244 millions in British India and 69 millions in the Native States). In every province of India there is a Department of Land Records and a Department of Agriculture. There are staffs of experts in the provinces and there is an Imperial staff of experts with a fully equipped central station, Research Institute and College for post graduate training of those who have completed the Agricultural Course in provincial colleges. There is also a Civil Veterinary Department for the prevention and cure of cattle diseases and for the improvement of the breeds of cattle, horses, &c. There is an Imperial Laboratory for research and the preparation of sera and antitoxins.

In provinces where the zamindari tenure prevails (i.e., where single proprietors or proprietary brotherhoods possess large estates of several hundreds or thousands of acres), the State land revenue is assessed at an aliquot part (usually about one half) of the ascertained or assumed rental. The revenue is payable on each estate as a whole, the assessment remaining unchanged for the period of settlement. In the greater part of Bengal, and Bihar and Orissa, and in parts of the United Provinces and Madras the settlement is a permanent one and not liable to revision. In provinces where the raiyatwari (or ryotwari) tenure prevails (i.e., where each petty proprietor holds directly from the State, as a rule cultivates his own land, and has no landlord between himself and the Government), the revenue is separately assessed on each petty holding, and land revenue becomes payable at once (or after a short term of grace in the case of uncleared lands) on all extensions of cultivation. The raiyatwari proprietor may throw up his holding, or any portion of it, at the beginning of any year after reasonable notice, whereas the zamindar or large proprietor engages to pay the revenue assessed upon him throughout the term of the settlement.

The following table shows the land surveyed under the two types of tenure, and the land revenue assessed in 1919-20 :—

The total area cropped in British India in 1919-20 was 251,990,536 acres, and the net area (deducting areas sown more than once) was 222,825,487.

Of the total area under irrigation in 1919-20, 23,197,000 acres were irrigated by canals; 7,337,000 acres by tanks; 12,692,000 acres by wells; and 5,737,000 acres by other sources. State irrigation works accounted for 25 million acres in 1918-19, and the estimated value of crops grown on this area during the year amounted to about 92.6 millions sterling. In the case of irrigation works (as distinct from navigation canals, for which capital accounts are kept, the net revenue apart from charges for interest was 3,756,600*l.* in 1918-19.

Livestock, in British India, census 1919-20: oxen, 117,428,000; buffaloes, 23,493,000; sheep, 21,984,000; goats, 24,134,000; horses and ponies, 1,699,000; mules, 75,000; donkeys, 1,372,000; camels, 408,000.

Forests.—The lands under the direct control of the State Forest Department are classified as 'Reserved Forests' (forests intended to be permanently maintained for the supply of timber, &c., or for the protection of water supply, &c.), 'Protected Forests,' and 'Unclassed' forest land. The following table shows the extent of these areas in 1919-20:—

The net revenue from the State forests in 1919-20 was about 2,192,000*l.* (i.e., taking Rs. 10 to the l., or at Rs. 15, 1,461,000*l.*).

Industries.—The most important indigenous industry, after agriculture, is the weaving of cotton cloths. Other important indigenous industries are silk rearing and weaving, shawl and carpet weaving, wood-carving and metal-working. One of the most important industries connected with agriculture is the tea industry, the number of persons employed being about 843,000. The area under tea plucked in 1920-21 was about 647,300 acres, distributed as follows: Assam, 392,600; Bengal, 162,800; Madras, 30,600; Punjab, 9,600; Agra, 6,400; Bihar and Orissa, 2,100; Upper Burma, 1,700; and the Travancore State, 41,800. The production in 1920-21 was about 345 million pounds, against about 377 million pounds in 1919-20. The exports of Indian tea from British India (including the State of Travancore) in 1920-21 were:—to United Kingdom, 249,111,000 lb.; Canada, 7,996,000 lb.; China, 30,000 lb.; Australasia, 6,521,000 lb.; Ceylon, 3,275,000 lb.; Asiatic Turkey, 5,446,000 lb.; United States, 3,147,000 lb.; elsewhere (including exports across the land frontier), 11,999,000 lb.; total, 382,034,000 lb.; against 326,646,000 lb. in 1918-19. (The production figures for 1919-20 are provisional.)

Some statistics of mills, factories, &c., in 1921, are given as follows for British India (works or factories employing generally 50 persons or more are included in the statistics):—

Companies.—On March 31, 1920, there were 3,668 joint stock companies incorporated in British India and in the Indian States of Mysore, Baroda, Gwalior and Indore, and in operation, with paid-up capital of Rs 1,23,21,36,000.

The following table shows the principal classes of these companies:—

Companies working	Number	Paid-up capital
		Rs.
Banking and Insurance	654	10,17,81,000
Railways and Tramways	52	13,68,00,000

Cotton and Jute screws and presses	141	2,57,83,000
Sugar	24	87,35,000
Land and Building	58	3,64,06,000

These figures exclude companies not incorporated in India, although carrying on business there. At the end of March, 1920, the number of such companies working in India was, so far as known, 634, with a paid-up capital of nearly 420,633,000*l.*, besides over 102,732,000*l.* debentures. Railway and tramway companies accounted for the paid-up capital of 35,441,000*l.* and debentures of 41,907,000*l.* Other important companies were navigation companies (paid up capital 23,085,000*l.*), jute mills (2,391,000*l.*), tea planting companies (17,990,000*l.*), gold mining companies (2,085,000*l.*), and other mining companies (11,474,000*l.*)

Of the exports of merchandise in 1921-22 Rs. 231,35,00,887 represented the products of the country. Rs. 14,06,34,125 were re-exports of imported foreign merchandise.

The returns of quantities and values of imports and of exports are based on the bills of entry and shipping bills respectively. The value is the wholesale value at the place of import or export, less trade discount, duty not being included in the value of dutiable goods. The accounts present the countries from which the goods have been consigned to India and the countries for which goods shipped from India are intended. No distinction is maintained between general, special, and transit trade, but goods of foreign origin, when re-exported, are shown in detail separately from those of Indian origin.

The gross amount of import duty collected in 1921-22 was Rs. 29,37,29,729 and export duty Rs. 4,50,05,883. Import duties are derived from cotton goods, Rs. 7,85,29,681, liquors, Rs. 2,15,73,414, machinery, Rs. 1,24,72,918, matches, Rs. 1,03,4,333, metals, chiefly iron and steel, Rs. 1,36,04,741, oils, Rs. 84,55,647, salt, Rs. 1,71,64,446, sugar, Rs. 6,35,84,575, tobacco, Rs. 1,01,36,330, motor cars and cycles, Rs. 51,49,807, railway plant and rolling stock, Rs. 53,32,410, hardware and cutlery, Rs. 79,05,587, instruments and apparatus, Rs. 51,54,284, and silk and silk goods, Rs. 71,14,926, in 1921-22; export duties are levied on rice, tea, jute, and raw hides and skins.

In many cases the Native States of India impose Customs duties on goods imported from other parts of India.

The imports and exports, excluding Government stores and Government treasure, were distributed as follows in six years:—

In several provinces certain of the large canals which are primarily intended for irrigation are also used for navigation by country boats and barges of shallow draught. The length of navigable channel in the several provinces is:—Madras, 1,349 miles; United Provinces, 412 miles; Punjab, 259 miles; Bengal, 1,396 miles; Bihar and Orissa, 501 miles; Burma, 87 miles.

An estimate has recently been sanctioned for the proposed Grand Trunk Canal in Bengal, which will form a very important addition to the navigable waterways of the Province. The canal will be 22 miles in length, and will connect the Hooghly River at Calcutta with the navigable rivers of Eastern Bengal.

Inland steamer navigation is almost exclusively confined to Burma and to the Ganges-Brahmaputra-Megna group of waterways, which connect Bengal with Bihar and Orissa on the one side, and with Assam on the other.

A limited number of vessels ply on the Indus River, but this will probably cease when the large irrigation canals in the Punjab and Sind, at present under investigation, are constructed.

in 1921-22, against a working profit of 5,650,000*l.* in 1920-21. The railway staff in 1921-22 numbered 6,858 Europeans, 11,831 Anglo-Indians, and 735,789 Indians; total, 754,478.

India and Ceylon have been connected by rail and steamer ferry combined, the steamers plying between Dhanushkodi Point on Rameswaram Island and Talaimannar in Ceylon. A project has also been prepared for replacing the ferry by a railway, to be constructed on a causeway laid over the reef known as Adam's Bridge.

III. POSTS, TELEGRAPHS AND TELEPHONES.

In 1922 there were 69,674 post-offices and letter-boxes, against 753 in 1856.

In the fiscal year ended March 31, 1922, the number of letters, post-cards, and money-orders passing through the post-offices was 1,293,016,553; of newspapers 78,260,850; of parcels 12,662,997; and of packets 71,258,310; being a total of 1,455,198,740. The following table gives statistics for five years:—

Year ended March 31	Number of Letters Newspapers, &c.	Post Offices	Letter Boxes	Total Revenue	Total Expenditure
1918	1,147,922,758	19,410	49,749	2,774,015	2,361,631

There were 10,471 telegraph offices in India on March 31, 1922.

The number of wireless stations maintained and worked by the Department of Posts and Telegraphs was 22 on March 31, 1922, of which eight were coast stations available for general public correspondence with ships at sea, and the remainder performed inland services.

The telephone system is in the hands of the Post and Telegraph Department, but telephone exchanges have been established in Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Ahmedabad, Karachi, Rangoon, and Moulmein, by private companies, under licences from the Government. In 1922 there were 10 telephone exchanges, with 23,955 connections, established by the licensed companies, and 255 exchanges with 11,988 connections established by the Department.

Money and Credit.

The total value of the silver, nickel, copper, and bronze coined in British India from 1835 to 1920-21 inclusive was Rs. 7,58,70,99,611, including Rs. 50,14,78,068, the value of 221,003,960 British dollars; Rs. 8,31,18,962, the value of 45,374,676 Straits dollars; Rs. 118,29,531 and Rs. 29,82,274, the value of subsidiary silver coinage for the Straits Settlements and Ceylon respectively ; Rs. 2,43,47,157, the value of coinage for the Egyptian Government ; Rs. 10,10,700, the value of pennies and halfpennies for the Australian Commonwealth ; Rs. 94,32,310, representing the value of nickel, bronze and copper coins for the Ceylon and Straits Governments. The heaviest coinage in any one year was struck in 1918-19. The value of money coined at the Calcutta and Bombay Mints in the last five years was as follows :—

Yearended March 31	Silver	Nickel	Copper	Bronze	Total

An Act providing for the closing of the Indian Mints to the unrestricted coinage of silver for the public was passed in 1893. Provision was made (1) for the receipt of gold coin and bullion at the Mints in exchange for rupees at a ratio of 1s. 4d. per rupee; (2) for the receipt of sovereigns and half-sovereigns in payment of Government dues; and (3) for the issue of currency notes in Calcutta and Bombay in exchange for gold coin or bullion. By a Notification of the 11th September, 1897, sovereigns and half-sovereigns were also received at the Reserve Treasuries, at the rate of Rs. 15 for the sovereign.

An Act (XXII. of 1899) declared the sovereign legal tender, 15 rupees to the sovereign. No gold was coined in India down to 1917, but the question of such coinage was examined by a Royal Commission appointed in 1912. The recommendations made by the Royal Commission are under the consideration of the Government of India. In view of the strain imposed by war conditions on India's metallic money, a branch of the Royal Mint was established at Bombay, at the end of 1917, for coining into sovereigns the gold bullion and foreign coin received into the Paper Currency Reserve, in order to make the metallic part of this Reserve available as legal tender. Power was also taken by legislation for the coining in India of a 15-rupee gold coin (gold mohur), of the same size, weight, and fineness as the sovereign, and a number of these coins was struck at the Bombay Mint from May to August 1918. Sovereigns were minted between August and December 1918, but since April 1919 the Branch Mint has been closed.

Owing, however, to the rise in the value of the rupee, which began in 1917, it was decided early in 1920 to fix its value, after a transitional period, at Rs. 10 to the gold sovereign, in accordance with the recommendations of the Indian Currency Committee (1919). By a communique dated the 2nd February, 1920, the Finance Department Notification of the 11th September, 1897, mentioned above, and a notification dated 11th December, 1906, authorising the receipt of sovereigns and half sovereigns at the Mints, were cancelled. Bills were passed in September, 1920, amending the Indian Coinage and Paper Currency Acts and fixing the legal tender value of the sovereign and half sovereign at Rs. 10 and Rs. 5 respectively.

The Coinage Act of 1906 provided for the introduction of a subsidiary nickel one-anna piece and the substitution of a bronze currency for the existing copper coins. The coinage of copper was accordingly discontinued with effect from August 1, 1906. The issue of the nickel one-anna piece was commenced with effect from August 1, 1907. In the Indian Coinage Amendment Act of 1918 (IV. of 1918), provision was made for the coinage of a new nickel two-anna piece, and coins of this denomination were issued from April, 1918. The issue of four-anna and eight-anna nickel pieces was authorised by the Indian Coinage (Amendment) Act, 1919 (XXI. of 1919).

Since 1900, rupees have been coined as required to meet public demands. The entire profit accruing to Government on the coinage up to March 31, 1907, and during the year 1912-13, and half such profit for the years 1907-08 and 1908-09 were placed to the credit of a separate fund termed the Gold Standard Reserve, with the object of ensuring the stability of the currency policy of Government. Any profit arising from this source is at present credited entire to the Gold Standard Reserve. On August 31, 1921, the Reserve amounted to 39,629,470*l*.

On July 16, 1861, an Act was passed by the Government of India providing for the issue of a paper currency through a Government department of Public Issue, by means of promissory notes. Circles of issue were established from time to time, as found necessary, and the notes were made legal tender within the circle for which they were issued, and rendered payable at the place of issue, and also at the capital city of the Presidency. Subsequent legislation has relaxed the rigidity of the circle system. Notes of the values of one, two-and-a-half, five, ten, fifty, and a hundred rupees are now legal tender throughout British India, and the limitation of currency to the circle of issue is confined to notes of higher denominations. There are now seven circles of issue with their headquarters at Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, Rangoon, Cawnpore, Lahore, and Karachi.

Total values of notes in circulation on March 31 in six years, including the notes held in government treasuries and the Presidency banks :—

Currency, Weights, and Measures.

The money, weights, and measures of India, and the British equivalents are now as follows :—

The Piz.			= $\frac{1}{2}$ Farthing.
3 „	= 1 Pice		= $1\frac{1}{2}$ Farthing.
4 Pice , or 12 Piz.	= 1 Anna		= $1\frac{1}{2}$ Penny.
16 Annas	= 1 Rupce		= 2s.
10 Rupes			= 1 l.

Prior to September, 1920, 15 rupees = 1*l.*

The rupee weighs one tola (a tola = 180 grains), '916 fine.

Nickel 4 and 8 anna pieces have been introduced into India (1919).

The sum of 1,00,000 rupees is called a 'lakh,' and of 1,00,00,000 a 'crore' of rupees. A 'lakh' of rupees is now equivalent to 10,000*l.*

The Mauud of Bengal of 40 scrs	= 82½ lbs. avoirdupois.
„ „ Bombay	= 28 lbs. nearly.
„ „ Madras	= 25 lbs. nearly.
„ Tola	= 180 gr.
„ Guz of Bengal	= 36 inches.

An Act to provide for the ultimate adoption of a uniform system of weights and measures of capacity throughout British India was passed by the Governor-General of India in Council in 1871. This Act, however, has never been brought into operation. The matter was again considered by a Weights and Measures Committee, appointed in 1913, and the evidence was generally in favour of a uniform system, provided there is not a too radical change from the existing practice. The report of the Committee is under the consideration of the Government of India.

BALUCHISTAN.

Government, &c.—A country occupying the extreme western corner of the Indian Empire, approximately between lat. $24^{\circ} 54'$ and $32^{\circ} 4' N.$, and between long. $60^{\circ} 56'$ and $70^{\circ} 15' E.$; extreme length from E. to W. about 550 miles; breadth about 440; area, 134,638 square miles; population (1921 census), 799,625. Bounded on the N. by Afghanistan and the North-West Frontier Province, on the E. by Sindh, the Panjáb, and a part of the Frontier Province, on the S. by the Arabian Sea, on the W. by Persia, the boundary disputes with which were settled in 1905. The main divisions constituting an area of 134,638 square miles are: (1) British Baluchistan proper, with an area of about 9,096 square miles, consisting of tracts assigned to the British Government by treaty in 1879; (2) Agency Territories, with an area of about 45,132 square miles, composed of tracts which have from time to time been acquired by lease, or otherwise brought under control, and placed directly under British officers; and (3) the native States of Kalát and Las Bela, with an area of about 80,410 square miles, the former consisting of a confederation of tribes under the Khán of Kalát, and stretching westwards to Persia, while the latter occupies the alluvial valley between the Pab and Hálá ranges from the sea to Bela.

British and Administered Territory.—British Residents were appointed to the courts of the Kháns of Kalát from the middle of the nineteenth century, and British expeditions passed through the Bokán on their way to Kandahár and Afghánistan, but up to 1876 the country was considered independent. In 1875 Sir Robert Sandeman, the founder of the Balúchistán Province, first entered the country; in 1877 the cantonment of Quetta, which is now the headquarters of the Administration, was occupied by British troops, and in 1879 the administration of the district was taken over on behalf of the Khán of Kalát. After the Afghán war, 1878–81, the districts of Pishin, Shorarád, Duki, Sibi, and Sháhrig were assigned to the British and in November, 1887, were formally constituted as British Balúchistán. In 1883, the districts of Quetta and Bolán were made over by the Khán to the British on an annual quit-rent of 25,000 rupees and 30,000 rupees respectively. In 1886, the Bori valley, in which is now the cantonment of Loralai, was occupied. In 1887, the Khetrán country, now known as the Bakhán tahsil, was brought under British control; in 1889 British authority was established in the Zhob valley and Kákar Khurásán; in 1896 Chágai and Western Siujráni were included in administered territory; in 1899, the Nuskhí Niabat was made over by the Khán of Kalát on an annual quit-rent of 9,000 rupees; and in 1903 the Nasirábád tahsil was acquired from the Khán on an annual quit-rent of 117,500 rupees. The area of British and administered territory, including tribal areas, is 54,228 sq. miles, and the population (1921) 420,648 (males 255,014, females 165,634). The head of the civil administration is the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor-General. The area under his direct administration is divided into 6 districts, each in charge of a Political Agent as follows: Quetta-Pishin, Sibi, Zhob, Loralai, Bolán Pass, Chágai. The Political Agent in charge of the Bolán Pass is also Political Agent for Kalát and Las Bela. The revenue administration of the Province is entrusted to an officer who is styled the Revenue and Judicial Commissioner.

In the directly administered territory the chief items of revenue are: Land revenue, excise, court fees and stamps, and judicial fines. In some places the land revenue is levied in money in accordance with a fixed assessment, but generally it is levied in kind. This is usually one-sixth of the crop; but in the Sibi tahsil it is two-ninths, and on the lands of the Shebo and Khushdil irrigation canals, constructed by the Government, the proportion is one-third. In Nasirábád the assessment per acre of the cultivated area varies from 8 annas to Rs. 4 according to the crops raised and means of water-supply. For revenue purposes each district is divided into tahsils, each of which is in charge of an Indian official known as a Tahsildar, who has a Naib-Tahsildar, Kánungos and Patwáris subordinate to him. The revenue from all sources in 1920–21 was Rs. 24,14,258; and in 1921–22, Rs. 18,87,938.

Almost all cases in which local men are concerned are referred to 'councils of elders' (locally called jirga) for settlement along the well-tried lines of the ancient customary and tribal law. This system of settlement of cases forms an integral and essential part of the machinery for the administration of Civil and Criminal justice in Baluchistan. Appeals from, or rather applications for revision of, the jirga decisions when confirmed by the district officers, lie to the Agent to the Governor-General and Chief Commissioner in Baluchistan. Cases in which aliens are concerned are settled by Regular Courts and the highest court of appeal in such cases is the Judicial Commissioner in Baluchistan.

Regular troops are cantoned at Quetta, Chaman, Fort Sandeman, and Loralai, and detachments are stationed at different places, principally in the Zhob and Loralai Districts, for the preservation of law and order. There is also a police force, supplemented by levies and the Zhob levies, Makran and Chagai Levy Corps. The latter are recruited from the local tribes, and have their own leading men as officers.

The medical work of the Province is under the Residency Surgeon and Chief Medical Officer, and there are Civil Surgeons at Quetta, Sibi, Loralai, Fort Sandeman and Chaman, and Civil Assistant-Surgeons at Quetta, Sibi, Kalat and Panjgur, and Railway Assistant-Surgeons at Shahrigh and Mach.

The Native States of Kalat and Las Bela.—The leading chief of Kalat is His Highness Sir Mir Mahmud Khan, G.C.I.E., Peylar Begi Khan or Wali of Kalat, who succeeded on the abdication of his father, the late Mir Khudadad Khan, in November, 1893.

The Khan of Kalat is the head of a confederacy of chiefs, but the extent of his control has now been considerably reduced. In all important matters he is amenable to the advice of the Agent to the Governor-General in Baluchistan, who also arbitrates in disputes between the Khan and minor chiefs. The area of Kalat State, including Mikran and Khiran, is 73,278 square miles, and the population 328,281 (1921 census).

The Khan's revenue, including the subsidies and rents for the leased areas paid by the British Government, amounts to about 13,00,000 rupees annually. The Khan has an irregular force of 261 cavalry, infantry, and artillery, and 12 guns. He also maintains a body of Imperial Service Troops numbering 150 men. The chief towns in the State are Kalat, Mastung, Bhag, Gandawa, Dadhar, Turbat, and Panjgur.

The ruling chief of Las Bela has the title of Jam. Jam Mir Khan, the great-grandfather of the present chief, succeeded in 1840; Jam Ali Khan, his grandfather, succeeded in 1889; Jam Mir Kamal Khan, C.I.E., his father, succeeded in 1896, and Mir Ghulam Muhammad Khan, the present chief, in March, 1921. The area of the State is 7,132 square miles; population, 50,696 (1921 census); revenue varies from 3 to 4 lakhs. The Jam has an irregular force of 58 infantry and 3 guns; military police force, 61 men and a State band of 11. Before the British occupation the ruler of Las Bela was a feudatory of the Khan of Kalat, but in recent times the connection has almost entirely ceased. The State is under the control of the Political Agent in Kalat.

General.—The most numerous races in Baluchistan are the Brahui, Pathan and Baloch, 528,234. The Brahuis occupy the centre of the country stretching through Chagai to meet the Baloch of Western Sanjrani, and southwards to the Lasis and the Baloch of Makran. The Pathans are chiefly contained within British and administered territory. The Baloch are distributed through the southern regions in the Mairi and Bugti country, the Kachhi plain, the Nasirabad tahsil, the Dombki, Umrani, and Kaheri country, and Makran. The Lasis (23,212), are almost wholly confined to Las Bela, the term Lasi being of modern invention. The other inhabitants are either scattered, as the Chuttas and Saiads, or are subject races and occupational groups such as the Jat cultivators of the Kachhi plain, the Dehwar cultivators of the uplands, the Darzadabs and Naqibs of Makran, and the Ghulams who are of servile origin. There are also indigenous Hindus (17,479) living under the protection of the tribes and carrying on the trade of the country.

Religion and Instruction.—The religion of the native population is either Mussulmán, in general of the Sunni sect, or Hindu. The Mussulmáns numbered (1921) 733,477; Hindus, 51,348; Christians, 6,693; Sikhs, 7,741; others, 366. At the close of 1919-20 there were 76 Government and aided and unaided schools in the province; 7 of these were for girls, and one was a European school for boys and girls. Of the 3,606 pupils 622 were girls. Nearly half the pupils were Hindus, children of men from Sind and the Panjab in trade or in Government service. Besides these there were 202 private schools with 2,651 pupils.

Production and Industry.—The country consists largely of barren mountains, deserts and stony plains; its climate is subject to the extremes of heat and cold, and the rainfall is uncertain and scanty. Here and there the mountains are tree-clad, and cultivation is carried on wherever water is found. An attempt is being made to bud the wild olive trees of the country with buds from cultivated European olives. The experiment seems to show that the olive cultivation is very lucrative in the Harnai Valley, and the present Forest officer intends to extend it. An olive-oil industry may be subsequently established. The agricultural products are wheat, barley, millet, lucerne, rice, maize, and potatoes; while grapes, apricots, peaches, apples, and melons are grown in abundance. Panjgur in Makran is famous for its dates. Among wild animals are the markhor, urial (wild-sheep), Sind ibex, ravine-deer, bear, and panther, and the chief domestic animals are the camel, horses, oxen and cows, and donkeys.

Little is yet known of the mineralogy of the country. Iron and lead are found near Khuzdar; coal is worked at Khost on the Sindh-Pishin railway, and in the Sor hills near Quetta. Asbestos and chromite have been found in Zhob, and chromite also in the Quetta Pishin district. There are oil springs at Khattian in the Marri country, but these are not now worked. Sulphate of iron has been found in Kalát and sulphate of aluminium in Chágái. Salt is manufactured in Pishin, in the Zhob district, and in the Kalát State. Promising deposits of salt were discovered in 1917-18 in the Chágái district, development of which is under consideration. Local manufactures are unimportant. A few matchlocks and other weapons are made, and various kinds of ironwork for agricultural purposes. The nomad tribes make felts, rough blankets, and rugs. Brahúi women are famous for their needle-work. Leather-work and pottery are manufactured in Kachhi. There is a brewery as well as a government distillery for the manufacture of country spirit at Quetta, and also mills for grinding flour, pressing chaff, manufacturing patent coal-fuel, and ice. A museum at Quetta was opened in 1906. The Indian Staff College was opened at Quetta in 1907.

Commerce.—The land traffic with India passes either by railway or by the routes from Kalát and Las Bela to Sind, and through the Loralai district, to the Panjab. The value of the trans-frontier imports (excluding purely transit trade between places in Baluchistan, and the trade by road between Karachi and Kalát and Las Bela) from Kalát and Las Bela into India in 1918-19 was Rs. 14,46,561, and of the exports from India to Kalát and Las Bela, Rs. 5,51,355. (This trans-frontier trade is regarded since April 1, 1919, as internal traffic, and statistics are discontinued.) The chief exports from the Province are fruit, drugs, fish, mats, and wool; imports consist of piece-goods, chiefly of Indian manufacture, metal ware, tea, sugar, and canned goods.

Over-sea trade is carried on through ports on the Makrán coast with India, the exports consisting of dates, matting and dried fish, and the imports chiefly of piece-goods and food grains. The greater part of this trade is with the Bombay Presidency.

The principal imports into Balúchistán from foreign countries, viz., Afghanistan and Persia, are fruit, ghee, wool, sheep, horses and ponies. Piece-goods in large quantities, indigo, tea, sugar, and metals are sent to these countries through Balúchistán.

Communications.—Good roads connect the more important centres in the directly administered places. There are 976 miles of metalled and partly metalled roads and 2,130 of unmetalled roads and paths.

The North-Western railway, which has the standard gauge of 5ft. 6in., enters Balúchistán near Jhatpat and crosses the Kachhi plain to Sibi, where it bifurcates, one branch going by Harnai and the other by Quetta, and reunites at Bostán, whence the line runs to Chaman. A line of railway to Nushki 82½ miles long, which cost about 7,000,000 rupees, was opened for traffic in 1905, and an extension of the railway line from Nushki up to Duzdap on the Persian border, and also a short line from Khanai to Hindu-bagh, a distance of about 45 miles, were completed in 1917.

There is a complete and frequent postal service in British and administered territory, extending to Kalat and through Duzdap to Seistan and Meshed.

A network of telegraph wires covers the north-eastern portion of the Province and extends to Kalat, and westwards via Nushki to Killá Robát, where it connects with the Indo-European system, while a further line laid down in 1907 connects India with Persia and Europe, via Las Bela, Panjgur, and Nok Kundi.

SIKKIM.

An Indian State in the Himálayas, bounded on the N. by Tibet, on the E. by the Tibetan district of Chumbi, and by Bhután, on the S. by the British district of Darjiling, and on the W. by Nepál. Extreme length from N. to S. 70 miles; extreme breadth, 50 miles; area, 2,818 square miles.

In March, 1890, a treaty was signed by the Viceroy of India and the Chinese representative, by which the British protectorate over Sikkim is recognised by China. The British Government has direct and exclusive control over the foreign relations. The present Maharaja is H.H. Tashi Namgyal, K.C.I.E., who succeeded on December 5, 1914. His Highness and the members of the Council carry on the administration, full powers having been granted to him in April, 1918.

Population in 1921, 81,722. The inhabitants are Bhutias, Lepchas, and Nepalese, the last-named being now the most numerous. Principal towns are Gangtok, the capital, Itanok, Pakyong, Rangpo, Lachen, and Lachung. The State religion is Buddhism, but the majority of the people are Hindu.

The gross revenue is about 46,900*l.* per year. The landlords exercise a limited jurisdiction within their districts; important cases being referred to the Sikkim chief court.

Sikkim produces rice, Indian corn, and other millets, cardamoms, oranges, apples, and woollen cloth. Fruit gardens are maintained by the State. There are extensive forests in the State and wide tracts of unoccupied waste. The principal trade route from Bengal to Tibet passes through Sikkim. Imports into Sikkim from, and exports from Sikkim to, India :—

	£	£	£	£	£
Imports from India	108,606	74,022	84,002	166,654	150,800
Exports to India	201,385	187,843	218,306	513,471	552,400

The chief imports into Sikkim are cotton piece goods, oils, provisions, salt, manufactured silk, sugar, tea, tobacco, and rice; the chief exports from Sikkim are food grains and vegetables, hides and skins, raw wool, and timber.

ANDAMAN AND NICOBAR ISLANDS.

The Andaman Islands lie in the Bay of Bengal, 590 miles from the mouth of the Hugli, 120 miles from Cape Negrais in Burma, the nearest point on the mainland. Five large islands closely grouped together are called the Great Andaman, and to the south is the Island of Little Andaman. There are some 200 islets, the two principal groups being the Andaman Archipelago and the Labyrinth Islands. The total area is 2,260 square miles. The Great Andaman group is about 219 miles long and, at the widest, 32 miles broad. The group, densely wooded, contains many valuable trees, the best known of which is the paduak or Andaman redwood (Pterocarpus dalbergioides). The islands are hilly, the highest point, Saddle Peak, being 2,402 feet, and Mount Harriet, 1,196 feet in height. The islands possess a number of harbours and safe anchorages, notably Port Blair, Port Cornwallis, and Stewart Sound, the last being most favourably situated for forest trade. The climate is tropical, the rainfall irregular and often excessive. The aborigines, 1,317 (628 males and 689 females) in 1911, (against 1,882 in 1901), live in small groups over the islands; they are savages of a low Negrito type. The total population of the Andaman Islands in 1921 was 26,833 (20,393 males and 6,440 females). In 1919-20 the forest sales, the result of convict and free labour, amounted to 7,65,007 rupees. The coconut, rubber (Hevea brasiliensis), Manila hemp (Musa textilis), and Bahamas aloe (Agave sisalana) are successfully cultivated. In 1921 there were 9,941 head of cattle. Wireless telegraphy with Burma was established in 1904. A mail steamer connects Port Blair with Calcutta, Rangoon, and Madras. The islands have since 1858 been used by the Government of India as a penal settlement for life and long-term convicts, but it has been decided to transport no more convicts, the island being left to develop on free lines. The settlement possesses about 22,472 acres of cleared land and 54,463 acres of reserved forest. There were, in 1922, 10,298 convicts (including 310 women) in the place, of whom some 1977 were on ticket-of-leave in the settlement supporting themselves. Of the women, 168 are on ticket-of-leave, and married to convicts. The Andaman Islands are under the Government of India, and the Officer in Charge is the Chief Commissioner. The Civil, Military and convict population of Port Blair in 1922 was 14,285.

The Nicobar Islands are situated to the South of the Andamans, 75 miles from Little Andaman. The British formally took possession in 1869. There are twenty-one islands, nine uninhabited; total area, 635 square miles. The islands are usually divided into three groups, Southern, Central and Northern, the chief islands in each being respectively, Great Nicobar, Camorta with Nancowry, and Car Nicobar. There is a fine land-locked harbour between the islands of Camorta and Nancowry, known as Nancowry Harbour. The Nicobarese inhabitants, numbering 9,260 (5,238 males and 4,022 females) in 1921, are a variety of the Malay (more probably Talaing) race. They are known to have eagerly pursued the coconut trade for at least 1,500 years. English and Hindustani are understood in most villages. The coconut production is estimated at 15 million nuts per annum, of which some 6 million are sold by barter and exported in small native craft and Chinese junks in the form of copra. The climate is tropical and, except, perhaps, at Car, unhealthy for Europeans. The Government is represented by a permanent Assistant Commissioner and a Tahsildar. The islands are attached to the Chief Commissionership of the Andamans and Nicobars.

LACCADIVE ISLANDS.

A group of 14 islands (9 inhabited), about 200 miles off the west or Malabar coast of the Madras Presidency. The northern portion is attached to the collectorate of South Kanara, the remainder to the administrative district of Malabar. Population 10,600, nearly all Muhammadans. The language is either Malayalam or Mahl. The staple product is the fibre known as coir.

THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

Constitution and Government.

THE Straits Settlements, a Crown colony, comprise Singapore, Penang (including Province Wellesley and the Dindings), and Malacca. Malacca is one of the oldest European settlements in the East, having been occupied by the Portuguese in 1511, and held by them until driven out by the Dutch in 1641. It was transferred to the English in 1824. Penang was the first British settlement in the Malay Peninsula, having been ceded to the East India Company in 1786. Singapore was important in the fourteenth century, but was destroyed by the Javanese in 1377, and was almost uninhabited until 1819, when it was ceded by the Johore princes. In 1826 these three settlements were incorporated under one government, which was transferred from the control of the Indian Government to that of the Secretary of State for the Colonies on April 1, 1867. The Cocos Islands were placed under the Straits Settlements in 1886, and Christmas Island in 1889. Christmas Island was annexed to the Settlement of Singapore in 1900, and the Cocos Islands in 1903.

By a proclamation dated October 30, 1906, the boundaries of the Colony were extended so as to include the Colony of Labuan, with effect from January 1, 1907.

The administration of the colony is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, composed of the General Officer commanding the troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Resident Councillor of Penang, the Attorney-General, the Treasurer, and the Colonial Engineer. There is a Legislative Council, presided over by the Governor, of ten official and eight unofficial members, nominated by the Crown.

Governor.—Sir Laurence N. Guillemard, K.C.B., K.C.M.G.

The governor is also High Commissioner for the Federated Malay States of Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang, High Commissioner of Brunei, and British Agent for North Borneo and Sarawak.

There are municipal bodies in each settlement, the members of which are appointed by the Governor.

Area and Population.

The total area of the colony, with dependencies, is about 1,600 sq. miles. Singapore is an island about twenty-seven miles long by fourteen wide, with an area of 217 square miles, separated from the southern extremity of the Malay Peninsula by a strait three-quarters of a mile in width. A number of small islands adjacent form part of the settlement. The seat of government is the town of Singapore, at the south-eastern point of the island. Penang is an island of 108 square miles, off the west coast of the Malayan Peninsula, and at the northern entrance of the Straits of Malacca. On the opposite shore of the mainland, distant from two to ten miles, is Province Wellesley, a strip of territory forming part of the Settlement of Penang, averaging eight miles in width, and extending forty-five miles along the coast, including ten miles of territory to the south of the Krian; total area 280 square miles. The chief town of Penang is George Town. Off the coast of Perak is the small island of Pangkor, which, together with a strip of the mainland, is British territory, the whole being known as the Dindings. Malacca is on the western coast of the peninsula between Singapore and Penang—about 110 miles from the former and 240 from the latter; it is a strip of territory 42 miles in length, and from eight to 24 miles in breadth.

176 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS

The population, according to the census of 1921, was 881,939 (557,838 males and 324,101 females). The estimated population for 1920 and the census population in 1921, inclusive of the military, are as follows:—

In 1918 there were in the Settlements about 274,574 Malays, 432,764 Chinese, and 94,213 natives of India.

Births and deaths for 1921:—

	Singapore	Penang	Dindings	Province Wellesley	Malacca	Labuan	Total
Births	12,315	5,193	333	4,624	6,194	203	28,772
Deaths	14,111	5,126	356	3,739	4,468	199	28,000

In 1921 there were 191,043 immigrants from China, and 45,673 from Southern India.

Education.

By an Ordinance passed in 1909, an Education Board was established, consisting of official and unofficial members, under the chairmanship of the Director of Education, and provision was made for an Education Rate. Vernacular instruction is provided for Malays free of charge, and attendance is compulsory. Instruction in English for all nationalities is provided in Government and numerous aided schools, and fees are charged. All the Government schools are unsectarian. There is a reformatory in Singapore for juvenile offenders and vagrants, where industrial instruction is provided.

The numbers of schools and scholars in 1921 were as follows:—

	No. of Schools	Enrolment	Attendance
Government English schools (boys and girls)	10	4,629	4,405
Grant-in-aid English schools (boys and girls)	41	13,931	12,862

Grant-in-aid Vernacular schools (boys and girls)	9	363	299
Total	245	33,022	30,121

The expenditure on the schools was 189,738*l*.
There is a training college for Malay teachers in Malacca.

Justice and Crime.

The law in force is contained in local ordinances and in such English and Indian Acts and Orders in Council as are applicable to the colony. The Indian Penal Code, with slight alterations, has been adopted, and there is a Civil Procedure Code based on the English Judicature Acts. There is a Supreme Court which holds assizes at Singapore and Penang every two months, and quarterly at Malacca, civil sittings monthly at Singapore and Penang, and once a quarter at Malacca.

There are, besides, district courts, police courts and marine magistrates' courts. Convictions before the Superior Courts in 1919 were 599; before the other courts, 38,201 persons. Police force, actual strength 2,996 in 1922. Criminal prisoners admitted to the gaols in 1921, 4,988.

Finance.

Public revenue and expenditure for six years (1 dollar = 2*s*. 4*d*.):—

Years	Revenue	Expenditure	Years	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£

The leading items of revenue for 1921 were—licences, excise, and internal revenue not otherwise classified, 3,374,000*l*.; posts and telegraphs, 147,000*l*.; fees of court or office, payments for specific services, and reimbursements in aid, 109,000*l*.; rents of Government property, 163,000*l*.; interest, 232,000*l*.; land sales, 15,000*l*.; and of expenditure—military expenditure, 673,000*l*.; civil service, 61,000*l*.; marine, 86,000*l*.; police, 281,000*l*.; legal, 50,000*l*.; hospitals and dispensaries, 165,000*l*.; medical, 67,000*l*.; education, 106,000*l*.; post office, 211,000*l*.; Government monopolies, 89,000*l*.; public works, 533,000*l*.; pensions, 88,000*l*.

The total assets of the colony, December 31, 1921, amounted to 10,410,000*l*., and liabilities 4,695,000*l*. The debt on December 31, 1921, amounted to 6,913,000*l*., borrowed for public works; 9,386,000*l*. war loan; and 2,359,000*l*. 7 per cent. loan lent to Federated Malay States Government, Johore, and municipalities.

Commerce.

The Straits ports are free from customs duties, and their trade, centred at Singapore, is a transit trade. Excise duties are levied on wines, petroleum, and tobacco. The chief exports comprise tin, pepper, nutmegs, mace, sago, tapioca, buffalo hides and horns, rattans, gutta-percha, rubber, gambier, gum, copra. The cultivation of rice is giving place to rubber and coconuts.

Transit trade, goods changing bottom at Singapore, or landed and stored awaiting re-shipment, is not included in the import and export statistics. The statistics cover goods brought for sale into Singapore and purchased there, either for consumption or for sale to other places whither they are sent to be exported. The trade is a transit trade in the sense only that what is imported is exported without undergoing any process of manufacture. Exchange fluctuations affect the value of past statistical results, in times of low exchange the dollar value of goods having their origin in gold countries being enhanced; the same probably holding good, to a less extent, in the case of produce exported, but the dollar having been fixed early in 1906 at 2s. 4d., this is the rate adopted since.

The following figures are taken from the British Board of Trade Returns, the imports including produce from Borneo, Sarawak, and other eastern places, transhipped at Singapore, which is thus entered as the place of export:—

Shipping and Navigation.

The total number of merchant vessels entered at the ports of the Colony during 1921, exclusive of native craft, was 8,284, with a tonnage of 12,524,000 tons. The number of native craft was 26,245, with a tonnage of 1,165,000 tons. The number of merchant vessels cleared at the ports of the colony and dependencies was 8,297, with a tonnage of 12,532,000 tons. The total number of native craft in 1921 was 24,824, with a tonnage of 1,132,000 tons.

Communications.

There is a railway from Singapore to Woodlands on the Johore Straits, communication between Woodlands and Johore being maintained by steam ferries. The Federated Malay States Railway extends from Parit Buntar in Krian to Kuala Prai in Province Wellesley, whence are steam ferries to Penang. There is a railway from Malacca to Tampin in the Negri Sembilan. All the railways have a gauge of one metre, and form a part of the Federated Malay States Railway system, a continuation of which through Johore was opened in 1909. A causeway is (1922) being constructed to connect Singapore with the mainland, to carry two lines of railway and a 20-foot roadway, across the Johore Straits. There are electric tramway systems in Singapore and Penang. There are cables connecting Singapore and Penang, and land lines from Singapore to Johore, Kuala Lumpur, Ipoh, and Penang, from Penang to Taiping, Ipoh, Kuala Lumpur and Singapore, and from Malacca to Tampin and Kuala Lumpur.

In 1921, 12,763,000 letters and other articles of correspondence were posted, and 10,370,000 delivered. The number of letters sent to China in clubbed packets was 1,424,000. The parcels posted numbered 174,000, those delivered 122,000.

From Labuan there are telegraph cables connecting with Hong Kong, Singapore, Sandakan, and the Continent.

Wireless stations exist at Paya Lebar on Singapore Island and at Penaga in Province Wellesley; their functions at present are limited to ship traffic (except for traffic with Burma, wireless and Kuching and Miri in Sarawak).

Money, Weights, and Measures.

There are twenty-seven banks with establishments in the Colony. The amount of deposits in the Government Savings Bank on December 31, 1921, was 1,772,210 dollars, equivalent to 206,757*l*.

The dollar, value 2*s*. 4*d*., is the standard coin of the Colony, and with the half-dollar and the British sovereign is legal tender for the payment of any amount. Subsidiary silver coins are 20, 10, and 5 cent pieces; nickel five cent pieces; copper cents, half-cents, and quarter-cents. On December 31, 1921, Government currency notes to the value of 84,596,806 dollars (9,869,627*l*.) were in circulation in the Colony and Federated Malay States.

The measure of length in use in the Settlements is the English yard, with its divisions and multiples, and land is measured by the English acre. The native terms are, however, still in use. Commercial weights are:—

1 Kati	= 16 Tahil	= 1½ lb. avoirdupois.
1 Pikul	= 100 Kati	= 133½ lbs. ,,
1 Koyan	= 40 Pikul	= 5,333½ ,, ,,

The kati of 1½ lbs. is known as the Chinese kati. Another weight, known as the Malay kati, and still in partial use in Penang, is equal to the weight of 24 Spanish dollars, or 9,984 grains. This gives 142·628 lbs. as the weight of the pikul, and 5,705·143 lbs. as the weight of the koyan. The measures of capacity throughout the Colony are the gantang or gallon, and chupak or quart.

The Cocos or Keeling Islands, a group of about twenty small coral islands, annexed in 1857, lie about 700 miles S.W. of Sumatra and 1,200 miles S.W. of Singapore. The estimated population in 1921 was about 800.

Christmas Island is 190 miles S.W. of Java and 700 miles E. of the Cocos Islands, and was annexed in 1888. It is 9 miles long and about 9 miles wide. Area about 62 square miles. The estimated population in 1921 was about 1,100, most of the inhabitants, except the District Officer and his staff, being employed directly or indirectly by the company which works the enormous phosphate deposits which the island contains. Revenue, 1919, 4,255*l*.; expenditure, 1,220*l*. Imports, 1919, 28,186*l*., chiefly machinery, tools, railway material, locomotives, and lorries; exports, 153,008*l*. The sole source of wealth of the island is phosphate of lime; 81,197 tons were exported in 1919, and 53,370 tons in 1918. Tonnage entered and cleared, 1919, 81,197 tons; 1918, 71,926 tons. There is a railway in the island.

The island of Labuan lies about 6 miles from the north-west coast of Borneo. It was ceded to Britain in 1846, and since January 1, 1907, has been incorporated with Singapore. Area 28½ sq. miles; the population in 1921 was 5,909, mostly Malays from Borneo, with some Chinese traders and about 30 Europeans. Capital, Victoria, which has about 1,500 inhabitants. Revenue, 1919, 11,848*l*. Expenditure, 10,357*l*. Shipping entered and cleared, 1919, 141,686 tons.

THE FEDERATED MALAY STATES.

Constitution and Government.—The Federated Malay States of Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang, in the Malay Peninsula, are under British protection. The officer administering the Government of the Straits Settlements is ex officio H.M.'s High Commissioner for these States and the other Malay States in the British sphere.

High Commissioner.—Sir Lawrence Nunns Guillemard, K.C.B., K.C.M.G.
Chief Secretary to Government.—W. George Maxwell, C.M.G.

The following are the Rulers and Residents of the four States:—

Ruler of Perak.—Paduka Sri Sultan Iskandar Shah, K.C.M.C., ibni Idris.
Resident.—Major C. W. C. Parr, O.B.E.

Ruler of Selangor.—H. H. Sultan Alaedin Suleiman Shah, K.C.M.G., ibni Almerhum Raja Muda Musa. Resident.—O. F. Stonor.

Ruler of Negri Sembilan.—H. H. Muhammad, K.C.M.G., ibni Antah Yang di Pertuan Besar, Negri Sembilan. Resident.—E. S. Hose.

Ruler of Pahang.—Almuktasam Billah Al-Sultan Abdullah, K.C.M.G.
Resident.—H. W. Thomson.

In Perak, Selangor, and Sungai Ujong, which State was subsequently amalgamated with other States to form the Confederation of Negri Sembilan, Residents were appointed in 1874, with a staff of European officers whose duty was to aid the native rulers by advice, and to exercise executive functions. The supreme authority in each State is vested in the State Council, consisting of the Sultan, the Resident, the Secretary to the Resident, and some of the principal Malay chiefs and Chinese merchants. The Residents are under the control of the Chief Secretary and the High Commissioner.

In 1883 the relations of the Straits Settlements with the small Native States on the frontier of Malacca were consolidated. These States were confederated in 1889, under the name of Negri Sembilan (signifying Nine States). In January, 1895, Sungai Ujong (including Jelebu, which had been administered by a Collector and Magistrate under the Resident of Sungai Ujong since 1888) and Negri Sembilan were placed under one Resident; and in July, 1895, a treaty was signed by which the administrations were amalgamated. The new federation, which retains the ancient name of Negri Sembilan, comprises the States of Sungai Ujong, Johol, Jelebu, Rembau and five smaller States. In 1887, by agreement with the Raja of Pahang, the control of his foreign relations, &c., was surrendered to the British Government. This was followed by a further agreement in 1888 with the Raja (now styled Sultan), under which Pahang was taken under British protection, on the same terms as the Protected Native States on the west coast of the peninsula. Pahang is situated on the east coast, within 200 miles by sea from Singapore. In July, 1896, the treaty between the four Protected Native States, Perak, Selangor, Pahang, and Negri Sembilan, and the British Government came into force by which the administrative federation of these States under a Chief Secretary is provided for, and the States agree to furnish a contingent of troops for service in the Colony should His Majesty's Government be at war with any foreign nation.

Area.—The areas of these States are approximately:—Perak, 7,800 sq. miles; Selangor, 3,156 sq. miles; Negri Sembilan, 2,550 sq. miles; Pahang, 14,000 square miles; total, 27,506 sq. miles. Perak, by agreement with Siam, has been extended by about 1,000 square miles (included in the figures given above).

Population.—Census 1921: Perak, 599,055 (378,902 males and 220,153 females); Selangor, 401,009 (267,165 males and 133,844 females); Negri Sembilan, 178,762 (119,569 males and 59,193 females); Pahang, 146,064 (87,892 males and 58,172 females); total 1,324,890 (853,528 males, and 471,362 females). The population contained 510,821 Malays, 494,548 Chinese, 305,219 natives of India, 5,686 Europeans, and 3,204 Eurasians. The preponderance of males over females is due to the number of Chinese and Indian immigrants. The largest town is Kuala Lumpur (in Selangor) with about 80,000 inhabitants. Births, 1921, 36,294; deaths, 38,077.

Instruction.—In 1921, there were 41 English schools (30 for boys, 11 for girls), with an average enrolment of 7,861 boys and 2,122 girls, and an average attendance of 7,334 and 1,941 respectively, maintained or assisted by the Government; also 517 Vernacular schools (Malay, Tamil, and one Chinese), with an average enrolment of 25,979, and an average attendance of 22,142, which are under the control of the Education Department. The total number of schools (1921) was 558 with an average attendance of 31,417. There are many Chinese Vernacular schools which are not maintained or assisted by the Education Department. Expenditure on education (excluding buildings) in 1921 was 175,060*l*.

Justice and Crime.—The laws of each State are contained in enactments passed by the State Councils, up to December, 1909, and from that date, where more than one State is affected, by the Federal Council. This Council consists of the High Commissioner as President, the Chief Secretary, the Sultans of Perak, Selangor, and Pahang, the Yang di per Tuan Besar of Negri Sembilan, the four British Residents, the Legal Adviser, Financial Adviser and six unofficial members, and in addition to legislation deals with the annual estimates of revenue and expenditure. All legislative enactments are submitted to the High Commissioner and the Secretary of State for the Colonies. The courts in the States are:—(1) The Supreme Court, comprising the Court of a Judicial Commissioner and the Court of Appeal. (2) The Court of a Magistrate of the first class. (3) The Court of a Magistrate of the second class. (4) The Court of a Kathi and the Court of Assistant Kathi. (5) The Court of a Penghulu. The Court of Appeal consists of two or more Judicial Commissioners, the chief Judicial Commissioner being President. There is a final appeal in civil matters to the Privy Council.

The number of cases of murder, homicide, robbery, &c., reported in 1920 was 1,032, discovered 312; in 1921, reported 990, discovered 344. The number of prisoners in gaol on December 31, 1920, was 1,489.

The police force, with European officers, consists of an Indian and a Malay contingent. The actual strength at the close of 1921 was: British officers, 91; Malay inspectors, 13; subordinate uniformed ranks, Malays, 1,833; Indians, 1,585; others, 218; total, 3,740. Finger-print registration of all criminals in British Malaya is carried out under the direction of a Federated Malay States Police officer stationed in Kuala Lumpur.

Finance.—The revenue of the States in 1921 was 6,352,450*l*. (1920 revenue, 8,432,334*l*.), and the expenditure, 13,345,097*l*. (1920 expenditure, 11,717,238*l*).

Leading items of revenue in 1921 were—customs, 1,122,126*l*.; licences, 1,525,346*l*.; fees of court or office, 503,841*l*.; interest, 356,605*l*.; municipal,

Production.—The staple products are coconuts, rice, rubber, sugar, tapioca, pepper, gambier, and nipah palms. The chief industrial enterprises are the cultivation of rubber, and the mining of tin. The Krian irrigation works in Perak irrigate 70,000 acres of rice (padi) land and supply drinking water to the district. The canal is 21 miles long with 16½ miles of branches and 188½ miles of distributory channels. The total area under rubber cultivation at the end of 1921 was 1,177,590 acres (101,329 tons were exported in 1920 and 94,552 tons in 1921), and coconuts, 177,327 acres. The forests produce many excellent timbers, besides gutta-percha, oils, resins, and canes. In 1921 the total quantity of timber of all kinds taken from the forests, on which payment was made, was 726,734 tons, in addition to a large quantity used free of royalty by the native Malay population and the tin miners. The revenue of the Forest Department for 1921 amounted to 114,812*l.* The duty on the export of tin forms the largest item of the revenue of the States on the West Coast. In 1921 the tin export amounted to 34,489 tons, and in 1922 to 35,288 tons. In 1921, 14,674 ounces of gold, and in 1920, 12,823 ounces were produced in the Federated Malay States. Besides gold and tin, many minerals are found, including lead, iron, copper, mercury, arsenic, manganese, wolfram (exports 1921, 55 tons), scheelite, plumbago, silver, zinc, and coal, but with the exception of coal, they have not so far been discovered in workable form. The exports of tungsten ore in 1921 were 55 tons. The labour force engaged in mining at the end of 1921 was 86,339.

Commerce.—The trade (excluding bullion and specie) was as follows in 1921, with total for 1920:—

—	Perak	Selangor	Negri Sembilan	Pahang	Total 1921	Total 1920
	£	£	£	£	£	£
Imports	2,832,135	6,572,648	881,722	720,232	12,006,737	10,894,248
Exports	7,723,884	5,671,850	1,581,406	767,674	15,744,814	33,683,498

Chief imports, 1921: Rice, 1,930,642*l.*; opium, 382,550*l.*; tobacco, cigars, and cigarettes, 724,301*l.*; cotton piece goods, 372,552*l.*; sugar, 262,167*l.*; milk, condensed, 247,526*l.*; live animals, 206,677*l.*; spirits, 181,479*l.*; petroleum, including benzine, 610,465*l.*; ironware, 445,223*l.*; machinery, 1,374,974*l.* Chief exports, 1921: Cultivated rubber (94,522 tons), 7,847,135*l.*; copra, 883,132*l.*; tin and tin ore, 5,843,254*l.*; metals, 5,162*l.*; timber, 62,405*l.*; hides, 9,935*l.*

Shipping, 1921 (excluding native craft): entered, 3,288 vessels, 1,713,382 tons; cleared, 3,289 vessels, 1,713,609 tons. Native craft, entered and cleared, 13,320 vessels, 351,452 tons.

Communications.—There were in 1921, 2,446 miles of metalled cart roads, 178 miles of unmetalled roads, and 1,818 miles of bridle roads and paths; also 771 miles of paths maintained by the Forest Department. The Government has made, purchased, leased, or is making, the railway systems of the whole peninsula south of the Siamese boundary, including the railway on Singapore Island. When the system is complete, there will be a main trunk line throughout the peninsula, diverging at Gemas in Negri Sembilan into West Coast and East Coast lines, and linking up with the Southern Siamese railway system on the Perlis-Siam and Kelantan-Siam boundaries respectively. The two Siamese lines converge at Haad Yai, in Singora, and thence a single line continues north to Bangkok. On the West Coast, the line is open for traffic from Singapore to Padang Besar (Perlis-Siamese boundary), 585 miles, and on the East Coast from Singapore to Padang Tungku (in Pahang). A section in Kelantan from Tumpat to Riverside (33½ miles), and one from Pasir Mas to Golok (Kelantan-Siam boundary) (12 miles) are also open. The Siamese line from the Golok to Haad Yai was opened on November 1, 1921, thus making through rail communication between Kelantan and the rest of the Peninsula. The section in Johore, from Johore Bahru to Gemas (120 miles), is leased from the Johore Government. The total mileage open for traffic was 1,022 miles in 1921. The lines under construction (1921) were about 48 miles, besides 2 miles of Hill Railway, in Penang, and doubling of lines in Singapore (16 miles) and in neighbourhood of Kuala Lumpur (37 miles). A causeway, carrying a double line of railway and a roadway, is now being constructed (1922), connecting Singapore with the mainland across the Johore Straits. An extensive scheme of deep-water wharves at Prai, on the mainland, opposite Penang, is also in progress.

There were, in 1921, 97 post offices and 38 other places for postal business. In 1921, 21,001,802 postal packets (registered letters, 816,172, and parcels, 201,323) were received and delivered. In 1921 there were 2,389 miles of telegraph and telephone line (13,124 miles of wire) under the Post Office department. The net revenue collected by the department amounted to 149,014*l.*, and expenditure to 390,725*l.* Savings Banks : 13,984 depositors and 124,409*l.* deposits on December 31, 1921.

Money, &c.—The current money consists of Straits Settlements dollars with subsidiary silver and copper coins. In February, 1906, the value of the dollar was fixed at 2*s.* 4*d.* or 60 dollars = 7*l.* Currency notes and bank notes also circulate, and the sovereign is legal tender for any amount at the above rate. Weights and measures (as well as currency) are as in the Straits Settlements.

THE MALAY STATES NOT INCLUDED IN THE FEDERATION.

The Malay States not included in the Federation are five in number, namely, Johore, Kedah, Perlis, Kelantan, and Trengganu.

The relations of Johore with Great Britain are defined by a treaty dated December 11, 1885; and, by an amendment to this treaty made on May 12, 1914, the Sultan agreed to accept, and to act upon the advice of, a British officer called the General Adviser. The Sultan is assisted in the administration of the State by an Executive Council, and by a Legislative Council consisting of official and unofficial members.

The rights of suzerainty, protection, administration and control of the other four States were transferred from Siam to Great Britain by the Anglo-Siamese treaty of March 10, 1909. In all four States the Rulers are assisted in the administration by State Councils, and by British Advisers appointed by the British Government.

In these States the currency, weights and measures are the same as in the Straits Settlements and the Federated Malay States. Their trade is almost entirely carried on with the Straits Settlements.

The religion of the Malays is Muhammadanism.

Johore (area 7,500 square miles, population in 1921, 282,244, of whom 158,144 were Malays, 90,888 Chinese, and 24,278 Indians) lies at the southern extremity of the Malay Peninsula. Births registered (1921), 10,167; deaths, 8,770. There were (1921) 3 English schools and 69 vernacular schools, and an English College (with 67 boys in residence).

Revenue (1921), 7,689,054 dollars; expenditure, 11,159,449. The public debt amounts to 800,000 dollars. Imports (1921), 24,730,135 dollars (foodstuffs, drinks, and narcotics, 17,711,034; raw materials, 2,677,317; manufactured articles, 3,733,932; coin and bullion 2,585 dollars). Exports 29,191,539 dollars (rubber, 16,097,138; gambier, 207,843; pepper, 40,089; copra, 4,587,530; areca-nuts, 1,435,551; tin, 2,097,038; tapioca, 950,081; forest produce, 1,418,837 dollars). Rubber output, 1921, 18,922 tons.

During 1921, 29 additional miles of road were opened to traffic, and 12 miles were under construction. At the end of 1921, 576 miles of metalled road had been constructed. The railway from Penang to Singapore traverses Johore for a distance of 120 miles. The Johore section has been leased to the Federated Malay States Government for a term of years. Rubber estates are situated on either side along practically the whole length, and thus, with the help of roads and navigable rivers, good communication is available.

An efficient medical service and thirteen public hospitals are maintained by the Government. Police force, end of 1921, 896.

The Postal revenue (1921) was 77,861 dollars. Letters, parcels, &c., received, 1,968,472; despatched, 1,214,570.

Ruler.—His Highness Sultan Ibrahim, G.C.M.G., K.B.E.

General Adviser.—Hayes Marriott.

Kedah, on the west coast of the Peninsula, and north of Province Wellesley and Perak, has an area of 3,890 square miles. The population (census 1921) is 338,554, of whom 237,043 are Malays, 59,403 Chinese, 33,019 Indians, 235 Europeans, 75 Eurasians, and 8,779 other races. The capital is Alor Star on the Kedah River, about seventy miles from Penang by sea, rail, or road. Owing to the Sultan's ill-health, the head of the Government is the Regent. There are (1922) 36 Europeans in the Government service, principally in the Public Works, Survey and Police Departments. The police force had a strength (September, 1921) of 710 men (principally Malays). There were at the end of 1921, 63 Government schools (about 6,000 pupils), 11 telegraph offices, and 18 post offices. A telephone system extends throughout the State, the wire mileage in 1921 being 1,380. The railway connecting the Federated Malay States and Siam passes through the State. A metalled road (39 miles) connects Alor Star with Perlis, and with the Senggora frontier (Siam), and a metalled road (50 miles) connects it with Province Wellesley. Another metalled road (45 miles) connects Baling with Upper Perak in one direction and with Province Wellesley in the opposite direction. The total mileage of metalled road (1921) is 270. 270 miles of canal were maintained in 1921. The revenue of the State for the year 1921 (Muhammadan year 1339) was 5,235,450 dollars, including Customs, 922,000; lands, 672,000; and land sales, 772,000 dollars; and the expenditure, 5,348,756 dollars. Public debt, September, 1921, 2,720,953 dollars. The principal produce of North Kedah is rice. There are rubber (output 1921, 6,660 tons), coconut, and tapioca estates in South Kedah. Several steamers ply between Penang and the various ports of Kedah. Kedah-Penang trade (1921): imports, 5,431,910 dollars; exports, 5,843,000 dollars. Kedah-Federated Malay States trade (1921): imports 151,000 dollars; exports 1,086,000 dollars. Postal and telegraph revenue, 1921, 69,000 dollars; expenditure, 150,000 dollars. Postal articles dealt with, 1,651,000.

Ruler.—H.H. Sultan Sir Abul Hamid Halim Shah ibni Almerhum Sultan Ahmad Tajudin, K.C.M.G. (succeeded in 1911).

Regent.—H.H. Tunku Ibrahim, C.M.G.

British Adviser.—M. S. H. McArthur.

Perlis, on the west coast of the Peninsula and north of Kedah, has an area of about 316 square miles and a population (1921 census) of 40,091. Malays numbered 34,167 of the population, Chinese 3,589, Indians 816, and other races 1,519. Police force (1921) 64 n.c.o.'s and men. Fifteen schools were maintained in 1921; about 1,200 pupils. The principal products are rice, tin, and coconuts. There are tin and guano deposits. There are 19 miles of metalled and 15 miles of gravelled road in the State. The revenue for 1921 was 341,421 dollars, and the expenditure 337,381 dollars. Public debt, 1921, 495,395 dollars.

Ruler.—H.H. Raja Syed Aliwi.

British Adviser.—T. W. Clayton (Acting).

Kelantan, on the east coast of the Peninsula, has an area estimated at 5,870 square miles and a population (1921 census) of 309,293, including 12,799 Chinese. Kota Bharu, the capital, has a population of about 11,000. There are 24 Government elementary schools in the State. The High Court, the Central Court, and the Small Court are at Kota Bharu, and there are District Courts at Kuala Krai, Pasir Puteh, Pasir Mas, and Tumpat respectively. Police force, 1922, 387. The revenue of the State in 1921 amounted to 1,160,262 dollars (licences, excise, &c., 355,000 dollars; customs, 329,060 dollars; land revenue, 321,000 dollars), and the expenditure to 1,678,432 dollars. Public debt (1921) 3,343,000 dollars.

The chief industry is agriculture. About 382,000 acres were under cultivation in 1921. Chief products: rice (160,000 acres), coconuts (71,000 acres), betel-nuts, rubber (105,000 acres), resin and gharu, rattan, bamboo, pepper, tapioca, sugar-cane, and maize. A large part of the State is covered with jungle comprising numerous kinds of serviceable timber. The State supports cattle (estimated at 118,000 head), buffaloes (28,000), sheep, goats, and poultry. The almost unworked mineral resources are believed to comprise gold, galena, pyrites, and tin. Large planting and mining concessions are held by British companies. The principal manufacturing industries are silk-weaving, boat-building, and brick-making. In 1921, total exports, 2,848,171 dollars; total imports, 4,108,595 dollars (1920, 6,993,000 and 5,680,000 dollars respectively). Chief exports, 1921: betel-nuts, 272,000 dollars; fish, 259,000 dollars; copra, 862,000 dollars; Para rubber, 1,221,000 dollars. Chief imports, 1921: cattle, 38,000 dollars; fish, 32,000 dollars; rice, 79,000 dollars; wheat and flour, 59,000 dollars; milk, 95,000 dollars; sugar, 129,000 dollars; tobacco, 331,000 dollars; salt, 61,000 dollars; gambier, 43,000 dollars; petroleum, 246,000 dollars; cotton goods, 951,000 dollars; silk goods, 53,000 dollars; timber, 91,000 dollars; cement, 58,000 dollars; machinery and metal goods, 410,000 dollars; opium, 162,000 dollars.

Tonnage of steamships inwards and outwards, 1921, 88,140 tons (38,191 tons in 1920). Over 5,400 are registered. There is regular steamship communication with Bangkok and Singapore. Roads (except for the Kota Bharu-Pasir Puteh road, 26 miles) extend only a few miles from the capital; communication inland is by the rivers. There is daily connection by rail and steamer between Tumpat and Kuala Krai 60 miles up river. The line to the Siamese border is open for traffic, and a daily service each way between Tumpat and the Kedah boundary is maintained, making communication with Penang an easy matter. Kota Bharu is in direct telegraphic communication with Bangkok and Penang, and possesses a telephone service. There were (1921) 4 post offices and 3 sub-post offices in the State.

Ruler.—H. H. Sultan Ismail, K. C. M. G.

British Adviser.—H. W. Thomson.

Trengganu, with an area of about 6,000 square miles, and a population, at the census 1921, of 153,092, lies on the east coast between Pahang and Kelantan. The capital is Kuala Trengganu, with a population of 14,000. There are four Malay schools and one Chinese school. Trengganu was the last British possession to tolerate slavery for debt. The practice has been abolished by an enactment passed in 1919. Police force, 1921, about 243. There are about 11 miles of metalled cart road at the capital, and a telephone exchange, but no trunk roads or railways. Communication with the interior is by rivers, and good native paths. Steamers connect regularly with Singapore and Bangkok, and locally-built motor-boats maintain passenger services along the Trengganu coast. The industries are similar to those of Kelantan, and the country is of the same general character. Revenue, 1921, 647,619 dollars; chiefly from farms, 33,393 dollars; chandu, 195,107 dollars; export duty on tin and wolfram, 32,914 dollars; other export duties, 202,770 dollars. Expenditure, 1921, 759,054 dollars. Debt, 1921, nil. The total imports in 1921 were 2,574,946 dollars, and the total exports 2,297,238 dollars. Chief exports, in dollars, 1921: dried fish, 426,485; copra, 232,408; gambier, 51,411; areca-nuts, 157,405; silk and sarongs, 340,249; cotton sarongs, 177,706. Chief imports, in dollars: Rice, 668,564; cotton piece goods, 253,870; tobacco, 154,836; petroleum, 98,271; sugar, 78,754; cotton, 172,795; dyed cotton goods, 287,286; silk, 149,126.

Ruler.—H. H. Yang Dipertuan Besar Alsultan Suleiman Badar-al-alam Shah Yang Pertama. He is assisted by a State Council on the Johore model.

WEIHAIWEI.

Weihaiwei, in the Chinese province of Shantung, with the adjacent waters was, by a Convention with the Chinese Government, dated July 1, 1898, leased to Great Britain. The territory leased comprises, besides the port and bay, the island of Liu Kung, all the islands in the bay, and a belt of land 10 English miles wide along the entire coast-line of the bay. The boundary has been demarcated and regulations settled for the management of frontier affairs. The area of about 285 square miles contains (1921 census) 154,416 inhabitants, including 6,000 on the island of Liu Kung. The native city of Weihaiwei is a walled town with about 2,000 inhabitants. Within the limits of the territory Great Britain has sole jurisdiction, except that within the walled city Chinese officials may exercise such jurisdiction as is not inconsistent with the defence of the territory. In addition, within a zone extending east from the meridian 121° 40' east of Greenwich, and comprising an area of 1,500 square miles, Great Britain has the right to erect fortifications or take any measures necessary for the defence of the territory, and to acquire sites necessary for water supply, communications and hospitals. As a result of the Shantung settlement at Washington (January 1922) Great Britain will in due course restore Weihaiwei to China.

Under an Order in Council of July 24, 1901, the territory is administered by a Commissioner. Legislation is by Ordinances. The seat of government is at Port Edward on the mainland. There is a High Court for both civil and criminal cases, subject to appeal to the Supreme Court at Hong Kong, and provision is made for courts of district magistrates. There are 4 European inspectors of police. There are 8 Chinese sergeants, 6 corporals and 109 warders, detectives, and constables. In the numerous villages the headmen system is maintained. At the Government Free School there were in 1921 146 pupils, and about half-a-dozen Mission schools have 177 pupils. There is also a private school (30 pupils in 1920) in which the sons of Europeans are educated. There are (1921) nearly 300 Chinese primary schools within the territory, with an actual average attendance of about 5,000 scholars, and with a teaching staff of 307 teachers. About 6 per cent. of the inhabitants can read and write.

Revenue is derived from (1) a land tax and a road tax; (2) junk registration, shipping dues, wine monopoly; (3) fines and miscellaneous sources. For 1921-22 the net revenue was 199,002 dollars,¹ and the net expenditure was 236,702 dollars, the deficit being partly met from savings. For 1920-21 the amounts were 161,973 dollars and 235,445 dollars respectively. The grant in aid for 1918-19 was 4,000*l.*; for 1919-20, 7,900*l.*; for 1920-21, 20,000*l.*; and for 1921-22, 8,000*l.*

The station is used as a flying naval base and as a dépôt, exercising ground, and sanatorium for the China squadron, which assembles at Weihaiwei during the summer. No troops are stationed permanently in its territory, the Chinese regiment having been disbanded during 1906. The prevalence of brigandage, since 1918, in the Chinese districts bordering on the Territory, has, however, rendered it necessary to keep a small detachment of Indian troops stationed at Port Edward.

The leased territory, consisting of rocky hill ranges with fertile valleys, is most picturesque; it is well populated, and the inhabitants are in general well-to-do. Cereals, vegetables and fruits (apples, grapes and apricots) are grown, and oak-fed silk is produced. Mulberry cultivation is being tried. Seedlings of fir trees, acacias, willows, and plane trees have done well. Those of the inhabitants who are not farmers are mostly fishermen. Some rope and line making, boat-building, and stone-cutting are carried on. The territory contains gold, but, so far as is known, not in workable quantities. The trade is carried on by junks and steamers. In 1921, 554 steamers of 518,767 net tons entered the port, exclusive of Admiralty colliers and government transports. 1,998 junks entered and cleared, as against 2,874 in 1920. Total imports, 1921, 5,630,432 dollars. Chief items: beans, 31,028 dollars; bean-cake, 89,883 dollars; bean oil, 255,900 dollars; cotton yarn, 918,605 dollars; coal, 169,096 dollars; gunny bags, 116,420 dollars; ground-nut kernels, 636,168 dollars; ground-nut oil, 353,465 dollars; Indian corn, 159,010 dollars; piece goods, 355,140 dollars; paper, 456,300 dollars; rice, 297,298 dollars; sugar, 509,445 dollars; salt, 20,542 dollars; kerosene oil, 146,702 dollars; timber, 161,866 dollars; tobacco, 68,220 dollars; wines (Chinese), 216,998 dollars; wines (foreign),

51,980 dollars. Total exports, 1921, 5,261,391 dollars. Chief items: bean-cake, 18,858 dollars; bean-oil, 9,950 dollars; coal, 10,225 dollars; eggs, 38,815 dollars; ground-nuts, 79,072 dollars; ground-nut kernels, 2,068,720 dollars; ground-nut oil, 331,691 dollars; fish (salt and dried) 89,750 dollars; salt, 363,420 dollars; sugar, 304,575 dollars. Weihaiwei is a duty-free port.

Good roads have been made round the coasts and into the interior of the Territory. The value of land is rising, which is a sign of the increasing prosperity of the place. There is a regular weekly mail service to and from Shanghai. Many Europeans visit the place in summer on account of the excellence of the climate, which is unsurpassed in the Far East.

MANDATED TERRITORIES IN ASIA.

IRAQ (MESOPOTAMIA).

King—Faisal, third son of the King of the Hejas.

Iraq was conquered by Indian and British troops during the Great War. The town of Basra was occupied on November 22, 1914, and Baghdad on March 11, 1917. In the Peace Treaty of Sévres, 1920 (which was not ratified), Iraq was recognised as an independent State, to be placed under a Mandatory Power, and the Supreme Council allotted the mandate to Great Britain. Under the draft treaty of Lausanne, 1923, the boundary between Iraq and Turkey is to be adjudged by the League of Nations.

Government.—In 1920 a Council of State was formed, as a provisional measure, to conduct the administration of the country, under the Mandate of Great Britain. On August 23, 1921, the High Commissioner proclaimed the Emir Faisal King of the Iraq, by election of the people, as the result of a plebiscite in which 96 per cent. of the inhabitants of the country voted in his favour. H.H. the Naqib of Baghdad, who had acted as President of the Council of State, was entrusted by H.M. King Faisal with the duty of forming his first Cabinet, which resigned in August, 1922, and was reformed as follows:—

Premier: H.H. the Naqib of Baghdad.

Minister of Interior: 'Abdul Muhsin Beg al Sa'dun.

Minister of Defence: Ja'far Pasha al 'Askari.

Minister of Finance: Sasun Effendi.

Minister of Justice: Tawfiq Beg al Khalidi.

Minister of Public Works: Sabih Beg.

Minister of Education: Haji Muhsin Shallash.

Minister of Agriculture: Saiyid Muhammad 'Ali al Fadhil.

On October 11, 1922, the British Government entered into treaty relations with the government of Iraq. The treaty is to remain in force for 20 years.

The British Government undertakes to secure a speedy delimitation of the frontiers of Iraq, in order that Iraq may be in a position, when the treaty and the subsidiary agreements have been duly ratified and the organic law has been brought into effect, to apply for admission to membership of the League of Nations. To secure the admission of Iraq to the League, the British Government will use its good offices. In all important matters affecting the international and financial obligations and interests of the British Government, the King of Iraq agrees to be guided by the advice of the British High Commissioner.

It has been officially stated that the admission of Iraq to the League of Nations would put an end to the British mandate.

Area and Population.—The country has an area of 143,250 square miles (the vilayets respectively of Baghdad, 54,540 square miles, Basra, 53,580 square miles, and Mosul, 35,130 square miles), and a population, according to the Census of 1920, of 2,849,282. The following are the detailed figures of the census results :—

Division	Sunni	Shi'ah	Jewish	Christian	Other Religions	Total

Grand Total	1,146,685	1,494,015	87,488	78,792	42,302	2,849,282

Instruction.—There are numerous Government schools of all types. New schools have been opened and others are under construction. Secondary Schools are receiving special attention, as also technical education. The foundation stone of a university was laid in Baghdad by the king in April, 1922.

Justice.—A Court of Appeal, and courts of various grades have been reinstated on the Ottoman model, but with a British judge as one of the members in the higher courts.

FINANCE—PRODUCTION—COMMERCE—COMMUNICATIONS 191

Finance.—Revenue, 1918-19, 2,080,000*l.*; expenditure, 1,177,000*l.* Revenue, 1919-20, 3,437,000*l.*; expenditure, 3,692,000*l.*

Defence.—Besides British Imperial Forces, which passed on October 1, 1922 under the control of the Air Ministry, local forces consist of the Iraq Army, which is in process of formation, and a Levy Force under British officers, financed by the Imperial Exchequer.

Production.—Iraq is a land of great potentialities, oil being one of its chief products. There are petroleum wells at Qaiyarah, near Mosul, and at Mandali, north-east of Baghdad, the latter being included in the Ottoman concession to the Anglo-Persian Oil Co. At Hit, on the Euphrates, are asphalt deposits. The soil of the country is rich, and agriculture is being developed, especially by means of irrigation. Wheat, barley, cotton, dates, rice, and ground nuts are produced.

Commerce.—Imports and exports in 1921 were as follows:—

	Imports	Exports
	Rupees	Rupees
Basra	108,591,904	28,469,950
Baghdad	97,044,331	69,877,952
Total	205,636,235	98,347,912

Customs revenue in 1920-21, 2,13,94,320 rupees (£1,426,288); in 1921-22, 2,43,33,483 rupees (£1,622,232).

Cotton goods form nearly 50 per cent. of the imports of the country; sugar is next in importance. Large quantities of both commodities were re-exported into Persia. Carpets and grain were the principal exports.

Communications.—The principal seaport for Iraq is Basra, situated 70 miles up the Shatt-el-Arab, at the head of the Persian Gulf. Before the war the rivers Tigris and Euphrates formed the only means of thorough communication to Baghdad and other parts of the country. There were caravan routes across the desert, and a few poor roads; the Baghdad railway, built on the European 4ft. 8½in. gauge, was in course of construction, the section from Baghdad to Samarra, 75 miles in length, having been opened just before the war. During the war metre-gauge railways were built from Basra to Nasiriyah on the Euphrates, 140 miles, Basra to Amara, on the Tigris, 109 miles, and Kut-el-Amara to Baghdad, 105 miles, leaving a break of 120 miles between Amara and Kut-el-Amara. Metre-gauge lines were also built from Baghdad to near Khanikin, 103 miles, and on to the Persian frontier, 30 miles. The standard-gauge railway from Baghdad to Samarra (75 miles) was extended to beyond Tekrit (53 miles), and branches were made from Baghdad to Hilla on the Euphrates, 58 miles, and to Dhiban, beyond Fallujah, 48 miles. There has also been laid a 2ft. 6in. gauge from Hilla on the Euphrates to Kifl, 21 miles. Since the Armistice the sections between Basra and Amara, between Baghdad and Dhiban and between Hitlah and Kifl have been taken up, but Basra and Baghdad have been linked by a line up the Euphrates, and the line to Tekrit has been extended to Qalat Sharqat. There is a train ferry connecting the right and left banks.

192 MANDATED TERRITORIES IN ASIA: PALESTINE

The length of telegraph lines is (1921) 3,822 miles and of wire 9,822 miles; of telephone lines, 255, and of telephone wire, 1,601 miles. Number of post and telegraph offices, 71; number of telephone subscribers, 658.

PALESTINE.

THE natural and historic boundaries of Palestine run from the desert on the east, along the slopes of Mount Hermon over to the Litani on the west, where the Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon first break into a series of elevated plateaux, and thence over to the Mediterranean coast, and on the south from the Gulf of Akaba across the Desert of Sinai.

The present political boundaries are: West, the Mediterranean; South, a line running from just west of Rafa to east of Taba at the head of the Gulf of Akaba, the territory below this line being Egyptian and Hejaz; North, as settled by the Franco-British Convention of December 23, 1920, but not yet entirely delimited, a line running from just south of Ras-el-Nakura on the coast, half way between Tyre and Acre, eastwards and northwards to Metulla (British Mandate) and across the Upper Jordan Valley to Banian (French Mandate), thence southwards along the foot-hills to the eastern shore of Lake Huleh and down the left bank of the Jordan and eastern shore of Lake Tiberias to Wady Samakh, and so to El Hamme in Yarmuk Valley, from which point it follows the river.

Government.—After its conquest in 1917-18, by the British Forces, the country remained under British Military Administration till July 1, 1920, when, with the appointment of Sir Herbert Louis Samuel as High Commissioner, a Civil Administration was set up.

High Commissioner.—Rt. Hon. Sir Herbert L. Samuel, P.C., G.B.E. (Appointed July 1, 1920.)

Under the Treaty of Sevres, signed on August 10, 1920, Turkey renounced her sovereignty over the country, and under the draft Mandate submitted in December, 1920, to the Council of the League of Nations, the Mandate for Palestine was to be entrusted to Great Britain, as had already been agreed on April 25, 1920, by the Supreme Council of the Allied Powers at San Remo. To be embodied in the Mandate was the object of establishing there a National Home for the Jewish People, according to the Balfour Declaration of November 2, 1917, which has been embodied in the proposed Peace Treaty with Turkey. The Balfour declaration was in these terms:—‘His Majesty’s Government view with favour the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavours to facilitate the achievement of that object, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country.’

The Mandate for Palestine was passed by the Council of the League of Nations in London on July 24, 1922, but has not yet been confirmed. The High Commissioner has appointed an Advisory Council, which is composed of the heads of the principal Government Departments and 10 ‘unofficial’ members, (4 Moslems, 3 Christians, and 3 Jews), representing the various communities. On September 1, 1922, a new constitution was promulgated (see Additions and Corrections in this volume). English, Hebrew, and Arabic are the recognised official languages of the country.

The Jewish population of Palestine have perfected their internal organisation by convening an Elected Assembly, which elected a National Committee, to represent the Jewish population of Palestine in its dealings with the Administration.

The British Government and Palestine Administration recognise the World Zionist Organisation, which in Palestine is represented by the Palestine Zionist Executive, as the Agency of the Jewish people in all matters pertaining to the upbuilding of the Jewish National Home.

There is also a Moslem Council to control Moslem Awkaf affairs in Palestine.

Area and Population.—Palestine under British Mandate is about 9,000 square miles in extent. The population, taken by official census on October 23, 1922, was 757,182, of whom 590,890 were Moslems, 83,794 Jews, 73,024 Christians, 7,028 Druzes, 163 Samaritans, 265 Bahais, and the remainder Sikhs, Hindus and Metawilehs.

The country is at present divided into four districts: Jerusalem–Jaffa (Jerusalem), Northern (Haifa), Samaria (Nablus), Southern (Gaza).

The chief town, Jerusalem, which had been in Moslem hands since 1244, and under Turkish rule since 1517, surrendered to General Allenby on December 9, 1917. Its population is 62,578. Bethlehem, the scene of Christ’s Nativity and the birthplace of King David, is five miles south of Jerusalem. The Church of the Nativity, at the east end of the present village, is said to be the oldest Christian Church in existence. The population figures for the other principal towns are: Jaffa, 47,709; Haifa, 24,631; Gaza, 17,480; Nazareth, 7,424; Nablus, 15,947; Safed, 8,761; Tiberias, 6,950; Hebron, 16,577; Ramleh, 7,312; Bethlehem, 6,658; Lydda, 8,103; Acre, 6,420.

There are some 750 Arab villages and a considerable number of Arab tribes, and three German Knights Templar settlements, Wilhelma, Sarona and Neuhardtshof.

The Jewish Colonies are grouped in four districts as follows:—In Judea there are 21, viz., Mikveh Israel, Rishon le Zion, Ber-Yacob, Negs Zionah, Rechoboth, Ekron, Gederah, Ber Tobia, Ruchamah, Petach-Tikvah, Ein Ganin, Kfar Malal, Kfar Saba, Ben Sheffan, Hulda, Kfar Urieh, Artuf, Mozah, Dilb, Kalandiah, and Nachlath Jehudah. In Samaria there are 10, viz.,

Hederah, Hefzi-Bah, Kerkur, Gan Shmuel, Zichron Jacob, Marah, Shvejah, Bath Shlomoh, Shuni and Atlit. In Lower Galilee there are 20, viz., Nahalul, Merhaviah, Sedsherah, Balfouriah, Ein-Harod, Giveath-Yecheskiel, Tel-Yossef, Kfar Tabor (Mesha), Jabneel (Jemma), Beth-Gan, Rama (Saron), Poriath, Mizpah, Kinereth, Daganiah, Hittin, Migdal, Tel Adas, Bethaniah, and Menahemia. In Upper Galilee there are 10, viz., Rosh Pinah, Pekiin, Ayeleth Hashachar, Machnayim, Mishmar Hayarden, Yessod-Hamaalah, Ein Zeitin, Kfar Gilcadi, Tel Hai, and Metullah. The Jewish Colonies are governed by Ta'adim or councils elected by the male and female residents who own registered holdings or pay taxes. Each colony has one or more schools, a synagogue, public library, town hall, hospital, pharmacy and public baths.

The total population of these settlements is about 17,000. Of the above-mentioned the following settlements belong to the Jewish National Fund, which was established by the Zionist Organisation for the purpose of acquiring lands to remain the national property of the Jewish people:—Ben Shemen, Hulda, Kfar Mlal, Dlib, Nahlat Jehuda, Nahalul, Merhaviah, Ein-Harod, Giveath-Yecheskiel, Tel Yossef, Kinereth, Daganiah and Hittin. The Palestine Land Development Company, also organised by the Zionist Organisation, owns the lands of Tel Adas, Kalandah, some lands on the Carmel, at Jaffa, Jerusalem, &c. The other colonies were mostly founded by Baron Edmund de Rothschild and by the Jewish Colonisation Association, which administers all the properties of Baron de Rothschild. The total area of the Jewish settlements is 652,653 dunams or about 163,163 acres. There are 37,500 dunams (about 9,375 acres) of plantations, and among them: 15,000 dunams (about 3,750 acres) vineyards, 33,825 dunams (about 8,456 acres) almond groves, 13,322 dunams (about 3,330 acres) olive plantations, 12,456 dunams (about 3,114 acres) orange groves, and 6,000 dunams (about 1,500 acres) eucalyptus plantations. There are two agricultural schools, at Mikveh-Israel and Petach-Tikvah respectively. The Hebrew High School in Jaffa has 30 teachers and 750 pupils. The Jewish Agricultural Experiment Stations at Atlit and Zichron Jacob carry on agricultural and botanical research work.

Instruction.—On December 1, 1922, the schools maintained by the Government numbered 50 town schools, in 6 of which secondary sections have been opened, and 263 village schools, with a total of 637 teachers and over 19,000 pupils. Of the latter, 90 per cent. are Moslem and 10 per cent. Christian. 187 village schools have been opened since the inauguration of the Civil Government. The two training colleges for elementary teachers have 75 men and 50 women students respectively. Lower and higher certificate examinations for teachers are held once a year. A beginning has been made with technical and agricultural education. A School of Law, where all three official languages are used, has been established in Jerusalem.

The bulk of the Christian, and practically all Jewish children, receive their education in non-Government schools. The Christian schools, maintained by various religious bodies, number about 125 and contain about 11,500 children; they include several secondary schools and one college. There are about 175 Jewish schools (including religious schools) with about 18,000 children. Two-thirds of these are maintained by the Zionist organization, and include High Schools at Jerusalem and Jaffa (at Jaffa the High School has 30 teachers and 750 pupils), Teachers' Training Colleges (General, Orthodox, Women's and Kindergarten), Schools of Music in Jerusalem, Jaffa and Haifa, an Arts and Crafts Institute (Rozalel), Commercial Evening Classes, and a Technical College in Haifa. In all these schools Hebrew is the medium of instruction; 504 teachers are engaged therein. There are also 30 private Moslem elementary schools, mainly maintained by local Moslem committees, providing for about 3,000 children, and in three there are secondary sections. The majority of non-Government schools receive per capita grants-in-aid from the Education Department, amounting, in 1922, to about P.T. 20 per pupil.

Justice.—The Courts in Palestine are either civil or religious courts. The former have jurisdiction over local subjects in all matters save those of personal status and Hakfs of charitable endowments, and over foreign subjects in all matters, subject to the provisions mentioned below.

There is a Magistrate Court in every sub-district, and in the larger towns such as Jerusalem, Jaffa, and Haifa, two such courts. The magistrate is in every case a Palestinian and has jurisdiction in first instance in minor criminal cases of which the punishment is not more than one year's imprisonment, and in civil cases where the subject-matter does not exceed £E100. He has also jurisdiction in actions for the recovery of the possession of land.

There are four District Courts, each composed of a British President and two Palestinian members. They serve respectively the District of Jerusalem, the sub-districts of Jaffa and Gaza, the Northern District and the District of Samaria, and go on circuit within the area of their jurisdiction. A District Court has jurisdiction in first instance in all crimes and civil cases not within the jurisdiction of a magistrate, and also hears appeals from the decisions of magistrates both in civil and in criminal cases, except in cases for the recovery of the possession of land.

The Court of Appeal, from which no appeal lies, is composed of a British Chief Justice, a British Vice-President, and four Palestinian members. A division of this court normally consists of the Chief Justice or the Vice-President and two Palestinian members. It has appellate jurisdiction in civil and criminal matters decided in first instance by the District Courts, and in actions for the recovery of the possession of land decided by magistrates. It also hears appeals from the Land Courts.

A Bench of honorary magistrates has been established in Jerusalem, Jaffa, and Haifa, who try contraventions for which the maximum penalty does not exceed £E5 fine and 15 days imprisonment.

Special arrangements exist in the Beersheba District, where minor cases are disposed of according to tribal custom by the Court of Sheikhs. A British Judge visits Beersheba every month to hear appeals from the local courts and to try more serious criminal cases.

Two Land Courts have been established in the Districts of Jaffa and Samaria respectively, and a third will shortly be established in Jerusalem. These courts, which are composed of a British President and a Palestinian Judge, hear all cases in which the ownership of land is in issue.

All matters of personal status affecting Moslems are within the jurisdiction of the Sharia Courts. A Sharia Court consists of a Kadi, and appeals from his decision lie to the Moslem Court of Appeal, which is composed of a President and two members.

Jewish Religious Courts have exclusive jurisdiction in certain matters of personal status of Jews, and jurisdiction by consent in other matters. An appeal from the decision of the Jewish Religious Courts lies to the Rabbinical Council.

Other religious communities (such as the Latin and Orthodox) retain the courts and jurisdiction which they enjoyed in the Turkish régime.

Special Rules of Court exist with regard to the trial of foreigners. The general effect of these rules is that where a foreign subject is charged with an offence more serious than a contravention, he may claim to be tried by a British magistrate or by a court containing a majority of British judges.

The official languages of the Court are English, Arabic and Hebrew.

Finance.—For the year 1922-23 the receipts were estimated at £E2,062,192, and the expenditure at £E1,819,151.

The main heads of revenue for 1922-23 were customs, £E648,000 ; house and land tax, £E125,000 ; animal tax, £E39,000 ; tithes, £E302,000 ; and stamp duties, £E84,000.

Production and Industry.—Palestine comprises four zones of country. On the west, along the shores of the Mediterranean, which are deficient here in good natural harbours, is the maritime plain, which varies in width from 15 to 20 miles at Gaza to about 2 miles at Acre, and which at the Plain of Esdraelon stretches for a considerable distance into the interior, and separates the highlands of Galilee from those of Samaria and Judea. From the coastal plain the country rises into a plateau intersected by deep wadis or valleys, which drop steeply to the east to the third zone, formed by the great depression down which the river Jordan runs to the Dead Sea, and which is prolonged for another 100 miles to the Red Sea as the Wadi Araba. This depression reaches a depth below sea-level of 2,600 feet in the deepest portion of the Dead Sea, the surface of which is about 1,300 feet below sea-level. The Dead Sea is 46 miles long and has an average width of 8½ miles ; it receives the waters of the Jordan and of six other rivers and has no outlet, the surplus being carried off by evaporation. It is intensely salt, with a specific gravity one-sixth greater than water, and with 24 per cent. of salt. East of the Jordan Valley the country rises again steeply to a plateau and merges into the Arabian desert.

Palestine is essentially an agricultural country. In 1921-22 the area under British Administration, exclusive of Trans-Jordan, produced :—Wheat, 72,885 tons ; barley, 61,064 tons ; millet, 14,819 tons ; olive oil, 1,167 tons ; and lentils, 4,792 tons. In 1921-22 there were in the country 220,000 sheep, 359,000 goats, 18,000 camels, and 1,000 buffaloes.

Limestone is found all over the country ; sandstone abounds on the coast ; gypsum of good quality is found at Mount Usdum and at Mount Gipsia near Melhamia (Galilee). Rock salt abounds in the Jordan Valley and on the shores of the Dead Sea, where also sulphur is obtainable. Mineral oil is said to have possibilities, but pending the ratification of the mandate no work on concessions is permitted. The Dead Sea contains cooking salt, carnallite, and bromide. There are medicinal springs near Tiberias.

The only industries of export importance are those of wine-making in the Jewish Colonies, especially Zichron Jacob, Rishon le Zion, and Petach-Tikvah ; soap-boiling in Nablus and Haifa ; olive oil in Nablus, Akka, and the district round Jaffa. Oranges grown chiefly in the Jaffa district are exported to Egypt and Europe.

The Government is making efforts to re-afforest the country.

Commerce.—Trade for 3 years (year ending March 31) was as follows :—

	1919-20	1920-21	1921-22
	£E	£E	£E
Imports.	4,191,060	5,216,633	5,598,372
Exports.	733,443	771,701	864,766

The trade was distributed as follows in 1921-22 :—

Countries	Imports	Exports	Countries	Imports	Exports
	££	££		££	££
Great Britain . . .	1,823,595	216,275	Japan	106,361	—
Egypt	726,105	527,618	United States . .	493,479	14,965
France	229,160	26,392	Australia	76,071	213
Italy	226,930	8,978	Other countries	1,329,737	59,477
Greece	4,743	58	By parcels post	106,454	19,659
Netherlands . . .	212,239	4,566
India	256,408	1,570	Total	5,593,872	864,766

The principal articles of import in 1921-22 were cottons, ££572,019; cigarettes, ££297,893; sugar, ££280,547; petroleum, ££206,760; and rice, ££179,887. The principal articles of export were oranges ££325,374; soap, ££186,255; wine, ££43,992; melons, ££59,757; apricot paste, ££32,356; and almonds, ££24,667.

Shipping and Communications.—The most important ports of Palestine are Jaffa and Haifa; the two ports of lesser significance are Acre and Gaza. For the year ending March 31, 1922, 905 steamers, totalling 1,365,126 tons and 2,742 sailing vessels, totalling 45,062 tons, arrived at Palestinian ports. Palestine possesses no shipping of its own, other than some small sailing vessels and power launches.

A regular passenger service to Palestinian ports is provided by 17 shipping lines.

The following railways are being worked, all by the Palestine Government :—Kantara-El-Arish-Rapha-Ludd-Tulkaram-Haifa, 258 miles; Jaffa-Ludd-Jerusalem, 54 miles; Rapha-Beersheba, 37 miles; Haifa-Afulah-El Hamme, 60 miles; Haifa-Acre, 11 miles; Afulah-Jenin-Nablus-Tulkaram, 50 miles; Ludd-Sarafand, 2½ miles; Kafr Jinnis-Beit-Nabala, 2½ miles; Ras El Ain-Petach-Tikva, 4 miles, making a total of 479 miles. The section Kantara to Rafa, known as the 'Sinai Military Railway' (125 miles), is being worked by the Palestine Railways on behalf of the War Office.

The length of public highways in the country is 523 miles.

Banking and Currency.—The most important bank in Palestine is the Anglo-Egyptian Bank with branches at Jerusalem, Jaffa, Haifa, and Gaza. The Anglo-Palestine Company has its head office in Jaffa, with branches in Jerusalem, Haifa, Tiberias, Safed, and Hebron. In addition there are branches in Jerusalem of the Banco di Roma, the Crédit Lyonnais and the Imperial Ottoman Bank.

In 1921 there were established, in addition, a Workers' Bank, 7 Co-operative Credit Institutions, a Building Loan and Saving Association, and a Central Bank of Co-operative Institutions.

At present Egyptian currency is legal tender. 1 Egyptian pound (££) = 100 piastres or 1,000 milliemes. ££1 = £1 0s. 6d., and £1 = ££0.975.

The metric system is followed by the Government, and its use regulated by Ordinance, but the local weights and measures are still commonly employed.

Trans-Jordan.—This territory is under His Highness the Amir Abdullah, second son of King Husain of the Hejaz and elder brother of King Feisal of Iraq, who became its ruler in April 1921 and administers the country with a Council of Advisers. The political status of the country has not yet been finally settled, but it is separate from Palestine, though it falls within the Palestine Mandate and the High Commissioner for Palestine is also responsible for Trans-Jordan. The boundaries of the territory have not yet been determined, but they are roughly as follows:—In the North: the River Yarmuk line continued eastward between Daraa (in Hauran) and Ramtha (in the Ajlun district of Trans-Jordan) to Imtar in Jabal Druz, whence it runs in a straight line towards Abu Kamal on the Euphrates. In the East: the Iraq frontier (undetermined) from a point on the line Imtar-Abu Kamal southwards to the junction of the frontiers of Iraq and Nejd. In the West: the Jordan and the central line of the Dead Sea. In the South: the boundary is undetermined, but marches with the northern frontier of the Hejaz and Nejd. In view of its uncertain boundaries, it is impossible to give an estimate of the area; but the population has been placed roughly at between 300,000 and 500,000, mostly Arabs and Moslems. About half live in settled villages and the rest are nomads. There are also, perhaps, some 30,000 or 40,000 Christians. Most of the towns and larger villages have schools, and the Budget provision for education in 1922-23 is £18,000. The country is largely desert, except for a thirty-mile strip between the Jordan and the Hejaz railway-line. The resources of the country are agricultural and pastoral products. There are also phosphate deposits (undeveloped, though examined). Potash is found in the Dead Sea; and possibly oil in the southern area. A road fit for motor traffic connects Amman with Jerusalem, and the Hejaz railway from Daraa to Maan (its present terminus) runs through Trans-Jordan territory. The Cairo-Baghdad air route traverses the country from west to east, and there is an aerodrome with an air-force detachment at Amman. The estimated revenue of the country for 1922-23 is £204,000, the British grant-in-aid £100,000. Great Britain is represented by a Chief British Representative, who is subordinate to, and the agent of, the High Commissioner for Palestine.

Chief British Representative: H. St. J. B. Philby, C.I.E.

BRITISH EAST AFRICA.

British East Africa consists of a large area on the mainland, together with the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba. For details as to international agreements, &c., with regard to the British sphere in East Africa, see the STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1907, pp. 216 and 217.

KENYA COLONY AND PROTECTORATE.

Government.—The Kenya Colony and Protectorate extends, on the Indian Ocean, from the Uмба to the Juba River, and inland as far as Uganda. Kenya Protectorate (so named by Order in Council dated August 13, 1920) includes certain mainland dominions of the Sultan of Zanzibar, viz., a strip, extending 10 miles inland along the coast from the former German frontier to Kipini, the islands of the Lamu Archipelago, and an area of 10 miles round the fort of Kismayu, these territories having been leased to Great Britain for an annual rent of 17,000*l*. The colony and protectorate were formerly known as the East Africa Protectorate. On April 1, 1905, this was transferred from the authority of the Foreign Office to that of the Colonial Office. By an Order in Council dated November 9, 1906, the Protectorate was placed under the control of a Governor and Commander-in-Chief. By Order in Council the Protectorate (except the Sultan of Zanzibar's dominions) was annexed to the Crown, as from July 23, 1920, under the name of the Kenya Colony, and thus becomes a "Crown Colony." An Order in Council of October 22, 1906, constituted an Executive and a Legislative Council, the former consisting of 4 members, in addition to the Governor, the latter of 8 official and 4 unofficial members. Under an Ordinance of July, 1919, the Legislative Council consists of 11 elected representatives of the European community, three nominated members, two representing the Indian population and one the Arabs, and a sufficient number of official members to give a majority in the Council. Legislation is by Ordinances made by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council. In 1908 foreign consular jurisdiction in the Zanzibar strip of coast was transferred to the British Crown. There are 6 provinces and a tract of territory partially organised lying to the north. The provinces are as follows: Seyidie (capital Mombasa), Ukamba (capital Nairobi), Tanaland (capital Lamu), Jubaland (capital Kismayu), Kikuyu (capital Nyeri), the Nyanza Province (capital Kisumu). In addition there are the Northern Frontier District (capital Moyale) alluded to above, the area known as Suk-Kamasia (capital Elduma Ravine), and the Masai Reserve (capital Narok). For administrative purposes the Colony is divided into white-settled areas under Resident Commissioners, and native reserves under District Commissioners.

Area and Population.—The territory has an area of 200,000 square miles; population in 1921 estimated at 2,376,000, including 9,651 Europeans, 22,822 Indians, and 10,102 Arabs. On the coast the Arabs and Swahilis predominate; further inland are races speaking Bantu languages, and non-Bantu tribes such as the Masai, the Somali, and the Gallas. Mombasa is the largest town; population about 32,000, of whom 653 are Europeans. The harbour is situated on the eastern side of an island of the same name, and is the terminus of the Uganda Railway. Kilindini harbour on the south-western side of the island is the finest land-locked and sheltered harbour on the east coast of Africa and is accessible to vessels of deep draught. There is good warehouse accommodation and a pier connected with the Uganda Railway. The two principal rivers in the North are the Tana and Juba which flow into the Indian Ocean. They are both navigable for about 400 miles by shallow-draught steamers. Nairobi, the capital and the headquarters of the administration, has 24,000 inhabitants, of whom about 2,930 are European. There are also about 600 European farmers and 50,000 natives in the immediate neighbourhood of Nairobi.

Religion, Instruction, Justice.—The prevailing religious beliefs are Pagan; but on the coast Mohamedanism has made great progress. There are many Christian mission societies, British, French, Italian, Swedish, and American, several being Roman Catholic. There were seven (including 3 European) Government schools in operation in 1919-20, with an average enrolment of 733 pupils; and a large number of mission and native schools. Total expenditure, 1919-20: 294,000 rupees. The Supreme Court is at Mombasa, and sessions are held at Nairobi, Naivasha, Kisumu, and other places. District Courts presided over by magistrates are held in each district. In native cases local ideas and customs are considered. The legal status of slavery has been abolished throughout East Africa.

Finance.—Revenue and expenditure for 6 years (Rs. 15 = 1*l.* down to 1919-20; from 1920-21, Rs. 10 = 1*l.*):—

² Includes 600,000*l.* re-imbursements.

Grant-in-aid in 1921, nil. Of the revenue for 1921, customs accounted for 239,000*l.*; licences and internal revenue, 657,000*l.*; posts and telegraphs, 93,000*l.*; rents, 29,000*l.*; fees of court and other fees, 82,000*l.*; miscellaneous receipts, 133,000*l.* Public debt, 5,000,000*l.*

Agriculture and Mining.—The agricultural products in the low-lying areas, where rainfall is sufficient, are rice, coconuts, cotton; simsim, groundnuts, cassava, sugar cane. A large field for development exists in such areas, but there is a paucity of population in some districts. In the Highlands of the Colony where the temperature is moderate and the rainfall good, pawpaw, banana, wheat and barley may be grown. The acreage under maize is assuming large dimensions; flax is an established crop; coffee is popular and profitable; sisal growing, on large estates, is fully established. The potentialities of the country are great and await further development.

Livestock thrive well on the Highlands, and losses from rinderpest and tick-borne diseases are kept well under control. The Dairying industry gives promise of success and extension. The Bacon industry has already supplied the needs for local consumption and an export trade has been started.

The merchantable forest area extends over 3,600 square miles, of which the tropical forest covers about 264 square miles, the remainder being upland or highland, containing valuable timber trees. Near the coast are mangroves, and various rubber trees, besides ebony, copal, and other trees. The Taveta forest is supposed to contain useful timber. The Scrub forest which covers a large lowland area is capable of being turned to useful purposes. The Tana and Juba rivers are bordered by tropical trees, and the Witu forest contains timber trees and furniture woods. But the valuable forests are within the highland area to the west and north of Nairobi. The Kenya forests of about 625 square miles contain cedar, yellow woods, camphor, olive, and many other useful species. The Aberdare forests (about 750 square miles) contain abundance of similar trees. The Mau forest (about 1,000 square miles) is incompletely surveyed, but is known to contain many excellent timber trees. The forest on Mount Elgon (about 180 square miles) is little known.

The mineral resources are not yet fully explored. There are large deposits of natron in the Rift Valley, particularly at Lake Magadi. Diatomite also occurs in large quantities in the same region. Gold has been discovered in the Masai Reserve, but has not yet been proved. Graphite and marble are found in the metamorphic rocks in various localities, and limestone is worked at various places for building purposes. Manganese is found in the sandstones near the coast; opals have been found in some of the streams on the west side of the Rift Valley, but up to now have not been considered of commercial importance. Cassiterite, galena, copper, bitumen, kaolin and agate have been reported in various parts of the country, but have not been fully investigated. Mica occurs south of Mount Kenya, and during the War about ten tons were exported for the Minister of Munitions. No activity now exists in this direction. New mining laws are under consideration (1922).

Commerce and Shipping.—Imports (excluding government stores and treasure) and exports (including those also of Uganda and the Congo), and the gross tonnage entered and cleared (excluding coasting trade) (before 1920–21, Rs. 15 = 17.; from 1920–21, Rs. 10 = 17.):—

Of imports, 1920–21, 3,516,075*l.* came from the United Kingdom; 1,824,303*l.* from British Possessions; 577,976*l.* from the United States of America; 241,909*l.* from Holland, and 100,745*l.* from France.

Of exports, 1920–21, 2,957,304*l.* went to the United Kingdom; 1,497,677*l.* to British Possessions; 257,412*l.* to France; 55,399*l.* to Italy; 75,712*l.* to the United States.

Tonnage entered and cleared, 1919–20, 911,018. Communication between the ports of Kenya is kept up by small steamers owned by Messrs. Cawasji Dinshaw Brothers at Aden.

Communications.—The Mombasa-Victoria (Uganda) Railway is a State railway, length 618 miles, gauge 39·33 inches. The construction cost to December 31, 1921, was 7,152,000*l.* A line is under consideration from Nakuru, on the Uganda Railway, to Turbo, on the Uasin Gishu plateau, a settlement 100 miles north of the main railway line. There is a telegraph along the line, and ten steamers on the Lake in connection with the railway. During the 9 months ended December 31, 1921, 199,000 tons of goods, exclusive of railway material, and 483,000 passengers were carried; revenue, 729,000*l.*; expenditure, 681,000*l.* The country is fairly well provided with roads and tracks.

The Post Office of the Colony and Protectorate (exclusive of the Uganda Post Office, which is worked by the Kenya Post Office) received and despatched 4,800,000 letters, packets, &c., and 298,000 telegrams during 1921 (last 9 months). The telegraph system has 3,852 miles of wire (exclusive of Uganda). A cable connects Mombasa with Zanzibar.

Money.—The currency is controlled by the East African Currency Board, London, who maintain a stable rate of sterling exchange. Until recently the Indian rupee was in use, but it has been demonetised and a shilling (20 = 1*l.*) introduced as the standard coin, which is legal tender for any amount. There are subsidiary silver 50 cent. pieces, and 10, 5, and 1 cent pieces of other metals. British sovereigns and notes are not legal tender. Notes issued in Zanzibar are not interchangeable with those issued in Kenya nor are German rupees, in use in the late German East Africa, legal tender. Savings bank deposits end of March, 1921, 2,491; on deposit, 46,845*l.*

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Sir Robert Coryndon, K.C.M.G.

Colonial Secretary.—Sir C. C. Bowring, K.B.E., C.M.G.

THE UGANDA PROTECTORATE.

The territories now comprised within this Protectorate came under British influence in 1890, and a portion of them was for a time administered by the Imperial British East African Company. In 1894 a British Protectorate was declared over the kingdom of Uganda and some of the adjoining territories. The present limits are approximately as follows:—On the north, the Uganda-Sudan boundary; on the east, a line drawn down the middle of Lake Rudolf, and along the west boundary of the Colony of Kenya and the eastern shores of Lake Victoria; on the south by Tanganyika Territory (late German East Africa); and on the west by the eastern boundary of the Belgian Congo. Within these boundaries lie part of the Victoria Nyanza, part of Lake Edward, the whole of Lake George, half of Lake Albert, the whole of Lake Kioga, the whole of Lake Salisbury, part of Lake Rudolf, and the course of the Nile from its exit from Lake Victoria to Nimule, where the Egyptian Sudan commences. Total area 110,300 square miles, including 16,169 square miles of water. For administrative purposes it is divided into 5 provinces: (1) the Eastern Province, comprising the districts of Busoga, Bukedi, Teso, Lango, Karamoja, and Lohor; (2) the Rudolf Province, comprising the districts of Turkwel, Turkana, and Dabossa (this province is at present only partially administered, and the question of its transfer to the administration of Kenya Colony is under consideration); (3) the Northern Province, comprising the districts of Bunyoro, Gulu, Chua, and West Nile; (4) the Western Province, comprising the districts of Toro, Ankole, and Kigezi; and (5) Buganda Province, with islands in Lake Victoria, comprising the districts of Mengo, Masaka, Mubendi, and Entebbe. Owing to sleeping sickness the islands of Lake Victoria were entirely depopulated, and the inhabitants, numbering about 20,000, settled on the mainland in fly-free districts. After extensive clearing operations the work of repopulating these islands has been commenced.

With the exception of the Rudolf Province, the whole Protectorate is now under direct administration; but the native kings or chiefs, whose rights are in some cases regulated by treaties, are encouraged to conduct the government of their own subjects. The province of Buganda is recognised as a native kingdom under a "Kabaka," with the title of "His Highness"; the present Kabaka being H. H. Daudi Chwa, grandson of the celebrated Mutesa. He is assisted in the government by three native ministers and a Lukiko, or native assembly. In Buganda, and in Bunyoro, Ankole and Toro, also ruled over by native "Kings," purely native matters are dealt with by the various Lukikos, but in serious cases there is an appeal to higher courts. For Europeans and non-natives justice is administered by his Majesty's courts. The principal British representative is the Governor, who makes Ordinances for the administration of justice, the raising of revenue, and other purposes.

There are local and special courts of justice, and a High Court with civil and criminal jurisdiction. The appeal court consists of the judges of the High Courts of the Colony of Kenya, Uganda, Nyasaland, and Zanzibar. In 1921, there were 2,517 criminal cases tried, 46 of which were cases of serious crime. There is an armed constabulary force, under a British Commissioner of Police and British officers. There is also a volunteer reserve of Europeans.

The total population of Uganda (December, 1921) was estimated at 3,066,327, composed as follows: Native, 3,059,583; Asiatic, 5,464; European, 1,280. Among the natives approximately 640,000 belong to the intelligent, civilised Baganda, a race converted to Christianity by British and French missionaries. Educational work is undertaken by the various Missionary Societies, who receive grants towards scholarships, &c., for students and teachers. The attendance at the Mission Schools in 1921 was 93,900 boys and 58,500 girls. About 1,700,000 natives speak Bantu languages; there are a few Congo pygmies living near the Semliki river; the rest of the natives belong to the Masai, Nilotic, and Sudanese groups.

Cotton is the principal product, and is grown almost entirely by natives. The area under cultivation in 1921 was estimated at about 170,900 acres. Other products are coffee, Para rubber, cocoa, oil-seeds. There are valuable forests.

Total exports in 1921, 1,540,000*l.*; the import figures are now merged in those of the Colony of Kenya. The export trade, which is increasing, is mainly in cotton, 1,281,000*l.*, in 1921: coffee, 94,000*l.*; chillies, 30,000*l.*; oil seeds, 41,000*l.*; rubber, 4,000*l.*; ivory, 47,000*l.*; hides and skins, 26,000*l.* The trade is chiefly with Great Britain, the United States, and India.

The revenue and expenditure for 6 years were :—

In 1921 the poll-tax amounted to 382,000*l.*, and customs to 158,000*l.* Debt, 700,000*l.*

The headquarters of the British Administration is at Entebbe; the native capital of Buganda is at Mengo, Kampala. Nile steamers from Khartum ply to Rejaf, which is about eight days march from Nimule, the Sudan port of the Lake Albert Marine Service. A regular steamer service is maintained by the Uganda Railway Administration between Kisumu, the railway terminus, and Entebbe, Port Bell, and Jinja, the principal Uganda ports on Lake Victoria. The Busoga Railway Marine, which, with the Busoga Railway, is controlled by the Uganda Railway, deals with the traffic on Lake Kioga. There are two steamers and a large number of lighters on that waterway. An additional steamer and subsidiary craft ply on Lake Albert and the Nile between Butiaba, Nimule and the Belgian Port of Kasenye at the South of Lake Albert. The Busoga Railway of the same gauge as the Uganda Railway, 62 miles in length, runs from Jinja (on Lake Victoria) to Namasagali, a point on the Nile below the rapids. It was formally opened for business on January 1, 1912. This railway was built to deal with the cotton output in the regions round Lake Kioga, and connects that lake with Lake Victoria. There is a railway from Port Bell to Kampala, 73 miles in length. There is a fleet of government motor vans.

In June, 1912, East Africa received a loan of 500,000*l.* from the Imperial Government. Uganda's share amounted to 125,000*l.* and was devoted to the construction of the Port Bell-Kampala railway, and to the improvement of communications in the Eastern Province, with a view to dealing more effectively with cotton transport.

Mail services by motor and relays of runners radiate from Entebbe, Kampala and Jinja. Money and postal orders and parcel post exchange systems are working in most districts. The Sudan-Egyptian telegraph and telephone system is established to Rejaf. The Uganda telegraph line is extended to Mutir and to Nimule, 89 miles from Rejaf. The length of telegraph line in the Protectorate is (1921) 1,187 miles, with 23 telegraph offices. Telephone exchanges are installed at Entebbe, Kampala, and Jinja.

The currency was based on the rupee (originally valued at 1*s.* 4*d.*, but in and after 1920 at 2*s.*), and consisted of silver rupees, with a subsidiary coinage of silver 50 and 25 cent pieces, and nickel 10 cent, 5 cent, 1 cent, and $\frac{1}{2}$ cent pieces. The shilling has been introduced and standardised. Both florins (2*s.*) and rupees are current for the present. E. Africa Government currency notes of 500, 100, 50, 20, 10, 5, and one florin, are also in circulation. New cental coins were issued during 1907-08. The Savings Bank had 7,889*l.* deposits and 592 depositors on December 31, 1921. The National Bank of India (Limited) has branches at Entebbe, Kampala, Jinja, and the Standard Bank of South Africa has opened branches at Kampala and Jinja.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Sir G. F. Archer, K.C.M.G.

Chief Secretary.—E. B. Jarvis, C.M.G.

ZANZIBAR.

The Island of Zanzibar is situated in 6° S. latitude, and is separated from the mainland by a channel 22½ miles across at its narrowest part. It is the largest coralline island on the African coast, being 48 miles long by 15 broad, and having an area of 640 square miles. To the north-east, at a distance of some 30 miles, lies the Island of Pemba in 5° S. latitude. It is smaller than Zanzibar, being 40 miles long by 10 broad, and having an area of 380 square miles.

It was during the sixteenth century that the Arabs of the East Coast sought the assistance of the Imams of Muscat to drive out the Portuguese.

On the ruins of the Portuguese power arose that of the Imams of Muscat. The allegiance to Muscat, however, was of a more or less nominal character until Seyyid Said, after having subdued his enemies on the mainland, transferred his capital to Zanzibar in 1832. On his death in 1856 the African possessions were, under an arbitration by Lord Canning (then Governor-General of India), declared independent of the parent state. In 1890 the supremacy of the British interests in the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba was recognised by France and Germany, and they were declared a British Protectorate in accordance with conventions by which Great Britain waived all claims to Madagascar in favour of France and ceded Heligoland to Germany. In the same year the mainland possessions which extended over the coast of East Africa, Warsheikh in 3° N. latitude to Tunghi Bay 10° 42' S. latitude, were ceded to Italy, Great Britain, and Germany, respectively, Great Britain and Italy paying rent for the territories under their protection, while Germany acquired the Sultan's rights by the payment of a sum of 200,000*l.* At a later date Italy also acquired similar rights by payment of a sum of 144,000*l.* In 1891, a regular Government was formed for Zanzibar with a British representative as first minister. In 1906 the Imperial Government assumed more direct control over the Protectorate and reorganised the Government. On July 1, 1913, the control of the Protectorate was transferred from the Foreign Office to the Colonial Office, legal effect being given to the change in the following year. In July, 1920, the Sultan's coast dominions were named 'Kenya Protectorate.'

Constitution and Government.—The Sultan, Seyyid Khalifa bin Harub, K.C.M.G., K.B.E. (born 1879), succeeded on the abdication of his brother-in-law, Ali bin Hamoud bin Mahomed, December 9, 1911. The Government is administered by a High Commissioner and a British Resident, who are appointed by commissions under His Majesty's Sign Manual and Signet, and exercise their functions under the Zanzibar Order-in-Council, 1914.

Legislation consists of certain British and Indian Statutes and also of Decrees of His Highness the Sultan, which latter are binding on all persons when countersigned by the British Resident under the Order-in-Council.

There is a Council for the Protectorate, which exercises functions of an advisory and consultative nature, and consists of his Highness the Sultan as President, the British Resident as Vice-President, and three official and four unofficial members.

Population, Religion, Education, &c.—The population of Zanzibar and Pemba, according to the Census of 1910, was 197,000. Zanzibar, 114,000; Pemba, 83,000. The registered birth rate in 1921 was 22 per 1,000 for Zanzibar and 20 for Pemba; and the death rate 28 and 16 respectively. The Arabs, about 10,000, are the principal landlords and employers of labour. The black population is mostly Swahili, but there are representatives of nearly every African tribe. According to the 1921 census there were 14,125 non-native inhabitants, including about 270 Europeans, most of whom are English, and about 12,900 British Indian subjects, through whose hands almost the whole trade of East Africa passes. Zanzibar town has a population of 35,000.

Most of the natives are Mohammedans (Sunnis of the Shafi school); the Sultan and relatives are of the Ibadhi sect. There are 3 Christian Missions: the Universities Mission to Central Africa (Church of England), the Catholic Mission (Roman Catholic), and the Friends' Industrial Mission.

There are Government schools mainly for Moslems with a course of instruction extending over seven years. Education is voluntary and free. There are a number of mission schools, Indian schools supported by different communities for the children of their sects, private schools and a non-sectarian school. The total number of children attending these schools in 1921 was 2,460.

There are two Government hospitals, one for Europeans and one for Government subordinate employees and poor natives, in Zanzibar, and one in Pemba.

Justice.—For the administration of justice in Zanzibar, one Court, his Britannic Majesty's, consisting of a Judge and one or more Assistant Judges, deals with all actions to which a British, or British protected, person or the subject of a foreign Power is a party, and others, the Sultan's Local Courts, deal with cases in which the subjects of the Sultan are alone concerned. The total number of convictions in 1921 was 2,579 (1920, 3172).

Appeal lies to H.M.'s Court of Appeal for Eastern Africa, many of the cases tried being cases affecting British Indians, in whose hands is a large proportion of the trade of Zanzibar. The British Court has also certain Admiralty jurisdiction by virtue of the Zanzibar Order in Council, 1914.

The Sultan's Courts, under the general superintendence of H.M. Judge, administer justice in the town of Zanzibar by two European Magistrates assisted by Arab Kathis. In Pemba, and the country districts, criminal or civil cases are tried by a Magistrate or a District Commissioner, or Assistant District Commissioner. The final appeal, in all cases, lies to the British Judge sitting as Sultan's Judge.

Finance.—The revenue and expenditure for 6 years were as follows :—

Year	Revenue from Customs	Total Revenue (excluding loans)	Expenditure	Year	Revenue from Customs	Total Revenue (excluding loans)	Expenditure
1913 ¹	167,366	275,126	248,000	1919	225,044	407,505	323,418

Besides Customs, the chief sources of revenue in 1921 were: interest on investments, 28,000*l.*; railway and electricity department, 19,000*l.*; agricultural department, 34,000*l.*; court fees, fines, etc., 49,000*l.*; rent, British East Africa, 11,000*l.*; shipping, 10,000*l.*; rent of Government property, land and houses, 11,000*l.* The chief heads of expenditure in 1921 were: public works department, 104,000*l.*; shipping, 27,000*l.*; police and prisons, 18,000*l.*; railway and electricity department, 34,000*l.*; judicial department, 16,000*l.*; agricultural department, 29,000*l.*; district offices, 19,000*l.*; medical, 31,000*l.*; pensions, 13,000*l.*

Public debt at end of 1921, 100,000*l.*; sinking fund, 69,000*l.*

Production and Industry.—The clove industry is by far the most important in the Protectorate, the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba yielding the bulk of the world's supply. It is estimated that there are in both islands about 48,000 acres under cloves and about 4½ million trees in bearing, the average output of recent years being 14 million lbs. The exports in 1921 were 167,000 cwts., and clove-stems 52,000 cwts. The large plantations are chiefly owned by Arabs, but many natives possess small holdings. The coconut industry ranks next in importance after cloves, the conditions in both islands being favourable to the growth of the tree and its nut-bearing properties. It is estimated that there are about 55,000 acres under cultivation and 2½ million trees in both islands. The export of copra, which is steadily increasing, amounted in 1921 to 237,000 cwts. Much is produced by small growers and traders, who do not possess proper drying facilities, with a result that the quality of the product compares unfavourably with that of Cochin and Ceylon.

The manufactures are pottery, coir fibre and rope, soap, oil (coconut and simsim), jewellery, and mats. There are no mines in the Protectorate.

Commerce.—The total imports, exports, and shipping for 6 years, were:—

Shipping and Communications, &c.—The port of Zanzibar is one of the finest in Africa and was for long a main centre of commerce between India, Arabia, and the mainland. Of late years, however, the importance of Zanzibar as a port of transshipment and distributing centre has largely decreased owing to the development of the mainland, to the opening up of the coast ports to direct steamship service with Europe, and to the transfer to Aden of the seat of trade with the Benadir Coast. Recent figures, nevertheless, tend to indicate that the Island will continue by reason of its geographical position to retain control of the local traffic.

The British India Steam Navigation Company and the Union Castle Steamship Company maintain monthly services between London-Zanzibar-Durban and Southampton-Zanzibar-Durban respectively, the Clan-Ellerman-Harrison Line between Glasgow-Liverpool-Zanzibar-Beira (cargo only), the Holland East African Line, between Europe via the Cape as well as via Suez, the Compagnie des Messageries Maritimes between Marseilles-Zanzibar-Madagascar, the Italian Royal Mail Service (fortnightly) between Genoa-Zanzibar-Durban, and the Portuguese Government (periodical services) between Lisbon and their East and West African Colonies, via Suez Canal and the Cape, and there is also the Scandinavia East Africa Line. The British India Steam Navigation Company also maintain a service twice a month between Bombay-Zanzibar-Durban, and there are local services between Zanzibar-Mombasa-Aden and the Benadir Coast. The Government possesses two steamers which maintain regular weekly connection with Pemba, as well as making calls at Mombasa and Dar-es-Salaam.

Ocean-going shipping dealt with in 1921, 627,000 tons (210 vessels); coastwise, 55,000 tons (199 vessels); dhows, 95,000 tons entered and 94,000 tons cleared.

There is cable communication with Europe either via Aden or via Durban.

There are 75 miles of roads throughout the Island of Zanzibar suitable for motor traffic. A light railway runs north from the town to Bububu seven miles distant.

The Government maintains wireless stations in Zanzibar and Pemba, and a telephone system in the town of Zanzibar, which is connected with the District and Agricultural stations in the country. There are seven post-offices in the two islands. Total number of articles dealt with at the post office in 1921 was 749,000 (letters, 557,000); in 1919, 565,648 (324,792 letters). The Post Office Savings Bank was started in 1907. At the end of 1920 there were 1,135 depositors, with 7,540% on deposit.

The British Indian rupee is universally current; currency notes of 5 to 500 rupees are in circulation. The value of notes in circulation on December 31, 1921, was 39,74,000 rupees. Seyyidieh copper pice are legal tender up to 64 pice (= one rupee). A frasla (or frasila) of cloves is equivalent to 35lbs. av.

MAURITIUS.

Constitution and Government.

Mauritius, was discovered by the Portuguese early in the 16th century, but the Dutch were the first settlers. In 1710 they abandoned the island and it was occupied by the French under the name of Isle de France. British troops occupied the island in 1810, and it was formally ceded to Great Britain by the Treaty of Paris of 1814. Under Letters Patent of 1885, 1901, 1904, and 1912, partially representative institutions have been established. The government of the Colony, with its dependencies, Rodrigues, Diégo Garcia, &c., is vested in a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, consisting of the officer in command of His Majesty's troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Procureur-General, the Receiver-General, and of such other persons holding office in the service of the Government of the Colony as the Governor, through instructions from the Secretary of State, may from time to time appoint. There is also a Council of Government, consisting of the Governor and twenty-seven members, ten being elected under a moderate franchise, eight ex-officio, and nine nominated by the Governor. The official councillors comprise the four Executive members, the Collector of Customs, the Protector of Immigrants, the Director of Public Works and Surveys, and the Director of the Medical and Health Department.

Governor of Mauritius.—Sir Henry Hesketh Bell, K.C.M.G.

Area, Population, &c.

Mauritius, in the Indian Ocean, 500 miles east of Madagascar, has an area of about 720 square miles. According to the census of 1921, the population of the island, including Dependencies (8,394), Military (206), was 385,074, consisting of general population, 112,370, Indian population, 265,884, Chinese population, 6,820.

Birth-rate (exclusive of Indians) in 1921, 39·7, Indian birth-rate, 37·5 per thousand; death-rate (exclusive of Indians) in 1921, 42·6, Indian death-rate, 39·3 per thousand. Immigrants in 1921 (Indian), nil; emigrants, 318. Population of Port Louis, the capital, 50,308 (1921) with its suburbs.

In 1911 there were 122,424 Roman Catholics, 6,946 Protestants (Church of England and Church of Scotland). State aid is granted to the Churches, amounting in 1921-22 to Rs. 196,107; the Indians are mostly Hindus.

The greater part of Port Louis has in recent years passed from European to Asiatic or Chinese hands.

Primary education is free but not compulsory. At the end of 1921 there were 57 Government, and 92 aided schools. Average attendance at Government schools, 1921, 7,511 (12,102 on roll); at State-aided schools, 10,434 (18,232 on roll, of whom more than three-fourths were in Roman Catholic schools). For secondary education there is a Royal College (with many scholarships and exhibitions) with (1921) 346 pupils. There were also in 1921 nine aided secondary schools for boys and girls. The total Government expenditure in 1920-21 on education was Rs. 950,000.

The total number of convictions at the inferior courts in 1921 was 19,796, and at the Supreme Court 19.

NYASALAND PROTECTORATE (BRITISH).

The Nyasaland (until 1907 British Central Africa) Protectorate, constituted on May 14, 1891, lies along the southern and western shores of Lake Nyasa, and extends towards the Zambezi. It is administered under the Colonial Office by the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, assisted by an Executive and a Legislative Council, both consisting of nominated members, and the Governor having the right of veto (Order in Council of September 4, 1907). The Laws consist of local Ordinances duly enacted, with such British Acts as are of general application.

Area, 39,573 square miles, divided into twenty districts, each administered by a Resident and his assistants. Population, 1921, 1,486 Europeans (mostly in the Shire Highlands), 563 Asiatics, and 1,199,934 natives. The chief settlement is Blantyre, in the Shire Highlands; others are Zomba (the seat of Government), Port Herald, Manje, Limbe; on Lake Nyasa are Fort Johnston, Kota-Kota, Bandawe, Chfntechi, Nkata, Likoma, and Karonga. Good roads are being made in all directions, and life and property are safe. There are no Government schools, native education being undertaken by various missionary societies. Eleven Christian missions are at work ; in 1920 there were 2,191 schools, with 135 European teachers, 123,928 pupils and 73,236 in average attendance. The missions divide 2,000*l.* Government aid for their schools.

Justice is administered in the High Court, which has jurisdiction in civil and criminal matters, and also as a Court of Admiralty. Subordinate courts are held by magistrates and assistant magistrates in the various districts. Appeals from decisions of the High Court are heard in H.B.M.'s Court of Appeal for Eastern Africa, sitting at Mombassa. In 1920, 4,726 offences were reported.

Within the Shire province coffee is cultivated ; in 1920, 64,362 lbs. ; and in 1921, 18,144 lbs. were exported. Tobacco exported, after local demands were supplied, in 1920, 4,963,000 lbs. ; and in 1921, 6,741,000 lbs. The area under tobacco in 1921 was 21,074 acres. Cotton cultivation is very promising. The area under cultivation in 1921 was 26,529 acres. Crop in 1920, 1,150,000 lbs. ; and in 1921, 1,591,000 lbs. Tea-growing is tried on estates aggregating about 4,354 acres ; in 1920, 497,000 lbs. ; and in 1921, 414,000 lbs. were exported. Cattle in the Protectorate (1921), 105,000 ; sheep, 44,000 ; goats, 151,000 ; pigs, 20,000 ; horses, mules, and asses, 200, mostly belonging to the natives.

Direct imports from Great Britain, 1920, 332,384*l.* ; 1921, 440,182*l.* ; direct exports thereto, 611,440*l.* in 1920 ; 415,131*l.* in 1921.

The imports (1921) consisted chiefly of manufactured articles (441,308*l.*), provisions (68,879*l.*), raw materials (34,892*l.*) ; the principal exports (1921) were tobacco (297,092*l.*), cotton (66,860*l.*), tea (3,415*l.*).

Public debt, March 31, 1921, 209,387*l.*

There are military, volunteer reserve, and civil police forces. A European police force has been created. There is a Marine Transport Department on the Upper Shire River and on Lake Nyasa, consisting of three vessels. For ordinary traffic there are small steamers, besides small sailing vessels.

There is communication with the coast at Chinde by river steamers. Chinde is situated on the only navigable mouth of the Zambezi, and the Portuguese Government has granted a small piece of land, called the 'British Concession,' where goods in transit for British Central Africa are free of customs duty, and in addition a large area for residential purposes styled 'the Extra Concession.'

There are 26 post offices through which, in 1921, 1,961,000 postal packets passed. A postal savings bank was opened on July 1, 1911. Depositors at end of 1921, 408; deposits, 6,073*l*. A railway, of 3 ft. 6 in. gauge, from Chinde on the Zambezi in Portuguese East Africa to Blantyre has been constructed (174 miles). A railway from Murraça on the southern bank of the Zambezi to the Port of Beira in Portuguese East Africa was opened for traffic in April, 1922, thus establishing direct railway communication between Blantyre and Beira. It is under contemplation to extend the railway system northwards to Lake Nyasa. There is a telegraph line through the Protectorate to Tanganyika and Ujiji connecting with Cape Town, with a branch to Fort Jameson. At Zomba there is a water-power electric light installation which provides for the whole settlement.

At Blantyre and Zomba there are branches of the Standard Bank of South Africa and of the National Bank of South Africa. The currency consists of British coin, gold, silver, and bronze. There is no note circulation.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Sir George Smith, K.C.M.G.

Chief Secretary.—R. S. D. Rankine, C.M.G.

² Including specie.

³ Including specie, but excluding government stores.

The revenue from customs in 1921 was 3,250l.

Public debt, nil. But the Colony's liabilities at December 31, 1921, exceeded the assets by 1,950l.

The principal export in 1920 was fibre and tow, 38,797l., and in 1921, 11,984l.

Savings-bank deposits on December 31, 1921, 6,578l., belonging to 107 depositors.

Fruit trees, Norfolk pines, eucalyptus, and cedars flourish in St. Helena. Cattle do well, but there is no outside market for the meat. The flax (phormium) industry is now established, and a Government mill commenced operations in 1908. There are three private mills. The area of land under flax was estimated at 1,000 acres in 1918. A lace-making industry has been started. The number of vessels that called at the Island in 1921 was 26 (24 British).

The Post Office traffic from St. Helena in 1920, 99 bags of mails, 519 parcels, 2,122 registered articles. The Eastern Telegraph Company's cable connects St. Helena with Cape Town and with St. Vincent. There are telephone lines, with 40 miles of wire.

St. Helena is an Admiralty coaling station. About two of the Cape of Good Hope Squadron visit St. Helena every year.

Ascension is a small island of volcanic origin, of 34 square miles, in the South Atlantic, 700 miles N.W. of St. Helena. Down to November 1922 it was under the control and jurisdiction of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, but it was then transferred to the administration of the Colonial Office and annexed to the colony of St. Helena. There is an excellent sanatorium up Green Mountain (2,820 ft.) for crews of ships visiting the island, whose health is impaired from service on the coast. There are 10 acres under cultivation which produced vegetables and fruit for the garrison. The population was estimated (August 1, 1918) at about 250, consisting of officers, their wives and families, seamen and marines, kroomen, members of the staff of the Eastern Telegraph Co., and servants. As the garrison has been withdrawn the population will be much reduced. The garrison station was Georgetown, on the north-west coast.

The island is the resort of the sea turtle, which come in thousands to lay their eggs in the sand annually between January and May. Rabbits, wild goats, and partridges are more or less numerous on the island, which is, besides, the breeding ground of the sooty tern or "wideawake," these birds coming in vast numbers to lay their eggs about every eighth month. The island is included in the Postal Union, and is connected by the Eastern Telegraph Company with St. Helena, St. Vincent, Sierra Leone, and Buenos Aires; with England and with the Cape of Good Hope by telegraph.

Tristan da Cunha, a small group of islands in the Atlantic, half-way between the Cape and S. America, in 37° 6' S. lat. 12° 1' W. long. Besides Tristan da Cunha and Gough's Island, there are Inaccessible and Nightingale Islands, the former two and the latter one mile long, and a number of rocks. The population consists mainly of the families of shipwrecked sailors and wives from St. Helena, and numbers about 130. There is no form of government. Education is almost totally neglected. Potatoes grow well, but grain crops are destroyed by rats. Apple and peach trees are productive. Bullocks, sheep, and geese are reared. Fish are plentiful.

SEYCHELLES.

Seychelles and its Dependencies consist of 90 islands and islets with a total estimated area of 156 square miles. The principal island is Mahé (55½ square miles), smaller islands of the group being Praslin, Silhouette, La Digue, Curieuse, and Félicité. Among dependent islands are the Amirantes, Alphonse Island, Bijoutier Island, St. François, St. Pierre, the Cosmoledo Group, Astove Island, Assumption Island, the Aldabra Islands, Providence Island, Coetivy, Farquhar Islands, and Flat Island.

The islands were first colonised by the French in the middle of the eighteenth century, the object being to establish plantations of spices to compete with the lucrative Dutch monopoly. They were captured by the English in 1794 and incorporated as a dependency of Mauritius in 1810. In 1888 the office of Administrator was created, an Executive Council of 2 ex-officio members and 1 nominated member was appointed, with a Legislative Council of 3 official and 3 unofficial members, the Administrator being president of both Councils and having an original and casting vote in the Legislative Council. In 1937 the Administrator was given full powers as Governor, and in November, 1903, he was raised to the rank of Governor.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—His Excellency Brig.-Gen. Sir Joseph Byrne, K.B.E., C.B.

The population at December 31, 1921, was estimated to be 24,705; census of April 24, 1921, 24,811 (12,282 males and 12,529 females). The death-rate for 1921 was 15.98; the birth-rate 28.91; marriages, 119. Number of births, 709; deaths, 392. The capital is Victoria, which has a good harbour and is a coaling station. There were in 1921, 20 grant-in-aid schools. In addition, there are a Government free school, a Catholic secondary school for boys, and one for girls. Total number of children attending school in 1921 was 2,392; average attendance, 70%. In 1921, 259 persons were convicted in the Supreme Court. The police force numbered 90 of all ranks (1921).

Revenue, expenditure and debt for 5 years :—

Year.	Revenue.	Expenditure.	Debt.
1918 (pre-war)	37,144	37,245	13,269
1918	27,256	29,416	9,978
1919	38,243	41,790	9,265
1920	45,240	41,061	11,865
1921	41,317	41,259	11,112

The surplus funds invested on December 31, 1921, amounted to 7,517l.

Chief items of revenue, 1921 : customs, 15,519l. ; Crown lands, 2,971l. ; licences, excise and internal revenue, 3,527l. ; taxes, 7,847l.

Chief products, coconuts (over 23,000 acres under cultivation : 28,000,000 coconuts produced in 1921) and vanilla ($1\frac{1}{2}$ tons exported in 1921) ; on some islands mangrove-bark is collected and phosphate deposits are worked. A good deal of attention is being given to the distillation of oil from the leaves of the cinnamon tree, which grows profusely in the island. Live-stock at end of 1921 : Cattle, 1,000 ; goats, 500 ; sheep, 200 ; horses, 200 ; asses, 50. Fishing is actively pursued, chiefly for local supply, but will probably be extended.

Imports, 1921, 89,870l. ; 1920, 114,427l. Exports, 1921, 111,241l. ; 1920, 127,335l. Principal imports, 1921 : Rice, 17,386l. ; cotton piece goods, 10,957l. ; hardware, 9,346l. ; sugar, 6,493l. ; flour, 4,053l. ; spirits, wine and beer, 3,525l. ; wearing apparel, 3,334l. ; haberdashery, 3,108l. Chief exports, 1921 : Copra, 57,680l. ; essential oil from cinnamon, 12,933l. ; essential oil from cloves, 3,451l. ; guano, 12,720l. ; coconut oil, 4,640l. ; tortoise shell, 2,586l. ; coconuts, 1,914l. Total imports from United Kingdom, 1921, 28,189l. ; India, 31,960l. ; Mauritius, 10,723l. ; France, 5,769l. Exports to United Kingdom, 1921, 32,925l. ; France, 38,346l. ; India, 18,608l. ; Mauritius, 16,527l.

Shipping entered and cleared (1921), 176,587 tons, mainly British, exclusive of coasters trading between Mahé and the dependencies. The British India steamers call once a month from Bombay on their way to Mombasa, and every two months on their way from Mombasa to Bombay. There is fairly regular communication between the islands.

There is a good road system in Mahé, and further road-making is in progress in Mahé and in Praslin and La Digue. In 1921 the post office despatched and received 95,500 letters and post cards, 62,500 newspapers, &c., and 2,460 parcels. There is telegraphic communication with Mauritius and Europe, but no internal telegraph service.

At the end of 1921 the Savings Bank deposits amounted to 5,896l. to the credit of 398 depositors.

Current money in the islands consists of rupees and notes.

SOMALILAND PROTECTORATE.

The Somali Coast stretches from Lahadu, west of Zeyla, to Bandar Ziyada 49° E. long. After 1884, when Egyptian control ceased, the territory was administered by the Government of India, but was taken over by the Foreign Office on October 1, 1898, and was transferred to the Colonial Office on April 1, 1905.

By an arrangement with Italy in 1894 the limits of the British Protectorate were defined; but in 1897, by an arrangement with Abyssinia, a fresh boundary as required by that country was determined, and about 15,000 square miles were ceded to Abyssinia. An agreement for the regulation of Anglo-Italian relations in Somaliland was concluded on March 19, 1907. The area is about 68,000 square miles; population about 300,000—Mohammedan, and entirely nomadic, except on the coast, where considerable towns have sprung up during the British occupation.

The chief town, Berbera, had, at the 1921 census, 30,000 inhabitants in the trading season; Zeyla, 7,000; and Búlhar, 7,300. There is a Government school with average attendance, 1921, of 30. Police, 510 officers and men on March 31, 1920. Convictions in 1921, 976. Revenue in 1921-22 120,405*l.*, reckoned at 10 rupees to 1*l.* (customs 77,241*l.*); expenditure 203,128*l.* Grant in aid for 1921-22, in form of a loan, 100,000*l.* Imports, 349,003*l.* for 1921; exports 317,659*l.* Bullion and specie are included. The imports are chiefly rice (67,006 cwt.), dates (64,686 cwt.), sugar (12,561 cwt.), textiles (7,962,221 yds.), and specie; the exports, skins and hides, gum and resins, ghee, cattle and sheep, and specie. Tonnage entered in 1921, 51,527; cleared, 53,187. The rupee is the basis of the currency, and is of the same value as in India. Government of India notes are also in circulation. Transport is by camel and motor car; there are no porters. Besides ordinary telegraphs there are wireless telegraph stations at Berbera, Burao, Hargeisa, Zeyla, and Las Khorai.

The Protectorate forces now comprise a Camel Corps of 400, including 1 Indian Company, and 500 Police.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—His Excellency Lt. Col. G. H. Summers, C.M.G. Appointed August 17, 1922.

SOUTH AFRICA.

BASUTOLAND.

Basutoland, an elevated but rugged plateau, forms an irregular parallelogram on the north-east of the Cape of Good Hope Province. The provinces of the Orange Free State, Natal, and the Cape of Good Hope form its boundaries. Area, 11,716 square miles. The territory, which is well watered and has a fine climate, is stated to be the best grain-producing country in South Africa, and the abundant grass enables the Basutos to rear large herds of cattle.

Basutoland has been directly under the authority of the Crown since 1884. The Paramount Chief is Griffith, installed on April 11, 1913. The territory is governed by a Resident Commissioner under the direction of the High Commissioner for South Africa, the latter possessing the legislative authority which is exercised by proclamation. The country is divided into seven districts, namely: Maseru, Leribe, Mohale's Hoek, Berea, Mafeteng, Quthing, and Qacha's Nek. Each of the districts is subdivided into wards, mostly presided over by hereditary chiefs allied to the Moshesh family.

In 1891 the population consisted of 578 Europeans and 218,324 natives. The census of 1911 gave a total of 403,111 natives and 1,396 Europeans; and that of 1921, 495,937 natives, 1,603 Europeans, 172 Asiatics, and 1,069 coloured. European settlement is in general prohibited, and is more or less limited to the few engaged in trade, government, and missionary work. Maseru, the capital and largest town, has a population of 1,890 natives and 399 Europeans.

There were 451 native elementary schools with over 31,500 pupils at the end of December, 1921; expenditure in connection with education amounted during the year ended March 31, 1921, to 35,000*l*. There are some Normal and Industrial schools (aided). There is also a large and well-fitted Government native industrial school at Maseru. There are 6 white schools with 121 pupils.

The police force numbered, 1920, 15 white officers and 16 European constables and 340 men (natives).

The productions are wool, wheat, mealies, and Kaffir corn. There are indications of iron and copper, and coal has been found and is used in some parts. Stock, &c. (1921): 574,000 cattle, 152,000 horses, 900 mules, 5,000 donkeys, 1,854,000 sheep, 894,000 goats, 30,000 ploughs, 1,050 Scotch carts, 2,500 wagons, 1,000 other vehicles.

222 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—BECHUANALAND PROTECTORATE

The imports consist chiefly of blankets, ploughs, clothing, iron and tin ware, and groceries, and the exports of stock, grain and wool. Basutoland is in the South African Customs Union. The total trade in recent years was:

	1918 [*]	1919	1920	1921
	£	£	£	£
Imports . . .	882,339	1,137,037	1,219,388	556,453
Exports . . .	1,007,612	1,380,119.	937,038	510,448

The currency is exclusively British. The revenue arises mainly from the Post Office, native tax, licences, and customs rebate from neighbouring territories. Under the new Native Tax Law every adult male native pays 1*l.* 5*s.* per annum, and if he has more than one wife by native custom he pays 1*l.* 5*s.* per annum for his wives up to a maximum of 3*l.* 15*s.* An Income Tax has been recently enacted on the lines of that existing in the Union of South Africa, and the collections for the year 1921-22 amounted to 2,700*l.*

	£	£	£	£	£	£
Revenue . . .	161,417	175,029	191,429	199,885	226,323	209,802
Expenditure . . .	203,461	173,193	180,881	202,441	252,953	243,078

Native tax yielded 127,000*l.* in 1921-22, and customs, 54,000*l.* Balance of assets over liabilities, March 31, 1922, 69,000*l.*

There are no navigable waterways, the rivers being low in winter and generally flooded in summer. The roads in the country are now in fair condition for any kind of transport.

There are telegraph offices at the various magistracies in connection with the systems of the Cape Province and Orange Free State.

A railway built by the C.S.A.R., 16 miles, connects Maseru with the Bloemfontein-Natal line at Marseilles Station.

Resident Commissioner.—Lieut.-Col. Sir E. C. F. Garraway, K.C.M.G.

BECHUANALAND PROTECTORATE.

The Bechuanaland Protectorate comprises the territory lying between the Molopo River on the south and the Zambezi on the north, and extending from the Transvaal Province and Matabeleland on the east to South-West Africa. Area is about 275,000 square miles; population, according to the census of 1921, 152,983, of whom 1,743 were Europeans. The most important tribes are the Bamangwato (35,000), under the chief Khama, whose capital is Serowe (population 17,000) 40 miles west of the railway line at Palapye Road; the Bakhatla (11,000) under Lenchwe; the Bakwena (13,000) under Sebele II.; the Bangwaketse (18,000) under Tshosa, acting paramount chief during minority of Bathoen, a boy of 14 years of age, the eldest son of the late chief Gaseitsiwe; the Batawana under Mathibe; and the Bamaletse (4,500) under Seboko Mokgosi, who assumed the Chieftainship on July 9, 1917. In 1885, the territory was declared to be within the British sphere; in 1889 it was included in the sphere of the British South Africa Company, but was never administered by the company; in 1890 a Resident Commissioner was appointed, and in 1895, on the annexation of the Crown Colony of British Bechuanaland to the Cape of Good Hope, new arrangements were made for the administration of the Protectorate, and special agreements were made in view of the extension of the railway northwards from Mafeking. Each of the chiefs rules his own people as formerly, under the protection of the King, who is represented by a Resident Commissioner, acting under the High Commissioner. The headquarters of the Administration are in Mafeking, in the Cape Province, where there is a reserve for Imperial purposes, with ample buildings. There are assistant commissioners for the southern and northern districts of the Protectorate; the former is also Government Secretary, residing at Mafeking, and the latter at Francistown. There is a tax of 1*l.* on each hut and 3*s.* for a Native Fund established by virtue of Proclamation No. 47 of 1919, for education, &c. Licences for the sale of spirits are granted only at certain railway stations.

Cattle-rearing, and agriculture to a limited extent (production of maize and Kaffir corn), are the chief industries, but the country is more a pastoral than an agricultural one, crops depending entirely upon the rainfall. Cattle numbered on May 3, 1921, 495,000 head, sheep and goats, 380,000. During the year 1921-22, 26,000 head of cattle were exported. The police force consists of 57 Europeans and 166 Basutos, and 86 local natives as messengers. Education is provided (there were 10 European, 1 coloured, and 59 native schools, 1921-22), with Government assistance (2,156*l.* being granted in 1920-21), in the London Missionary Society, Church of England, Dutch Reformed Church, and other schools. Total Government expenditure on education, 1921-22, 1,122*l.*

Gold and silver to the total value of 20,000*l.* were mined in 1921-22.

Revenue and expenditure for six years:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure

Chief items of revenue, 1920-21: customs, 28,000*l.*; hut-tax, 38,000*l.*; licences, 6,550*l.*; posts, 9,620*l.*; export duty on cattle, 8,920*l.*; cattle-tax, 3,330*l.* Chief items of expenditure, 1920-21: Resident Commissioner, 6,200*l.*; district administration, 8,519*l.*; posts, 4,259*l.*; police, 56,000*l.*; public works (extraordinary and recurrent), 6,565*l.*; veterinary, 11,000*l.* There has been no Imperial grant-in-aid since 1911-12, when the grant amounted to 10,000*l.*

There is no public debt. Excess of liabilities over assets on April 1, 1922, 1,049*l*.

The Protectorate was within the South African Customs Union, and when the Union of South Africa was completed, an agreement was made with the Union Government under which duty on all dutiable articles imported into the Protectorate is collected by the Union Customs Department and paid into the Union Treasury, a lump sum representing a certain portion of the annual Customs Revenue of the Union being paid over to the Protectorate. Under this arrangement figures relating to imports and exports are not available.

The telegraph from the Cape of Good Hope to Rhodesia passes through the Protectorate and is owned by the British South Africa Company. Similarly the railway extending northwards from the Cape of Good Hope traverses the Protectorate. It is the property of the Rhodesia Railways, Limited. In the Protectorate are 19 post offices; receipts, in 1921-22, 10,000*l*; expenditure, 4,700*l*. Postal business, 1920-21, (estimated figures) 645,000 letters and post-cards, 107,000 newspapers, book packets, samples, and circulars, 19,000 parcels and registered articles, and 29,000 official correspondence and other articles.

The currency is British money. There is no bank in the Protectorate.

Resident Commissioner.—J. C. Macgregor, C.M.G.

Government Secretary.—J. Ellenberger, I.S.O.

RHODESIA.

Under the title of Rhodesia is included the whole of the region extending from the Transvaal Province northwards to the borders of the Congo State and the late German East Africa (now Tanganyika Territory), bounded on the east by Portuguese East Africa, Nyasaland, and the Tanganyika Territory, and on the west by the Congo State, Portuguese West Africa, and Bechuanaland. The whole territory is under the administration of the British South Africa Company, which holds a Royal Charter dated October 29, 1889. The region south of the Zambezi (Matabeleland and Mashonaland) is called Southern Rhodesia; that north of the Zambezi is known as Northern Rhodesia.

The capital of the Company was originally 1,000,000*l*.; in 1908 it amounted, by successive additions, to 9,000,000*l*.; amount issued and paid up at March 31, 1920, 8,937,533*l*.; debentures (5 per cent. free of tax), 1,250,000*l*.

The administrative system of the Company in Southern Rhodesia is prescribed by Orders in Council, the last dated 1916. To assist the Company's Administrator there is an Executive Council consisting of not less than three members appointed for three years by the Company with the approval of the Secretary of State. There is also a Legislative Council, which consists of the Administrator (president), six nominees of the Company approved by the Secretary of State, and thirteen members elected by the registered voters. Women have the vote. The duration of each Legislative Council is three years, unless it be sooner dissolved. Ordinances passed by the Legislative Council when assented to by the High Commissioner take effect immediately, but within a year may be disallowed by the Secretary of State. There is a Resident Commissioner appointed by the Secretary of State, with a seat on both the Executive and Legislative Councils, but without a vote. For the administration of justice there is a High Court with civil and criminal jurisdiction. In the districts there are Magistrates' Courts. There is a chief Native Commissioner, with subordinate Superintendents of Divisions, Native Commissioners and Assistant Native Commissioners, and, except with respect to arms, ammunition, and liquor, natives and Europeans are under the same conditions.

The grant of responsible government to Southern Rhodesia, or, as an alternative, incorporation into the Union of South Africa, has been under discussion for some time and the electors of the territory voted in October, 1922, in favour of responsible Government. Arrangements are being made for the British South Africa Company to hand over the administration.

Land has been set apart for tribal settlements ("native reserves"), the mineral rights being reserved to the Company. It has been decided that the ownership of the unalienated land vests in the Crown, but the Company, so long as it is responsible for the government of the country, may dispose of such land in the due course of administration.

Southern Rhodesia.—Area, 149,000 square miles. According to the census taken in April, 1921, the European population was 33,620 (18,987 males and 14,633 females). The native population of Southern Rhodesia is estimated (1921) at about 770,000. There are also approximately 3,000 Asiatics and other coloured persons. The chief towns are Salisbury (the capital of Southern Rhodesia), Bulawayo, Victoria, Umtali, Gwelo, Enkeldoorn, Melssetter, Hartley, Selukwe, Gwanda, and Gatooma.

The schools in Southern Rhodesia for Europeans numbered, at the end of 1921, 79 public and 5 aided. The pupils in 1920 numbered 5,621, and the total expenditure on education was 181,693*l.* There were also 31 private schools, with 152 pupils in 1920. In addition there were 696 native schools, the number of pupils enrolled being 51,817.

Administrative revenue of Southern Rhodesia, 1921-22, 1,485,000*l.* (customs, 437,000*l.*; native tax, 279,000*l.*; income tax, 338,000*l.*; stamps and licences, 59,000*l.*). Administrative revenue, 1920-21, 1,387,000*l.*; expenditure, 1,315,000*l.*

The country is rich in gold reefs and other minerals, and is well adapted for agriculture and European settlers. Live stock (1921): cattle, 1,714,000; sheep, 328,000. Acreage under crops (1921): maize, 186,246; tobacco, 9,531; wheat, 7,118; ground nuts, 4,414. Large fruit orchards have been planted, and nearly all fruit trees thrive, the cultivation of oranges and lemons constituting a rapidly expanding industry. Regular shipments of oranges are now being made to the United Kingdom, and have realised satisfactory prices. In March, 1922, the British South Africa Company completed the construction of an important dam across the Mazoe River, the storage capacity of which, in a normal season, is approximately 4,000 million gallons, equivalent to 15,000 acre feet, or sufficient to supply 6,000 acres with $2\frac{1}{2}$ feet of water per acre per annum. An adequate supply of water will be assured for the irrigation of the Company's orange groves on the Mazoe Estate, and negotiations are at present taking place with regard to the sale of surplus water to other landowners in the Mazoe Valley. The sale of dairy produce is a profitable industry in the neighbourhood of the towns. Creameries, a bacon factory, an oil-expressing plant, and a meat-canning factory have been successfully established.

A Land Bank makes loans to settlers on easy terms of repayment, for the purpose of improving and developing their agricultural holdings, and numerous companies have been formed with the purpose of developing land and minerals.

The total output of gold from 1890 to December 31, 1921, is valued at 51,401,615*l*. The gold output (1921) was 585,525 oz., valued at 3,217,275*l*. (1920, 552,495 oz., 3,056,549*l*.). The output of other minerals in 1921 was: silver, 153,000 oz., valued at 19,800*l*.; coal, 575,000 tons, 260,000*l*.; copper, 3,080 tons, 20*l*.; chrome ore, 50,200 tons, 195,000*l*.; asbestos, 19,500 tons, 795,000*l*.; mica, 85 tons, 20,700*l*.; arsenic, 361 tons, 11,200*l*. Small amounts of wolframite, scheelite, and antimony, together with 141 carats of diamonds, were also produced. The total mineral output for 1921 was valued at 4,720,000*l*.

The total value of imports into Southern Rhodesia in 1921 was 5,243,000*l*., the chief being: live animals, 123,000*l*.; food and drink, 597,000*l*.; textile goods, wearing apparel, boots, etc., 1,073,000*l*.; machinery, 362,000*l*. The value of the exports of South African produce, including gold, was 4,299,000*l*., the chief being: asbestos, 431,000*l*.; maize, 146,000*l*.; blister copper, 402,000*l*.; animals, 114,000*l*.; hides and skins, 187,592*l*.; tobacco, 196,000*l*. Imports of merchandise from the United Kingdom (1921), 2,510,000*l*.

The Rhodesian Railway system begins at Vryburg in the Cape Colony, and extends northwards to the Congo State border, a through communication from Cape Town to the Congo border (2,149 miles), and north-east from Bulawayo to Salisbury, and thence to the port of Beira on the Indian Ocean. There are also several branch lines in Southern Rhodesia. The total mileage of the Rhodesian Railway Systems (including the Beira Railway) at the end of 1920 was 2,468.

On December 31, 1921, there were in Southern Rhodesia 103 post offices, 35 of which are money order and savings bank offices. During the year ended December 31, 1921, 8,397,000 letters and post-cards were despatched. The total of newspapers, books, and parcels despatched was 2,518,000, and registered articles 117,000. The postal revenue for the year was 76,000*l*., and the expenditure, 59,000*l*. Telegraphic revenue, 76,000*l*., expenditure, 78,000*l*.

On January 1, 1905, a Post Office Savings Bank was established, and on December 31, 1921, the deposits amounted to 169,000*l*.

On December 31, 1921, the mileage of the Rhodesia telegraph system was 8,175. There were 112 telegraph offices open. In Southern Rhodesia during the year 1921, 698,000 telegrams were received and despatched. There is an extensive telephone system in operation.

Northern Rhodesia.—By an Order in Council, dated May 4, 1911, the two provinces of North-Eastern and North-Western Rhodesia were amalgamated under the title of Northern Rhodesia, the amalgamation taking effect as from August 17, 1911. The limits of the territory, as defined by the Order in Council are 'the parts of Africa bounded by Southern Rhodesia, German South-west Africa (now South-west Africa), Portuguese West Africa, the Congo Free State, German East Africa (now Tanganyika Territory), Nyasaland, and Portuguese East Africa.'

The Northern Rhodesia Order in Council (May 4, 1911), provides for the appointment of an Imperial officer, styled the Resident Commissioner, who may be the officer holding the same position in Southern Rhodesia, and of an Administrator appointed by the British South Africa Company with the approval of the Secretary of State. The Administrator has an Advisory Council of five members, chosen by the white settlers, for consultative purposes.

Northern Rhodesia has an area of about 291,000 square miles, and consists for the most part of high plateau country, covered with thin forest. Much of the country is suitable for farming and contains large areas carrying good arable and grazing land. The permanent European population in 1920 was 3,500. The native population is estimated at about 928,000. The territory is divided into ten magisterial districts. The administrative headquarters are at Livingstone, on the Zambezi. The most important centres are Fort Jameson, Fife, Abercorn, Fort Rosebery, Broken Hill, Ndola, and Lealui. The police force, called the Northern Rhodesia Police, is composed of natives, with European officers and non-commissioned officers.

Revenue, 1920-21, £35,000*l.* (native tax, 91,000*l.*; customs, 66,000*l.*; posts and telegraphs, 14,000*l.*; stamps and licences, 13,000*l.*; medical, 6,000*l.*; fines and fees, 4,000*l.*); expenditure, 331,000*l.* Revenue, 1919-20, 169,625*l.*; expenditure, 260,107*l.* Imports, inclusive of specie, 1921, 741,000*l.*; exports, 505,000*l.*, including living animals, 94,000*l.*, copper ore, etc., 2,400*l.*; pig lead and ingot, 306,000*l.*; corn, grain, and flour, 45,000*l.*; hides, skins, and horns, 8,400*l.*

Agricultural products are maize, cotton, tobacco, wheat, and European fruits. Rubber is also produced. There is plenty of timber of various kinds. There are gold, copper, zinc, and lead mines in the territory; and coal has been discovered. Lead mined in 1920, 19,800 tons, 703,000*l.* Total lead produced to 31st December, 1921, 67,300 tons, 1,528,000*l.*

The trunk line of the Rhodesian railway system traverses Northern Rhodesia from Livingstone to the Congo border. The Zambezi, Kafue, Chambesi, and other rivers of Northern Rhodesia are navigable for a considerable portion of their extent.

In Northern Rhodesia there are 39 post offices, 12 being money order offices. There is a telegraph line alongside the railway from Livingstone to the Congo border. The African Transcontinental telegraph system extends to Abercorn, Fife, and Fort Jameson.

SWAZILAND.

Swaziland, at the South-eastern corner of the Transvaal, was, by the Convention of 1894, placed under the administration of (but not incorporated with) the South African Republic; the British Government has now the control of the territory. On June 25, 1903, an Order in Council was issued conferring on the Governor of the Transvaal authority over Swaziland, and by Order in Council of December 1, 1906, this authority was transferred to the High Commissioner for South Africa. The numerous mineral and land concessions and monopolies granted by Mbandeni, many of which carried exemption from customs dues or invested private individuals with powers properly exercisable by the Crown, rendered any satisfactory form of Government difficult. A Proclamation, therefore, provided for the constitution of a Commission to inquire into the question of these concessions. Under this Proclamation the High Commissioner has exercised the power to expropriate monopolies conferring exclusive rights, compensation for which has been made out of loans raised for the purpose. The agricultural and grazing rights of natives have been safeguarded, and delimited; a general survey of the territory in connection with concession claims has also been carried out.

Gold is subject to a tax of 10 per cent. on profits; base metals to a royalty of 2½ per cent. on output, in addition to any rentals now payable.

A Special Court, having the full jurisdiction of a Superior Court, and Assistant Commissioners' Courts have been established. A local Swaziland police force was created in 1907. Authorised strength (1921) 24 Europeans and 172 natives. During the year ended December 31, 1921, there were 2,410 summary convictions, and 55 convictions in the Superior Court.

Native chiefs continue to exercise jurisdiction according to native law and customs in all civil matters between natives, subject to a final appeal to the Resident Commissioner.

The present seat of the administration is at Mbabane: altitude 3,800 feet.

Area, 6,678 square miles. Population, census 1921: 133,563 (Europeans, 2,200). The Government maintains 11 European schools at different centres, average attendance, 376 in 1921; and 1 native school at Zombode, the kraal of the Regent, average attendance, 77 in 1921. The Government also subsidises other native schools and a school for coloured children, average attendance, 2,300 in 1921.

Chief items of revenue, 1921-22: Native tax, 39,000*l.*; customs, 10,000*l.*; sales and leases of Crown lands, &c., 8,000*l.*; concession rents, 6,000*l.*; licences, 30,000*l.*; dog tax, 3,000*l.* Chief items of expenditure, 1921-22: Police, 20,000*l.*; establishments, 17,000*l.*; public works, 8,000*l.*; East Coast Fever Veterinary, 11,000*l.*; medical, 5,000*l.*; education, 6,000*l.*; justice, 6,700*l.*

Since 1904, 177,412*l.* has been spent on the expropriation of monopolies and in connection with the Swaziland Concessions Commission and the Partitions of Concessions. The public debt of Swaziland amounts (1922) to 92,500*l.*

The agricultural products are tobacco, maize (the staple product), millet, pumpkins, ground-nuts, beans, and sweet potatoes, grown in insufficient quantities for local supply. Attempts are being made to introduce cotton-growing. Stock numbers approximately (1921): horses, 1,400; cattle, 210,000; native sheep and goats, 120,000; pigs, 9,000. Approximately 350,000 sheep are brought into Swaziland from the Transvaal each year for winter grazing. The territory is reported to be rich in minerals, but it has not yet been systematically prospected. Alluvial tin is being mined and shipped. In 1921 the output of tin was 391 tons, valued at 30,000*l.* There are several gold mines, but only four were worked on a small scale in 1921, the output being 211 oz. By agreement (dated June 30, 1910) with the Union of South Africa, Swaziland is treated for customs purposes as part of the Union and receives a pro rata share of the Customs dues collected. Separate returns of Swaziland imports and exports are not available. The exports consist mainly of cassiterite tin, slaughter oxen, tobacco and cotton.

There is bi-weekly communication by motor between Pietersdorp, Mbabane and Carolina. Elsewhere communication is by small carts or runners. Post offices working in 1921-22, 15. There are telegraph offices at Mbabane, Piggs Peak, Bremersdorp, and Ezulweni. Post Office Savings Banks deposits, 2,564*l.* on March 31, 1922, belonging to 211 depositors.

The currency is British coin and coins of the late South African Republic, which are of similar denomination to the British. The National Bank of South Africa, Ltd., has branches at Mbabane and Hlatikulu. The deposits to March 31, 1922, amounted to 41,000*l.* This bank also conducts savings bank business—149 depositors, 1922, total deposits 23,000*l.*

Deputy Resident Commissioner and Government Secretary.—B. Nicholson, D.S.O., M.C.

THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.

Constitution and Government.

The Union of South Africa is constituted under the South Africa Act, 1909 (9 Edw. 7, Ch. 9), passed by the Parliament of the United Kingdom on September 20, 1909. Under the terms of that Act the self-governing Colonies of the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal, and the Orange River Colony were united on May 31, 1910, in a legislative union under one Government under the name of the Union of South Africa, these Colonies becoming original provinces of the Union under the names of the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal, and the Orange Free State respectively. Under the Act constituting the Union, the Sovereign appoints a Governor-General, who, with an Executive Council (of which the members are chosen and summoned by him), administers the executive government of the Union as the Governor-General in Council. Departments of State have been established, the Governor-General appointing not more than ten officers to administer them. Such officers are King's Ministers of State for the Union and members of the executive Council.

Legislative power is vested in a Parliament consisting of the King, a Senate, and a House of Assembly. The Governor-General has power to summon, prorogue, and dissolve Parliament, either both Houses simultaneously or the House of Assembly alone; but the Senate may not be dissolved within 10 years of the establishment of the Union. There must be a session of Parliament every year.

The Senate consists of forty members. For ten years after the establishment of Union eight (four being selected mainly for their acquaintance with the reasonable wants and wishes of the coloured races) are nominated by the Governor-General in Council and thirty-two are elected, eight for each Province. The first election was made prior to the establishment of the Union by the two Houses of each of the Colonial Legislatures sitting as one body, and a vacancy is filled by the choice of the Provincial Council in respect of whose Province a vacancy occurs. The Constitution of the Senate after ten years may be provided for by Parliament, but if no such provision is made the arrangements made in the South Africa Act are to hold good. Each senator must be a British subject of European descent, at least 30 years of age, qualified as a voter in one of the provinces, and resident for five years within the Union; an elected senator must be a registered owner of property of the value of 500*l.* over any mortgage. Result of elections in February, 1921: S. African Party, 17; Nationalists, 13; Labour, 2.

The House of Assembly consists of 134 members chosen in Electoral Divisions in numbers as follows :—The Cape of Good Hope, 51 ; Natal, 17 ; Transvaal, 49 ; Orange Free State, 17. Parliamentary voters must have the qualifications as existing in the several colonies at the time of the Union. Each electoral district in each province returns one member, who must be a British subject of European descent, qualified as a registered voter, and resident five years within the Union. A House of Assembly is to continue five years from the date of its first meeting unless sooner dissolved.

Each member of each House must make Oath or Affirmation of Allegiance. A member of one House cannot be elected to the other, but a Minister of State may sit and speak, but not vote in the House of which he is not a member. To hold an office of profit under the Crown (with certain exceptions) is a disqualification for membership of either House, as are also insolvency, crime, and insanity. Certain disabilities to which members of Parliament had, or might have, become subject in assisting in Naval and Military operations during the war were made the subject of special legislation in 1915.

The House of Assembly, not the Senate, must originate money bills, but may not pass a bill for taxation or appropriation unless it has been recommended by message from the Governor-General during the Session. Restrictions are placed on the amendment of money bills by the Senate. Provision is made for adjusting disagreements between the Houses, and for the Royal Assent to bills to be given or reserved, and for laws assented to by the Governor-General being disallowed.

The first Parliamentary election under the South Africa Act was held on the 15th September, 1910. The position of the various parties in September, 1921, was :—South African Party, 74 ; Nationalists, 47 ; Labour Party, 12 ; Independents, 1.

Pretoria is the seat of government of the Union, and Cape Town is the seat of Legislature.

Governor-General.—Major-General H. R. H. Prince Arthur of Connaught, K.G., K.T., G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., C.B., A.D.C. (salary £10,000 per annum). The Executive Council is constituted as follows :—

His Royal Highness the Governor-General.

Prime Minister and Minister of Native Affairs.—General The Right Honourable J. C. Smuts, C.H., K.C. (3,500*l.*).

Minister of the Interior, Public Health and Education.—The Honourable Patrick Duncan, C.M.G. (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Mines and Industries.—The Right Honourable F. S. Malan (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Railways and Harbours.—The Honourable J. W. Jagger (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Finance.—The Honourable H. Burton, K.C. (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Justice.—Senator The Honourable N. J. de Wet, K.C. (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Defence.—Colonel The Honourable H. Mentz (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Posts and Telegraphs and of Public Works.—The Honourable Sir Thomas Watt, K.C.M.G. (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Agriculture.—The Right Honourable Sir Thomas Smartt, K.O.M.G.

Minister of Lands.—Colonel The Honourable D. Reitz.

In each province there is an Administrator appointed by the Governor-General for five years, and a Provincial Council elected for three years, each council having an executive committee of four (either members or not of the council), the administrator presiding at its meetings. Members of the Provincial Council are elected on the same system as members of Parliament, but the restriction as to European descent does not apply. The number of members in each Provincial Council is as follows:—Cape of Good Hope, 51; Natal, 25; Transvaal, 49; Orange Free State, 25. The provincial committees and councils have authority to deal with local matters such as provincial finance, education (elementary), charity, municipal institutions, local works, roads and bridges, markets, fish and game, and penalties for breaches of laws respecting such subjects. Other matters may be delegated to these Councils. All ordinances passed by a Provincial Council are subject to the veto of the Governor-General-in-Council.

The first Provincial elections for the Cape of Good Hope and the Transvaal were held on the 15th September, 1910; those for Natal and the Orange Free State on the 12th October, 1910.

There is a provincial Revenue Fund in each province. The old colonial capitals are the capitals of the provinces.

A Harbour and Railway Board of not more than three commissioners appointed for five years, with a Minister of State as chairman, have the management of the railways, ports, and harbours. There is a Railway and Harbour Fund for the Union and into it are paid revenues from the administration of railways, ports, and harbours, and such Fund is appropriated by Parliament. Into a Consolidated Revenue Fund is paid all other money received for the purposes of the Union. On this fund the interest on debts of the colonies forms a first charge. To the Union has been transferred the public property, real and personal, of the colonies.

The English and Dutch languages are both official. The administration of native affairs and affairs specially or differentially affecting Asiatics vests in the Governor-General-in-Council. It is provided that the government of native territories may be transferred to the Union Government.

High Commissioner in London.—Sir E. Walton, K.C.M.G.

Area and Population.

The total area of the Union is 473,089 square miles divided between the Provinces as follows:—Cape of Good Hope, 276,966; Natal, 35,284; Transvaal, 110,450; Orange Free State, 50,389.

The census taken in 1904 in each of the four Colonies which subsequently (in 1910) were incorporated in the Union was the first simultaneous census taken in South Africa. While comparisons are possible in respect of the numbers of the population of separate Provinces for earlier periods than 1904, full comparison is only possible in respect of the whole area of the Union for 1904 and later years. In 1911 the first Union census was taken.

The following tables give the returns of population at the various censuses, classified according to race and sex:—

Year	All Races			White		Coloured
	Total	White	Coloured	Males	Females	Males	Females
1904 . . .	5,175,824	1,116,808	4,059,018	635,117	481,689	2,047,118	2,011,900
1911 . . .	5,973,394	1,276,242	4,697,152	685,164	591,078	2,384,228	2,312,924
1918 . . .	—	1,421,781	—	728,866	692,915	—	—

Of the coloured population in 1921, 4,697,313 were Bantu, 165,731 Asiatic, and 545,548 of other races.

The increase in the total population, 1911-21, was: Union, 15.99 per cent.; Cape, 8.49 per cent.; Natal, 19.71 per cent.; Transvaal, 23.81 per cent.; O. F. S. 19.06 per cent. The increase in the European population in the Union, 1911-21, was 19.06 per cent., and in other races 15.16 per cent. The proportion of Europeans to the total population in 1921 was 21.93 per cent.

Principal towns (including suburbs) in the Union classified according to the number of inhabitants of white race, 1918 and 1921:—

Religions.—The results of the European census of 1918 as regards religions are as follows:—Europeans: Dutch Churches, 800,178; Anglicans, 265,149; Presbyterian, 60,471; Congregationalists, 13,176; Wesleyans, 91,199; Lutherans, 20,320; Roman Catholics, 55,552; Baptists, 15,507; Jews, 58,741; others and unspecified, 41,495; total, 1,421,781. Non-Europeans as at the census of 1911; Dutch Churches, 204,702; Anglican, 276,849; Presbyterians, 72,114; Independents (Congregationalists), 173,982; Wesleyans, 456,017; African Methodist Episcopal, 59,103; Lutherans, 195,308; Roman Catholics, 37,242; Hindus, 115,701; Buddhists and Confucians, 1,783; Mahomedans, 45,842; no religion, 3,012,648; others and unspecified, 45,861; total, 4,697,152.

Instruction.

Under the South Africa Act, for a period of five years after the establishment of the Union and thereafter subject to decree of Parliament, control of education other than higher education was granted to the four Provincial Administrations. This arrangement still obtains. For practical purposes it has been provisionally determined that all post-matriculation instruction shall be deemed to constitute Higher Education,

Higher Education.—By legislation enacted in the Session of 1916 three Universities, with teaching and examining functions, were established in the place of the University of the Cape of Good Hope, provision being made for the conversion of the South African College into the University of Cape Town, of the Victoria College into the University of Stellenbosch, and of the University of the Cape of Good Hope into a federal University, styled the University of South Africa, with the remainder of the University Colleges as constituent colleges, the names of which, with appropriate details, will be found in the table hereunder. The actual establishment of the three new Universities took place on April 2, 1918. In 1921 the University College of Johannesburg was created the University of the Witwatersrand.

The University Acts of 1916 also established two Boards, one consisting of representatives of the three Universities (South Africa, Cape Town and Stellenbosch), the Provincial and Union Education Departments, and of the teachers of public and private secondary schools, which is charged with the conduct of the matriculation examination, and the other for the conduct of the professional examinations in law and surveying.

Justice.

The Common Law of the Union is the Roman-Dutch Law, that is, the uncodified law of Holland as it was at the date of the cession of the Cape in 1806. The sources of the law are the Dutch Commentaries and text-books of the seventeenth, eighteenth, and early nineteenth centuries. The Law of England as such is not recognised as authoritative, though by Statute the principles of English Law relating to mercantile matters—e.g., companies, patents, trademarks, insolvency and the like, have been introduced. In shipping, insurance, and other modern business developments English Law is followed, and it has also largely influenced civil and criminal procedure. In all other matters, family relations, property, succession, contract, &c., Roman-Dutch Law rules, English decisions being valued only so far as they agree therewith. The prerogatives of the Crown are, generally speaking, the same as in England.

The Supreme Court consists of an Appellate Division with a Chief Justice and two ordinary and two additional Judges of Appeal. In each Province of the Union there is a Provincial Division of the Supreme Court ; while in the Cape there are two Local Divisions, and in the Transvaal one, exercising the same jurisdiction within limited areas as the Provincial Divisions. The Judges hold office during good behaviour. The Circuit System is fully developed.

Each Province is further divided into Districts with a Magistrate's Court having a prescribed civil and criminal jurisdiction. From this Court there is an appeal to the Provincial and Local Divisions of the Supreme Court, and thence to the Appellate Division. A distinctive feature of the Criminal system is that Magistrate's convictions carrying sentences above a prescribed limit are subject to automatic review by a Judge.

Persons convicted, all courts, 1921 : males, 225,366, females, 25,747.

Chief-Justice of South Africa.—The Rt. Hon. Sir James Rose-Innes, K.C.M.G. (Appointed 19 October, 1914.)

Finance.

Prior to 1913-14 the expenditure of the four Provinces was entirely met from grants by the Union Government. Under the Financial Relations Act, 1913, which came into operation on April 1, 1913, certain revenues were transferred or assigned to the Provinces, and the grants by the Union Government were limited to 50 per cent. of the total normal or recurrent expenditure of the Provinces, with additional subsidies to two Provinces in which the funds so provided were shown to be inadequate to meet the necessary expenditure. The Act also provided that the capital expenditure of the Provinces should be financed by redeemable loans from the Union Treasury, the interest and sinking fund charges on which should be included in the normal or recurrent expenditure and thus be subject to the 50 per cent. grant

238 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA

The gross Public Debt of the Union at March 31, 1922, was 191,784,936*l*.

The expenditure out of Loan Funds for war services during 1915-16 was 10,707,188*l*. ; 1916-17, 2,764,560*l*. ; 1917-18, 3,452,156*l*. ; 1918-19, 3,153,925*l*. ; 1919-20, 2,072,626*l*. ; 1920-21, 753,730*l*. ; 1921-22, 259,850*l*.

The railway earnings in 1921-22 totalled 20,807,359*l*. , and the total expenditure came to 17,214,275*l*. ; harbours, revenue 1,089,087*l*. , expenditure 688,316*l*. South African Steamships revenue, 250,203*l*. ; expenditure, 223,510*l*. ; leaving a total net surplus of 4,020,548*l*. The estimated expenditure for 1922-23 is: Railways, 22,753,653*l*. ; harbours, 1,093,735*l*. ; steamships, 216,006*l*.

There is a provincial revenue fund in every Province, into which all revenues raised or received by the Province are paid. Appropriations are effected by Ordinance of the Provincial Council. It is only under the authority of such an Appropriation Ordinance that any withdrawal from the fund can take place. The provincial accounts are audited in each case by an auditor appointed and paid by the Union Government.

Defence.

The South Africa Defence Act 1912, which became law on June 14, 1912, as amended by the South Africa Defence Act Amendment Act of 1922, provides for the establishment of Defence Forces comprising:—

1. The South African Permanent Force, which consists of:—(i) The South African Staff Corps; (ii) The South African Instructional Corps; (iii) The South African Naval Service; (iv) The South African Field Artillery; (v) The 1st Regiment, South African Mounted Riflemen; (vi) The South African Permanent Garrison Artillery; (vii) The South African Engineer Corps; (viii) The South African Air Force; (ix) The South African Service Corps; (x) The South African Medical Corps; (xi) The South African Ordnance Corps; (xii) The South African Veterinary Corps; (xiii) The South African Administrative, Pay, and Clerical Corps.

The South African Naval Service includes the officers and men of the South African Division of the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve engaged for whole-time service.

2. The Coast Garrison Force.
3. The Citizen Force.
4. The Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve.
5. Special Reserves.

Every citizen between the ages of 17 and 60 is liable to render personal service in time of war, and those between 21 and 25 are liable to undergo a prescribed peace training with the Active Citizen Force spread over a period of four consecutive years. The Act states, however, that only 50 per cent. of the total number liable to peace training shall actually undergo that training unless Parliament makes financial provision for the training of a greater number.

The establishment of Rifle Associations is a marked feature of the Act; citizens between the ages of 21 and 25 who are not entered for peace training with the Active Citizen Force are to be compelled to undergo training during these four years in a Rifle Association, thus ensuring that, in course of time, all citizens will at least know how to handle and use a rifle.

Provision is also made in the Act for the cadet training of boys between 13 and 17 in urban and other populous areas where facilities can conveniently be arranged.

The Union is divided into 15 military districts. To each military district have been allotted various units of different arms, to which the citizens entered for peace training in their 20th and 21st years are posted.

The object of the Amending Act is to provide for a small standing army with an efficient Air Force and the nucleus of a Naval Service for coastal defence.

Under the 1922 Act the Permanent Force is relieved of all Police duties in peace time for which they were liable under the Act of 1912, and becomes a purely military force.

The provision of a Police Reserve to take the place of the South African Mounted Riflemen, when on active service, is no longer necessary, and has been expunged from the Act of 1912 accordingly.

From December 1, 1921, the Defence Force of the Union became entirely responsible for the military administration of the Cape, and the Imperial troops have been withdrawn.

Production and Industry.

Agriculture.—Wheat-growing has made a big forward movement since 1904, as will be seen from the following table :—

Other products, excluding Native Reserves, &c., 1921 : barley, 52,071,000 lbs. ; oats, 191,234,000 lbs. ; Kaffir corn, 310,809,000 lbs. ; potatoes, 215,930,000 lbs. ; tobacco, 15,006,240 lbs.

In dairying, too, good progress has been made. In 1920-21 the production of butter amounted to 18,963,073 lbs., and of cheese, 4,618,714 lbs.

The 1921 census (Agriculture) showed that the numbers of various classes of livestock in the Union were as follows :—8,557,089 cattle ; 920,468 horses ; 116,789 mules ; 722,238 donkeys ; 261,828 ostriches ; 31,729,512 sheep ; 7,836,696 goats ; 914,769 pigs.

The production of wool and mohair is being maintained (1921 exports: wool, 230,421,915 lbs.; mohair, 17,127,915 lbs.). The slump in ostrich feathers during the war seriously reduced the output, though after the signing of the Armistice, in 1918 the feather industry underwent a rapid revival (exports, 1921, 296,711 lbs., 461,533*l.*). In 1921 hides and skins valued at 1,226,876*l.* and wattle bark valued at 570,127*l.* were exported.

Cotton-growing is now undertaken by many farmers, the plant being found a better drought resistant than either tobacco or maize. The 1921 yield was approximately 3,576,400 lbs. of seed cotton. The output of sugar in the Union in 1916-17 was estimated at 114,709 tons; in 1917-18, 104,921 tons; in 1918-19, 150,214 tons; 1919-20, 189,183 tons; 1920-21, 143,680 tons. The area under tea is approximately 3,500 acres, from which the yield for 1920-21 was 3,762,634 lbs. (green leaf). It is estimated that some 15,000 acres of land suitable for tea plantations are available.

The total extent of forest reserve areas in March, 1919, was about 2,092,000 acres.

Irrigation.—Irrigation development has made rapid strides in the past ten years. Technical and financial assistance is given by the State under the Union Irrigation Law of 1912, which was designed to encourage irrigation. The Government expenditure on irrigation in 1921-22 was 1,010,000*l.* from Loan Funds and 214,000*l.* from revenue; total 1,224,000*l.*

Manufactures.—The conditions brought about by the war gave an impetus to local manufactures. The production of leather, for which this country is most suitable, has been more than doubled; a commencement has been made with the manufacture of tanning extract from wattle bark; in dairy products, increasing activity is everywhere being shown; and the output of cement is rapidly overtaking the demands of the country. The Union already produces its own requirements in beer and matches. The manufacture of tobacco satisfactorily maintains its position as one of the most important industries in the country. Amongst other commodities which the Union is producing are boots and shoes, candles, dynamite, soap, rope, wine, spirits, furniture, vehicles, brooms and brushes, biscuits, earthenware pipes, and firebricks.

The report on the industrial census in the Union in 1920-21 gives the value added by process of manufacture, &c., as 40,337,000*l.*, and the value of the gross production of the industries covered at 98,302,000*l.* The total number of factories which made returns was 7,006. Value of land and buildings, 18,703,000*l.*, machinery, plant, and tools, 25,620,000*l.*, of materials used 57,965,000*l.*, and cost of fuel, light, and power, 2,786,000*l.* Average number of persons employed, 179,838 (whites, 62,966). Wages paid, 21,906,000*l.* The gross value of the output of the principal groups of industries was: food, drink, &c., 36,066,000*l.*; metals, engineering, &c., 20,011,000*l.*; chemicals, &c., 6,603,000*l.*; heat, light, and power, 5,227,000*l.*; building, &c., 9,122,000*l.*; clothing, textiles, &c., 3,234,000*l.*; books, printing, &c., 4,299,000*l.*; leather, &c., 2,389,000*l.*; stone, clay, &c., 2,703,000*l.*; vehicles, 2,181,000*l.*; furniture, &c., 1,669,000*l.*

Mining.—The table hereunder gives the total value of the principal minerals produced in the Union from the earliest dates of existing records to December 31, 1921. The value of gold is calculated at 4.24773*l.* per fine ounce. Copper, tin, antimony, scheelite, and silver are valued on the estimated pure metal contained in shipments according to the average current prices in London. The value of other base minerals is calculated on average local prices.⁴

The total exports, excluding specie, in 1921, were 61,990,714*l.* (excluding ships' stores value 3,553,776*l.*), of which 49,535,813*l.* went to the United Kingdom; 2,948,867*l.* to the rest of the Empire; 1,956,862*l.* to the U.S.A.; and 467,139*l.* to Japan.

Shipping and Communications.

Oversea shipping 1921: entered, 1,217 vessels of 4,198,000 tons net; cleared, 1,204 of 4,178,000 tons. Coastwise: entered, 2,350 vessels of 6,012,000 tons net; cleared, 2,328 of 6,039,000 tons.

Prior to the Union, which took effect in May, 1910, the state railways of the several colonies now comprising the Union were operated by the separate Governments. In May, 1910, the Government lines were merged into one system, the South African Railways, under the control of the Union Government. The total open mileage of this system at the end of March, 1921, was 9,559 (comprising Cape 4,254 miles, Orange Free State 1,342 miles, Transvaal 2,644 miles, and Natal, 1,319 miles), of which 8,998 miles are 3 ft. 6 in. gauge, and 561 miles 2 ft. gauge. Mileage open September, 1922, 10,890. The capital expenditure on Government Railways up to March 31, 1921, amounted to 99,821,886*l.* Earnings, 1921–22, 20,807,359*l.*; expenditure, 17,214,275*l.*; passengers, 61 millions; goods carried, 15,220,762 tons. Mileage of private lines, 507 miles (Cape, 453, Natal, 50, O.F.S., 4). A new railway, about 40 miles long, is to be built from Kimberley to Barkly West (Vaal River diamond diggings), and on to Bornelskop.

At the end of 1920–21 there were in the Union 2,771 post offices. Telegrams dealt with numbered 6,994,643. The number of money orders issued during the year 1920–21 was 433,078, and the value 3,271,225*l.*, while 412,813 orders of the value of 3,417,430*l.* were paid. 2,968,770 postal orders amounting to 1,734,692*l.* were issued, and 2,699,544, valued at 1,556,597*l.*, paid.

The revenue of the Post Office in 1920–21 was 1,573,190*l.*, and the expenditure 1,974,240*l.* The revenue of the telegraph and telephone services (excluded from the previous figures) was 1,211,949*l.*, and the expenditure 1,371,235*l.*

In 1921 there were 12,884 miles of telegraph line, carrying 44,183 miles of wire, and 3,351 miles of telephone route, carrying 140,889 miles of wire. 12,123 wireless messages were dealt with during the year 1920-21.

The number of depositors in the Government Savings Bank in the Union at the end of March, 1921, was 308,140, and the amount standing to their credit 6,861,078*l*.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

An Act passed in 1922 provided for the issue of a Union Coinage with denominations identical with those of British Coins, which remain legal tender.

An Act (No. 22 of 1922) has been passed legalizing the optional use of either the metric or the imperial standard weights and measures. The following old Dutch measures are, however, still in use:—Liquid Measure: Leaguer = about 128 imperial gallons; half aum = 15½ imperial gallons; anker = 7½ imperial gallons. Capacity: Muid = 3 bushels. The customary surface measure is the Morgen, equal to 2·1165402 acres; 1,000 Cape lineal feet are equal to 1,033 British imperial feet.

PROVINCE OF THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

Constitution and Government.—The Colony of the Cape of Good Hope was originally founded by the Dutch in the year 1652. Britain took possession of it in 1795 but evacuated it in 1803. A British force again took possession in 1806 and the Colony has remained a British Possession since that date. It was formally ceded to Great Britain by the Convention of London, August 13, 1814. The original Colony has been extended from time to time. East and West Pondoland were annexed in 1894 and Bechuanaland in 1895. For many years the form of government in the Colony depended on the terms of the Royal Letters Patent and Instructions to Governors. Letters Patent issued in 1850 to Governor Sir Henry Smith declared that in the Colony there should be a Parliament which should consist of the Governor, a Legislative Council, and a House of Assembly.

A Constitution Ordinance was enacted by Order in Council of March 11, 1853, and took effect on May 1 ensuing. This Order in Council provided that nothing it contained should prevent the Parliament of the Colony from making Acts (subject to the power of Her Majesty in Council either to disallow or assent to such Acts) in amendment of the said Ordinance. This power of amending the Constitution was exercised from time to time as the bounds of the Colony were extended. In 1872 an Act was passed at the Cape and assented to by Order in Council, providing for the system of executive administration known as Responsible Government. The Constitution formed under these various Acts vested the executive in the Governor and an Executive Council, composed of certain office holders appointed by the Crown. On the 31st May, 1910, the Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa, thereafter forming an original province of the Union.

Cape Town is the seat of the Provincial Administration.

Administrator.—The Hon. Sir Frederic de Waal, K.C.M.G. (Salary 2,500*l.*)

The Province is divided into 119 magisterial districts, and the Colony proper, including Bechuanaland, but exclusive of the Transkeian territories, into 86 fiscal divisions. In each division there is a Civil Commissioner, who is, in all cases where the fiscal and magisterial areas coincide, also the Resident Magistrate. Each division has a Council of at least 6 members (14 in the Cape Division) elected triennially by the owners or occupiers of immovable property. These Councils look after roads, boundaries, and beacons; return 3 members to the Licensing Court, and perform other local duties.

There are 128 Municipalities, each governed by a Mayor or Chairman and Councillors, a certain number of whom are elected annually by the ratepayers. There are also 78 Village Management Boards.

Area and Population.—The following table gives the population of the Cape of Good Hope at each census :—

¹ Excluding travellers by rail in 1921, allocated to place of permanent residence.

Of the coloured population in 1911, 19,763 were Malays, and 415,282 a mixture of various races; the rest are Hottentots, Fingoes, Kaffirs, and Bechuanas.

Chief Towns: White population in 1921 :—Cape Town, 113,302; Kimberley, 13,286; Port Elizabeth, 25,982; Graham's Town, 7,237; Paarl, 5,760; King William's Town, 5,928; East London, 20,374; Graaff-Reinet, 4,516; Worcester, 3,894; Uitenhage, 7,815; Oudtshoorn 5,552.

Of the European population in 1911, 24,245 were professional, 143,925 domestic, 37,796 commercial, 87,795 agricultural, 50,031 industrial, 232,730 were dependants, and 5,855 indefinite and unspecified. Of the coloured population the great majority are engaged in agricultural or domestic employments.

Marriages, births and deaths in six years, so far as registered :—

Years	Marriages	Births	Deaths
1913(pro-war)	12,133	58,787	39,532
1917	11,814	55,529	41,023

1920	14,783	54,029	44,790
1921	13,165	53,801	41,448

Religion.—In 1911 there were, 1,437,688 Christians—479,825 Dutch Churches, 282,619 Anglican Communion (including Church of England, Church of Province of South Africa, Church of Ireland, Episcopal Church of Scotland, Episcopalian), 74,005 Presbyterians, 147,378 Independents or Congregationalists, 285,283 Wesleyans, 19,161 other Methodists, 21,506 Lutherans, 21,167 Moravians, 22,953 Rhenish Mission, 12,234 other Lutherans, 13,704 Baptists, 35,934 Roman Catholics, 21,919 other Christians. Mohammedans 24,189, Jews 16,744. Of no religion, 1,077,998, of whom 1,047,233 were natives.

Instruction.—Local school administration is conducted by school boards and school committees, the unit of administration being the school district. There are now 122 such districts, each under the control of a school board, two-thirds of whose members are elected by the ratepayers and one-third nominated by Government and local authority. Boards have the power, subject to the Department, to establish and maintain schools; subject to Departmental approval, further, they have the general financial control of schools under their jurisdiction, including the fixing of scales of fees and the hire of buildings. They also have power to enforce school attendance and in certain cases to allow free education. Every public school under a board is ordinarily managed by a committee elected by the parents or, in default, nominated by the board. Such committees have the general supervision of the school, and the selection of the teaching staff also rests with them. Grants in support of education are provided from the general revenue, the sources of revenue in the case of school boards being: Central government, 69·76 per cent.; local education rate, 4·66 per cent.; school fees, 25·17 per cent.; other sources, 41 per cent. Aided schools 1920, 4,640. There are 128,061 European pupils and 154,422 non-European. Total number of teachers 10,004.

Charitable Institutions, Hospitals, Pauperism.—In the hospitals and kindred charitable institutions, 24,725 in-patients and 122,101 out-patients were treated in the year 1920. There is no system of poor-law relief.

Finance.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there is only one financial statement for the four provinces together. Particulars are given above under the Union. Since the passing of the Financial Relations Act, 1913, the Provincial revenue consists of certain revenues assigned to the Province and an amount voted by Parliament by way of subsidy. The following figures show the provincial revenue and expenditure for five years :—

	1913-14 (pre-war)	1917-18	1918-19	1919-20	1920-21

Production and Industry.—In 1914, 919,420 acres of Crown lands were alienated, the amount realised being 52,265*l.* Up to December 31, 1914, the total area disposed of was about 141,039,952 acres, the quantity undisposed of being 36,336,708 acres. At March 31, 1921, the area unalienated was reduced to approximately 26 million acres.

For Mineral Production, see p. 241.

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records of trade for each of the Provinces. The British Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province separately. The following figures show the value of the trade between the Cape of Good Hope Province and the United Kingdom for five years :—

PROVINCE OF NATAL.

Constitution and Government.—Natal, which had been annexed to Cape Colony in 1844, was placed under separate government in 1845, and under charter of July 15, 1856, was erected into a separate Colony. By this charter partially representative institutions were established, and, under a Natal Act of 1893, assented to by Order in Council, June 26, 1893, the Colony obtained responsible government. The province of Zululand was annexed to Natal on December 30, 1897. The districts of Vryheid, Utrecht and part of Wakkerstroom, formerly belonging to the Transvaal, were in January, 1903, annexed to the colony. On May 31, 1910, the Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa, becoming an original province of the Union.

The seat of provincial government in Natal is Pietermaritzburg.

Administrator.—The Hon. G. T. Plowman, C.M.G.

Area and Population.—The Province (including Zululand, 10,424 square miles) has an area of 35,284 square miles, with a seaboard of about 360 miles. The climate is sub-tropical on the coast and somewhat colder inland. It is well suited to Europeans. The Province is divided into 40 Magisterial Divisions.

The European population has more than trebled since 1879. The returns of the total population at the last five censuses were :—

Census Year.	All Races.			White.		Coloured.
	Total.	Males.	Females.	Males.	Females.	Males.	Females.

The figures for 1891 exclude Zululand; those for 1904 and 1911 include the districts of Vryheid, Utrecht, Paulpietersburg, Ngotshe, and Babanango.

Population of the borough of Durban according to the census of 1921: White 57,095, other 89,215, total 146,310; and of Pietermaritzburg: White 17,998, coloured 18,025, total 36,023. The white population of Durban in 1918 was 43,413, and of Pietermaritzburg, 18,525.

So far as registered, the births in 1921 numbered 40,776 (3,370 European, 37,406 coloured); deaths, 19,883 (1,410 European, 18,473 non-European); and marriages, 3,614 (1,296 European, 2,318 non-European).

Instruction.—With the exception of Higher Education, which has been placed under the control of the Union Government, Education comes under the Provincial Administration. In 1920 there were, for children of European extraction, 165 schools giving primary, 7 schools giving intermediate, and 10 giving secondary education, in all 182 schools, which were supported either entirely or partially by Government funds. In addition there were 3 special or vocational schools, 1 training school for teachers, and 157 farm schools. For coloured children, there are 534 state and state-aided schools (including 47 for Indians), as well as 7 schools provided for the training of coloured teachers. The aggregate number of European pupils in regular attendance at the Government and inspected schools was 23,140 for 1920; the average daily attendance 90 per cent. of the number on the registers. The number of coloured children receiving instruction in 1920 amounted to 34,217. A sum of 72,875*l.* was spent on coloured education during 1920–21 out of public funds; the corresponding figure in respect of European education was approximately 493,444*l.* It is estimated that only a very small percentage of white children are receiving no education.

	1913–14 (pre-war)	1917–18	1918–19	1919–20	1920–21
Revenue:—	£	£	£	£	£
Provincial	118,486	172,160	223,287	277,053	318,687
Union Subsidy	361,000	283,777	441,056	511,995	597,999
Total Revenue	479,486	555,937	664,343	809,048	916,686
Total Ordinary Expenditure	451,001	532,474	669,780	809,770	1,024,722

The ordinary expenditure for 1921-22 was 958,121*l.* (unaudited). The capital expenditure in 1920-21 was 216,147*l.*

Production and Industry.—At the end of March, 1918, the area of Crown land which remained unalienated and could be taken up for agricultural or pastoral purposes was 1,140,000 morgen (1 morgen = 2.1165 acres approx.). On the Coast and in Zululand there are vast plantations of sugar (output, 1920-21, 143,680 tons) and tea, while cereals of all kinds (especially maize), fruits, vegetables, the Acacia molissima, the bark of which is so much used for tanning purposes, and other crops grow prolifically.

The Province is rich in mineral wealth, particularly coal, the output of which is being maintained at a steadily progressive rate. Among other minerals known to exist in the Province are asbestos, copper ore, fireclay, gold, graphite, gypsum, iron ore, lead and silver ore, limestone and marble, manganese ore, mica, molybdenum ore, nickel ore, nitre, oil shale, and tin ore. For figures of mineral production, see p. 241.

The various factory industries of Natal in 1920-21 (census of 1921) numbered 1,058, with an annual output valued at 23,790,511*l.* They had 9,083,822*l.* invested in machinery, lands, and buildings; annually used materials worth 15,171,314*l.*; and paid over 4,199,509*l.* yearly in wages to 42,695 employees.

A Whaling Industry was commenced at Durban in 1908. Down to 1921 (14 years) 10,008 whales were captured. In 1921 the whales captured numbered 1,071. Three companies, with 17 boats, were operating in 1921, and 6,225 tons of oil, valued at 155,000*l.*, were produced. The industry is now regulated by the Provincial Government, as indiscriminate slaughter was driving the whales away from the South African waters.

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records made for each of the Provinces; the British Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province separately. The following figures show the value of the trade between Natal Province and the United Kingdom for five years:—

PROVINCE OF THE TRANSVAAL.

Constitution and Government.—The territory comprised within the limits of The Transvaal was colonised by Boers who left Cape Colony in 1836-37. In 1852 the independence of the Transvaal Government was recognised by Great Britain, but, in 1877, in consequence of financial difficulties and troubles with the natives, and in accordance with representations and petitions from the Boers, the territory was annexed by the British Government.* In 1880 the Boers took up arms for the restoration of their independence, and, in 1881, a Convention was signed restoring to the inhabitants of the territory their self-government, but with conditions, reservations, and limitations, and subject to the suzerainty of the Queen. This arrangement was modified by a Convention made in 1884, in which the name of the South African Republic was given to the Transvaal State; but the control over external affairs, other than engagements with the Orange Free State, was reserved to her Majesty. These Conventions, however, did not preserve harmony within the Transvaal territory, or with the British Government. The discovery of gold and the conditions which followed this discovery occasioned difficulties from which the two Boer States sought release by military action. The result of this was the military occupation of the two countries, and their annexation to the British Crown, the one on September 1, 1900, under the name of The Transvaal, and the other (May 24) as the Orange River Colony. Hostilities continued till May 31, 1902, when an agreement as to terms of surrender was signed by the representatives of the burgher forces in the field. [See STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1906, under The Transvaal.]

The administration was thereafter carried on under a Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, assisted by an Executive and a Legislative Council. On December 6, 1906, Letters Patent were issued providing for a Constitution of responsible Government in the Colony. The Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa on May 31, 1910, as an original Province of the Union.

The seat of provincial government for the Transvaal is at Pretoria. The position of the various parties in the Provincial Council after the election in August, 1920, was: South African Party, 10; Nationalists, 21; Labour, 11; Unionists, 6; Independent 1; total, 49.

Administrator.—The Hon. A. G. Robertson (salary, 2,500*l.*)

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 110,450 square miles, divided into 26 districts. The following table shows the population at each of the last five censuses :—

Instruction.—The system of education was embodied in the Education Act which was passed during the first session of the first Parliament elected under responsible government, and which provides that all education except that of a university type shall be under the provincial authority. The Province has been divided for the purposes of local control and management into thirty-one school districts, for each of which there is a school board consisting partly of elected and partly of nominated members. The board is an advisory local body with general powers of supervision over all public schools in its district except high schools and special schools or classes specified in the third schedule of the Education Act, 1907. Instruction in Government Schools, both primary and secondary, is free. The new University of the Witwatersand was established in Johannesburg in 1921.

The following statistics of education are for the year ending Dec. 31, 1920:—1,039 primary schools had 101,454 pupils; 29 secondary schools, with an enrolment of 5,561 pupils; 437 State and State-aided schools for coloured, native and Indian children, with 32,065 pupils. There are seven training institutions for European teachers, with 856 students; and three for coloured teachers, with 281 students. An amount of 2,561,348*l.* was expended during the year for educational purposes.

In respect of the question of language, the medium of instruction up to and including the fourth standard is the home language (English or Dutch) of the pupil, but parents may request that the second language be gradually introduced as a second medium. Above the fourth standard provision is made for the instruction of pupils through the medium of English and Dutch, and the parent of each pupil may choose one of the two languages as the sole medium of instruction, or both of the languages as the media of instruction. If the parent of any pupil fails to exercise his right of choice, that pupil is instructed through the medium of the language which is the better known and understood by him, the other language being also used as far as possible as a medium of instruction. Bible History is taught in every school, but no doctrine or dogma peculiar to any religious denomination or sect may be taught.

Finance.—For financial arrangements, see p. 236 above.

The following figures show the provincial revenue and expenditure for five years:—

A considerable proportion of the Provincial revenue is derived from Natives' Pass Fees.

Production and Industry.—The Province of the Transvaal is in the main a stock-raising country, though there are considerable areas well adapted for agriculture, including the growing of tropical crops. The extent of land under cultivation is given as over 2,000,000 acres; fallow land as about 420,000 acres; and grazing land as 29,900,000 acres. The maize and tobacco crops may be regarded as the most important.

The live-stock numbered, in April, 1921, 3,563,080 sheep, 415,442 goats (including 58,979 of the valuable Angora breed).

For mineral production, see above, p. 241. The Transvaal Province has iron and brass foundries and engineering works, grain-mills, breweries, brick, tile, and pottery works, tobacco, soap, and candle factories, coach and wagon works, &c.

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records of trade for each of the Provinces. The British Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province. The following figures show the value of the trade between the Transvaal Province and the United Kingdom for five years :—

PROVINCE OF THE ORANGE FREE STATE.

The Orange River was first crossed by Europeans about the middle of the 18th century. Between 1810 and 1820, several Europeans settled in the southern parts of the Orange Free State. The Great Trek greatly augmented the number of settlers during and after 1836. At first no settled government was established. In 1848, Sir Harry Smith proclaimed the whole territory between the Orange and Vaal Rivers as a British Possession and established what was called the Orange River Sovereignty. A British Resident was appointed at Bloemfontein, with Assistant Commissioners at Winburg and Caledon River. Great dissatisfaction was caused by this step, as well as by the native policy of the British Government. In 1854 the Convention of Bloemfontein, by which British Sovereignty was withdrawn and the independence of the country was recognised, was signed by Sir George Russell Clerk.

During the first five years of its existence the Orange Free State was much harassed by incessant raids by, and fighting with, the Basutos. These were at length conquered. The British Government then stepped in and arranged matters much to the dissatisfaction of the conquering party. By the treaty of Aliwal North, only a part of the territory of the Basutos was incorporated in the Orange Free State. This part is still known as the Conquered Territory.

A great deal of unpleasantness was caused by the dispute over the Kimberley Diamond Fields, which belonged to the Orange Free State, but were annexed to the Cape Colony by the British Government.

On account of the Treaty between the Orange Free State and South African Republic, the former State took a prominent part in the South African War (1899-1902), and was annexed to the British Dominions by proclamation of Lord Roberts, on May 28, 1900, as the Orange River Colony. After peace was declared Crown Colony Government was established and continued until 1907, when responsible government was introduced. On May 31, 1910, the Orange River Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa as the Province of the Orange Free State.

The seat of provincial government is at Bloemfontein.

Administrator.—The Hon. Sir C. H. Wessels, Kt. (salary, 2,000*l.*)

There are municipalities at Bloemfontein and other centres, 55 in all; local authorities have, so far as possible, the usual local administrative powers.

AREA AND POPULATION—RELIGION—INSTRUCTION 259

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 50,389 square miles ; it is divided into 24 districts. The census population has varied as follows :—

Census Year	All Races			White		Coloured
	Total	Males	Females	Males	Females	Males	Females
1880 .	133,518	70,150	63,368	31,906	29,116	38,244	34,252

1921 .	628,827	321,373	307,454	97,776	90,780	223,597	216,674

The capital, Bloemfontein, had, in 1921, 19,367 white inhabitants, and 19,667 natives and other coloured persons ; total, 39,034. The 1918 European population was 15,631.

Vital statistics are shown as follows :—

1920	4,996	1,796	1,812	1,561	3,200

Religion.—The principal body, according to the census of 1911, is the Dutch Reformed Church with 175,311 adherents ; of Wesleyans there were 88,857 ; Anglican Communion, 42,401 ; Presbyterians, 7,549 ; Congregationalists, 8,368 ; Lutherans, 8,727 ; Roman Catholics, 5,696 ; Jews, 2,808 ; no religion (so stated), 173,336, of whom 173,192 were natives and other coloured persons.

Instruction.—Higher education is under the control of the Minister of Education for the Union, while primary and secondary education is controlled by the Administrator of the Province. Under the School Act of 1908 the Province is divided into 55 school districts, for each of which there is a board consisting partly of elected and partly of nominated members. Each board is an advisory body, with certain powers of supervision ; it is also responsible for carrying out the provisions of the law as to compulsory school attendance. The boards have certain advisory functions with regard to the appointment of teachers. Public schools, with certain special exceptions, are under the supervision of committees, the members of which are elected. The functions of these committees also are advisory, but they may nominate teachers for appointment in the discretion of the Director. Grants are given conditionally to private schools. In 1920 there were 752 public and 109 aided private schools in the Province, with a total enrolment of over 59,752 pupils. Fees are charged at all schools, exemption being granted under certain prescribed regulations, and attendance is compulsory up to Standard VI. Except where the parents object both English and Dutch are taught to all children, and where possible are used as equal media of instruction.

The Normal College trains from 80 to 90 teachers annually. The Polytechnic College, established in 1912, trains teachers in art, dressmaking, &c. The Home Industries Board directs the spinning and weaving schools throughout the country. The Government Industrial School for boys was opened at Bloemfontein in 1907. Secondary schools have been established in all the leading towns of the Province with more advanced departments preparing pupils up to University Matriculation standard.

	1913-14 (pre-war)	1917-18	1918-19	1919-20	1920-21
Revenue:—	£	£	£	£	£

Total Ordinary Expenditure	476,556	611,961	683,622	853,026	1,087,025

The capital expenditure in 1920-21 was 317,832*l*.

Production and Industry.—The Province consists of undulating plains, affording excellent grazing and wide tracts for agricultural purposes. The rainfall is moderate. The country is still mainly devoted to stock-farming, although a rapidly increasing quantity of grain is being raised, especially in the Eastern Districts.

For Mineral Statistics see p. 241.

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records of trade for each of the Provinces. The British Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province separately. The following figures show the value of the trade between the Orange Free State Province and the United Kingdom:—

WEST AFRICA.

These Possessions are the Colony and Protectorate of Nigeria; the Gambia Colony and Protectorate; the Gold Coast Colony with Ashanti and Northern Territories; and the Sierra Leone Colony and Protectorate.

Parts of Togoland and Cameroon are also included as mandated territories.

NIGERIA.

History and Constitution.—This territory comprises a number of areas formerly under separate administrations. Lagos, bought in August, 1861, from a native king, was placed under the Governor of Sierra Leone in 1866. In 1874 it was detached, together with the Gold Coast Colony, and formed part of the latter until January, 1886, when a separate "Colony and Protectorate of Lagos" was constituted. Meanwhile the National African Company had established British interests in the Niger valley, and in July, 1886, the company obtained a charter under the name of the Royal Niger Company. This Company surrendered its charter to the Crown in 1899, and on January 1, 1900, its territories were formed into the two Protectorates of Northern and Southern Nigeria. The latter absorbed the "Niger Coast Protectorate," which was formed in May, 1893, from the "Protectorate of the Oil Rivers," which had been constituted in June, 1885. In February, 1906, Lagos and Southern Nigeria were united into the "Colony and Protectorate of Southern Nigeria," and on January 1, 1914, the latter was amalgamated with the Protectorate of Northern Nigeria to form the 'Colony and Protectorate of Nigeria,' under a Governor. Lagos is the seat of the Central Government.

The Colony of Nigeria had its boundaries defined afresh, and the Protectorate was divided into two groups of provinces, the 'Northern Provinces' and the 'Southern Provinces,' each under a Lieutenant-Governor appointed by the King, and subject to the control and authority of the Governor.

The Executive Council of the Colony was made, from January 1, 1914, the Executive Council of the Protectorate also. It consists of a few of the senior officials. There is an advisory and deliberative body known as the Nigerian Council, consisting of the Governor, the members of the Executive Council, and other official members; a member, resident in Nigeria, of the Lagos Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Calabar Chamber of Commerce, and a member of the Chamber of Mines, nominated by those bodies; three Europeans nominated by the Governor; and six native members, also nominated by the Governor. This Council has no legislative or executive authority. There is a Legislative Council for Lagos, consisting of the Governor, six official and four unofficial members. It is proposed (1922) to abolish the Nigerian Council and the Legislative Council for Lagos, and to replace them by a Council of Government for the whole of Nigeria.

Governor of Nigeria.—Sir Hugh Clifford, G.C.M.G.

Chief Secretary to the Government.—Sir D. C. Cameron, K.B.E., C.M.G.

Lieutenant-Governors in the Protectorate.—Lt.-Col. H. C. Moorhouse, C.M.G., D.S.O. (Southern Provinces); and W. F. Gowers, C.M.G. (Northern Provinces).

There are altogether 23 provinces, each under the immediate control of a Resident. In many provinces the administration is in the hands of the permanent chief and his officials.

Area and Population.—Area approximately 336,700 square miles; population, about 18,500,000, including, at the end of 1921, about 2,800 Europeans (Northern Provinces: 258,000 square miles, 10,500,000 population. Southern Province: 78,000 square miles, 8,000,000 population). In 1900 a proclamation was issued in Northern Nigeria which, without abolishing domestic slavery, declared all children born after January 1, 1900, free; and forbade the removal of domestic slaves for sale or transfer. In 1917 the Slavery Ordinance abolished the legal status of slavery throughout the Protectorate. Slave markets have been suppressed by native rulers, but cases of slave dealing are still found among the tribes east of the Niger. In recent years a great number of slaves have been liberated in the Northern Provinces.

Justice.—The Supreme Courts of Northern and Southern Nigeria are united under one Chief Justice of Nigeria. There are police magistrates at Lagos and Calabar. In each province is a Provincial Court consisting of the Resident and his assistants, and such justices of the peace as may be appointed by the Governor. Native courts exist in Mohammedan localities where there are chiefs and councillors, and amongst pagan tribes Judicial Councils with limited judicial powers have been established in localities where the intelligence of the natives renders such a policy possible. There are cantonments at Kaduna, on the river of the same name, Kano, Zaria, Lokoja on the Niger, and Port Harcourt, and there station magistrates have been appointed. The number of persons apprehended or summoned before the Provincial Courts in 1921 was 9,623, of whom 6,550 were convicted. Out of 17,077 brought before Magistrates' Courts in 1921, 14,232 were convicted, and 150 were convicted in the Supreme Court.

Religion and Education.—Northern Provinces.—Muhammadanism is widely diffused, the Fulani and Hausas and other ruling tribes being of that religion, but in some parts of the territory paganism is predominant. Protestant and Catholic missions are at work, and have industrial and other schools at several stations. The principles governing the education of natives in the Egyptian Sudan are being closely followed. Secular subjects only are compulsory; the acceptance of religious teaching is optional. At present the principal schools are situated at Kano, a great Muhammadan centre. In 1921 there were 30 Government schools, and 103 unassisted private schools, the total average attendance being about 1,403, and 1,814 respectively. It is estimated that there are also over 1,000 Muhammadan schools, with more than 267,500 pupils. In 1922 a Training College for Muhammadan native teachers was opened at Katsina.

Southern Provinces.—There is a system of primary and secondary schools. There are also a residential school at Bonny, supported by Government grants, and by Chiefs subscriptions, and a Government secondary school and mission grammar school at Lagos, and a high school at Calabar. In 1920 there were 43 Government schools with 6,054 scholars on the roll, and an average attendance of about 4,803; 158 assisted schools, 26,291 on the roll, and 18,393 in average attendance; and 1,443 unassisted schools, with about 84,444 on the roll, and 50,314 in average attendance. Total expenditure from public funds, 69,443*l*.

Four British Protestant Societies and two French Roman Catholic Societies are established, each with several stations, and altogether there are approximately 1,000 places of worship with an average attendance of about 130,000.

Finance.—Revenue, expenditure, and debt of Nigeria as a whole :—

¹ Financial Year changed to April 1—March 31.

The expenditure in 1914 included 628,925*l*. expended on construction of the Eastern Railway from Port Harcourt; in 1918, 30,591*l*. on railway construction, and 134,000*l*. on war costs. The expenditure on railway construction during 1919 was 91,812*l*., in 1920, 233,264*l*., and in 1921 222,250*l*.

The total revenue for the year ending March 31, 1922, was 4,877,000*l*., of which the chief items were :—Customs, 1,680,000*l*.; railway, 1,496,000*l*.; direct taxes, 621,000*l*.; fees of court, 426,000*l*.. The total expenditure was 7,172,000*l*., of which the main items were :—Political, 449,000*l*.; West African Frontier Force, 468,000*l*.; Posts and Telegraphs, 193,000*l*.; Medical, 205,000*l*.; Prisons, 169,000*l*.; Public Debt, 623,000*l*.; Railway, 1,930,000*l*.; Marine, 397,000*l*.; Public Works, 638,000*l*.

There is established in each native State in the Northern Provinces a Treasury, locally known as a 'Beit-el-Mal,' which regulates the expenditure of that portion of the local revenue which is annually assigned to the native administration of each Emirate for its support and maintenance. The establishment of a Beit-el-Mal consolidates the rank and authority of the Emirs and Chiefs in each province. It strengthens the position of the native judiciary and diminishes extortion and corruption. There are also native treasuries in a few of the more advanced States in the Southern provinces.

Production and Industry.—The products are palm-oil (exports 1921, 53,000 tons) and kernels (exports 1921, 153,000 tons); rubber, ground-nuts, shea-butter, ivory, hides, live stock, ostrich feathers, capscums, cotton (export 1921, 114,426 cwt.), cocoa, coffee, kola-nuts and various drugs.

Tobacco is also grown. * There are nurseries for rubber seedlings in the Southern Provinces, and botanical stations at Calabar, Onitsha, Oloke-Meji, and Agege, and at Maiganna, Bida, Zaria, and Ilorin in the Northern Provinces. Mahogany is exported. Sheep and goat skins are tanned and dyed. The natives have worked iron, lead, and tin for centuries. Rich alluvial deposits of tin ore have been discovered. The tin-bearing area so far as it is now known extends over 9,000 square miles of territory in the Northern Provinces, the export of tin in 1921 being 7,181 tons, and there are also deposits of tin in the Southern Provinces. A colliery has been opened by Government at Enugu in the Southern Provinces, which is connected by rail with Port Harcourt on the Bonny River. The coal is of good quality. There are rich reefs of galena carrying a considerable silver return. Pockets of native silver have from time to time been discovered in the vicinity of Orufu and Wukari. There are also deposits of manganese ore, lignite, and monazite (which contains thorium).

Mining rights are vested in the Government, but under an agreement made with the Royal Niger Company at the date of the revocation of the charter, that Company receives half the gross profits derived from royalties on minerals won between the main stream of the Niger on the west and a line running direct from Yola to Zinder on the east, for a period of 99 years with effect from January 1, 1900.

Commerce and Communications, &c.—The principal ports are Lagos, Warri, Burutu, Forcados, Sapele, Brass, Degema, Port Harcourt, Bonny, Opobo, and Calabar. Numerous rivers and creeks form the chief routes for transport, and there are many well-made roads driven through the country. At Lagos and Calabar there are engineering and repairing workshops and slip-ways for the repair of hulls.

At Lagos moles are being constructed, and a deep channel is being made over the Bar which admits ocean steamers entering the harbour. The construction of deep-water docks is being undertaken.

Considerable trade is carried on in the Northern Provinces, and several new trading stations have been recently opened. There is, besides, a large trade by caravans which, coming from Salaga in the west, the Sahara in the north, and Lake Chad and Wadai in the east, make use of Kano as an emporium.

The trade and shipping of Nigeria are shown as follows (bullion and specie are included):—

Year	Trade		Shipping entered and cleared
	Imports	Exports	Total	British only
	£	£	Tons	Tons
1913	7,201,819	7,352,377	1,735,036	1,041,787
1917	7,532,735	8,727,570	939,159	883,448
1918	8,818,398	9,564,858	805,981	777,248
1919	12,015,832	14,726,245	1,072,148	986,781
1920	25,216,507	16,987,018	1,434,222	1,193,294

The chief imports (1921) were: Cotton-piece goods, 2,441,852*l.*; coopers' stores, 198,744*l.* Chief exports (1921): Palm kernels, 2,831,688*l.*; palm oil, 1,655,914*l.*; raw cotton, 369,290*l.*; tin ore, 914,790*l.*; cocoa, 435,860*l.*; ground nuts, 1,111,822*l.*; hides and skins, 279,780*l.*

There were (1921) 1,126 open miles of railways. A weekly boat-train with sleeping accommodation and a restaurant car runs between Lagos and Zaria. A new trunk railway has been constructed from Port Harcourt (established March, 1913, on the Bonny River) to the Enugu coalfields (151 miles). Construction beyond the coalfields was suspended during the war, but has now been re-commenced. Total capital expenditure on Nigerian railway, to end of 1921, 11,678,438*l.*; gross receipts, 1921, 1,435,962*l.*; working expenses, 1,139,584*l.*; net receipts, 585,276*l.*; passengers carried, 2,210,536; goods and minerals transported, 839,609 tons.

There are several thousand miles of telegraph wires, and the system is connected with the French Dahomey system. There are also several hundred miles of telephone wires. A wireless station was opened for traffic at Lagos at the end of 1913.

In 1921 there were 134 Post Offices in Nigeria. The Savings Bank on December 31, 1921, had 5,215 depositors, with 36,156*l.* to their credit.

A special silver coinage for West Africa was introduced in 1913, the denominations being 2*s.*, 1*s.*, 6*d.*, and 3*d.*, of the same size, weight, and fineness as corresponding coins of the United Kingdom. The new currency, with adequate reserves in London, based on gold and securities, is under the control of the West African Currency Board. A nickel coinage (penny and tenth of a penny) is also in use. In 1916 local currency notes were introduced, and in 1920 an alloy coinage of similar denominations to the silver coinage. At present the denominations are 5*l.*, 20*s.*, 10*s.*, 2*s.*, and 1*s.* The amount in circulation in Nigeria at September 30, 1920, was 1,684,315*l.*

The Bank of British West Africa, Ltd., and the Colonial Bank, have branches in Nigeria.

There is a mail service between Liverpool, Bonny, and Calabar via Lagos.

Standard time of one hour fast on Greenwich was introduced in Nigeria on September 1, 1919.

GAMBIA.

Governor.—Captain Cecil H. Armitage, C.M.G., D.S.O. (2,500*l.*, and 750*l.* allowances).

The Gambia was discovered by the early Portuguese navigators, but they made no settlement. During the seventeenth century various companies of merchants obtained trading charters and established a settlement on the river, which, from 1807, was controlled from Sierra Leone; in 1843 it was made an independent Crown Colony; in 1866 it formed part of the West African Settlements, but in December, 1888, it again became a separate Crown Colony. The Colony is administered under a Governor with an Executive and a Legislative Council nominated. There is an unofficial element in the latter. Area of Colony proper, 4 square miles; population 9,000. In the Protectorate (area, 4,130 square miles) the population in 1921 was about 200,000. With the exception of the Island of St. Mary, on which Bathurst, the capital, stands, the whole Colony is administered on the Protectorate system. In June, 1901, an agreement was made with the local chief for the administration of the Fuladu district by the British, both banks of the Gambia being now under direct British control up to the Anglo-French boundary.

There were, in 1921, 8 elementary Government-aided schools, with 1,717 pupils enrolled; and an average attendance of about 861 pupils; Government grant, proportionate to results (1921), 1,731*l.* Of the elementary schools three are Roman Catholic, three Wesleyan, one Anglican, and one Mohammedan. The Wesleyans have also 2 secondary schools (boys' and girls') under native control, with 60 boys and 58 girls, and a technical school with about 13 pupils, which receives a grant of 350*l.* Total Government expenditure on education (1921), 2,819*l.* There is a company of the West African Frontier Force of 130 men. The armed police has a strength of 92 men. In 1919, 38 cases were tried in the supreme court; 296 cases were disposed of in the police court; 609 cases were reported from the Protectorate.

There is a fortnightly mail-service between Liverpool and Bathurst. Internal communication is maintained by steamers or launches. There are four post offices, but postal facilities are afforded to all river towns by means of a fortnightly travelling post office on the Government river mail-steamers. Postal packets and parcels dealt with in 1921, 206,930. Bathurst is connected with St. Vincent (Cape de Verde) and with Sierra Leone by cable, but there are no local railways. Bathurst is in wireless communication with Georgetown from October to June each year. The Gambia savings bank had 304 depositors in 1920. A special West African silver currency was introduced in 1913 (see under Nigeria, p. 265). West African currency notes in circulation December 31, 1920, amounted to 324,017*l.* There are two banks in the Colony, the Bank of British West Africa and the Colonial Bank.

GOLD COAST.

The Gold Coast first became known through the enterprise of Portuguese navigators in the fourteenth century, and English and Dutch traders and companies exploited the district in the seventeenth century, their main object being the slave traffic. The Dutch continued to hold settlements on the coast until 1871, when a convention was made transferring them to the English. The Colony stretches for 334 miles along the Gulf of Guinea, between the French Ivory Coast and Togoland. It is administered by a Governor with an Executive and a Legislative Council, both nominated, with nine unofficial members in latter. The area of the Colony, Ashanti, and Protectorate is about 80,000 square miles; population, census 1911, 1,503,386; Europeans, 1915, 2,206. Population, Census 1921, 2,078,043; Europeans, 1921, 2,185. Chief towns: Accra, 38,000; Secondee, 10,000; Cape Coast Castle, 15,000; Quittah, 10,000; Winnebah, 7,000; Saltpond, 6,500; Koforidua, 5,500. There were (in 1921) 20 Government schools, and 214 assisted schools which are under the control of the Scottish, Wesleyan, Roman Catholic, Church of England (S.P.G.), and African Methodist Episcopal Zionist Missions; the former Bremen Mission Schools are at present temporarily under the control of the Education Department; average attendance of primary and secondary schools, 26,115 (1921); enrolled, 31,089; Government estimated expenditure on education in 1921, 99,264*l*. There are also a large number of non-assisted primary schools supported by the various religious bodies. The strength of the police (1921), 29 European officers and 1,405 of other ranks. This includes 4 European officers and 255 other ranks in Ashanti. The constabulary (Northern Territories) consists of 4 officers and about 424 of other ranks. Summary convictions in 1921, 10,373; convictions in Supreme Courts, 179. Staple products and exports, cocoa, palm oil, kola nuts, palm kernels, india-rubber, and manganese; the export of valuable native woods is increasing. The botanical station at Aburi aids in the plantation of coconut trees, rubber, cocoa, coffee, cotton, pepper, nutmeg, pimento, and croton. Gold is found in quartz, in blanket, and in alluvium. Many of the coast inhabitants are fishermen, and there is considerable traffic in dried fish by rail into the interior.

The imports from the United Kingdom in 1921 amounted to 5,828,000*l.*, and from the U.S.A., 965,000*l.*; and the exports (1921) to the United Kingdom, 3,216,000*l.*; to U.S.A., 1,031,000*l.*; and to France, 442,000*l.*

The shipping entered and cleared in the foreign trade is given as follows:—

	1913 (pre-war)	1918	1919	1920	1921
	tons	tons	tons	tons	tons
Total	2,986,000	983,994	1,670,805	2,358,254	2,509,000
British only	1,782,000	953,164	1,405,715	1,767,492	1,675,000

There is a Government railway, from Secondee on the coast to Coomassie, a total length of 168 miles, with branches Tarquah to Prestea, 19 miles; Inchaban Junction to Inchaban, 5 miles; and from Ancobra Junction to Broomassie, 1 mile; capital expenditure to end of 1920, 4,197,991*l.* A line from Accra to Anyinam (85 miles) has been constructed, and the extension of this line to join Coomassie and Accra is under construction from both ends, and is expected to be finished in 1924. Gross railway receipts 1921, 796,000*l.*, expenditure, 428,000*l.* Road construction is proceeding rapidly; there are over 606 miles of main roads and 2,500 miles of secondary roads. There are in the Colony 2,782 miles of telegraph line and 73 offices, and telephone exchanges at Accra, Secondee and Tarquah; telegrams in 1921, 309,000. There is a wireless telegraph station at Accra. The number of letters, packets, &c., handled in the postal service in 1921 was 5,175,000. In 1921 the savings bank had 6,260 depositors with 51,231*l.* to their credit.

Ashanti was placed under British protection on August 27, 1896, and an English Resident was appointed to Coomassie. Under orders in Council of September 26, 1901, the country was definitely annexed by Great Britain, the Governor of the Gold Coast being appointed Governor of Ashanti, though the laws and ordinances of the Gold Coast do not apply to the annexed territory. The population (census 1921) was 407,000; Europeans (1921), 400. Coomassie, the chief town, has about 20,000 inhabitants. There are Government schools at Coomassie (532 pupils in 1921), Sunyani (80), and Juaso (137), and a number of mission schools, with about 6,000 scholars. Police force (1921), 239; convictions (1921), 5,226, but there is little serious crime. Agriculture is extending, cocoa and rubber plantations are being formed. 44,000 tons of cocoa were exported in 1921. Gold output (1921), 85,019 oz. (361,360*l.*). Average number employed in mining industry, 3,500 in 1921. In the western parts of the Gold Coast Colony and especially of Ashanti are rich forests with excellent timber trees (mahogany, cedar, &c.), trees yielding fruits, rich in oil, rubber-bearing plants, and species yielding gum copal. The country is well watered, and with proper restraints on wasteful native farming and on over-exploitation, would contain inexhaustible supplies of valuable forest products. On the eastern side the forests are sparser, though timber and oil trees are common and game plentiful; the products there are chiefly maize, koko-yams, bananas, ground-nuts, and cocoa, the plantations of which are rapidly extending. Estimated revenue,¹ 1921, 635,000*l.* (Customs duties, 328,000*l.*, railways, 250,000*l.*). Estimated expenditure,¹ 1921, 300,000*l.* (including 163,000*l.* on railways).

The Northern Territories lying to the north of the parallel of 8° N.

lat., bounded on the west and north by the French possessions and on the east by Togoland, were placed under British protection in 1901. They are administered, under the Governor, by a Chief Commissioner with his headquarters at Tamale. The country is divided into two provinces under Commissioners; the Southern Province, with headquarters at Tamale, which is also the headquarters of the Chief Commissioner; and Northern province, with headquarters at Navarro. Population (1921), 527,914; Europeans (1921), 49. Chief towns, Tamale, 4,000; Navano, 15,000. Area, 31,100 square miles. The Mohammedans have substantial mosques; there are Roman Catholic and other missions. Government schools have been established at Tamale, Gambaga, Lorha, and Wa. There is a trade school with accommodation ultimately for 120 boys. Good permanent roads are being made. The crops grown include dagarti bean, cassava, Guinea corn, ground-nut, millet, pigeon pea, cotton, sisal hemp. Livestock, 1921: cattle, 69,500; sheep and goats, 242,400; donkeys, 8,500; horses, 2,550. Gold-bearing quartz and alluvial deposits, and mica, exist.

The Bank of British West Africa, Ltd. and the Colonial Bank operate in the Colony and Ashanti. For currency, see p. 245. For small purchases cowries are still used in the Northern Territories. The natives tend to melt down the silver and nickel coins for ornaments. West African currency notes in circulation at March 31, 1922, amounted to 1,079,000/.

SIERRA LEONE.

The Colony of Sierra Leone originated in the sale and cession, in 1788, by a native King to English settlers, of a piece of land intended as a home for natives of Africa who were waifs in London; and later it was used as a settlement for Africans rescued from slave-ships. It lies between French Guinea on the north and the Republic of Liberia on the east and south-east. Sierra Leone proper consists of a peninsula about 26 miles long, and 12 miles broad, with an area of about 300 square miles, terminating in Cape Sierra Leone. The Colony of Sierra Leone extends from the Scarcies River on the north, to the border of Liberia on the south, 180 miles. It extends inland to a distance varying from 8 to 20 miles and includes the Yellaboi and other islands towards the north, as well as Sherbro and several smaller islands to the south, but the Isles de Los were ceded to France under the Convention of 1904. There are in the Colony Executive and Legislative Councils, nominated.

Area of the Colony 4,000 square miles approximately; population (census 1921), 85,163. Europeans, 1921, numbered 1,161. The birth-rate (1921) was 17 per thousand, and the death-rate 24; infantile mortality is very high, being 30 per cent. per 1,000 births (average 1917-19), and appears to be increasing. Chief town, Freetown, 44,142 inhabitants (1921), headquarters of H.M.'s forces in West Africa. The battalion of the West African Frontier Force has its headquarters at Daru on the Moa River. Freetown, the greatest seaport in West Africa, is a second-class Imperial coaling-station, with an excellent harbour.

In 1921 there were 177 elementary and intermediate schools, with an average attendance of 7,135; grants-in-aid to the assisted schools, 150 in number, 6,495*l*. The assisted schools are all denominational, belonging to 8 missionary societies. There were 10 secondary schools in the Colony, 8 of which are missionary institutions, while the remainder are owned privately. Grants-in-aid to 3 assisted schools, 346*l*. There is a Government Model School (secondary), with average attendance of 288. In the Protectorate are the following Government institutions: the Bo School, for the sons of Chiefs, the Jala Agricultural Training College, and 4 Anglo-vernacular schools. Fourah Bay College is affiliated to the University of Durham. There are 5 Mohammedan schools in the Colony, with an average attendance (1921) of 396. Training classes for teachers are attached to the Bo and Government Model Schools. Police force at end of 1921 had an authorised strength of 325, including 7 European officers. In 1921, 96 persons were convicted in the Supreme Court, and 3,178 in other courts.

A Government railway, a single line of 2ft. 6in. gauge, is open from Freetown to Pendembu, near the Liberian frontier, a length of 227½ miles. From Boia Junction, 64½ miles from Freetown, a branch line runs to Kamabai, a distance of 104 miles; and a further extension to Baga in the Koinadugu District is contemplated. There is also a mountain section from Freetown to the official quarters at Hill Station, a distance of 5½ miles. There are over 1,100 miles of telegraph and telephone lines. In 1921, 1,503,000 postal packets were dealt with in the Colony; money order transactions amounted to 84,541*l*. There are 536 miles of combined telegraph and telephone wires in operation. There are 43 post offices and postal agencies. At the end of 1921 there were 5,389 depositors in the savings bank with 77,169*l.* (inclusive of interest) to their credit. The West African Silver Currency was introduced in 1913 (see under Nigeria, p. 265), and in 1920 West African Alloy Coinage was put into circulation; but British coins are still largely used. Currency notes of the United Kingdom and Nigeria are in circulation. The Bank of British West Africa and the Colonial Bank have their headquarters at Freetown.

The Protectorate.—On March 7, 1913, an Order in Council was issued providing for the administration of the Protectorate of Sierra Leone. The Order applies to the territories, not being portions of the Colony of Sierra Leone, lying between the sixth and tenth degrees of north latitude and the tenth and fourteenth degrees of west longitude, and beginning at the extreme southerly point of the Colony on the Anglo-Liberian boundary, as delimited under the provisions of the Anglo-Liberian Conventions, November 11, 1885, and January 21, 1911. The Protectorate extends inland about 180 miles.

The Governor and Commander-in-Chief for the time being of the Colony of Sierra Leone is also the Governor of the Protectorate. Authority is given to the Legislative Council of Sierra Leone, by ordinance, to exercise and provide for giving effect to the powers and jurisdiction acquired by the Crown.

The Protectorate has an area of 27,000 square miles, and a population, according to the census of 1921, of 1,456,148. The Protectorate was proclaimed August 21, 1896, and the whole territory has been divided into 3 Provinces, each of which is placed under a European commissioner. Circuit courts are held at the chief centres of population; convictions in 1921, 23. There are also district commissioners' courts, chiefs' courts for purely native cases (not serious crime), and combined courts (a chief and a non-native) for small debts and trivial misdemeanours (assaults, abusive language) arising between native and non-native. The chief articles of imports are cotton goods, spirits, hardware and tobacco; the chief exports are palm kernels, kola nuts, and palm oil. There are several mission and Mohammedan schools. A Government school for the sons and nominees of native chiefs was established at Bo in the Railway district of the Protectorate on March 1, 1906. The school, which is under European supervision, opened with 18 pupils; at the end of 1921 there were 140 pupils. An elementary school was opened at the end of 1915; there are also 3 Government Anglo-Vernacular Schools. An Agricultural Training College was established by the Government in 1919, with 30 pupils. There are over 92 non-Government schools, of which 49 are assisted by the Government.

ANGLO-EGYPTIAN SUDAN.

Government.

The rule of Egypt in the Sudan, after having gradually extended during the course of 60 years, was interrupted in 1882 by the revolt of the Mahdi, who, with his successor, the Khalifa, held the country for about sixteen years under a desolating tyranny. In 1896 the Anglo-Egyptian army commenced operations for the recovery of the lost provinces, and on September 2, 1898, the overthrow of the Khalifa was completed. In November, 1899, he was overtaken by the Egyptian forces near Gedid, where he was slain in battle, and his remaining followers taken prisoners.

A convention between the British and Egyptian Governments, signed at Cairo, January 19, 1899, provides for the administration of the territory south of the 22nd parallel of latitude by a Governor-General, appointed by Egypt with the assent of Great Britain, and declares the general principles in accordance with which the administration shall be carried on. The British and Egyptian flags shall be used together; laws shall be made by proclamation; no duties shall be levied on imports from Egypt, and duties on imports from other countries, via the Red Sea, shall not exceed those levied in Egypt; the import and export of slaves is prohibited, and special attention shall be paid to the Brussels Act of 1890 respecting the import and export of arms, ammunition, and spirits.

The Sudan has been divided into fifteen Provinces. The Governors of provinces are British Officers of the Egyptian Army employed under the Sudan Government or British civil officials of the Sudan Political Service.

Administration is carried out through British District Commissioners in charge of one or more districts into which the provinces are subdivided, these units being supervised by District officials who are still in most cases Egyptian officers lent from the Egyptian Army, although an increasing number of natives of the country are being employed in administrative posts.

In 1910 a Governor-General's Council was created to assist the Governor-General in the discharge of his executive and legislative powers. All ordinances, laws and regulations are now made by the Governor-General in Council.

The Enclave of Lado, which was continued in the occupation of H.M. King Leopold II, King of the Belgians, during his reign, by the Agreement signed at Brussels on May 12, 1906, reverted to the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan on his death, and has been included in the Mongalla province.

Area and Population.

Extending southwards from the frontier of Egypt to Uganda and the Belgian Congo (approximately N. lat. 5°), a distance of about 1,650 miles, and stretching from the Red Sea to the confines of Wadai in Central Africa, the subject territory has an area of about 1,014,400 square miles. The population in 1922 was estimated at 5,850,000. The Gambela Enclave which is situated within the boundaries of Abyssinia, is leased by the Sudan Government from the Abyssinian Government as a Trading Post. The Eritrea-Sudan frontier has been completely delimited and demarcated, as also has the greater part of the frontier with Abyssinia (see under Abyssinia). The chief towns are: Khartum, population 30,600, the capital; Omdurman (the old Dervish capital), population 78,000; Khartum North, population 34,000; Halfa, Merowé, El Damer, Atbara, Port Sudan, Suakin, Kassala, El Duceim, Kosti, El Obeid, Nahud, Wad Medani, Siuga, and El Fasher.

Instruction.

The schools under the Central Authority are classified as follows:—There are first the elementary vernacular schools (Kuttabs), 82 in number (December, 1921), situated in all parts of the country, and with a total number of about 8,391 pupils. In these schools instruction is given to boys from 7 to 12 years of age in reading, writing, arithmetic and religion. Next there are the primary schools, of which there are now six—at Khartum, Omdurman, Wad Medani, Atbara, El Obeid, and Suakin. The subjects taught in schools of this class include English, Arabic, Mathematics, and the total number of boys in attendance is 1,142. After completing their primary course, boys can proceed to the upper school at the Gordon College, or they may be employed as clerks or translators in Government Offices. The upper school at Gordon College is attended by 171 pupils, some of whom take a course in engineering and surveying, while the rest are trained to be teachers in primary schools or translators. There is also in the Gordon College buildings a training college attended by 30 students, who undergo a 'five years' course of training, after which they are drafted out as Kadis in district courts. The industrial workshops, of which there are at present two, at Khartum and Omdurman, are attended by 250 boy apprentices. At Khartum smith work, carpentry, fitting, &c., are taught, and at Omdurman stone-cutting, pottery, and brick-work. A primary school has been constructed adjacent to the Gordon College, and some of the boys board in the Gordon College. A start has been made in the education of girls by the opening of a training college in Omdurman and girls' schools at Rufaa, El Obeid, Dongola, Merowe, and Kamlin, which are attended by 388 girls altogether. Affiliated to the Gordon College are the Wellcome Tropical Research Laboratories, where investigations are carried on in connection with diseases and with the economic products of the country.

The geological survey, the antiquities service, and the natural history museum are also attached to the Education Department.

•Justice.

The High Court of Justice for the trial of civil suits comprises the Court of Appeal and Courts of original jurisdiction. Judges of the High Court sitting singly have general original jurisdiction. The Court of Appeal is constituted by three or more Judges of the High Court sitting together, all Judges of the High Court being members of the Court of Appeal.

The general superintendence of the High Court is vested in the Chief Justice. In addition to the Chief Justice there are four Judges of the High Court, three of whom are British barristers, and one promoted from the Sudan Civil Service. The High Court sits at Khartum, but judges from time to time go on circuit.

Subordinate to the High Court of Justice in every province is the Province Court. This comprises a Province Judge, except in Khartum Province, and District Judges of three grades. Appeals from decisions of a District Judge lie to the Province Judge, except in Khartum Province, where such appeals lie to the High Court. Appeals from decisions of a Province Judge lie to the High Court.

In Provinces where there is neither a High Court Judge nor a specially appointed Province Judge the Governor acts as Province Judge, and in any District where there is no specially appointed District Judge, the district commissioners and assistant district commissioners act as District Judges.

The Mohammedan Law Courts administer the Moslem religious law in cases between Mohammedans relating to succession on death, marriage, divorce, and family relations generally, and also Mohammedan charitable endowments.

Criminal justice is administered either by single magistrates, or courts of three magistrates. Judges of the High Court, and District Judges of the first and second grades, governors of provinces, district and assistant district commissioners, are the magistrates. Decisions of courts require confirmation either by the Governor of the province or by the Governor-General, both of whom have extensive powers of revision. Appeal lies from convictions by magistrates other than Governors, where the sentence exceeds two months' imprisonment or 2*l.* fine.

The Sudan penal code is an adaptation of the Indian penal code.

The Legal Secretary fulfils the duties of a Minister of Justice.

Finance.

The revenue and expenditure of the Sudan are as follows (£E1 = £1 0*s.* 6*d.*) :—

276 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—ANGLO-EGYPTIAN SUDAN

The revenue is derived mainly from Land Tax (£E355,000); Animal Tax (£E190,000); Royalties (£E77,000); Customs (£E487,000); Railways and Steamers (£E1,999,000); Posts and Telegraphs (£E149,000). The figures are for 1921.

From 1914 onwards, the figures do not include the revenue and expenditure of Local Provincial Services, which amounted in 1920 to £E207,691 and £E186,118; 1921, £E234,146 and £E207,022 respectively.

Production and Commerce.

The Sudan is the chief source of the world's supply of gum arabic (exports, 1921, 11,023 tons, £E347,000) and ivory (exports 1921, 38 tons, £E32,000). Egyptian cotton has been successfully established on the Nile, as well as in the Tokar district of the Red Sea Province, and increasing quantities of cotton, which compare favourably with corresponding varieties grown in Egypt, are being produced annually. The Gezira irrigation project (by means of the dam on the Blue Nile at Makwar, about 170 miles south of Khartum) will enable 100,000 acres to be put under cotton in a few years' time with unlimited scope for extension. Cotton area, 1921, 84,687 acres; crop 1921-22 estimated at 5,500 tons. Other products include sesame, senna leaves and pods, ground-nuts, dates, hides and skins, and gold. The principal grain crops are dura, a kind of millet used for making bread, and dukhn. Estimated yield 1920, 512,000 tons; and in 1921, 84,700 tons.

The cattle trade in the Sudan shows remarkable growth in recent years, and the number exported is increasing yearly. The reason for this is that while it is easy for the native to raise cattle, the Government on their part, through an efficient and well-organised Veterinary Department, is endeavouring to foster the trade, to eliminate cattle diseases, and to improve the quality of live-stock.

The forests which line the river banks, rich in fibres and tanning material, extend to the frontiers of Abyssinia. On the White Nile the forests contain valuable trees—the ebony tree, the gum acacia, the bamboo, and the rubber creeper. The finest gum forests are in Kordofan, and the best rubber in the Bahr el Ghazal.

Gold is the only mineral at present being successfully exploited in the Sudan, a mine being worked at Gabait.

Internal Communications.

The railway from Wadi Halfa to Khartum, which was constructed for military purposes during the re-conquest, was declared open for general traffic on December 12, 1899. A connection with the Red Sea at Port Sudan was opened in October, 1905, a connection to Karsinka in Dongola Province in 1906, and an extension of the line to Sennar and El Obeid was opened for traffic in February, 1912. The total length of line is, approximately 1,500 miles. The gauge is 5ft. 6in.

All navigable arms of the Nile and its tributaries between Assuan (Egypt) and Rejaf are served by a fleet of Government passenger and cargo steamers which maintain a regular scheduled service over more than 2,500 miles of water.

There is telegraphic communication with Egypt, Erythrea, and Abyssinia, and also wireless communication with Gambela in Western Abyssinia. There are 11 wireless stations with ranges varying from 150 to 400 miles. At the beginning of 1921 there were 4,650 miles of telegraph line open, and 7,381 miles of wire. There are 81 stationary Post and Telegraph Offices and 11 travelling Post Offices.

BRITISH MANDATED TERRITORIES¹ IN AFRICA (TANGANYIKA, SOUTH-WEST AFRICA, CAMEROON, AND TOGOLAND).

TANGANYIKA TERRITORY (LATE GERMAN EAST AFRICA).

Government.—German East Africa was conquered in 1918. As the conquest of the Territory proceeded, Civil Administration was established pari passu and the whole Colony passed under the effective control of the present Administration in the beginning of 1919, when the forces engaged in military operations were finally evacuated. The country has been divided between the British and Belgians, and is to be administered under mandates approved by the League of Nations. In March 1921 the district of Ujiji and portions of the districts of Bukoba and Ujiji, formerly administered by the Belgians, were handed over to British jurisdiction. The official designation of the sphere under British occupation is now "Tanganyika Territory" with headquarters at Dar-es-Salaam. The Sultan of Zanzibar's rights over the narrow strip of coast territory were acquired by Germany in 1890 for a payment of 4,000,000 marks.

Under an Order in Council, dated July 22, 1920, the Territory is administered by a Governor, who is assisted by an Executive Council, all of whose members are nominated. There is no provision for the representation of white settlers, but the Governor is enjoined to respect native laws and custom unless they are opposed to justice or morality. Rights in or in relation to any public lands vest in the Governor, but the Secretary of State for the Colonies may appoint, if he sees fit, another trustee or trustees to exercise such right.

Area and Population.—The Territory extends from the Umba River on the north to the Rovuma River on the south, the coast-line being about 500 miles in length, and includes the adjacent islands. The northern boundary runs approximately north-west to Lake Victoria at the intersection of the first parallel of southern latitude with the eastern shore (Mohuru Point). The boundary on the west starts at a point where the frontier between the Uganda Protectorate and ex-German East Africa cuts the River Mavumba, and follows roughly the eastern boundary of the former districts of Ruanda and Urundi to Lake Tanganyika. The western boundary then follows the middle of Lake Tanganyika to its southern end at Ka-anga (formerly Bismarckburg), whence it goes south-east to the northern end of Lake Nyasa. Rather less than half-way down the lake the boundary turns east and joins the Rovuma River, whose course it follows to the sea. The total area is about 365,090 square miles. Dar-es-Salaam is the capital, population, 15,000.

The native population consists mostly of tribes of mixed Bantu race, and was enumerated for the Territory at 4,107,000 (April 1921), the coloured population (other than native) being 15,000. According to German law every native born after 1905 is free, but a mild serfdom was continued under German rule. Legislation to provide for the abolition of the status of slavery was in the course of preparation in 1922. The total white population is 2,447.

Education.—The work of educational reconstruction began in 1919, and the appointment of a Director was made in 1920. There are now some 50 Government schools in the Territory, attended by about 3,500 children under 71 native teachers. There are no European teachers at present on the staff. There are both Protestant and Roman Catholic missionary societies working in the Territory.

Defence.—Three battalions of the King's African Rifles are stationed in the Territory. The police force consisted (1921) of 1,790 all ranks.

Resources.—The forests of the Tanganyika Territory are most numerous in the north on the shores and islands of Lake Victoria Nyanza, in the north-east on Mount Kilimanjaro and other mountains in the Arusha district, in the east along the Pare and Usambara ranges in the Uluguru and Nguu mountains, and in the coast districts of Rufiji, Kilwa, and Lindi. The total area under forest is approximately 2,700,000 acres, of which about 2,170,000 acres are included in the Government forest reserves. The number of timber producing species is large and includes the following—Conifers: cedar, juniperus procera, and two species of yellow wood. Hard woods: chlorophora excelsa (resembling Burma teak), ocotea usambarensis, pterocarpus bussei, parinarium holstii, pygeum africanum, and afzelia cuanzensis. Ebony is plentiful near the coast, and gum copal and wild rubber exist. Bamboo and baobab forests are found, and may prove suitable for the manufacture of paper-pulp.

There are a number of plantations of coco-palms, coffee (on the higher lands), caoutchouc, sugar, cotton, cardamom, cinchona. Fibre plants, especially sisal, are successfully cultivated.

An animal census was taken during 1921 and showed a total number of 3,147,000 cattle and 3,405,000 sheep and goats.

Minerals known to exist within the Protectorate are: Coal, iron, gold, lead, copper, mica, and salt. Agates, topaz, moonstones, tourmalin, and quartz crystals are found, and garnets in large quantities. A Mining Order came into operation during 1921 and prospecting became very active.

Finance.—The revenue of the Territory for the year ending March 31, 1921, was 1,262,844*l.* (made up of ordinary revenue 946,844*l.*, and grant-in-aid 316,000*l.*), and the expenditure was 1,389,354*l.* The chief items of revenue in 1920–21 were: licences, taxes, etc., 442,262*l.*; customs, 188,200*l.*; railways, 156,377*l.*; fees of court or office, etc., 71,644*l.*; port and marine, 30,666*l.*; post and telegraphs, 27,970*l.* Revenue for 1921–22, 1,120,000*l.*; expenditure, 2,214,000*l.*; estimate for 1922–23, revenue, 1,209,000*l.*; expenditure, 3,009,000*l.*

In 1921, 641 steamers (exclusive of coastal boats but including steamers on Lake Tanganyika) of 1,040,000 tons, and 7,648 dhows of 144,000 tons, entered the various ports from places beyond the Territory.

The chief seaports are Dar-es-Salaam, Tanga, Bagamoyo, Pangani, Kilwa, Lindi, and Mikindani, but few of these are accessible to ocean-going vessels, though gradual improvements are being introduced.

Communications.—Motor transport is at present possible on only a few good roads, but the expansion of trade will, in course of time, necessitate the construction of roads suitable for motor traffic and the establishment of motor transport services to act as feeders to the railways.

There are two railway lines in the Protectorate—the Tanga railway from Tanga to N-w Moshi (220 miles), commenced in 1905 and completed in February, 1912, and the Central Railway (780 miles) from Dar-es-Salaam to Kigoma, completed in February, 1914. The tramline between Nindi and Manasi was re-opened for a length of 44 miles. The ports of Lake Victoria are served by the steamers of the Uganda Marine; those on Lake Nyasa by the Nyasa Government steamers; and a Belgian service, together with a small steamer belonging to the Tanganyika Territory Government, maintains communications on Lake Tanganyika. Dar-es-Salaam is in telegraphic communication with the coast towns, Zanzibar, Mombasa, and many inland centres.

There are 43 post offices and telegraph stations.

The German rupee (10 = 1L.) was current until the East African shilling was adopted. Four banks, with numerous branches, are operating.

SOUTH-WEST AFRICA.

Situation and Physical Features.—This country is bounded on the north by Portuguese West Africa, on the west by the Atlantic Ocean, on the south and southern portion of the eastern boundary by the Cape Province of the Union, and on the remainder of the eastern boundary by the Bechuanaland Protectorate. Attached to it is the so-called Caprivi Zipfel, a narrow strip extending from the northern corner of the eastern boundary on East Long. 21° to the Zambesi River, which it meets at a point close to the 25th degree. This strip is bounded on the north by Portuguese West Africa and Northern Rhodesia, and on the south by the Bechuanaland Protectorate.

On the western coast, a strip varying from 60 to 100 miles in width and extending from the Orange River in the south to the Ugab River, which borders on what is known as the Kaokoveld, consists of barren desert, and this is also the case in that portion of the Great Kalahari Depression which is included in the country on its eastern boundary.

The Kunene River and the Okavango, which form portions of the northern border of the country, and the Orange River in the south, are the only permanently running streams. But there is a system of great sandy dry river beds throughout the country, in which water can generally be obtained by sinking shallow wells; these are the Keisib, Swakop, Omaruru and Ugab on the west, the Fish River in the south, the Nosob and the Elephant Rivers in the south-east, and a series of what are known as Omuramba in the north-west, with numerous smaller stream beds. In the Grootfontein area, which geologists describe as a "karst" region, there are large supplies of underground water, but except for a few springs, mostly hot, there is no surface water throughout the country. Much, however, has been done to improve matters by boring, which has almost always been successful if the site for the bore-hole is well chosen. Water conservation by means of dam-making is being encouraged by the Administration, several extensive schemes have been prepared and are receiving sympathetic consideration.

Government and Administration.—The country was annexed by Germany in 1884, but early in the late war it was invaded by the Military Forces of the Union of South Africa, and on July 9, 1915, was surrendered to them at Khorab. It is now administered by the Union under a Mandate from the League of Nations, dated December 17, 1920. The laws of the Union, subject to local modifications, if required, may be applied to the country and are gradually being introduced.

The Administration is conducted from Windhoek, and the country is divided into 17 Districts controlled by Magistrates.* In addition there is a Native Commissioner in Ovamboland in the extreme north, who keeps in touch with the Ovambos living there and recruits natives for the railway system and for the working of the diamond fields at Luderitz. There is also a sub-Native Commissioner stationed at Kuring Kuru on the Okavango River with similar duties.

Windhoek, the capital, is situated in the centre of the territory, and with its surrounding district contains a population of 4,196 Europeans and 13,160 Natives.

The administration has been vested by the Union Parliament in the Governor-General of the Union, who has delegated his powers to an Administrator with full authority to legislate. In this respect he now has the assistance of an Advisory Council consisting of nine members, and at present composed of four Germans, four South Africans, and one official, the latter representing the interests of the Natives.

Administrator.—Gijbert Reitz Hofmeyr, C.M.G.

The chief executive officer for the country is the Secretary for South-West Africa, Major J. F. Herbst, C.B.E.

Area and Population.—The total area of the country is about 322,400 square miles.

The European population according to the figures of the 1921 Census amounts to 19,432. The Native population is estimated at about 208,000. As large areas of the country, particularly along the coast and in the north, are uncivilised, it has been impossible to procure precise figures. In particular it has been difficult to estimate the numbers of the Bushmen, who still exist in considerable numbers in the north-eastern portion of the country.

Of the 19,432 European inhabitants 7,855 are Germans. The remainder are almost all South Africans, and farmers by profession.

The principal native races of South-West Africa are the Ovambos, Hereros, Bergdamaras or Klipkaffers, Hottentots and Bushmen.

The Ovambos are a Bantu race and follow agriculture as a pursuit. They still possess to its full extent tribal organisation and are fairly well armed, but have given no trouble since the British occupation of the country. The Germans in pre-war times exercised no authority whatever over them and never entered their territory.

The Hereros are a pastoral people who formerly owned enormous herds of cattle. The Germans in dealing with these people pursued a policy of oppression, with the result that in 1904 they rebelled and 75 per cent. of them were destroyed. Their tribal organisation has completely disappeared and they are now scattered throughout the country on farms and in the different towns, where they form the ordinary source of labour. Owing to the fact that formerly tribal organisation was based on the ownership of cattle and that they have consequently for generations been familiar with cattle and their ways, the Herero makes an excellent herd. It is not an unusual thing for a member of this race to have charge of 3,000 head and to know each one individually. Since the British occupation of the country the Hereros have considerably increased in numbers and in animal wealth.

The Bergdamaras are, it is believed, also of Bantu origin, though some authorities hold that they belong rather to the Hottentot race whose language they now speak. They are an inferior tribe and were alternatively the slaves of the Hereros and the Hottentots in pre-European days, as the former or the latter prevailed in the constant struggles that were going on between them.

The Hottentots, so called, consist of two distinct sections: one, whose remnants are found in the central portions of the country, being of pure native extraction, the source of which is but little understood; while the other is composed of tribes which have resulted from an admixture of European blood in the Cape with the Hottentot races residing there a couple of centuries ago, which, after conflict with their European neighbours, sought refuge across the Orange River in this country.

The Bushmen are the oldest inhabitants of South-West Africa and are to be found in considerable numbers in its eastern portion from Lat. 26° to the Northern boundary. There are also remnants of a bushmen tribe in the desert wastes just north of the Orange River, and in the Kaokoveld, in the north-north-western portion of the country. These may be of the "Strand-looper" type.

Situated in the centre of the country just south of the Windhoek district is the Bastard Gebiet occupied by a semi-independent race known as the Bastards, whose origin is much the same as the second class of Hottentots mentioned above, with the difference that the admixture of European blood is much greater, and that their ordinary language is Cape Dutch. These people control their own affairs to a very large extent and are governed by a Raad (Council) which is partly hereditary and partly elected. The Administration is represented by a Magistrate who assists them with advice and takes cognisance of serious crimes. They number about 5,000.

Education.—Thirty British schools have been established, with 1,250 pupils.

Finance.—For the financial year 1921-22 the revenue amounted to 806,800*l.* and the expenditure to 796,094*l.* The corresponding figures for the preceding year were 1,601,216*l.* and 929,386*l.* The Estimates for the year 1922-23 are: revenue 571,300*l.*, expenditure 750,783*l.*...

The principal source of revenue is the tax on diamonds, which is 66 per cent. of the gross proceeds less 70 per cent. of the working costs. Owing to the extensive depression in the diamond market, revenue has suffered considerably. Work is, however, now (1922) being resumed, and as soon as sufficient labour is available it is expected that the diamond output will be very appreciably increased;

The revenue from Customs is a round sum of £75,000 paid over by the Union Customs Department, which has entire control of Customs matters in South-West Africa. This figure is an estimate of the sum which would accrue to the country if it levied its own customs dues at Union rates.

Production and Industry.—South-West Africa is essentially a stock-raising country, the absence of water rendering agriculture, except on a very small scale almost impossible, and in point of fact, except as regards maize, the requirements of the country in this direction cannot be met from local sources. So far as stock is concerned the country, with the exception of the desert strips, is excellent, and even portions of the latter are valuable at certain times of the year. Generally speaking the southern half of the Territory is suited for the raising of small stock, while the central and northern portions are better fitted for cattle. As already mentioned the Hereros in earlier days possessed immense herds of cattle, and the Ovambos in the north also own numbers. It is estimated that in 1921 there were about 400,000 head of cattle and $2\frac{1}{2}$ to 3 million head of small stock within the borders of South-West Africa.

A Land Board has been established and Government ground is being rapidly allotted to suitable applicants on five-year leases with the option of purchase on very easy terms as to instalments. Personal occupation is essential. As in almost all cases boring is necessary in order to provide a sufficient supply of water, the proceedings of this Board are naturally slow.

A strong Irrigation Department has been established which now has in its possession some 56 drills. It is found that each drill can, on the average, provide four satisfactory bore-holes in 12 months, and it will be seen, therefore, that only a few farms can be given out each year. They vary in size from 7,500 acres in the north, to 45,000 in the south. Applications, which come mainly from the Union, are far in excess of the existing provision.

The staple industry is diamonds, which are found along the coast from the Orange River to Conception Bay. The fields are alluvial and the deposits shallow. The stones are small but of a very good quality. In 1920 the yield was 606,424 carats, valued at £3,000,000. Other minerals worked are copper, rich deposits of which exist at Tsumeb and in the neighbourhood, sheelite, wolfram, vanadium, marble and tin. Gold and silver are known to exist but in too small quantities to work remuneratively.

Commerce.—Imports and exports for 4 years :—

Year.	Imports.	Exports.	Year.	Imports.	Exports.
	£	£		£	£
1913	2,171,280	3,446,220	1920	2,180,183	5,401,835
1919	1,135,116	1,679,534	1921	1,211,364	1,587,305

The principal exports are diamonds, the exports in 1920 being 606,422 carats, valued at 4,265,294*l.*, and in 1921, 167,782 carats, valued at 810,739*l.* In the latter year 40,784 tons of copper were exported, valued at 403,798*l.*

Luderitz and Swakopmund were the two principal harbours. At the outbreak of war Union troops were landed at Walvis Bay, and in a very short time a railway was built from that port to join up with the existing line from Swakopmund to the interior, and nowadays the bulk of the imports into the country are landed at Walvis Bay, which, although strictly part of the Union, is administered, so far as possible, as if it formed a portion of South-West Africa.

The Government proposes to develop Walvis Bay as the main harbour for the service of the country. Its situation is central and its natural advantages are so great that the proposition is bound to be successful. The Bay itself is about 7 miles wide and of the same length, and is completely sheltered by Pelican Point from the prevailing south-west winds, and, in fact, from every other direction except north-north-west, from which gales are almost unknown. The Bay has been surveyed with a view to arriving at a decision as to where is the most suitable spot for the construction of the harbour works, and it is hoped to commence operations almost immediately (1922).

Swakopmund, which possesses a climate equal to that of any watering-place in South Africa, although it lies within the tropics, is now developing as a seaside resort and is very popular with the European inhabitants of the country during the summer months. It is altogether useless as a port, owing to the shoaling influence of the Benguella current.

Communications.—For the purposes of the campaign in this country the railway line, which already existed in the Union between De Aar Junction and Prieska, was extended through Upington across the Orange River and joined up with the existing line from Kalkfontein south to Windhoek. The latter line was of the same gauge as the Cape Railways, but from Windhoek through Karibib and Usakos to Swakopmund on the coast and Grootfontein and Tsumeb in the north-west the pre-war railway was of 2ft. gauge. For military purposes the Union Forces converted the section between Swakopmund and Windhoek to the Cape gauge and connected it with Walvis Bay, but the railway in the north remains of 2ft. gauge.

The whole of the railway system, from De Aar in the Union to the border and within the border, is controlled by the S.A. Railways and Harbours Department through the Director of Railways, who has his seat in Windhoek.

The total length of the line inside South-West Africa is 967 miles of 3ft. 6in. gauge, and 93 miles of 2ft. gauge. There are also 98 miles of private line, most of which have been constructed for the service of the diamond fields south of Luderitz. A new railway from Windhoek to Gobabis, 132 miles, is (1922) in course of construction (3ft. 6in. gauge).

There are two trunk telegraph lines to the Union. In addition there is the great wireless station at Windhoek which the Germans built for military purposes, and which was able occasionally to communicate direct with Berlin. This has been maintained in good order since the occupation, but the main instruments cannot be worked owing to the removal by the Germans of a few essential parts. It is now under consideration to reconstitute this station as a link in the proposed chain of Imperial wireless stations. Windhoek is in telephonic communication with places as far distant as Outjo in the north, Gobabis in the east, Swakopmund in the west, and Keetmanshoop in the south.

CAMEROON.

Cameroon, lying between British Nigeria and the French Congo, extends from the coast north-eastwards to the southern shore of Lake Chad. In 1911 a considerable tract of land was transferred to Cameroon from French Congo, the new acquisition being known as New Cameroon. The Colony was captured from the Germans by French and British troops in February, 1916, and is now divided between the British and French. Total area 191,130 square miles; population, 2,540,000. The British portion of the country is a strip, area about 31,000 square miles, stretching from the sea along the Nigerian frontier to Lake Chad and is attached to Nigeria; Bantu negroes near the coast, Sudan negroes inland. The seat of Government was at Buëa. Victoria and Rio del Rey are important trading stations. There are Government schools at Victoria.

The soil in the coast region is fertile, and numerous valuable African vegetable productions grow in profusion. In Victoria, experiments are being made towards the cultivation of cloves, vanilla, ginger, pepper, and many other products; an active trade in ivory and palm-oil. The colony is rich in hardwood; ebony is abundant. Gold and iron have been found. Natives in the Bamenda division smelt iron. Salt is found in the Kera country, Ossidinge Division, and at Bañessing in the Bamenda division.

There is a poll tax which is estimated to yield 16,000*l.* during the year 1922-23. Revenue in 1921, 52,000*l.*; expenditure, 102,000*l.*

Imports into the British Cameroon in 1921, 49,000*l.*; exports, 34,000*l.* Chief exports: palm kernels, rubber, palm oil, ivory, cocoa, kola nuts. Chief imports: textiles, spirits, timber, salt, iron wares, flour, kerosene, motor spirit, coopers' stores, hardware, and colonial produce. In 1921 there entered Victoria 67 vessels having a total tonnage of 100,000.

The mark was in use until July 1, 1922, on which date British currency, similar to that in use in Nigeria, was substituted for it.

TOGOLAND.

Togoland, between the Gold Coast Colony on the west and French Dahomey on the east, was surrendered unconditionally by the Germans to British and French forces in August, 1914. Area 33,700 square miles; estimated coloured population (1913) 1,032,000; estimated European population, 1919, 125. Coast line about 31 miles, but inland the territory, between the rivers Volta and Monu, widens to four or five times that breadth. On September 30th, 1920, the country was divided between France and Britain in accordance with the Franco-British declaration of July 10th, 1919. The boundary between the two spheres extends from the north-west corner in a general direction south-east and south, terminating not far from the port of Lome, but so that no part of the British sphere reaches the coast. (See map in the YEAR BOOK for 1920.) From January 1st, 1921, the area allotted to Great Britain, approximately 12,600 square miles, was attached for administrative purposes, pending the issue of a definite mandate, to the adjacent provinces of the Gold Coast Colony, Ashanti, and the Northern Territories, with a population, according to 1921 census, of 188,265 (including 20 non-Africans). (For further information see under French Togoland.)

In the British mandated area there is one Government school with 200 pupils, and Missionary Societies have 35 schools with 3,900 pupils.

Revenue, 1918 (English and French zones), 127,444*l.*; expenditure 118,953*l.*

Imports and exports for six years (the figures for 1920 are not available, owing to the handing over of Lome and Palime to the French Government):—

BERMUDAS.

Governor.—Lieut. General Sir Joseph John Asser, K.C.M.G., K.C.V.O., C.B. (3,300*l.*), assisted by an Executive Council of 6 members (four official) appointed by the Crown, a Legislative Council of 9 members (three official), also appointed by the Crown, and an elected House of Assembly of 36 members; 1,436 electors.

A Colony, with representative government, consisting of a group of 360 small islands (about 20 inhabited), 580 miles east of North Carolina, and 677 miles from New York, noted for its climate and scenery; favourite winter resort for Americans, who number some 22,000 annually.

The Spaniards visited the islands in 1515, but they had previously been discovered (the exact date is unknown) by Juan de Bermudez, after whom they were named. No settlement was made, and they were uninhabited until a party of colonists under Sir George Somers was wrecked there in 1609. A company was formed for the "Plantation of the Somers Islands," as they were called at first, and in 1684 the Crown took over the Government.

Area, 19.3 square miles (12,360 acres, 4,000 under cultivation). Civil population at census 1921, 20,127 (7,006 white); 12,750 belong to Church of England (census 1911). In 1921 the birth-rate was 33 and the death-rate 18.4 per 1,000; illegitimate births formed 19.4 per cent. of the total births; there were 160 marriages. In 1921 there was an excess of immigration over emigration of 105. Chief town, Hamilton; population, 2,578. Bermuda is an important naval base on the North America and West Indies Station, with dockyard, victualling establishment, &c. Police force, 1920, 44.

Education: There are no Government schools in Bermuda, but education is compulsory up to the age of 13, and Government assistance is given by the payment of grants, and, where necessary, school fees. The aided schools must reach a certain standard of efficiency, and submit to Government inspection and control. In 1921, 30 aided primary schools, with 2,731 pupils, received Government grants, 4285*l.* annually. There are 3 garrison schools and 2 naval schools; about 17 other primary schools, and 4 secondary schools receiving no Government grant. Cambridge local examinations are held in Bermuda. A Government scholarship (200*l.* for 2 years) is provided annually to enable youths educated in Bermuda to go abroad to prepare themselves for a Rhodes scholarship.

Food supplies are mostly imported from the United States and Canada, and nearly all the export produce of Bermuda goes to the United States. The principal imports in 1921 were: provisions, 266,000*l.*; beef, 48,000*l.*; bran, 22,400*l.*; clothing, 66,400*l.*; cotton goods, 66,000*l.*; electrical goods, 14,000*l.*; flour, 39,000*l.*; hardware, 44,000*l.*; oats, 33,000*l.*; woollen goods, 17,000*l.*; fuel oil, 46,000*l.*; ale, 31,000*l.*; spirits, 48,000*l.*; coal, 48,000*l.* The principal exports in 1921 were: potatoes, 92,000*l.*; other vegetables, 33,000*l.*; whisky, 55,000*l.*

The registered shipping consisted (1920) of 7 steam vessels of 2,189 tons net, and 16 sailing vessels of 3,336 tons net; total net tonnage, 5,525. In 1921 the total tonnage of vessels entered and cleared was 2,387,797 tons, of which 1,210,619 were British.

There are 220 miles of telephone wire under the control of the military, and 15 of telegraph cable. There is also a private telephone company, which has about 1,100 subscribers and upwards of 1,600 miles of wire. A telegraph cable connects the islands with Halifax, Nova Scotia, and another connects with Turks Island and Jamaica. There were (1921) 19 post offices in the colony; the number of letters and post cards dealt with in the year 1921 was 2,311,000; newspapers, book packets and circulars, 591,000; parcels, 43,840. The post office revenue was 24,262*l.*, and expenditure, 9,164*l.* Savings bank deposits on December 31, 1921, were 54,766*l.*, to the credit of 2,745 depositors.

There are two banks in the Island, the Bank of Bermuda, Ltd., and the Bank of N. T. Butterfield and Son, Ltd., both local. The Colonial Government deals with both. Bills of exchange issued by the Treasury Chest Office in the Colony form the basis of exchange with the outside world.

The currency, weights, and measures are British, but silver coin is legal tender to any amount. The British 1*l.* and 10*s.* notes are legal tender. The Bermuda Government is also authorised to issue 1*l.* notes up to an amount not exceeding 40,000*l.* A considerable quantity of American paper is also in circulation, being largely used for remittances to the United States.

CANADA.

(DOMINION OF CANADA.)

Constitution and Government.

The territories which now constitute the Dominion of Canada came under British power at various times, some by settlement and others by conquest or cession. Nova Scotia was occupied in 1628 by settlement at Port Royal; the Hudson's Bay Company's Charter, conferring rights over all the territory draining into Hudson Bay, was granted in 1670; Canada was conquered in 1759 and, along with New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, was formally ceded to Great Britain by France in 1763; Vancouver Island was acknowledged to be British by the Oregon Boundary Treaty of 1846, and British Columbia was established as a separate colony in 1858. As originally constituted the Dominion was composed of the provinces of Canada—Upper and Lower Canada, now Ontario and Quebec—Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick. They were united under the provisions of an Act of the Imperial Parliament passed in March, 1867, known as 'The British North America Act, 1867,' which came into operation on July 1, 1867, by royal proclamation. The Act provides that the Constitution of the Dominion shall be 'similar in principle to that of the United Kingdom'; that the executive authority shall be vested in the Sovereign of Great Britain and Ireland, and carried on in his name by a Governor-General and Privy Council; and that the legislative power shall be exercised by a Parliament of two Houses, called the 'Senate' and the 'House of Commons.' The powers of the Federal Parliament include all subjects not assigned exclusively to the provincial legislatures. Provision was made in the Act for the admission of British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, the North-West Territories, and Newfoundland into the Dominion; Newfoundland alone has not availed itself of such provision. In 1869, the extensive region known as Rupert's Land or the North-West Territories was added to the Dominion by purchase from the Hudson's Bay Company; the province of Manitoba was erected from this territory, and admitted into the confederation on July 15, 1870. On July 20, 1871, the province of British Columbia was admitted, and by an Imperial Order in Council Prince Edward Island was admitted into the confederation July 1, 1873. The provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan were formed from the provisional districts of Alberta, Athabaska, Assiniboia, and Saskatchewan, and were admitted to the Union as provinces on September 1, 1905.

Canadian ministers signed the Peace Treaties with Germany and Austria in 1919 on behalf of Canada, thus making a new status for the Dominion.

The members of the Senate are nominated for life, by summons of the Governor-General under the Great Seal of Canada. The numerical representation of the Senate by provinces down to 1917 was as follows: Prince Edward Island, 4; Nova Scotia, 10; New Brunswick, 10; Quebec, 24; Ontario, 24; Manitoba, 4; Saskatchewan, 4; Alberta, 4; British Columbia, 3; Total, 87. By the Amendment of the British North America Act, 1867 (April, 1915), which came into effect in 1917, the Senate consists of 96 senators—namely, 24 from the province of Ontario, 24 from Quebec, 10 from Nova Scotia, 10 from New Brunswick, 4 from Prince Edward Island, 6 from Manitoba, 6 from British Columbia, 6 from Alberta, and 6 from Saskatchewan. The total number may not exceed 104. Each senator must be 30 years of age, a born or naturalised subject, and must reside in, and be possessed of property, real or personal, of the value of 4,000 dollars, within the province for which he is appointed. The House of Commons is elected by the people, for five years, unless sooner dissolved, at the rate at present of one representative for every 36,326 persons, the province of Quebec always having 65 members, and the other provinces proportionally, according to their populations at each decennial census. The House of Commons will in future consist of 244 members—81 for Ontario, 65 for Quebec, 14 for Nova Scotia, 11 for New Brunswick, 17 for Manitoba, 14 for British Columbia, 4 for Prince Edward Island, 21 for Saskatchewan, 16 for Alberta, and 1 for the Yukon Territory. The members are elected by constituencies. Voting is by ballot. Women have the vote and are eligible for election to the Federal Parliament.

A General Election took place December 6, 1921. Result: Liberals, 117; Progressives, 66; Conservatives, 50; Labour, 2.

The Speaker in the House of Commons has a salary of 6,000 dollars per annum, and each member an allowance of 4,000 dollars for the session with a deduction of 25 dollars per day for every day beyond fifteen on which the member does not attend a sitting of the House. The Leader of the Opposition receives 10,000 dollars in addition to his ordinary sessional allowance.

The Speaker and members of the Senate have the same allowances as members of the House of Commons, with no extra allowances.

Governor-General.—General the Right Hon. Lord Byng of Vimy, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., M.V.O. Appointed August 2, 1921. Salary, 50,000 dollars per annum.

He is assisted in his functions, under the provisions of the Act of 1867, by a Council composed of heads of departments.

King's Privy Council (as at October 2, 1922).—

Prime Minister, Secretary of State for External Affairs, President of the Privy Council.—Right Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, C.M.G.

Minister of Finance—Hon. William Stevens Fielding.

Minister of Militia and Defence and Minister of Naval Service.—Hon. George P. Graham.

Postmaster-General.—Hon. Charles Murphy, K.C.

Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment and Minister in charge of and to administer the Department of Health.—Hon. Henri S. Béland.

Minister of Justice and Attorney-General.—Hon. Sir Lomer Gouin.

Minister of Customs and Excise.—Hon. Jacques Bureau.

Minister of Marine and Fisheries.—Hon. Ernest Lapointe, K.C.

Solicitor-General.—Hon. Daniel D. McKenzie.

Minister of Trade and Commerce.—Hon. James A. Robb.

Secretary of State.—Hon. Arthur B. Copp.

Minister of Railways and Canals.—

Minister of Interior, Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs, Minister of Mines.—Hon. Charles Stewart.

Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. William R. Motherwell.

Minister of Labour.—Hon. James Murdoch.

Minister of Public Works.—Hon. James H. King.

Ministers without Portfolios.—Hon. Raoul Dandurand; Hon. Thomas A. Low; Hon. John E. Sinclair.

Each minister has a salary of 10,000 dollars a year, and the Prime Minister has 15,000 dollars, in addition to 4,000 dollars sessional allowance.*

There is a Department of External Affairs, which has charge of all Imperial and inter-Dominion Correspondence passing between Ottawa and Downing Street, and between Ottawa and the sister Dominions and Colonies. It is also the medium of communication between the Dominion Government and the foreign Consuls in Canada. An arrangement has been concluded between the British and Canadian Governments to provide more complete representation at Washington of Canadian interests than has hitherto existed. Accordingly, it has been agreed that his Majesty, on the advice of his Canadian Ministers, shall appoint a Minister Plenipotentiary, who will have charge of Canadian affairs, and will be at all times the ordinary channel of communication with the United States Government in matters of purely Canadian concern, acting upon instructions from and reporting direct to the Canadian Government. In the absence of the Ambassador, the Canadian Minister will take charge of the whole Embassy, and of the representation of Imperial as well as Canadian interests. No appointment has yet (December, 1922) been made under this arrangement.

High Commissioner for the Dominion of Canada in Great Britain.—
P. C. Larkin. (Appointed February 10, 1922.) } 19, Victoria Street,
Permanent Secretary.—Lucien J. Picaud. } London, S.W. 1.

PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT.

The nine provinces have each a separate parliament and administration, with a Lieutenant-Governor appointed by the Governor-General at the head of the executive. They have full powers to regulate their own local affairs and dispose of their revenues, provided only they do not interfere with the action and policy of the central administration. Among the subjects assigned exclusively to the provincial legislature are: the amendment of the provincial constitution, except as regards the office of the Lieutenant-Governor; direct taxation for revenue purposes; borrowing; management and sale of crown lands; provincial hospitals, reformatories, &c.; shop, saloon, tavern, auctioneer, and other licences for local or provincial purposes; local works and undertakings, except lines of ships, railways, canals, telegraphs, &c., extending beyond the province or connecting with other provinces, and also except such works as the Federal Parliament declare are for the general good; marriages; administration of justice within the province; education. Quebec and Nova Scotia have each two Chambers (a Legislative Council and a Legislative Assembly) and a responsible Ministry. In New Brunswick, Ontario, Manitoba, British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, Alberta and Saskatchewan there is only one Chamber (the Legislative Assembly) and a responsible Ministry. The members of the Legislative Council of Nova Scotia number 18, and Quebec 24. The membership of the Legislative Assemblies is—Prince Edward Island 30, Nova Scotia 43, New Brunswick 48, Quebec 81, Ontario 111, Manitoba 55, British Columbia 47, Alberta 58, and Saskatchewan 63. The North-West Territories, comprising all the territories formerly known as Rupert's Land, and the North-Western Territory except the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the district of Keewatin, and the Yukon Territory, are governed by a Commissioner and a Council of five, appointed by the Governor in Council at Ottawa. The territory of Yukon is governed by a Gold Commissioner and a Council of three members elected by the people.

1 The water areas here assigned to Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and British Columbia are exclusive of the territorial seas, that to Quebec is exclusive of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Ontario is inclusive of the Canadian portions of the great lakes of the St. Lawrence.

2 By Federal Act passed during the session of 1912, the boundaries of the provinces of Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba were extended at the expense of the North-west Territories. Ontario was enlarged by 146,400 square miles, Quebec by 351,780, and Manitoba by 178,100.

3 Including about 106,000 Indians and 3,200 Eskimos.

In 1911 the figures for the population according to place of birth were :—

Canada	5,619,682	Italy	34,739
United Kingdom	784,526	Norway	20,968
Other parts of the Empire	29,188	Sweden	28,226

The total 'urban' population of Canada in 1921 is given as 4,352,380, against 3,272,947 in 1911.

While the registration of births, marriages and deaths is under provincial control, the statistics for eight of the nine provinces are now by arrangement compiled on a uniform system by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Quebec compiles its own vital statistics. The following table gives the result for 1921. The rates given are based upon estimated populations.

Instruction.

The Provincial Governments have control of education in elementary schools, secondary schools, normal schools and universities; the systems are all based on the principle of free education, the funds being supplied in nearly all the provinces by Government grants and local taxation. Education is more or less compulsory, but the law is not very strictly enforced. In Ontario, Quebec, Alberta, and Saskatchewan there are separate schools for Roman Catholics; in the other provinces the schools are unsectarian.

Each province has one or more universities (23 in all, with 3,322 professors and teachers, and 35,369 students, in 1920-21), and several colleges. The provincial universities are supported by the Government, and include those of New Brunswick, Toronto, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Manitoba and British Columbia. Those on private foundation comprise Dalhousie at Halifax, McGill at Montreal, Queen's (formerly denominational and now State-aided) at Kingston, and Western, of London, Ontario. The denominational universities include King's, Acadia, and St. Francois Xavier, all of Nova Scotia; Mount Allison, Sackville, New Brunswick; Laval and Bishop's College, Lennoxville, Quebec; and McMaster and Ottawa, in Ontario. There are in all 67 colleges; registration, 20,486 during the academic year 1920-21.

In 1921 there were in Canada 1,500¹ periodical publications, classified as follows : Dailies, 121 ; tri-weeklies, 7 ; weeklies, 981 ; semi-weeklies, 39 ; monthlies, 280 ; semi-monthlies, 39 ; and quarterlies, 20.

Justice and Crime.

There is a Supreme Court in Ottawa, having appellate, civil and criminal jurisdiction in and throughout Canada. There is an exchequer court, which is also a colonial court of admiralty, with powers as provided in the Imperial 'Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890.' There is a Superior Court in each province ; county courts, with limited jurisdiction, in most of the provinces ; all the judges in these courts being appointed by the Governor-General. Police magistrates and justices of the peace are appointed by the Provincial Governments.

In 1921, 24,943 persons were charged with indictable offences ; of these 19,396 were convicted. Also 157,704 were summarily convicted.

The North-West Mounted Police and the Dominion Police have been amalgamated, and are known as the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Finance.

Financial accounts are under three headings—first, 'Consolidated Fund,' comprising the general sources of revenue and branches of expenditure ; secondly, 'Loans' in revenue, and 'Redemption' with 'Premiums and Discounts' in expenditure ; and thirdly, 'Open accounts.' The headings 'Loans' and 'Redemption' include the deposits in and withdrawals from the Post Office and Government Savings Banks, the amount on deposit forming part of the floating or unfunded debt of the country. Under the head of 'Open Accounts' are included investiments, trust funds, Province accounts, and expenditure on capital account on public works.

The following relates to the Consolidated Fund (dollars converted at rate of 4·86 = £) :—

Defence.

'The National Defence Act, 1922,' provides for a Department of National Defence presided over by a Minister who is charged with all matters relating to defence, including the Militia, Military, Naval and Air Services of Canada.

The powers previously vested in any Minister or Deputy Minister by the Naval Service Act, the Militia Act, the Military Pensions Act and the Royal Military College Act, are now vested in the Minister and Deputy Minister of National Defence respectively, with the proviso that an officer may be appointed to exercise the duties vested in the Deputy Minister of the Naval service under the Naval Service Act of 1910.

A Defence Council is constituted to advise the Minister on all matters of defence including or relating to the Militia, Naval, Royal Canadian Mounted Police or Air Services.

Militia.—Canada is organized in 11 military districts, each under a General Officer. Each district is organized as a division, with mounted and technical troops attached. The organization provides for 25 infantry and 7 mounted brigades with artillery and engineers in proportion.

The Canadian active militia is divided into a permanent force and a non-permanent. The permanent force consists of 16 units of all arms of the service, with an authorized establishment of 494 officers and 6457 men, and a present strength (October 1922) of 381 officers and 3744 men. The non-permanent active militia is made up of cavalry, artillery, machine gun, signalling, infantry and other corps, whose service is voluntary and for 3 years, but who are liable to be called upon by the government should occasion arise. The non-permanent force at present is estimated at about 30,000. This force is (October 1922) undergoing further reorganization.

The above organizations are supplemented by numerous cadet corps and rifle associations. The Royal Military College at Kingston, Ontario, provides both a military and a general education for about 160 cadets. It trains officers for both the permanent and non-permanent active militia. A certain number of commissions in the British regular army are granted annually to graduates.

Navy.—The Royal Canadian Navy was established in 1910, when the cruisers Niobe and Rainbow were taken over from the British government as training ships. They were sold after the war. The Royal Canadian Squadron at present (October, 1922) consists of H.M.C.S. Aurora, 3,500 tons, 40,000 h.p., speed 28.5 knots; H.M.C.S. Patricia and Patriot, each 1,004 tons, 27,000 h.p., speed 35 knots; submarine C.H. 14 and C.H. 15. There are also several small craft, some armed, used for fisheries protection and patrol duty on the eastern and western coasts and on the Great Lakes. There are 143 officers in the Naval Service. H.M.C. dockyards are at Halifax (specialized as a repair base) and Esquimalt (base of supplies). A training school to accommodate 100 boys and youths is established at Halifax; the Royal Naval College was closed in 1922.

Aeronautics.—In 1919 the Government created a Board for the control of aeronautics. Since then an organization has been built up for the control of Civil Aviation, the administration of the Canadian Air Force and the conduct of flying operations for other Government Departments.

Under the National Defence Act, 1922, the powers of the Air Board are vested in the Minister of National Defence and the Air Board ceases to exist. The old organization becomes part of the new Department formed by this Act.

Air Stations have been established at Vancouver, B.C., High River, Alberta, Victoria Beach, Man., Camp Borden, Ont., Ottawa, Ont., Roberval, Que., Halifax, N.S.

The main stores depot and repair shops of the Canadian Air Force are at Camp Borden, which is also the principal training base of the Canadian Air Force. The work at the other stations is chiefly in connection with forest fire protection and survey work, reconnaissance and exploration work, transportation of survey parties and Government officials in the remoter parts of the country, photographic work in connection with surveys and other similar duties.

The machines used at present are obsolescent war type machines, many of which require replacement by modern machines, with better performance, specially designed for the work to be undertaken and the natural conditions in the various localities in which they are employed. Proposals for replacement of the existing types are under consideration.

The personnel employed on Air operations in 1922 was 270.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police.—On September 30, 1922, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police were distributed as follows:—

	Officers.	Other Ranks.
Ontario (less Port Arthur District)	16	370
Maritime Provinces	1	33
Quebec	1	35
Manitoba and Port Arthur District	5	98
Saskatchewan	15	215
Alberta	10	181
British Columbia	9	148
Yukon	3	47
Northwest Territories (Arctic Regions)	3	36
	<hr/> 63	<hr/> 1163

(The figures for Ontario include the Headquarters Staff and the detachments employed in the protection of Government buildings in Ottawa.)

The duties of the force are to enforce Federal Statutes, to assist the other Departments of the Dominion Government, and to enforce the observance of law in the Yukon, in the Northwest Territories and in Indian Reserves and National Parks; when special arrangements are made between the Dominion and Provincial Governments, they assist in the enforcement of the criminal law.

Production and Industry.

Agriculture.—Canada is essentially agricultural, and among her natural resources arable lands stand unrivalled. Present information permits only a rough estimate of their actual extent, but it is believed that 300,000,000 acres are physically suitable for agriculture. The distribution of these lands is such that Canada possesses a series of agricultural areas between the Atlantic and the Pacific, characterized by diversity of contour, soil and climate, and by corresponding variety of agricultural activities. Grain growing, dairy farming, fruit farming, ranching and fur farming, are all carried on successfully. In 1921 farm values comprised 31·6 per cent. of Canada's total wealth, and agriculture contributed 26·6 per cent. of the total production.* The following table shows the estimated agricultural wealth and production for 1921 :—

Dairying.—The dairying industry of the Dominion is carried on most extensively in Ontario and Quebec, although there are dairy factories in all of the provinces, and in recent years dairying, especially the manufacture of creamery butter, has made marked progress in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Cheese is made almost exclusively in factories, but approximately one-half of the butter output is produced on the farms. The number of dairy factories operating in 1921 was 3,121, comprising 1,091 creameries, 1,613 cheese factories, 390 combined butter and cheese factories and 27 condenseries. The number of patrons (farmers who supply milk and cream to dairy factories) was 312,369, and the number of cows furnishing the milk was 1,851,199.

The following tables show, by provinces, the distribution and output of dairy factories in 1921:—

² Comprise whole milk, cream, buttermilk, ice cream, skim milk, curd cheese, whey butter, whey, whey cream and condensed coffee and cocoa.

In 1920 the estimated value of "dairy" or home-made butter was $56,250,000, and of milk used whole, as apart from that delivered to the dairy factories, $57,750,142.

Fruit Farming.—Many portions of Canada are admirably adapted for fruit farming, the most renowned being the Annapolis Valley of Nova Scotia, the St. John Valley district of New Brunswick, the Niagara Peninsula of Ontario and the Okanagan and other inferior valleys of British Columbia. Of orchard fruits apples are most important, and in number of trees and quantity of production greatly exceed all others combined, although peaches, pears, plums, cherries and small fruits are grown in abundance. Extensive vineyards are a prominent feature of the Niagara Peninsula, and the grape production is mainly from this area. The production of apples in 1921 was 4,046,813 barrels, valued at $29,898,649.

Miscellaneous.—The wool clip of Canada for 1921 was estimated at 21,251,000 lbs., valued at $2,975,000. In the same year there were on 812 fur farms throughout the Dominion 23,105 animals, mostly silver foxes, valued at $5,977,545. The value of animals and pelts sold during the year was $1,498,105. The production of tobacco, which is practically confined to Ontario and Quebec, amounted to 13,218,962 lbs. from 11,809 acres. The estimated value of this crop was $2,393,190. The total production of eggs was estimated at 161,971,000 dozens, and the value of maple products $4,174,000.

Forestry.—The total area of land covered by timber is officially estimated at 932,416 square miles. Of this 390,625 square miles are covered with commercial timber. This is distributed by provinces as follows:—

	Acres		Acres
British Columbia	50,000,000	Quebec	100,000,000
Manitoba, Saskatchewan,		New Brunswick	9,000,000
Alberta	11,000,000	Nova Scotia	5,000,000
Ontario	70,000,000

The forest products (wood and wood products, unmanufactured) exported to the United Kingdom in 1921-22 amounted in value to 5,946,741 dollars, out of a total export value of 70,790,996 dollars. The value of the total forest products for the calendar year 1920 was 306,660,619 dollars. The exportable surplus of the wood pulp industry was 35,924,877 dollars in 1921-22, chiefly to Great Britain and the United States. The Crown forests belong to the Provincial Governments, except in Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, and the Railway Belt (forty miles wide) in British Columbia, where they belong to the Dominion.

The total capital invested in the lumber industry in 1920 was 395,808,490 dollars. The aggregate value of production (lumber, lath, shingles, etc.) was 354,617,529 dollars. There were 4,966 mills and 109,823 persons employed; wages and salaries came to 105,226,170 dollars.

Fisheries.—The coast line of the Atlantic Provinces, from the Bay of Fundy to the Strait of Belle Isle, without taking into account the lesser bays and indentations, measures over 5,000 miles. On the Pacific coast the Province of British Columbia, because of its numerous islands, bays, and fiords, has a sea-washed shore of 7,000 miles. In addition to this immense salt-water fishing area Canada has 220,000 square miles of fresh water abundantly stocked with many species of excellent food fishes.

The fisheries of the Atlantic coast may be divided into two distinct classes: The deep sea, which take cod, haddock, hake, pollock, and halibut; and the inshore or coastal, which take cod, hake, haddock, pollock, halibut, herring, mackerel, alewife, shad, smelt, flounder, and sardine. The most extensive lobster fishery known is carried on along the eastern shore of Canada, while excellent oyster beds exist in many parts of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The salmon fishery is the predominant one on the Pacific coast, but an important halibut fishery is also carried on. The inland lake fisheries yield whitefish, trout, pickerel, pike, sturgeon, and fresh-water herring. In the calendar year 1921 the capital invested in vessels, gear, canneries, etc. (including working capital and stocks on hand) was 45,669,477 dollars. The total value of the produce of the fisheries of Canada in 1921 was 34,930,935 dollars. The principal kinds of fish caught in 1921 were: salmon, 9,305,763 dollars; lobsters, 5,143,403 dollars; codfish, 4,594,970 dollars; herrings, 2,227,801 dollars; halibut, 4,112,942 dollars; haddock, 899,629 dollars; mackerel, 1,124,679 dollars; whitefish, 1,916,698 dollars. The exports in 1921 were valued at 33,662,751 dollars. The exports of dry-salted codfish were 5,220,000 dollars; canned lobsters, 5,180,000 dollars; fresh lobsters, 1,033,000 dollars; canned salmon, 7,581,000 dollars. The number of persons employed in 1921 was 69,334, including those in shore work and canneries. The number of factories and canneries in operation in 1921 was 842. In 1921, according to provinces, the values were: Nova Scotia, 9,778,623 dollars; British Columbia, 13,953,870 dollars; New Brunswick, 3,690,726 dollars; Quebec, 1,815,284 dollars; Ontario, 3,065,042 dollars; Prince Edward Island, 924,529 dollars; Manitoba, 1,023,187 dollars; Saskatchewan, 243,018 dollars; Alberta, 408,868 dollars; and Yukon, 28,988 dollars.

Mining.—Nova Scotia, British Columbia, Quebec, N. and W. Ontario, Alberta, and Yukon Territory are the chief mining districts. The total value of the mineral produce was in 1920, 227,859,665 dollars; in 1921, 172,430,648 dollars; in 1922, 180,622,000 dollars. The principal metals and minerals produced in 1920 and 1921 were as follows:

Water-powers.—Water-power resources of Canada have been placed at 18,255,316 h.p. on the basis of 80 per cent. installed efficiency and for conditions of ordinary minimum river flow. On this basis the distribution of water-powers by provinces is given in the following table:—

Province	At ordinary min. flow horse-power	Dependable for 6 months horse-power	Installed turbine horse-power
Nova Scotia	20,751	128,264	46,948
Prince Edward Island	3,000	5,270	1,869

Total	18,255,316	32,075,998	2,762,880

The federal government administers the water-powers of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, the North-west Territories and the Yukon. Elsewhere jurisdiction is in the hands of the provincial governments. In Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario and Manitoba Hydro-Electric Power Commissions operate power plants and transmission and distribution systems as publicly owned utilities. The Quebec government has confined its efforts to the construction of water storage works.

The Fur Trade.—Canada has sent furs to Europe for more than four hundred years, and in spite of curtailment of the trapping area by settlement and industry the trade still grows. In 1920-2, 3,000,000 pelts were taken. Exports in 1921-22 were valued at 15,000,000 dollars, imports at 8,000,000 dollars. Fur auctions are now held on a large scale at Montreal and Winnipeg; and the business of fur-dressing is well established. The pelts in order of marketed value are beaver, muskrat, marten, mink, fox, fisher, otter and ermine. In 1921 there were 17,000 silver foxes valued at 5,588,000 dollars on fur farms, 875 of which were on Prince Edward Island. There were in all 812 fur farms and this industry is spreading. The chief source of fur is the 1,200,000 square miles of the North-west Territories, where also the wood buffalo and musk ox range wild. Legal protection and wild life sanctuaries ensure the future of the industry.

Under the Pelagic Sealing Treaty, Canada receives a share of the growing profit from fur seals, which are again multiplying in the north Pacific on the Pribiloff islands (U.S.A.), the Commander islands (Russia), and Robben island (Japan).

Pulp and Paper Industry.—The manufacture of pulp and paper from wood is one of the leading industries. It represents a capital investment of 347,553,333 dollars and employed 31,298 persons in 1920, a sevenfold increase since 1911. There are now 100 plants:—Quebec 46, Ontario 37, British Columbia 6, Nova Scotia 6, New Brunswick 5. Of these plants 84 are operated by water-power.

In 1919 the value of manufactured pulp and paper exports was 83,862,566 dollars; in 1920, 104,636,901 dollars, and in 1921, 163,655,344 dollars. In 1922 there was a decline, owing to the fall in values, to 105,478,295 dollars. About 80 per cent. of the export in 1921 was to the United States. The above figures do not include the export of pulpwood as raw material.

Canada possesses a large reserve of loose-fibred, non-resinous, coniferous timber, which, though of minor importance in other wood-using industries, is peculiarly suited to pulp manufacture. The species in use are spruce, balsam fir, hemlock, jackpine, tamarack, poplar and basswood. The latest authentic figures show that out of 2,774,422 cords used in 1920 67 per cent. were spruce, 25 per cent. balsam fir, and 6 per cent. hemlock.

Good authority estimates the resources of pulpwood at 718,000,000 cords, of which 350,000,000 cords are credited to Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, and 181,000,000 to British Columbia. These figures include sawn timber.

Commerce.

The customs tariff of Canada is protective, but there is a preferential tariff in favour of the United Kingdom and most of the colonies; the duties on direct imports from the United Kingdom and the colonies, &c., being reduced, but alcoholic liquors, liquid medicines, tobacco, and refined sugar from raw sugar produced elsewhere than in British colonies, are excluded from the reduction.

The returns of values of imports and exports are those supplied in entries at the Customs, where imports must be entered for duty at their fair market value as for home consumption in the country of purchase. Quantities are ascertained from invoices and by examination, wines are gauged and spirits tested. The country whence imports are received is the country of purchase or whence shipment was made to Canada; the country of destination is that to which shipment is made. Thus, Canadian wheat, purchased by New York dealers shipped to and entered in bond at New York, and thence exported to Great Britain, would appear only as exported from Canada to the United States. The only Canadian port where transit trade is recorded is Montreal, such trade comprising chiefly goods received from the United States and transhipped to other countries by the St. Lawrence route. Transit trade is not included in the general trade, which comprises all other imports into and exports from Canada. Fish and fish products from Newfoundland enter Canada free of Customs duty.

All export entries are delivered at the 'frontier port of exit,' and the totals thereof are credited to the respective ports where the goods pass outward from Canada.

On April 9, 1912, a trade agreement providing for preference treatment between the two parties was signed between Canada and the West Indies, to last for 10 years and to come into operation on January 1, 1913. Canada brought the Act into force on June 2, 1913. A new agreement, providing for an extension of the preference, was signed at Ottawa on June 18, 1920, and is now effective in all the colonies except Bermuda.

Shipping and Navigation.

The registered shipping on December 31, 1920, including vessels for inland navigation, consisted of 4,281 steamers and 4,623 other vessels; total net tonnage, 1,151,980. The sea-going and coasting vessels that entered and cleared during the year 1921 were as follows :—

Vessels.	Entered.		Cleared.

Total	74,532	28,567,645	72,456	27,773,668

In 1921 the vessels entered and cleared at Canadian ports on inland waters between Canada and the United States were : Canadian, 21,387 of 16,726,478 tons; United States, 32,746 of 13,005,423 tons.

During 1920, 349 vessels, with a carrying capacity of 129,773 tons, were launched from Canadian shipyards.

Canadian Government Merchant Marine, Limited.—The Canadian Government Merchant Marine, Limited, consisted in 1922 of 65 steel ships, ranging from 2,800 to 10,500 dead weight tonnage. These ships are now found on the principal trade routes of the world, and have been engaged especially in the development of routes which have not been followed by the older steamship lines.

A service from Vancouver, B.C. to Australia and New Zealand has been inaugurated, and another from Montreal via the Panama Canal. New freight services have also been established by the Canadian Government Merchant Marine to London, Liverpool and Glasgow from Montreal; and summer services from St. John, N.B. and Halifax, N.S. to various British ports. There are now also regular summer sailings from Montreal to the West Indies and to Brazil and Argentina, a regular service from Halifax to the British West Indies and fortnightly to Cuba, and a weekly service from St. John, N.B., to Cuba and the Bahamas.

C.G.M.M. freighters ply to Africa and India. The ships plying to Australia secure wool for their chief return cargoes.

The products of the farms, forests and fisheries of Eastern Canada form the principal export cargoes to the West Indies; the return cargoes consist chiefly of sugar for the Canadian refineries at Halifax, St. John and Montreal. Products that came to Canada indirectly through United States ports are now in increasing amount shipped direct in C.G.M.M. steamers. Canada's increasing demand for tropical produce and her large exports of perishable dairy produce have rendered necessary the provision of cold-storage space in ships. Large shipments of wood pulp are being discharged at British and continental ports. Certain ships running between Canada and United Kingdom ports have been fitted for the carriage of cattle.

Internal Communications.

Canada has a system of canal, river, and lake navigation over 2,700 miles in length, and vessels from the lake ports reach the Atlantic without breaking bulk. Up to 1921, 187,000,974 dollars had been spent on canals for construction and enlargement alone. In 1921, 28,689 vessels, of 12,409,566 tons, passed through the Canadian canals, carrying 230,129 passengers and 9,407,021 tons of freight, chiefly grain, timber, iron ore, and coal.

On January 11, 1909, was signed at Washington a treaty between the United Kingdom and the United States relating to the use of the boundary waters between Canada and the United States. The treaty provides for the establishment and maintenance of an international joint commission, consisting of three representatives appointed by H.M. the King on the recommendation of the Governor in Council of the Dominion of Canada, and three appointed by the President of the United States. This commission, subject to the conditions of the treaty, has jurisdiction in all cases involving the use or obstruction or diversion of the boundary waters. Precedence is given by the treaty to uses of the waters in the following order, viz., (1) for domestic and sanitary purposes, (2) for navigation, (3) for power and irrigation.

A project is under consideration for the construction of a channel deep enough for large vessels to pass up the St. Lawrence to Lake Ontario and through the Welland Canal to Lake Erie.

The total single track mileage of steam railways in Canada on December 31, 1921 was 39,771, an increase of 387 miles over 1920. The total mileage including second track, yard track and sidings in 1920 was 51,582.

The lines built or acquired by the Canadian Government are now consolidated in one system, known as the Canadian National Railways. This system now includes the lines formerly known as the Intercolonial (1,670 miles), the P.E.I. Railway (275), the Transcontinental (2,006), the Grand Trunk Pacific (2,732), the Canadian Northern (9,868) and the Grand Trunk (3,563). The Dominion Government thus owns and operates about one-half of the single track mileage, including two transcontinental lines with termini in Canada at Halifax, Vancouver and Prince Rupert, and the Grand Trunk with termini at Portland, Maine, U.S.A., and Chicago.

The province of Ontario owns and operates the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario (329 miles). The mileage in private ownership is mainly that of the Canadian Pacific Railway (13,444 in 1921). The main line of this road from Vancouver, B.C. to St. John, New Brunswick, is 3,367 miles. The single track mileage by Provinces is:—Ontario, 10,976; Quebec, 4,971; Manitoba, 4,418; Saskatchewan, 6,296; Alberta, 4,557; British Columbia, 4,376; New Brunswick, 1,948; Nova Scotia, 1,452; Prince Edward Island, 279; Yukon, 58; United States of America, 440. There is a monthly steam service between Australia and British Columbia, for which the Dominion Government gave 124,642 dollars in the fiscal year 1921.

The traffic on Canadian steam railways in five years was:—

In 1921, of the capital, 222,443,583 dollars represented Federal Government aid (exclusive of the cost of Government Railways), and 59,920,260 dollars from Provincial Governments and Municipalities. The latter amount does not include cost of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway (23,172,777 dollars).

Electric railways in 1921, 64, mileage 1,687; passengers during the year, 719,305,441; tons of freight carried, 2,285,886. The gross earnings in 1921 reached an aggregate of 44,536,832 dollars, as compared with 47,047,246 dollars in 1920. Operating expenses amounted to 35,945,316 dollars, a decrease of 1,297,167 dollars compared with the preceding year. Paid-up capital, 171,187,436 dollars.

On March 31, 1921, there were 12,252 post offices. Gross revenue, 32,330,380 dollars; net revenue, 26,331,119 dollars; expenditure, 24,661,262 dollars. At the end of the fiscal year, 1921, there were 3,750 rural mail delivery routes, on which were erected 194,790 boxes.

Money order offices on March 31, 1921, 5,197; orders issued (1920-21), 11,513,167, value 73,523,322 dollars. The Ocean Mail subsidies and steamship subventions paid by the Government amounted to 1,094,509 dollars in 1921.

There were 52,821 miles (11,207 being Government) of telegraph lines in Canada in 1921, and 250,802 miles of wire (including 14,001 miles of Government lines), with 4,901 offices. There were (in 1921) 2,105,101 miles of telephone wire and 856,266 telephones. The earnings of telephone companies in Canada in 1920 amounted to 33,473,712 dollars, and the operating expenses to 28,044,401 dollars. The capital liability amounted to 116,689,705 dollars in 1920.

Wireless Telegraphy.—The Administration of Radiotelegraphy was transferred from the Department of the Naval Service to the Department of Marine and Fisheries on July 1, 1922.

On October 15, 1922 there were 5,887 stations in operation, including 36 coast stations, 247 ship stations, 66 public commercial stations, 30 private commercial stations, 18 radiotelegraph training schools, 43 experimental stations, 5,433 licensed amateur experimental stations.

The Glace Bay—Louisburg station provides transatlantic service.

Sixty broadcasting stations have been licensed. There is also a large increase in the number of amateur licenses issued and this phase of wireless activity is assuming very large proportions.

Money and Credit.

The Bank Acts of Canada impose stringent conditions as to capital, notes in circulation, limit of dividend, returns to the Dominion Government, and other points, on all chartered banks. Under the Dominion Notes Act, 1914 (5 Geo. V. c. 4) the Dominion Government is authorised to issue notes up to and including 50,000,000 dollars, against a reserve in gold equal to one-quarter of the amount. By chapter 4, Acts of 1915, "An Act respecting the issue of Dominion Notes," the Dominion Government is authorised to issue notes up to 26,000,000 dollars without any reserve of gold, 16,000,000 dollars of the notes to be against certain specified Canadian railway securities guaranteed by the Dominion Government. Dominion notes may be issued to any additional amount in excess of 76,000,000 dollars, but (except as provided by the Finance Act, 1914) an amount of gold equal to the excess must be held. On Aug. 31, 1922, there were 17 incorporated banks making returns to the Government, with about 4,739 branches. The following are some particulars of the banks:—

1914	114,759,807	104,600,185	1,141,210,363	1,309,944,066	1,553,676,895	84.20

¹ Excluding capital and rest or reserve fund.

In August, 1922, the deposits aggregated 2,072,065,678 dollars, and the circulation 158,086,569 dollars.

In addition to the capital there was in August, 1922, the sum of 130,207,395 dollars of rest or reserve funds belonging to the banks.

There are 16 clearing houses in Canada. The transactions for 1921 amounted to 16,811,287,086 dollars, against 19,588,337,285 dollars in 1920. Of the transactions of 1920, Montreal had over 36 per cent., Toronto 27 per cent., Winnipeg 15 per cent., and Vancouver 4 per cent.

Government post-office savings-banks have been in operation in Canada since 1868; there are also Government savings-banks, under the Finance Department, in the Maritime Provinces. In 1922 the post-office savings-banks had about 24,026,270 dollars, and the Government savings-banks about 9,624,163 dollars on deposit.

The deposits in special savings-banks amounted in 1922 to 58,292,920 dollars.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The denominations of money in the currency of Canada are dollars, cents and mills. The cent is one-hundredth part of a dollar, and the mill one tenth part of a cent. A five-cent nickel coin has been issued. The standard of fineness for gold coins is nine-tenths gold, and British and United States gold coins are legal tender. The privilege of issuing notes is restricted to the Dominion Government and the chartered banks. The legal equivalent of the British sovereign is 4.86½ dollars.

The Dominion Government issues Dominion notes, which are legal tender, in denominations of $1, $2, $5 and certain other large-size denominations used chiefly in clearing-house transactions between banks. They may be issued in any amount. Prior to the war, the security behind Dominion notes consisted of 25 per cent. gold for the first fifty million dollars of such notes and dollar for dollar in gold for amounts in excess of fifty million. They were redeemable in gold. The war necessitated the suspension of redemption in gold, and by special legislation the Government was given power to issue Dominion notes to the banks upon the pledge of such securities as were satisfactory to the Treasury Board. To insure the retirement of these notes as soon as the need for them was past, interest at not less than 5 per cent. per annum was charged the banks. At the same time banknotes were made legal tender, and an issue of twenty-six million dollars of Dominion notes without security as formerly prescribed by law, largely to implement railway guarantees, was legalized.

Dominion notes outstanding at the end of August, 1922, amounted to 228,638,956 dollars.

The Ottawa Branch of the Royal Mint was established in pursuance of The Ottawa Mint Act, 1901, and an annual sum not exceeding 75,000 dollars is payable to the Imperial Treasury for the purpose of defraying the salaries of officials and other expenses of the Mint, the fees and all sums received being retained by Canada. The Mint issues gold, silver and copper coins for circulation in Canada, and sovereigns and half-sovereigns coined will be legal tender in every country under the British flag. Coinage for Newfoundland was struck at the Mint in 1917 and 1918.

The legal weights and measures are the Imperial yard, pound avoirdupois, gallon, and bushel; but the hundredweight is declared to be 100 pounds and the ton 2,000 pounds avoirdupois, as in the United States.

CANADIAN PROVINCES.

1. ALBERTA.

Constitution and Government.—The Constitution of Alberta is contained in the British North America Act of 1867, and its several amending Acts; also in the Alberta Act of 1905, passed by the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada, creating the province. In the British North America Act, provision was made for the admission of the new provinces from time to time, including the then North-West Territories, of which the present province of Alberta formed a large portion. Upon the granting of autonomy to the North-West Territories, Alberta and Saskatchewan were erected into provinces, and all the provisions of the British North America Act, except those with respect to schools, lands, and the public domain, were made to apply to Alberta as they apply to the older provinces of Canada. The province is represented by 6 members in the Senate and 12 in the House of Commons of Canada.

The executive is vested nominally in the Lieutenant-Governor, who is appointed by the federal government, but actually in the Executive Council or the Cabinet of the Legislature. Legislative power is vested in the Assembly in the name of the king.

Members of the Legislative Assembly are elected by the direct vote of the people. Woman suffrage has been established in the province.

There are 61 members in the Legislature—41 United Farmers', 13 Liberals, 4 Labour, 1 Independent, 1 Conservative, 1 seat vacant. The Legislature includes 2 women members.

Lieutenant-Governor.—His Honour R. G. Brett, B.A., M.D., LL.D.

The members of the Ministry are as follows:—

Premier, President of Council, Provincial Secretary, and Treasurer.—Hon. Herbert Greenfield.

Attorney-General.—Hon. John Brownlee, B.A.

Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. Geo. Hoadley.

Minister of Public Works.—Hon. Alex. Ross.

Minister of Municipalities and Health.—Hon. Richard Gavin Reid.

Minister of Railways and Telephones.—Hon. Vernon W. Smith.

Minister of Education.—Hon. Perrin Baker, B.A.

Minister Without Portfolio.—Hon. Mrs. Irene Parlby.

Local Government.—In 1912 the law respecting towns and rural municipalities was revised and brought up to date, in harmony with the conditions and development and growth prevailing in the province at that time. Since then the respective acts have been changed to meet the necessities of progress, and the name Rural Municipality changed to Municipal District. Municipal Districts comprise an area of 18 miles square, and are laid out on a uniform plan conformable as far as possible to the Dominion Land Survey system. Each district is a body corporate and governed by an elected council of six members. The chief executive officer is called a Reeve. All towns are incorporated under the Towns' Act of 1912 and amendments thereto, except those incorporated by special Acts. The town council consists of a Mayor and six councillors elected by those whose names appear on the last revised assessment roll. Persons qualified to vote are males or females of the full age of 21 years who are assessed for 50 dollars or upwards, and the wife, husband, children, and parents of such persons, if 21 years of age and resident in the municipality. The cities of Alberta carry on their municipal government by the authority of special charters granted by the Legislature.

Area and Population.—The area of the province is 255,285 square miles, 252,925 sq. miles being land area and 2,360 sq. miles water area. The population in 1921 was 588,454, in 1916, 496,525; in 1906, 184,412, and in 1901, 73,022. In 1921 the rural population numbered 365,550 (54,489 in 1901), and the urban 222,904 (18,533 in 1901). There were 8,745 Indians in 1921, or 1.49 per cent. of the total population. Population of the principal cities (1921):—Calgary, 63,305; Edmonton, 58,821; Lethbridge, 11,097; Medicine Hat, 9,634; Red Deer, 2,328; Wetaskiwin, 2,061.

The vital statistics for 5 years are given as follows:—

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1914	13,685	4,623	4,147	9,538
1918	14,890	4,040	7,924	6,966
1919	14,130	4,718	5,507	8,623
1920	16,565	5,110	5,875	10,890
1921	16,414	4,611	4,904	11,474

Instruction.—In the school system all grades, both primary and secondary, are included under the term of public school. The same boards of trustees control the schools from the kindergarten to entrance to the university. All schools are supported by taxes levied by the local board, supplemented by Government grants. The grants are distributed to encourage, in addition to ordinary elementary education, secondary, technical, and agricultural training. Three Normal schools, at Calgary, Camrose, and Edmonton are established for the training of teachers. The attendance during 1921–22 was 521. The University of Alberta, organised in 1907, had, in 1921, 1,285 students. In 1921 there were 3,231 schools, 68 being consolidated schools, with 135,750 pupils. There were also at private schools 2,274, and at business colleges 2,655 pupils.

Justice and Crime.—Judicial power of the province is vested in the Court of Superior Civil and Criminal Jurisdiction, styled the Supreme Court of Alberta consisting of two divisions, the appellate and trial divisions respectively. The law provides for five judges in the appellate division, and six in the trial division. The judges are appointed by the Dominion Government, and hold office for life unless impeached by Parliament. There are also minor Courts of Civil and Criminal Jurisdiction such as District and Police Magistrate's Courts. The district courts have full jurisdiction over all matters up to 600 dollars. By the Small Debts Act of 1918 Justices have jurisdiction over matters up to 50 dollars.

District courts have power to grant probate of wills and are courts of record for a trial without a jury of any person charged with a criminal offence provided such person consents. The system of procedure in civil and criminal cases conforms as nearly as possible to the English system.

Finance.—The revenue of the province is derived from the following sources:—(1) Dominion subsidies; (2) School lands; and (3) Provincial sources. With one or two exceptions, all the taxes except those on actual land values have been abolished throughout Alberta. This is said to be the nearest approach to a genuine single tax in America.

The public debt of the province (1921) amounted to 59,010,256 dollars. Of this amount 23,357,047 dollars are revenue-producing.

Production and Industry.—Alberta is pre-eminently an agricultural province. There are unquestionably valuable assets in her deposits of coal, natural gas and petroleum, but the future depends upon the growth of agriculture in the important branches of grain, livestock, and dairying. The area of arable land is placed at 74,000,000 acres. About 13 per cent. of this is under cultivation at the present time.

For particulars of agricultural production and livestock, see under Canada above (p. 300).

Alberta was the greatest ranching country in America from 1880-1900, but the farmer has driven out the rancher and the days of the big herds are past. The wool clip for 1921 amounted to 2,879,796 lbs., valued at 403,171 dollars unwashed. Grain elevators (January, 1922), 919, with a capacity of 38,962,000 bushels.

The establishment of packing houses at Edmonton and Calgary has given a great stimulus to the hog industry. Mixed farming combining dairying and hog raising has increased considerably.

Alberta is reputed to contain 15 per cent. of the coal reserves of the world. A coal survey of Alberta by the Geological Survey of Canada places the coal area at 16,588 square miles containing 90,000 million tons, 80,000 million being lignite. The output in 1921 was 5,854,420 tons, of which domestic (lignite) coal was 2,885,537 tons; bituminous coal, 2,871,919 tons; anthracite coal, 96,964 tons. Natural gas is found abundantly in numerous localities, among which may be named Medicine Hat, Bow Island, Viking and Okotoks. In 1921 4,946,000 cubic feet, valued at 1,375,000 dollars, was produced. High grade gasoline is profitably extracted from the gas in some places. In 1920, 11,718 barrels of crude petroleum were produced. Large deposits of bituminous sand containing on an average 15 to 18 per cent. bitumen are situated in the McMurray district in northern Alberta. Experimental work is now being undertaken with a view to extracting the liquid bitumen and utilising it commercially. Value of total mineral production in 1921, 30,147,000 dollars.

Alberta has 12,092,160 acres of forest reserves. The northern portion of the province contains belts of forests along the rivers and lakes, consisting of spruce, pine, cottonwood, and poplar serviceable for merchantable timber. Lumber cut in 1920 was valued at 1,480,000 dollars.

The lakes of the province abound in whitefish, pickerel, pike and trout, but the industry is not developed to any great extent. In 1921 the number of men engaged was 539; value of equipment, 220,626 dollars; catch of fish 53,295 cwt.; value landed, 192,502 dollars; value marketed, 408,868 dollars.

Manufacturing has just begun in the province. Flour, oat-meal, cement, and linsed oil mills, pork and beef packing houses, factories with outputs of products in clay, brass and iron, glass and wood, have been established and are in many instances already extending their plants.

Statistics of manufactures for 1919: number of industrial establishments, 1,379; capital, 66,673,667 dollars; number of employees, 12,997; salaries and wages, 15,186,068 dollars; cost of materials, 55,758,141 dollars; value of products, 94,855,759 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The principal exports of the province consist of grain, livestock, hams and bacon, eggs, fish, butter, mining and timber products.

Length of railway lines 4,557 miles in January, 1922. A provincial government system of telephones covers most of the province. It has 100,899 miles of wire, and 244 exchanges and 349 toll offices. There are 54 privately owned party lines.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Constitution and Government.—Previous to 1858 British Columbia, then known as New Caledonia, formed a portion of the Hudson's Bay Company's concession, but in that year it was constituted a Crown Colony, owing to the large immigration consequent on the discovery of gold in 1856. Vancouver Island was leased to the Hudson's Bay Company in 1843, and was made a Crown Colony in 1849, being the first British colony to be established in North-West America. In 1866 the Colonies of British Columbia and Vancouver Island were united, and on July 20th, 1871, British Columbia entered the Canadian Confederation, and is represented by 6 members in the Senate, and 13 in the House of Commons of Canada.

The Provincial Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor and Legislative Assembly of 47 members on the system of executive administration known as a "responsible government." The Assembly is elected for four years, every adult, male or female (British subjects), having resided six months in the Province, duly registered, being entitled to vote.

Lieutenant-Governor.—W. C. Nichol.

The members of the Ministry are as follows:—

Premier and President of the Council.—Hon. John Oliver.

Minister of Mines and Commissioner of Fisheries.—Hon. Wm. Sloan.

Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. E. D. Barrow.

Minister of Education, Provincial Secretary, and Minister of Railways.—Hon. J. D. Maclean, M.D., C.M.

Minister of Public Works.—Hon. W. H. Sutherland.

Attorney-General and Minister of Labour.—Hon. A. M. Manson.

Minister of Finance and Minister of Industries.—Hon. John Hart.

Minister of Lands.—Hon. T. D. Pattullo.

Agent-General in London.—F. C. Wade, K.C., British Columbia House, 1/3, Regent Street, S.W. 1.

Area and Population.—British Columbia, Canada's Maritime Province on the Pacific Ocean, has an area, according to the census of 1921, of 355,855 square miles, of which 353,416 square miles are land area, and 2,439 square miles water area, but exclusive of territorial seas. It is a great irregular quadrangle about 700 miles from north to south, with an average width of about 400 miles, lying between latitudes 49 degrees and 60 degrees north. It is bounded on the south by the Straits of Juan de Fuca and the States of Washington, Idaho and Montana, on the west by the Pacific Ocean and Southern Alaska, on the north by Yukon and Mackenzie Territories, and on the east by the Province of Alberta. From the 49th degree north to the 54th degree the eastern boundary follows the axis of the Rocky Mountains, and thence north along the 120th meridian.

The subdivisions of the Province, with the number of square miles in each, are as follows: Kootenays, east and west, 23,500 square miles; Yale, 21,300; Lillooet, 16,100; Vancouver and Westminster, 7,600; Cariboo, 300,500; Comox (mainland), 7,100; and Vancouver Island, 16,400.

The last census (1921) places the population at 524,582; in 1911 the population was 392,480; and in 1901 it was 178,657.

Some of the principal cities and towns are: Victoria (the capital), population, (1921), 38,727; Vancouver, 117,217; New Westminster, 14,495; Nanaimo, 9,088; North Vancouver, 7,652; Nelson, 5,230; Prince Rupert, 6,392.

The movement of the population for five years was as follows:—

	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1914	10,418	4,296	3,974	6,444
1916	9,841	3,169	3,887	5,954

Instruction.—A complete system of free and non-sectarian education was established by Act in 1872. Attendance is compulsory from the age of seven to fourteen. The central control is vested in the Council of Public Instruction, composed of the members of the Executive Council. The Minister of Education directs the general management of the schools through the Superintendent of Education.

There are 48 high schools in the Province, with 6,636 enrolled pupils and 255 teachers. The number of elementary and secondary schools in 1921 was 946, with 2,557 teachers, and an enrolment of 85,950 pupils. The Provincial University was founded by Act in 1908. It began operations as a teaching institution in 1914, and in 1918-19 there were about 900 students.

Finance.—Revenue and expenditure:—

	Revenue Dollars	Expenditure Dollars		Revenue Dollars	Expenditure Dollars
1913-4	10,479,259	15,970,877	1917-8	9,868,325	10,800,805
1914-5	7,974,496	11,942,667	1918-9	9,900,055	11,611,694
1915-6	6,291,693	10,422,206	1919-20	12,609,960	13,313,303
1916-7	6,906,783	9,079,317	1920-21	15,219,264	15,236,931

The balance sheet of the Province showed that on March 31, 1921, the liabilities totalled 65,407,227 dollars; assets, 83,973,949 dollars.

Production and Industry.—British Columbia produced in 1921, minerals to the value of 34,776,894 dollars; fish to the value of 13,953,670 dollars (being 40% of Canada's production); agricultural produce valued at 37,151,000 dollars; and in 1920 manufactures of the value of 68,500,000 dollars; and lumber, lath, shingles and pulpwood valued at 71,108,307 dollars.

Particulars of the agricultural output and numbers of livestock are given under Canada above (p. 300).

British Columbia's coal measures are estimated to contain 75 billion tons, mainly bituminous, of which 23,000 millions are in the seams known and measured; it possesses the greatest compact area of merchantable timber in North America; the importance of the fisheries, apart from salmon fishing, is only beginning to be realised; there are widely-distributed deposits of magnetite and hematite iron, which are as yet undeveloped; the area of possible farmland has been estimated at 50,000,000 acres, but not much more than one tenth of this area has yet been occupied; the Province has millions of acres of pulpwood as yet unexploited; and much of the territory is unexplored and its potential value unknown.

More than half the standing timber in Canada is to be found in British Columbia, and the average rate of forest growth is double that in the remainder of the Dominion. Recent investigators place the area of British Columbia's timber land at over 100,000,000 acres, containing, roughly, 400,000 million feet of merchantable timber. The most important species are: Douglas fir, western red cedar, silver spruce, western soft pine, western hemlock, Engelmann spruce, cottonwood, and balsam. It is estimated that there are about 50,000,000,000 feet board measure under the control of the Dominion in the railway belt. The value of lumber, lath and shingles produced in 1920 was 66,318,000 dollars, while the value of pulpwood produced was 4,796,000 dollars.

British Columbia is the second Province of the Dominion in the value of its mineral production. The mineral output in 1920 and 1921 (estimated) was as follows:—

Minerals	1920		1921
	Quantity	Value	Quantity	Value
		Dollars		Dollars
Gold, placer ounces	11,080	221,600	11,660	233,200
Gold, lode do.	120,048	2,441,392	135,663	2,804,154
Silver do.	3,377,849	3,235,980	2,673,389	1,591,201
Lead pounds	39,331,218	2,816,115	41,402,288	1,693,354
Copper do.	41,887,676	7,832,890	39,036,993	4,879,624
Zinc do	47,208,268	3,077,909	49,419,372	1,952,065
Coal long ton	2,595,125	12,975,625	2,483,995	12,419,975
Coke do.	67,702	474,544	59,434	416,038
Miscellaneous products	—	2,426,950	—	2,077,030
Total of above	—	35,543,084	—	28,066,641

The total value of minerals produced in British Columbia down to the end of 1921 is estimated at 734,259,619 dollars; mainly coal and coke, 225,409,505 dollars; copper, 166,393,488 dollars; gold, lode, 105,557,977 dollars; gold, placer, 76,177,403 dollars; silver, 55,259,485 dollars; lead, 48,330,575 dollars.

Statistics of manufactures for 1919: Industrial establishments, 2,064; capital, 268,419,281 dollars; employees, 49,667; wages and salaries, 60,964,272 dollars; cost of materials, 99,994,539 dollars; value of products, 243,060,276 dollars.

The total available water power of the Province has been estimated at over five million H.P., of which 305,000 are developed.

Commerce.—The trade of the Province is developing rapidly; in 1920 imports amounted to 67,108,323 dollars, and the exports to 97,905,313 dollars. Exports consist of minerals (chiefly gold, silver, copper and coal), sea products (chiefly salmon, halibut, herrings, whale products and oil), lumber, furs, skins, etc. A large inter-provincial trade is rapidly developing, the fruit grown in British Columbia being largely shipped to the Prairie Provinces, where it finds a good market.

Communications and Shipping.—The Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National lines are at present the principal railways in the Province. The C.P.R. has three main lines, the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Crow's Nest Pass Railway, the Kettle Valley Railway, and several branches connecting with United States railway systems, also steamboat connections on the inland lakes, besides a large fleet of ocean-going and coasting steamers. The railway mileage of the Province in 1921 was 4,376. Telephone mileage, 1920, 166,622 (154,590 urban and 12,032 rural).

Steps are being taken to establish direct shipping communication with Canadian Atlantic ports, via the Panama Canal.

In the fiscal year of 1919-20, 8,293 sea-going vessels entered inward; 8,338 sea-going vessels cleared outwards; and 63,681 coastwise vessels entered and cleared.

MANITOBA.

Constitution and Government.—Manitoba was known as the Red River Settlement before its entry into the Dominion in 1870. The Provincial Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor and a Legislative Assembly of 55 members elected for five years. Women have been enfranchised, and may be members of Parliament. Proportional representation has been adopted for the 10 seats in the City of Winnipeg. The province is represented by 6 members in the Senate and 15 in the House of Commons of Canada.

Lieutenant-Governor.—His Honour Sir J. A. M. Aikins, K.C.

The Members of the Ministry are (October, 1922) as follows:—

Premier and Minister of Education.—Hon. John Bracken.

Provincial Secretary and Minister of Public Health.—Hon. D. L. McLeod.

Minister of Public Works.—Hon. W. R. Clabb.

Attorney-General.—Hon. R. W. Craig, K.C.

Minister of Agriculture and Immigration.—Hon. Neil Cameron.

Provincial Treasurer.—Hon. F. M. Black.

*State of parties in Legislative Assembly (1922): United Farmers Manitoba (Government), 28; Liberals, 8; Independents, 7; Labour, 6; Conservatives, 6.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 251,832 square miles, of which 231,926 sq. miles are land area and 19,906 sq. miles water. In 1912 its boundaries were extended to the shores of Hudson's Bay. (See map STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK, 1912.) The population in 1911 was 461,394, in 1916, 553,860, in 1921, 610,188. In 1901 the population was 255,211, thus showing an increase by 1921 of 139 per cent. The rural population in 1921 was 348,641 (184,775 in 1901). The number of houses in 1921 was 108,000 (49,784 in 1901); the number of families in 1916 was 117,532, (51,056 in 1901). Population of the principal cities (1921):—Winnipeg (capital), 179,087 (Greater Winnipeg, 276,000); Brandon, 15,359; Portage la Prairie, 6,748; St. Boniface, 12,816.

Instruction.—Education is locally controlled, as in all the provinces, and is supported by local taxation and Government grants. Winnipeg has an Agricultural College (opened 1906) with 393 long course and 731 short course students in 1921. The University of Manitoba, founded in 1877 in Winnipeg, had (in 1921) 1,570 students in all courses. There are (1921) 3,708 teachers and 129,015 pupils in the 3,596 public schools. Total expenditure on education in 1921, 1,947,022 dollars.

Finance.—Revenue and expenditure for eight years:—

Year.	Revenue.	Expenditure.	Year.	Revenue.	Expenditure.
	Dollars.	Dollars.		Dollars.	Dollars.
1913	5,788,070	5,314,849	1918	6,723,013	7,307,727
1915	5,524,911	5,698,059	1919	8,986,076	8,544,790
1916	5,807,807	6,147,780	1920	10,482,471	10,942,808
1917	6,692,985	6,860,353	1921	9,800,861	10,401,895

Production and Industry.—Manitoba is essentially fitted for agriculture, more particularly for grain production. Estimated arable land 25,000,000 acres, of which about 30 per cent. is under cultivation. For particulars of agricultural production and numbers of livestock, see under Canada above (p. 300).

Total value of minerals, 1921, 2,075,807 dollars, largely building material and gypsum. The Province has proved gold and copper deposits of vast extent which are being developed. The numerous lakes in Manitoba furnish large quantities of excellent fish, among which the most numerous are whitefish, pickerel, tullibee, pike, sturgeon, gold eyes and trout. In 1921 the number of men engaged was 1,891, value of equipment, 703,388 dollars, catch of fish, 184,668 cwt., value landed, 759,712 dollars, value marketed, 1,023,187 dollars. Value of lumber cut in 1920, 2,058,590. Forest reserves in Manitoba 2,386,560 acres (1921).

Grain elevators in Manitoba, January, 1922, 706 with a capacity of 21,394,100 bushels.

Statistics of manufactures for 1919: 1,622 industrial establishments with a capital of 111,535,665 dollars; employing 27,353 wage-earners; wages and salaries, 30,988,152 dollars; cost of materials used, 90,539,234 dollars; and value of products, 153,003,614 dollars.

Communications.—In the year 1922, the Province had 4,418 miles of railway as compared with 3,074 miles in 1907. There were 205,000 miles of telephone wire.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

Constitution and Government.—New Brunswick was discovered by Jacques Cartier in 1534. It was acquired by the English under the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713, and was settled by the English as early as 1761. In 1784 it was separated from Nova Scotia. The Government is at present vested in a Lieutenant-Governor and a Legislative Assembly of 48 members elected for five years. Franchise—any male or female British subject of full age, after six months' residence. Last election, October, 1920:—Liberals 24, Conservatives 13, Farmers 9, Labour 2. The province is represented by 10 members of the Senate and 11 in the Canadian House of Commons.

Lieutenant-Governor.—Hon. W. F. Todd.

The members of the Ministry are as follows:—

Premier and Minister of Public Works.—Hon. P. J. Veniot.

Attorney-General.—Hon. J. P. Byrne, K.C.

Provincial Secretary-Treasurer.—Hon. J. E. Hetherington.

Minister of Lands and Mines.—Hon. C. W. Robinson.

Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. D. W. Mersereau.

Minister of Health.—Hon. Dr. W. F. Roberts.

Minister without Portfolio and President of Executive Council.—Hon. F. Magee.

Minister without Portfolio.—Hon. J. E. Michaud.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 27,985 square miles, of which 27,911 square miles are land area. There are 7½ million acres of Crown lands, principally lumber lands. The population in 1921 was 387,876; in 1911, 351,889 (179,867 males and 172,022 females). In 1901 the population was 331,120. The rural population in 1921 was 265,648 (253,835 in 1901); the number of houses in 1911, 60,930 (58,226 in 1901); the number of families in 1911, 67,093 (62,695 in 1901). Population of the principal cities (1921):—St. John, 47,166; Moncton, 13,488; Fredericton (capital), 8,114.

Instruction.—Education is free and undenominational. There are three Universities. The University of New Brunswick, at Fredericton, founded in 1800, had 138 students in 1920-21; the Mont Allison University at Sackville, with 250 students in 1919; and the University of St. Joseph's College at Memramcook, with 70 undergraduates in 1919. There were (1921) 68,092 pupils and 2,142 teachers in the 1,973 public schools. Total expenditure on education in 1920-21, 2,298,621 dollars.

Finance.—The finance for recent years is shown as follows (years ended October 31):—

Year	Ordinary Revenue Dollars	Ordinary Expenditure Dollars	Year	Ordinary Revenue Dollars	Ordinary Expenditure Dollars
1916	1,580,419	1,568,342	1919	2,182,420	2,595,937
1917	1,572,814	2,166,905	1920	3,100,892	2,969,323
1918	2,357,910	2,399,062	1921	2,892,905	2,432,512

Funded debt, October 31, 1921, 23,573,432 dollars.

Production and Industry.—New Brunswick is productive in agriculture, manufacture, and mining. The total area under field crops in 1921 was 1,170,000 acres. Value produced, 1921, 38 million dollars. For particulars of agricultural production and live stock see under Canada, p. 300.

The capital invested in the fishing industry was estimated in 1921 at 4,440,000 dollars; men employed on the fleets and inland waters, 1921, 8,152; employees in canneries, freezers, and fish houses, 2,456. The total value of fisheries in 1921 was 3,691,000 dollars.

The Government owns over 10,000 square miles of forests. The production of lumber in 1920 from Crown lands and granted lands was 516,000,000 feet board measure. The total value was 18,374,000 dollars. Spruce is the principal wood. The total capital invested in the lumber industry in 1920 was estimated at 37,915,000 dollars.

The Province is rich in minerals. Iron, gypsum, coal, building stone, antimony, copper, manganese are found, but the only active mining in the year 1920 was in coal and gypsum. Natural gas, with a small quantity of oil, is produced near Moncton. Coal output, 1921, 180,000 short tons.

In 1919 there were 1,439 industrial establishments, with a capital of 89,958,000 dollars, employing 22,064 wage-earners; salaries and wages, 18,923,000 dollars; cost of materials, 53,471,000 dollars; value of products, 100,006,000 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The domestic and foreign exports of the Province in 1921-22 amounted to 66,285,020 dollars; the imports for consumption to 27,207,960 dollars.

The Province had 1,948 miles of railway operating in 1921, as compared with 1,503 miles in 1907. In 1919 there were 34,207 miles of telephone wire.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Constitution and Government.—The first settlement was made by the French at the end of the sixteenth century, and the province was called Acadia until finally ceded to the British by the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713. The Constitution of the Dominion of Canada and of each separate Province thereof is contained in the "British North America Act," commonly called the "Act of Confederation." This Act passed the Imperial Parliament in 1867 and came into force on July 1st of that year. Under this Act the Legislature of Nova Scotia, along with that of each of the other Provinces, may exclusively make laws in relation to local matters; and more especially in regard to direct taxation within the Province in order to raise a revenue for provincial purposes, and the administration of justice in the Province, including the constitution, maintenance and organisation of provincial courts both of civil and of criminal jurisdiction, and including procedure of civil matters in those courts.

The Legislature of Nova Scotia consists of a Lieutenant-Governor, appointed and paid by the Federal Government and holding office for five years; a Legislative Council appointed by the Crown, and holding office for life; and a House of Assembly, chosen by popular vote every five years. The Legislative Council consists of 21 members; the House of Assembly of 43. The province is represented in the Dominion Senate by 10 members, and in the House of Commons by 16.

The franchise and eligibility to the Legislature are granted to every person, whether male or female, if of full age (21 years), if a British subject, and a resident for one year in the place where the person votes, and if not by law otherwise disqualified, or in receipt of aid as a pauper.

House of Assembly (1922), state of parties:—Liberals, 29; Farmers, 8; Labour, 3; Conservatives, 2; Returned Soldier, 1. The Liberal party has held office continuously for 40 years.

Lieutenant-Governor.—His Honour McC. Grant (December, 1916).

The Members of the Ministry are as follows:—

Premier, President of Executive Council, and Minister of Public Works and Mines.—Hon. E. H. Armstrong.

Provincial Secretary.—Hon. D. A. Cameron, K.C.

Attorney-General.—Hon. W. J. O'Hearne, K.C.

Minister of Highways.—Hon. William Chisholm.

Ministers without Portfolio.—Hons. R. M. MacGregor, J. C. Tory, J. W. Comeau, O. T. Daniels.

Agent-General in London.—John Howard, 57A Pall-Mall, S.W.1.

Local Government.—In Nova Scotia there are two municipal divisions, viz., county and city or town. Five counties are divided into two municipalities.

The county or municipal councils consist of councillors elected triennially by the ratepayers, usually one, but in some cases two, for each polling division of a county electing a member to the House of Assembly. Town or City Councils are composed of a mayor and not less than six councillors elected by the ratepayers.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 21,428 square miles, of which 21,068 square miles are land area, and 360 square miles water area. The population in 1921 was 523,837; in 1911, 492,338; in 1901, 459,574; and in 1891, 450,396.

Population of the principal cities (1922):—Halifax, 73,000; Sydney, 22,545; Glace Bay, 17,007; Dartmouth, 7,899; Amherst, 10,000; New Glasgow, 12,000; Sydney Mines, 8,327; Truro, 7,562.

The vital statistics for five years are as follows :—

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of births
1913-14	12,771	3,643	7,627	5,244
1917-18	12,421	3,611	9,125	3,296
1918-19	12,508	3,585	9,200	3,308
1919-20	13,346	4,448	7,439	5,907
1920-21	12,793	3,780	6,573	6,220

Of the births in 1920-21, 409 were illegitimate, as compared with 441 in 1919-20.

Religion.—The denominations according to the Census of 1911 were :—Roman Catholics, 144,991; Presbyterians, 109,560; Baptists, 83,854; Anglicans, 75,313; Methodists, 57,606; and Congregationalists, 2,690.

There are also various other sects with small numbers of adherents.

Instruction.—Education in Nova Scotia is free, compulsory, and undenominational. Besides the elementary schools, high schools and academies, there are in Halifax a Maritime Provinces school for the blind and one for the deaf. A large Provincial Agricultural College is established at Truro; also a Normal School for the training of teachers. The Provincial Technical College grants degrees in civil, mining, chemical and electrical engineering. Besides this central institution there are, working under it, coal mining schools near all the collieries, and engineering and technical schools of various kinds in the industrial centres.

The total expenditure on education in 1921 was 3,443,000 dollars. The Province has (1921) 4 universities; 2,898 schools, with 3,089 teachers and 109,483 pupils; there are 3,399 pupils in the technical schools.

Pensions, &c.—A pension scheme is in operation whereby teachers under certain conditions receive an annuity. Miners receive pay in case of accident in pursuit of their calling, and in the event of death a grant is made to the widow and children. A fund is provided to meet the demands, the Government and the employers paying each half as much as the men.

Justice and Crime.—Justice in Nova Scotia is administered by the following courts: Courts for the collection of small debts; county courts; inferior courts in criminal cases; courts of superior jurisdiction; divorce court, probate courts. The supreme court of appeal is composed of a chief justice and six judges. There are also Courts for the revision of assessment rolls and voters lists, and a Court for juvenile delinquents.

In 1921, 1,861 persons were imprisoned for various crimes and misdemeanours. In 1921, 237 children were brought before the court for juvenile delinquents. Of these 45 were sent to institutions; 121 were paroled; 42 fined; and 29 were dismissed.

Finance.—In Nova Scotia there is no general direct Government taxation. The revenue is raised from the Dominion subsidy; royalty on coal and other minerals raised; succession duty; special taxes on banks, incorporated companies, partnerships, automobiles and theatres, marriage licences, and statutory fees.

Revenue, expenditure, and debt for five years :—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Debt
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
1914	1,885,000	2,098,893	12,615,686
1918	2,332,632	2,552,597	14,527,798
1919	3,280,318	3,250,806	15,342,655
1920	3,801,016	3,893,724	17,941,871
1921	4,587,000	4,654,000	22,606,000

To counterbalance the public debt the Province had (1921) realisable assets to the value of 10,118,000 dollars.

Production and Industry.—Nova Scotia is largely an agricultural Province. Fruit-growing is specially profitable, and apples are the most important fruit grown; in 1921 the output was over 2,000,000 barrels. The potatoes produced are higher in quality than any others raised in Canada. Nova Scotia is admirably adapted for dairying. The value of the live-stock products in 1921 was approximately 5,500,000 dollars. Owing to the cool, moist climate fodder may be raised easily, and the pastures are excellent. For particulars of agricultural production and live stock see under Canada, p. 300.

The known coal fields embrace 1,000 square miles. The gold fields cover about 3,000 square miles. The value of the principal mineral productions in 1921 was :—Coal, 31,200,000 dollars; steel, iron and by-products, 16,226,400 dollars.

The estimated forest area of Nova Scotia is over 12,000 square miles. The principal trees are spruce, fir, hemlock, pine, birch, oak and maple. The value of the forest products in 1921 reached the sum of 10,325,000 dollars.

The fisheries of the Province are the most extensive in Canada. About 12,000,000 dollars are invested in this industry, and about 24,000 men are employed. Cod, lobsters, mackerel, herring, and haddock are the principal fish. Total market value of fish caught in 1921, 9,755,000 dollars.

The number of industrial establishments was (in 1919) 2,249, with a capital invested of 131,914,231 dollars, employing 25,880 wage-earners; wages and salaries, 24,557,035 dollars; cost of materials, 75,923,099 dollars; value of products, 139,206,696 dollars.

The annual wealth of the Province in 1921 was estimated at 165,404,700 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The imports entered for consumption during 1921-22 were 18,899,542 dollars; the exports, 39,333,379 dollars.

Transportation facilities in Nova Scotia are excellent. The country is covered with a network of railways, 1,452 miles in extent. There are 18,000 miles of highways. Besides this, subsidised boats ply round the shores making regular calls at all the important ports. The principal railways are the Canadian Government Railway; the Halifax and South Western and Inverness (owned by Canadian Government); and the Dominion Atlantic (owned by the Canadian Pacific).

In 1921 there were 62,344 miles of telephone wire.

The state of the parties in the Provincial Legislature in November, 1919:—United Farmers, 44; Liberals, 28; Conservatives, 25; Labour, 12; Independents, 2.

Area and Population.—The greatest extent of the Province from east to west is 1,000 miles and from north to south 1,075 miles. The area of the Province is 407,262 square miles, of which 365,880 sq. miles are land area and 41,382 water area. The Province is more than three times the area of the United Kingdom and nearly double the size of France or Germany. It is roughly divided into two sections by a line running westward from Mattawa on the Ottawa River to Georgian Bay—southern (or old) Ontario, the older settled portion, with an area of about 77,000 square miles, and northern (or new) Ontario, with an area of about 330,000 square miles, of which 146,400 square miles, the district of Patricia, was added in 1912. The population in 1921 was 2,933,662, and in 1911 was 2,527,222. In 1901 it was 2,182,947. The rural population in 1921 was 1,227,809 (1,246,969 in 1901); the number of houses in 1911 was 528,303 (445,310 in 1901); the number of families 544,301 (455,261 in 1901). The Indian population of the Province in 1911 was 23,044. Population of the principal cities, 1921:—Toronto (capital), 521,893; Ottawa, 107,843; Hamilton, 114,151; London, 60,359.

Instruction.—There is a complete State system of elementary and secondary schools, which is supported generously by provincial grants, and also by local taxation. There is one provincial University—the University of Toronto, founded in 1827. The other Universities are Queen's at Kingston, McMaster at Toronto, Western at London, and Ottawa in Ottawa, and are private foundations. The Royal Military College at Kingston is maintained by the Dominion Government. There were, in 1920, 6,773 elementary schools and 311 secondary schools, attended by 632,994 pupils. There are 15,358 certificated teachers engaged in these elementary and secondary schools. The total expenditure on elementary schools in 1920 was 25,210,533 dollars, and on secondary schools the amount was approximately 4,072,000 dollars.

Finance.—The revenues of the Province are derived from the sale of Crown lands, timber, mining, liquor sales, amusement and betting taxes, succession duties and other fees, supplemented by a subsidy from the Dominion. The revenue and expenditure in recent years were as follows:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	Dollars	Dollars		Dollars	Dollars
1913-14	13,121,382	11,819,211	1918-19	19,904,772	21,464,574
1916-17	18,269,597	16,518,232	1919-20	25,078,094	25,880,843
1917-18	13,270,123	17,460,404	1920-21	29,261,477	28,579,688

Production and Industry.—The Province is rich in agricultural and mineral resources; it abounds in lakes and rivers, in extensive forests, great water powers, and valuable fisheries. The land under cultivation is about 14,000,000 acres, more than 1,000,000 additional acres are cleared, and 25,200,000 acres are assessed. Of the total land surface of the Province, which is 234,000,000 acres, the amount of arable land is much larger than the portion now under cultivation.* Beyond the cultivated portion it is estimated that northern Ontario alone contains some 20,000,000 acres of alluvial soil, not including the vast stretches of agricultural land south and west of James Bay. The farm values for 1921 were:—Land, 851,300,000 dollars; buildings, 484,189,000 dollars; implements, 159,914,000 dollars; and live-stock, 218,124,000 dollars. For particulars of agricultural production and live-stock see under Canada, p. 300.

During the fiscal year 1919–20, 72,591 acres of land were sold for agricultural purposes and town sites, the amount realised being 81,480 dollars; and for mining 10,600 acres for 28,350 dollars. Free grant locations to the number of 654 (the area thus taken being 88,813 acres of land) were taken up by intending settlers. The total area of Crown lands disposed of by sale and lease during the year was 84,380 acres, valued at 72,961 dollars.

The mineral production in 1921 included gold, 709,509 ozs., value 14,624,085 dollars; silver, 8,412,059 ozs., 5,497,160 dollars; nickel in matte, 4,850 short tons; nickel, metallic, 5,430,147 lbs.; nickel oxide, 1,402,019 lbs.; copper in matte, 3,685 short tons; copper, metallic, 3,070,719 lbs.; iron ore exported, 100 short tons; total iron ore shipments, 58,499 short tons; pig iron (from Ontario ore only), 82,838 short tons; total pig iron produced, 495,487 short tons, 10,756,923 dollars; Portland cement, 2,723,072 barrels; crude petroleum, 172,859 imperial gallons; natural gas, 8,532,234 million cub. ft.; salt, 149,599 short tons. Total value of metallic minerals in 1919, 41,590,759 dollars; in 1920, 46,228,827, in 1921, 27,574,262 dollars. Non-metallic minerals and structural materials in 1919 were worth 17,293,157, in 1920, 24,795,194, and in 1921, 20,554,185 dollars.

Value of fisheries (1921), 3,061,042 dollars. Men employed numbered about 4,100.

Total area of forests 150,000 square miles; chief timber is spruce, pine and poplar.

In 1919 Ontario had 16,438 industrial establishments, with a capital of 1,583,161,271 dollars, employing 323,359 wage-earners; wages and salaries, 336,578,269 dollars; cost of materials, 943,622,018 dollars; value of products, 1,737,543,996 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—In 1921–22 the exports amounted to 281,215,186 dollars, and the imports for consumption to 367,834,328 dollars. In 1921 there were 10,976 miles of railway in Ontario, as compared with 7,368 in 1907. There were (1919) 747,893 miles of telephone wires.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

This island was discovered by Sebastian Cabot in 1497; it was first settled by the French, but was taken from them in 1758. It was annexed to Nova Scotia in 1763, and constituted a separate colony in 1769.

Constitution and Government.—Prince Edward Island was taken into the Confederation on July 1, 1873. The Provincial Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor and a Legislative Assembly of 30 members, who are elected for 4 years, half by real property holders and the remainder by universal male and female suffrage. Women can also be elected to the Assembly. State of Parties in 1922 (elected July, 1919):—Conservatives, 5; Liberals, 25.

Lieutenant-Governor.—Hon. Murdock McKinnon.

The members of the Ministry are as follows:—

Premier.—Hon. John H. Bell, K.C.

Attorney-General.—Hon. J. J. Johnston, K.C.

Provincial Secretary-Treasurer and Commissioner for Agriculture.—Hon. W. M. Lea.

Commissioner of Public Works.—Hon. Cyrus W. Crosby.

Ministers without Portfolio.—Hon. George E. Hughes; Hon. David MacDonald; Hon. Fred. J. Nash; Hon. Robert Cox.

Area and Population.—The province, which is the smallest in the Dominion, lies at the mouth of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and is separated from the mainland of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia by Northumberland Strait. The area of the island is 2,184 sq. miles. The total population (1921 census) was 88,615. In 1911 the population was 93,728 (47,069 males and 46,659 females), or 42.91 to the sq. mile. In 1901 it was 103,259. The rural population in 1921 was 69,522 (88,304 in 1901); the number of houses in 1911, 18,237 (18,530 in 1901); the number of families 18,425 (18,746 in 1901). Population of the principal cities (1921):—Charlottetown (capital) 12,347; Summerside, 3,228.

Religion and Instruction.—The population of the Province at the census of 1911 was divided among the different creeds as follows:—Roman Catholic, 41,994; Presbyterian, 27,509; Methodist, 12,209; Baptist, 5,372; Anglican, 4,939. There were (1921) 461 schools, 590 teachers, 17,510 pupils. This is exclusive of 3 Roman Catholic convent schools at Tignish, Summerside and Charlottetown, with 551 pupils. There are two colleges, Prince of Wales College, head of the Provincial school system, and St. Dunstan's, a Roman Catholic institution, both in Charlottetown. Total expenditure on public education in 1921 was 396,778 dollars.

Finance.—

—	1914	1918	1919	1920	1921
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars

Expenditure	445,396	495,577	720,478	736,517	714,546

The expenditure does not include sinking fund or highway improvement the outlay on the latter in 1922 being about 125,000 dollars.

334 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

The total liabilities of the Province amounted in 1920 to 1,059,803 dollars.

Production and Industry.—The farm land occupied is 1,202,347 acres. Field crops in 1920, including pasture lands, covered 809,673 acres. The land in natural forest covers 316,000 acres, and in pasture 247,260. For particulars of agricultural production and live-stock see under Canada, p. 300.

Silver fox breeding is extensively carried on, and pelts are shipped to United States and European markets; breeding foxes are exported to all northern countries.

The total value of the fisheries in 1921 was at the boat side 860,075 dollars. The market value would be about 15 per cent. greater. Of the total, lobsters make up three-fourths, smelts, cod, herring and oysters being, in the order named, the largest other items. Oysters abound in Richmond Bay, where the beds extend to 15,000 acres. In 1912 the Provincial Government acquired from the Dominion Government the possession and control of the oyster areas surrounding the Province. Some 20,000 acres have been surveyed and 5,000 acres leased for replanting and development. It is estimated that 100,000 acres in all will be available for this purpose. So far (1922) the experiment has proved unsuccessful, owing to the importation of destructive pests with oysters used in replanting.

In 1919 there were 539 industrial establishments, with a capital of 2,867,035 dollars, employing 1,734 wage-earners; salaries and wages, 973,506 dollars; cost of materials, 4,269,843 dollars; value of products, 6,869,584 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The trade of Prince Edward Island is chiefly with the other provinces of Canada and this inter-provincial trade does not appear in the trade statistics. In 1921-22 the exports to other countries amounted to 593,013 dollars; the imports entered for consumption to 1,248,526 dollars. In 1921 the province had 279 miles of railway as compared with 267 in 1907. Terminal stations have been constructed at Cape Traverse, Prince Edward Island, and Cape Tormentine, New Brunswick, and a car ferry steamer of great power is in operation, connecting the Government Railway in Prince Edward Island with the Intercolonial Railway on the mainland. During 1919, by means of a third rail, the line from Charlottetown to Borden and Summerside was widened to the gauge of the continental standard. Daily steamship communication with the mainland was successfully maintained for the first time during the winter of 1917-18, and has since continued without interruption. In 1920 there were 3,273 miles of telephone wires, 200 urban and 3,073 rural. The Provincial Government has undertaken an extensive scheme of improving the public highways in collaboration with the Dominion Government. The plan covers several years to come, the cost being divided between the federal and provincial authorities, 40 per cent. being paid by the Dominion, and 60 per cent. by the Province. In 1922 the outlay for this purpose is about 125,000 dollars.

QUEBEC.

Constitution and Government.—Quebec was formerly known as New France or Canada from 1608 to 1763, as the Province of Quebec from 1763 to 1790; as Lower Canada from 1791 to 1840; as Canada East from 1841 to 1867; and when, by the union of the four original provinces, the Confederation of the Dominion of Canada was formed, it again became known as the Province of Quebec.

The Provincial Government is in the hands of a Lieutenant-Governor and a responsible Ministry, assisted by a Legislative Council of 24 members, appointed for life, and a Legislative Assembly of 85 members elected for 5 years. Quebec is the only Canadian Province in which women are not enfranchised or eligible for election to the Legislature. Last election, February, 1923: Liberals 63, Conservatives 22.

Lieutenant-Governor.—Rt. Hon. Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, P.C., G.C.M.G. (appointed October 23, 1918).

The members of the Ministry (December, 1922) are as follows:—

Premier and Attorney-General.—Hon. L. A. Taschereau.

Minister of Lands and Forests.—Hon. Honoré Mercier.

Provincial Treasurer and Minister of Municipal Affairs.—Hon. J. Nicol, K.C.

Provincial Secretary.—Hon. Athanase David.

Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. J. E. Caron.

Minister of Colonisation, Mines and Fisheries.—Hon. J. E. Perrault.

Minister of Public Works and Labour.—Hon. A. Gaipeault.

Minister of Roads.—Hon. J. L. Perron.

Ministers without Portfolio.—Hon. N. Séguin, Hon. N. Pérodeau, Hon. John C. Kaine.

Agent-General in London.—Hon. Lt.-Col. P. Pelletier, 38 Kingsway, W.C.

Agent-General in Brussels.—Mr. G. Langlois, 38A Bld. Bischoffsheim.

Area and Population.—The area of Quebec is 706,834 sq. miles, of which 690,865 square miles are land area and 15,969 square miles water area. The population in 1921 was 2,361,199 and in 1911 (covering the area of Quebec prior to 1912, namely, 351,873 square miles, Ungava having been annexed in 1912), numbered 2,003,232 (1,011,502 males and 991,730 females). Of the 1911 population 316,103 were of British and 1,605,339 of French origin. In 1901 the population was 1,648,898, showing an increase by 1911 of 21.45 per cent. The rural population in 1921 was 1,038,128 (992,667 in 1901); the number of houses, 339,579 (291,427 in 1901); the number of families, 370,938 (307,304 in 1901). Population of the principal cities (1921):—Montreal, 618,506; Quebec (capital) 95,193; Hull, 24,117; Verdun, 25,001; Three Rivers, 22,367.

Instruction.—The province has four Universities: McGill (Montreal, Protestant) founded in 1841, with 2,743 students in 1920-21; Lennoxville, also Protestant, founded in 1845, with 59 students in 1920-21; Laval (Quebec), founded in 1852, and University of Montreal (Montreal), the centre of higher education for the Catholic population of the province, with 3,253 students in Quebec in 1920-21, and 3,668 in Montreal. Quebec had, in 1920-21, 6,312 elementary schools and 1,394 other schools and colleges, with 533,647 pupils and 19,118 teachers. All the schools are sectarian, i.e., are either Catholic or Protestant. The total expenditure on education was 19,201,000 dollars in 1920-21.

Finance.—The ordinary revenue and expenditure for 6 years:—

Years ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure	Years ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure
	Dollars *	Dollars		Dollars	Dollars
1913	8,382,737	7,612,161	1919	12,666,352	12,272,675

1918	13,806,391	11,423,498	1921	15,841,813	14,684,018

The total public debt at June 30, 1921, was 52,285,387 dollars.

Production and Industry.—For particulars of agricultural production and livestock, etc., see under Canada, above (p. 300).

There are about 130,000,000 acres of forests. There is a total of 121,875 sq. miles of unalienated Crown forest lands. Quebec leads the Canadian Provinces in pulpwood production, having more than half of the Canadian total. In 1920 about 583,515 tons of pulp and 506,898 tons of paper were produced, valued at 62,487,455 dollars.

The total value of the fisheries in 1921 was 1,815,281 and in 1920 2,592,382 dollars. The principal fish are cod, mackerel, lobsters, salmon, and herring.

The value of the mineral production of the province was 28,392,939 dollars in 1920 and 15,522,988 dollars in 1921. Details for the latter year are as follows:—

In 1918 there were 10,524 industrial establishments in the province, with a capital of 837,082,000 dollars; employees, 208,000; salaries and wages, 169,862,000 dollars; cost of materials, 460,983,000 dollars; value of products, 890,420,000 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—Total imports for consumption in 1921-22 amounted to 214,361,158 dollars; total exports to 266,409,049 dollars.

Quebec had 4,971 miles of railway (excluding 255 miles of electric railways) in 1921. It is estimated that there are 36,000 miles of road in the Province, of which 2,459 are under municipal control.

In 1919 there were 921 banks and branches in the Province.

SASKATCHEWAN.

Constitution and Government.—The province receives its name from the Saskatchewan River which flows across its southern part, empties itself by way of Cedar Lake into Lake Winnipeg, and thence flows to Hudson Bay. It comprises the old territorial districts of Assiniboia East, Assiniboia West (part), Saskatchewan, and the eastern portion of Athabaska. Saskatchewan was made a province on September 1, 1905, before which it was part of the North-West Territories. The Provincial Government is vested in a Lieutenant-Governor and a Legislative Assembly of 63 members, elected for 5 years. Women were given the franchise in 1916, and are also eligible for election to the Legislature. State of parties (1922):—Government, 45; Independent, 15; Conservatives, 1; Labour, 1; Vacant, 1.

Lieutenant-Governor.—His Honour The Hon. H. W. Newlands, K.C. (appointed 1921).

The members of the Ministry are as follows:—

Premier, President of Council, Provincial Treasurer, and Minister of Railways.—Hon. C. A. Dunning.

Minister of Public Works and Minister of Telephones.—Hon. A. P. McNab.

Minister of Education and Minister in Charge of the King's Printer's Office and the Bureau of Publications.—Hon. S. J. Latta.

Minister of Agriculture and Minister of Municipal Affairs.—Hon. C. M. Hamilton.

Attorney General and Minister in Charge of the Bureau of Child Protection.—Hon. J. A. Cross.

Minister of Highways and Minister in Charge of the Bureau of Labour and Industries.—Hon. J. G. Gardiner.

Provincial Secretary, and Minister in charge of the Bureau of Public Health.—Hon. J. M. Uhrich.

Area and Population.—The area of the province is 251,700 sq. miles, of which 242,808 sq. miles are land area and 8,892 sq. miles water area. GUIANA, BRITISH.

Governor.—Sir Graeme Thomson, K.C.M.G. (appointed 1922). (4,000*l.* and 1,000*l.* Contingencies).

Colonial Secretary.—C. Clementi, C.M.G. (1,350*l.*–1,500*l.*)

This territory, including the settlements of Demerara, Essequibo, and Berbice, named from the three rivers, was first partially settled by the Dutch West India Company about 1620. The Dutch retained their hold, in spite of attacks from the English, French, and Portuguese, until 1796, when it was captured by the English, and it was finally ceded to Great Britain in 1814.

Constitution and Government.—The Governor is assisted by a Court of Policy, a legislative body, consisting of seven official members and eight elected members, and a Combined Court, containing, in addition to the above, six financial representatives elected by the registered voters. The Combined Court considers the Estimate of Expenditure, raises the Ways and Means to meet it, and this Court alone can levy taxes. Executive and administrative functions are exercised by the Governor and an Executive Council. There are 6,311 registered electors. The law of the Colony, both civil and criminal, is based on the common and statute law of England, except that the English law of personal property applies to both movable and immovable property, with certain exceptions, and the Roman-Dutch legitimatisation per subsequens matrimonium is preserved.

Area, Population, etc.—Area, 89,480 square miles. Population at census 1911 (excluding about 13,000 aborigines in the unfrequented parts of the colony), 296,000 (males 154,000, females 142,000). Population, census 1921, 297,691 (excluding about 9,700 aborigines). Births (1921) 10,287 (34·5 per 1,000); deaths, 9,200 (30·9 per 1,000). Capital, Georgetown, 55,490. Living on sugar estates (census 1921), 58,827; Immigration Department estimate East Indians (1921), 58,275; in villages and Settlements (1921), 66,625. Total East Indians (1921), 124,900. Returned to India (1921), 473. 224 schools received Government grant (68,658*l.*) in 1921; 36,865 pupils; average daily attendance, 21,661; teachers, 1,058. Secondary education is provided for both boys and girls and there is provision for industrial or vocational training.

Communications.—There are 97½ miles of railway; 450 miles river navigation; 39 miles of canals; 322 miles of good roads. A Government cattle trail, in all 280 miles, is now completed between the Rupununi, Savannah and the Berbice and Demerara Rivers—a route along which it was contemplated before the war to run a railway. There are 75 post-offices, of which 45 are telegraph offices, 50 money order offices, 51 savings banks, and 9 travelling post offices. There are about 573 miles of post-office telegraphs and cables, and a telephone exchange in Georgetown and New Amsterdam having (1921) 2,128 miles of aerial wire, and 5½ miles of cables, with 800 subscribers; 100 miles of land line are also maintained for railway, telephones, and signals.

Money.—Accounts are kept in dollars and cents (1 dollar = 4*s.* 2*d.*). In circulation are British gold, silver and bronze coin, with some silver 'bits,'—fourpenny pieces—local coins. United States gold coins are also current and are legal tender. Notes are issued by the Royal Bank of Canada and Colonial Bank in denominations of 5, 20, and 100 dollars, and there are Government currency notes of one and two dollars. The face value of the latter in circulation at 31 December, 1921, was 166,667*l.*

HONDURAS, BRITISH.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Sir E. Hutson, K.C.M.G. (2,000*l.*), assisted by an Executive Council of six members, and a Legislative Council consisting of five official and seven unofficial members.

British Honduras is a Crown Colony on the Caribbean Sea, south of Yucatan, and 660 miles west from Jamaica, noted for its production of mahogany and logwood. Its early settlement was probably effected by woodcutters from Jamaica about 1638, and from that date to 1798, in spite of opposition from the Spaniards, settlers held their own and prospered. In 1786 the Home Government appointed a Superintendent, and in 1862 the settlement was declared a Colony, subordinate to Jamaica. It became an independent colony in 1884.

Area and Population.—Area, 8,592 sq. miles. Population, census 1921, 45,317 (22,564 males, and 22,753 females). The birth-rate per 1,000 (1921) was 35.48 and the death-rate 24.00. Illegitimate births, 43.14 per cent. of births. In 1921 there were 370 marriages. Primary schools (1921), 59; children enrolled, 6,623; average attendance, 5,027; Government grant (expended), 9,259*l.* There are 3 schools with secondary departments, and altogether about 481 pupils. They are under denominational management and none receive aid from Government. The town of Belize is a Centre for the Cambridge Local Examinations. In 1921, 706 persons were convicted in police courts, and 26 in the Supreme Court. The police force contains (January 1, 1922) 3 officers, 143 non-commissioned officers and men. Chief town: Belize; population, census of 1921: 12,661 (5,896 males, and 6,765 females).

NEWFOUNDLAND AND LABRADOR.

Newfoundland was discovered by John Cabot in 1497. It was soon frequented by the Portuguese, Spanish and French for its fisheries. Raleigh and others made unsuccessful attempts to colonise the island, but in the 17th century English colonists established themselves there. A French station also existed on the island, and there were constant disputes as to fishing rights. Although exclusive British sovereignty was ceded in 1713 by the Treaty of Utrecht, these disputes were not finally settled till 1904.

The coast is rugged, especially on the south-west, where the coast range reaches an elevation of nearly 2,000 feet. The hills attain their summit within a few miles of the salt water, and then spread out into an undulating country, consisting largely of barrens and marshes, and intersected by numerous rivers and lakes. On the borders of the lakes and water-courses good land is generally found, and in some cases, as about the Exploits, the Gander and the Humber, it is heavily timbered.

Area and Population.—Area, 42,734 square miles. Population in 1921, 259,358 (132,260 males and 127,098 females). Dependent on Newfoundland is Labrador, the most easterly part of the American continent, with an area of 120,000 square miles, and population (1921) of 3,621. Of the total Newfoundland population in 1911, 67,040 were engaged in the fisheries, 2,915 were farmers, 5,376 mechanics, 2,260 miners. Capital, St. John's, 37,047 inhabitants (1921); other towns (1921) being Harbour Grace, 3,825; Bonavista, 4,025; Carbonear, 3,320; Twillingate, 3,217, and Grand Falls, 3,769. The birth rate in 1921 was 27·65, and the death rate 13·29 per 1,000. Immigrants (1921), 8,865; emigrants, 8,233.

Constitution and Government.—The Governor is assisted by an Executive Council (not exceeding 9 members), a Legislative Council (not exceeding 24 members), and an elected House of Assembly consisting of 36 representatives. Members of the Legislative Council receive 250 dollars per session; members of the Legislative Assembly receive 1,000 dollars per session. For electoral purposes the whole colony is divided into 18 districts or constituencies. Women are not (September, 1922) enfranchised.

After the general election of November 1919, the Government supporters in the House of Assembly numbered 23, and the opposition 13.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Sir William L. Allardyce, K.C.M.G. appointed September, 1922; salary 12,500 dollars, with travelling allowance of 2,500 dollars.

The Ministry (September, 1922) is as follows:—

Prime Minister and Colonial Secretary.—Hon. Sir R. A. Squires, K.C., K.C.M.G., LL.B.

Minister of Justice and Attorney-General.—Hon. W. R. Warren, K.C.

Minister of Finance and Customs.—Hon. H. J. Brownrigg.

Minister of Agriculture and Mines.—Hon. A. Campbell, F.R.C.S.

Minister of Marine and Fisheries.—Hon. W. F. Coaker.

Minister of Posts and Telegraphs.—Hon. W. W. Halfyard.

Minister of Education.—Hon. Arthur Barnes, Ph.D.

Ministers without Portfolios. Hon. S. J. Foote and Hon. Geo. Shea.

Not in the Cabinet:

Minister of Shipping.—W. H. Cove, Esq.

Minister of Public Works.—W. B. Jennings, Esq.

The ministers with departments receive salaries of 4,000 dollars each.

High Commissioner in London.—Sir Edgar R. Bowring, 58 Victoria Street, S.W.

Religion and Instruction.—Of the total population in 1921, 84,498 belonged to the Church of England, 86,478 were Roman Catholics, 74,334 Methodists, 1,875 Presbyterians, 13,051 Salvation Army, 2,702 other denominations. At the colleges of the Church of England, Roman Catholic, and Methodist bodies, in 1921 there were 361, 601 and 612 students respectively. The number of schools of all kinds (1921) was 1,107: Church of England, 383; Roman Catholic, 324; Methodist, 325; and other denomina-

Of the Revenue for 1913-14, 633,793*l.*; for 1917-18, 1,012,031*l.*; for 1918-19, 1,478,203*l.*; for 1919-20, 1,779,753*l.*; for 1920-21, 1,238,800*l.* were from Customs. Public debt (1920), 43,033,036 dollars (8,845,677*l.*).

Production, &c.—The chief agricultural products in 1921 were: hay (2,570,747 dollars), potatoes (1,616,487 dollars), cabbage (369,589 dollars), turnips (193,216 dollars), and oats (833 dollars); the total value of all crops harvested being 14,367,877 dollars. In 1921 (census figures) there were in Newfoundland 16,145 horses, 27,789 cattle, 86,145 sheep, and 14,110 swine. Some fine pine forests exist to the north, and large saw mills have been established. The mineral resources of Newfoundland are considerable. Large beds of iron ore have been found on Bell Island in Conception Bay, on the east coast, and other rich deposits have been discovered on the west coast. The total deposits are estimated at about 3,600 million tons. Exports, 1920-21, 607,982 tons, valued at 672,061 dollars. Copper ore and pyrites are worked. Coal is found near St. George's Bay on the west coast, and in the Grand Lake district. In the eastern part of the island gold-bearing quartz rock and extensive deposits of silver and lead ore have been found. Extensive paper and pulp mills have been erected at Grand Falls, Bishop's Falls, and at Lomond in Bonne Bay, and one at Alexander Bay is about to be built.

Imports and exports, including bullion and specie, for five years:—

Molasses . . .	805,940	Lobsters (tinned) . . .	394,954

Of the imports (1921-22) the value of 2,036,218 dollars came from the United Kingdom ; 9,077,165 from Canada ; 6,127,958 from the United States. Of the exports the value of 4,805,305 dollars went to the United Kingdom ; 1,113,806 to Canada ; 1,806,511 to United States ; 2,877,714 to Portugal ; 2,628,010 to Spain ; 1,853,400 to Italy ; 1,712,443 to Brazil.

Shipping.—Total tonnage of vessels entered and cleared in 1920–21, 1,869,253 tons, of which 1,444,951 tons were British. Vessels registered December 31, 1921, 3,352 sailing vessels of 150,954 tons, and 147 steam vessels of 23,361 tons ; total, 3,499 vessels of 174,315 tons.

Fishing is the principal occupation of the population. The principal fish are cod, salmon, halibut, lobster, caplin, and seal : the value of the fishing products is about four millions sterling annually.

By the Anglo-French Convention of 1904, France renounced her exclusive fishing rights under the treaty of Utrecht, but retained the right to fish in territorial waters from St. John's Cape northwards to Cape Ray for all sorts of fish, including bait and crustacea. An agreement for the submission of the Newfoundland fisheries disputes to The Hague was concluded at Washington, January 27, 1909. The award was published in September, 1910, and was satisfactory to British claims. Among other things, it secured the right of Great Britain to make regulations without the consent of the United States, subject to any limitations imposed by treaty. It also confirmed Great Britain's contention that the whole extent of a bay from headland to headland is comprised within territorial waters.

There were engaged in the Bank cod fishery during 1920, 793 men, and 50 Newfoundland sailing vessels, aggregating 3,154 net tons, an increase on 1919 of 61 men and 9 vessels of 280 tons. The catch in 1920 totalled 94,461 quintals of dry fish, valued at 1,039,071 dollars, as compared with 94,770 quintals, valued at 1,137,240 dollars, for the previous year. The output of the Shore cod fishery is estimated at 1,340,000 quintals of dry fish, valued at 18,760,000 dollars. There were 14,800 small sailing vessels, boats (including motor boats), &c., utilised, and 37,320 men employed in this fishery. In 1920, the exports of codfish, including the Labrador fishery, amounted to 1,788,015 quintals. The catch of lobsters was 1,326,000 in 1917 ; 966,000 in 1918 ; 1,556,677 in 1919 ; 2,331,295 in 1920 ; and 2,422,080 in 1921.

During 1922, 126,031 seals were caught ; 9 vessels and 1,441 men were engaged in the seal fishery. In 1921 the catch was 101,452 seals.

Communications, &c.—Railways open 1922 : 904 miles of Government line with a gauge of 3 ft. 6 in., and 47 miles of private line. By acts of the Newfoundland Legislature in 1910 an agreement was made by the Government for the construction and maintenance of five branch lines of railway running to Bonavista, Heart's Content, and Grate's Cove, Trepassey, Fortune Bay, and Bonne Bay. The Government agreed to pay the contractors 15,000 dollars a mile for construction and to give 4,000 acres of land per mile constructed for operation, to do which it raised by loan 3,893,200 dollars. The line to Bonavista was completed in 1911, the line to Trepassey in 1913, and the lines to Heart's Content and Grate's Cove in 1914. These lines open up various fertile sections of the island. Communication between various points on the coast and between the island and the continent is maintained by a fleet of 13 first-class steamers, each of which connects with some central point on the railway. There were in 1921, 393 post offices, 227 of which were telegraph and 126 telephone offices. Letters and cards sent in 1921, 4,500,000 ; newspapers, books, &c., 3,600,000 ; parcels, 253,655. •Post office revenue, 72,567½ ; expenditure, 244,971½. Telegraph line open (1922), 4,600 miles ; 965 miles of telephone wire.

In December, 1921, the Newfoundland Savings Bank held 2,172,695 dollars standing to the credit of 5,007 depositors; this is in addition to the amounts held by the Savings Departments of the four banks doing business in St. John's.

The legal coin of the colony is the gold dollar, equivalent to 4s. 1½d. of British money.

Administrator.—Robert Walter, C.M.G.

TRINIDAD

Immediately north of the mouth of the Orinoco, includes Tobago administratively.

Trinidad was discovered by Columbus in 1498 and colonized by the Spaniards in the 16th century. The Dutch, English and French often interfered with them, and about the period of the Revolution a large number of French families settled in the island, where the French element is still preponderant. In 1797, Great Britain being at war with Spain, Trinidad was occupied by the British, and annexed in 1802.

Governor.—Col. Sir S. H. Wilson, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., C.B., R.E. (5,500*l.*), with Executive Council of 6 official members and 1 unofficial member, and a Legislative Council of 10 official and 11 unofficial members, all nominated.

Colonial Secretary.—T. A. V. Best, C.M.G., C.B.E.

AUSTRALASIA AND OCEANIA.

THE British Territories in Australasia comprise the self-governing States and Territories which now form the Commonwealth of Australia; the Australian Dependencies of Papua and Norfolk Island, the self-governing Dominion of New Zealand and adjacent islands, and the Crown Colony of Fiji. The British possessions in Oceania include the Solomon and Tonga Islands, and many other groups of islands and islets scattered over the Pacific. There are also the mandatory territories of New Guinea, Western Samoa, and Nauru.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA.

The Commonwealth of Australia, consisting of the six colonies (now denominated Original States) of New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, Western Australia, and Tasmania, was proclaimed at Sydney January 1, 1901. After five of these colonies had, by legislative enactments, approved by the direct vote of the electors, declared their desire for a Federal Union, the British Parliament, on July 9, 1900, passed the Act to constitute the Commonwealth. This Act provided for the inclusion of Western Australia in the Federation if that colony so desired, and in the following month the colonial legislation necessary for this end was passed.

On September 1, 1906, the administration of Papua was transferred to the Commonwealth (see Papua).

Legislative power is vested in a Federal Parliament, consisting of the King, represented by a Governor-General, a Senate, and a House of Representatives. There must be a session of Parliament at least once every year. The Senate consists of 36 Senators (at least six for each of the Original States voting as one electorate) chosen for six years. In general, the Senate will be renewed to the extent of one-half every three years, but in case of prolonged disagreement with the House of Representatives, it may be dissolved, and an entirely new Senate elected. The House of Representatives consists, as nearly as may be, of twice as many members as there are Senators, the numbers chosen in the several States being in proportion to the respective numbers of their people (aboriginal natives are not counted) as shown by the latest statistics of the Commonwealth, but not less than five for any original State. Number in 1921, 75. Every House of Representatives continues for three years from the date of its first meeting, unless sooner dissolved. Electoral qualifications for both Chambers of the first Federal Parliament were those for the more numerous House of the Parliament of the State in which the elector was competent to vote. Every Senator or Member of the House of Representatives must be a natural-born subject of the King, or have been for five years a naturalised subject under a law of the United Kingdom or of a State of the Commonwealth. He or she must be of full age, must possess electoral qualification, and have resided for three years within the Commonwealth. Since the first Parliament of the Commonwealth was instituted, an Electoral Act has unified the franchise for both Chambers, on the basis of universal adult (male and female) suffrage.

The state of parties in the House of Representatives is (January, 1923): Labour, 29; Nationalists, 27; Country and Liberal, 19.

The legislative powers of the Federal Parliament are extensive, embracing commerce, shipping, &c.; finance, banking, currency, &c.; defence; external affairs; postal, telegraph, and like services; census and statistics; weights and measures; copyright; railways; conciliation and arbitration in industrial disputes extending beyond the limits of any one State; and many other matters. The Senate may not originate or amend money bills; and disagreement with the House of Representatives may result in dissolution, or, in the last resort, a joint sitting of the two Houses. No religion may be established. The several State Parliaments retain legislative authority in all matters which are not transferred to the Federal Parliament, which is thus a government of limited and enumerated powers, the several State Parliaments retaining the residuary power of government over their respective territories. If a State law is inconsistent with a Commonwealth law, the latter prevails.

An arrangement was approved in November 1921 for a transfer of industrial powers to the Federal Parliament, to avoid conflicts between the decisions of Federal and State tribunals (see under Justice below).

The Executive power, vested in the King, is exercised by the Governor-General, who is assisted by an Executive Council of not more than nine responsible Ministers of State. These Ministers are, or must become within three months, members of the Federal Parliament; they are paid salaries and allowances not exceeding, in all, 22,500*l.* a year. The Executive Government of the Commonwealth is constituted (February 1923) as follows:—

Governor-General.—His Excellency the Rt. Hon. Henry William, Baron Forster of Lepe, P.C., G.C.M.G., Commander-in-Chief of the Commonwealth of Australia and its Dependencies (salary, £10,000).

Prime Minister and Minister for External Affairs.—Right Hon. S. M. Bruce.

Attorney General.—Hon. L. E. Groom.

Treasurer.—Hon. Dr. Earle Page.

Minister of Defence.—Hon. E. K. Bowden.

Public Works and Railways.—Hon. P. G. Stewart.

Minister of Trade and Customs.—Hon. A. Chapman.

Home and Territories.—Rt. Hon. G. F. Pearce.

Postmaster-General.—Hon. W. G. Gibson.

Vice-President of the Executive Council.—Hon. L. Atkinson.

Ministers without Portfolio.—Hon. R. V. Wilson, Hon. T. W. Crawford.

High Commissioner for Commonwealth in London.—Rt. Hon. Sir Joseph Cook, P.C., G.C.M.G.

Official Secretary for the Commonwealth in London.—M. L. Shepherd, I.S.O., Australia House, Strand.

Commissioner for Commonwealth in America.—Vacant.

Trade Commissioner for Commonwealth in China.—E. S. Little, Shanghai and Hong Kong.

Trade Commissioner at Singapore.—E. T. Sheaf.

The Constitution provides for a Federal Judicature, and an inter-State Commission on Trade and Commerce, for the transfer of State officials, State property, and State debts to the Commonwealth, and for the admission or creation of new States. A High Court (consisting of 7 judges), the supreme Federal Court, has been established, with original as well as appellate jurisdiction. Appeal lies to the King in Council only in special circumstances. The Interstate Commission was constituted in 1913; the members are appointed by the Governor-General in Council and hold office for seven years. The selection of the Yass-Canberra site for the Federal Capital was voted in the Senate and House of Representatives, and in 1911, the Commonwealth acquired from the State of New South Wales an area of approximately 912 square miles. A further area of 28 square miles at Jervis Bay was acquired in 1917 for purposes of a Naval College, with the right to construct a railway from the Capital thereto. At present the Federal Government has its seat at Melbourne.

Proposed laws for the alteration of the Constitution must be submitted to the electors, and they can only be enacted if approved by a majority of the States and also a majority of all the electors voting.

Finance.

Actual revenue and expenditure for 1918-19 to 1921-22 are given in the following table. The payments to States represent the balances of revenue collected in the several States after the necessary expenditure on Commonwealth services. Under the "Surplus Revenue Act, 1910," the amount payable by the Commonwealth to each State from July 1, 1910, is a sum equivalent to 25 shillings per head of the population as estimated by the Commonwealth Statistician at 31st December in each year. Tasmania is receiving, in addition, a total sum of 900,000*l.* in ten annual instalments, starting from 1912-13. An extra instalment of 85,000*l.* was voted in September, 1922.

The estimates for 1922-23 are : revenue, 59,568,250*l.* ; expenditure, 62,273,693*l.*

The aggregate public debt of the several Australian States on June 30, 1921, was 458,408,900*l.*

The Commonwealth public debt on June 30th, 1922, was 416,070,509*l.*, including 367,574,753*l.* owing in respect of war loans.

The total Australian war expenditure for the seven years ending June 30, 1922, was 477,498,000*l.*, of which 135,340,000*l.* was charged against revenue, and 342,158,000*l.* against loans.

Invalid and Old Age Pensions.

The Invalid and Old Age Pension Acts provide for the payment of invalid and old age pensions at such rates as the Commissioner deciding the question deems sufficient, but so that the amount shall not exceed 39*l.* a year, nor the pensioner's whole income (including the pension) exceed 65*l.* a year (prior to 1916, the amounts were 26*l.* and 52*l.* respectively). Old age pensions are granted upon application to persons who are at least 65 years of age and have lived in Australia or Australian territory at least 20 years. Invalid pensions are granted to persons who have lived at least 5 years in Australia, have there become incapacitated, and have no other sufficient means of support. On October 9, 1912, a Maternity Bill was passed providing for the payment of a bonus up to a maximum amount of 5*l.* in respect of every child born in Australia, of white parentage. The disbursements for old age and invalid pensions and maternity allowances are shown under Finance above. The numbers of pensioners in the Commonwealth on June 30, 1922, were :—Old age, 105,096 ; invalid, 39,019 ; total, 144,115. War pensioners at June 30, 1922, numbered 225,372.

Justice.

The judicial power of the Commonwealth is vested in a Federal Supreme Court (the High Court of Australia), consisting of a Chief Justice and five Justices, appointed by the Governor-General in Council. The High Court has original jurisdiction in all matters arising under treaties, between States of the Commonwealth, or affecting representatives of other countries, as well as in other matters as empowered by the Parliament. It may also hear and determine appeals from judgments of its own Justices exercising original jurisdiction, and from judgments of any other Federal Court, or of the Supreme Court of any State, subject to certain rights of final appeal to the King in Council.

An arrangement was approved in November, 1921, for a transfer of industrial powers to the Federal Parliament in order to avoid conflict between the decisions of Federal and State tribunals. It is proposed to establish a tribunal of Commonwealth and State Judges with power to determine for the whole of Australia such questions as the basic wage and the standard working week, to decide what are Federal and what are State disputes, to settle the scope of the jurisdiction of Federal and State Courts, and act as a Court of Appeal from inferior Courts. Its decision is to be supreme.

Defence.

ARMY.

The principle of the defence policy of Australia is the universal compulsory training of a Citizen Army. Permanent troops are maintained only in such numbers as are necessary to administer and instruct the Citizen Forces. The army is organised in 2 cavalry divisions, 4 complete divisions, 3 mixed brigades, which in certain circumstances will be capable of union with a fifth division. These divisions are supplemented by the proportion of 'extra divisional units,' which war has shown to be necessary and of which the Commonwealth is, at the time, capable. The Divisional Commander has complete responsibility for the preparation for war of the forces under his command. An area is allotted to him and a personnel provided as the fixed machinery of the unit. The Military Board, under the presidency of the Minister of Defence, has responsibility for control and administration. The Council of Defence, under the presidency of the Prime Minister, deals with policy and insures its continuity, and co-ordinates the requirements of the sea, air, and land. The trainee who served in the Australian Imperial Force is exempted from further training, but members of that Force may join the new forces, in their old units, becoming a reserve upon which the scheme is built. Facilities are given to these men to fill positions in the commissioned and non-commissioned ranks. In November, 1922, the reserve consisted of 48,000 men of war service who have signified their desire to be enrolled.

The youth of 17 or 18 years of age is given an advanced degree of physical and recreational training, and is also prepared for graduation to the Citizen Force. The period of training in the Citizen Forces is 4 years. In the first year with the Citizen Forces the trainee is required to give 10 weeks, and in the following three years 6 days annually. At the end of that period, i.e., in his twenty-second year, he is freed from training, but for a further period of four years he will be required to register.

An arsenal has been established, which will be more in the form of a munition supply branch aiming at insuring the supply of war needs through Australian trade rather than that Government-owned factories shall be designed on a scale necessary for the purpose. Properly situated mobilisation stores are being provided.

Military education is provided at the Royal Military College, Duntroon from which cadets may obtain permanent commissions.

Rifle clubs receive a subsidy and a free grant of ammunition.

The military forces of the Commonwealth on June 30, 1922, were :

District and State	Perma- nent	Area Officers	Citizen soldiers	Rifle clubs	Reserve of Officers and unattached list.	Others	Total

In September, 1922, the Inspector-General of the Military Forces reported that with the enrolment of the reserve of men of war service the peace establishment of the Citizen Force could be reduced from 118,000 to 30,000.

NAVY.

Sydney is a first-class naval station, and the headquarters of the British fleet in Australasia. The Naval Agreement Act of 1903 (for 10 years) provided that the Naval Force on the Australian Station should consist of not less than one armoured cruiser, first-class, two second-class cruisers, four third-class cruisers, four sloops, and of a Royal Naval Reserve of 25 officers and 700 seamen and stokers. The base of this force should be the ports of Australia and New Zealand, and their sphere of operations the waters of the Australia, China, and East India Stations. They were officered by officers of the Royal Navy and Royal Naval Reserve. Eight nominations for naval cadetships were to be given annually to the Commonwealth, and two to New Zealand. An annual charge of 200,000*l.* was to be paid to the Imperial Government by the Commonwealth, and 40,000*l.* by New Zealand. These payments continued till 1912-13, when the larger obligation of fleet-building was accepted by the Commonwealth, with maintenance of its own vessels.

On June 30, 1922, the naval forces of the Commonwealth were as follows:—Permanent naval forces (sea-going), 3,972; cadet midshipmen under training, 48; boys under training, 123; Royal Australian Naval Reserve, 3,766; R.N. Reserve (sea-going), 43; total, 7,952. The Imperial Government have presented to the Commonwealth a number of vessels, destroyers, submarines, and sloops, as addition to the permanent force became necessary. The naval estimates for 1922-23 were 2,088,900*l.*

The policy of the Commonwealth is to make Australia self-defending. Having accepted the position that a fuller Imperial partnership is necessary for the future security of the Empire, and that a definite place in the Pacific has been allotted to Australia, the Government agreed in 1911 to furnish an Australian Fleet Unit, upon which King George conferred the title of 'Royal Australian Navy.' The ships and vessels of the Royal Australian Navy are named in the British lists. They are the battle-cruiser, Australia, and the light-cruisers, Adelaide, Melbourne, Sydney, Brisbane, and Encounter. In addition are the following:—the flotilla leader Anzac (1917), 1,660 tons, 34 knots, 4 in. guns; 'river class' destroyers, Huon, Parramatta, Swan, Torrens, Warrego, and Yarra (1910-15), 700 tons, 27 knots; 'S' class, Stalwart, Success, Swordsmen, Tasmania, Tattoo, (1918-19), 1,075 tons, 36 knots; submarines, J1 to J7 (1916-17), surface displacement, 1,210 tons, 19 knots; submerged displacement, 1,820 tons, 9½ knots. The Australian Navy also includes three sloops (1,250 tons) and the older light cruisers Pioneer and others, the submarine depot ship Platypus, the gunboat Cerberus, and some patrol vessels.

AIR FORCES

The Royal Australian Air Force, administered by the Air Board, consisting of two Air Force Members and a finance member, has been formed. To this force is entrusted the air defence of the Commonwealth, the training of personnel for co-operation with the naval and military forces, and the refresher training of pilots engaging in Civil Aviation. The present establishment of the force includes the following units:—(a) Headquarters, Royal Australian Air Force, with representation at the Air Ministry in London; and (b) one station at which are located an aircraft depôt with store and repair facilities, a Flying Training School, and one squadron of Citizen Force personnel with a nucleus of permanent personnel. The Minister is assisted by a representative Air Council, which includes officers of the Navy, Army, and Air Force, and the Controller of Civil Aviation.

Production.

Up to the year 1920, 763,305,355 acres, representing 40·10 per cent. of the total area of the Australian Commonwealth, were either unoccupied or occupied by the Crown; only 5·73 per cent. had been actually alienated (169,074,869 acres); 2·98 per cent. (56,748,389 acres) was in course of alienation; and 51·19 per cent. (974,603,227 acres) was held under the various forms of leases and licences.

The area under crops (distinguishing the principal crops) in the Commonwealth, and the yield in 1920-21, were as follows:—

The total area under all crops in 1920-21 was 15,069,858 acres. The total value of agricultural production in the same year was 112,796,395*l*. Of Australia's total forest area of 92,500,000 acres, 17,670,000 acres have been specially reserved for timber. Wheat acreage 1921-22, • 9,727,000; yield, 128,972,000 bushels. The total sugar crop of 1920-21 was 183,000 tons; of 1921-22, 299,000 tons, and the estimated yield for 1922-23 is 300,000 tons.

At or about the end of 1920 there were in the Commonwealth 2,415,500 horses, 13,499,700 cattle, 77,897,600 sheep, and 764,400 pigs.

The production of wool in 1920-21 amounted to 547,603,000 lb., valued at 32,856,000*l*., and the exports to 417,900,000 lb. greasy, valued at 25,305,000L., and 68,124,000 lb. scoured and tops, valued at 8,476,000L. The exports of tallow amounted in value to 1,360,000L.; of sheepskins to 1,242,000L.; and of frozen meat to 6,022,000L. The butter produced in season 1920-21 amounted to 208,082,000 lb., and 92,421,000 lb., valued at 11,067,000L., were exported during that period.

The mineral output was valued as follows in 1920 and 1921:—

	1920	1921		1920	1921
	£	£		£	£
Gold	5,208,000	4,019,000	Coal	9,508,000	11,015,000

Tin	1,125,000	1,125,000	Total	22,457,000	21,005,000

The total mineral production up to the end of 1921 was valued at 1,020,440,000L.; of this amount 609,300,000L. was the value of gold. Gold production, 1920, 943,654 fine oz.; 1921, 758,000 fine oz.

Statistics of the manufacturing industries in the Commonwealth in 1920-21 are given as follows:—Number of establishments, 17,113; hands employed, 386,639; salaries and wages paid, 62,932,000L.; value of plant and machinery, land and buildings, 129,487,000L.; value of materials used, 205,866,000L.; value added by manufacture, 118,720,000L.; value of output, 324,587,000L.

The estimated value of the products of the Commonwealth in 1917, 1918, 1919-20 and 1920-21 were:—

A Commonwealth Bureau of Commerce and Industry was established in 1919 to organise the country's resources, and frame a policy for the expansion of trade, improvement of methods, and establishment of new industries.

Commerce.

Throughout the Commonwealth there are uniform customs duties, and trade between the States is free. For 1920-21, the net revenue collected from customs duties amounted to 21,730,581L.

The following table shows for 6 years the value of the imports and exports (merchandise, bullion, and specie) into or from the Australian Commonwealth from or into countries outside the Commonwealth.

The value of goods imported represents the amount on which duty is payable or would be payable if the duty were ad valorem. The value of goods subject to duty is taken to be the fair market value in the principal markets of the country whence the same were exported, with an addition of 10 per cent. to such market value.

The Customs Tariff Act of 1920 provides for preference to goods produced in and shipped from the United Kingdom to Australia as against the goods of other countries, and for reciprocal tariff agreements with other countries. It also affords a larger measure of protection to Australian industries than previous tariffs. With a view to the arrangement of more equitable trade relations between the Commonwealth of Australia and the Dominion of New Zealand, the Ministers of Customs for these countries have agreed (1922) to recommend to their respective Parliaments reciprocal Customs Tariffs.

The value of goods exported is the value in the principal markets of the Commonwealth in the usual and ordinary commercial acceptance of the term.

Private railways in Commonwealth, open for general traffic, 1921, 994 miles; not open for general traffic, 1,912 miles

A trans-continental railway from north to south, over 1,000 miles in length, is under consideration. Railway schemes have been approved for opening up fresh lands north of the River Murray.

In Victoria a scheme for the electrification of the railways is being carried out; about 105 miles have been converted to electric traction. It is expected that the scheme will be completed about the middle of 1923, when approximately 143 miles will have been converted. Electric railways are also to be constructed in Sydney.

The State railway gauge is:—In N.S. Wales, 4ft. 8½in. (40 miles, 3ft. 6in.); in Victoria, 5ft. 3in. (122 miles, 2ft. 6in.); in Queensland, 3ft. 6in. (30 miles, 2ft. 0in.); in South Australia, 5ft. 3in. for 1,124 miles, the rest, 3ft. 6in.; in W. Australia, 3ft. 6in.; and in Tasmania, 3ft. 6in. (24 miles, 2ft. 0in.). Of the Federal lines, the gauge of the Trans-Australian and Federal Territory is 4ft. 8½in.; and that of the Oodnadatta and Northern Territory is 3ft. 6in. A commission has recommended a uniform 4ft. 8½in. gauge, and this has been accepted in principle. Steps are being taken to begin the conversion of the main trunk lines of all States, and the 5ft. 3in. gauges of Victoria and South Australia.

The following are the particulars of the operations of the electric tramways of the several States of the Commonwealth for the year ended June 30, 1921 :—

There are also 172 miles steam, cable and horse traction, making a total of 617 miles.

Of the total length the several Governments control 418 miles, municipal authorities, 104, and private enterprise, 95 miles.

Postal and telegraph business, year ended June 30, 1921 : number of Post and Receiving Offices, 8,369 ; letters and cards received and despatched, 569,343,456 ; newspapers, books, and circulars, 130,882,425 ; parcels, 7,191,717 ; packets, 51,408,411 ; registered articles, 6,883,781 ; telegrams and cablegrams, 22,166,945. Receipts, 1920-21 : Post Office, 4,658,907*l.* ; telegraphs and telephones, 3,852,587*l.* Expenses : Post Office, telegraphs and telephones, 7,367,726*l.* (including interest on transferred properties).

An aerial mail service is in operation in Western Australia, and contracts have been let for similar services in the Eastern States. The contractors are being subsidised by the Commonwealth Government.

Wireless telegraphy stations are in operation in all the State Capitals, and in certain other places.

Money and Credit.

On January 20, 1913, the Commonwealth Bank was opened at Sydney. Branches have been opened at the other State capitals, also at Townsville, Canberra, London, and several country centres. Deposits (general and savings bank) at June 30, 1921, were 70,705,875*l.* The bank started without capital, and began to make profits in 1913-14. At June 1921 the accumulated profits held at credit of reserve funds amounted to 3,451,365*l.*

There are, besides, 20 private banks trading in the Commonwealth. Their paid-up capital on June 30 1921, was 40,251,925*l.*, and the amount of reserved profits 22,481,950*l.*

The following table shows the total liabilities in Banks trading in the Commonwealth, in the quarter ended June 30, for 5 years :—

Australian notes, authorised by the Australian Notes Act, began to appear in circulation in December, 1910, and for the first half of the year 1911 circulated side by side with ordinary bank notes. By the end of 1911 the bank notes were withdrawn.

On July 31, 1922, notes issued by the Commonwealth and unredeemed amounted to 53,390,897. Of this total 1,000l. notes accounted for 19,530,000l., 1l. notes, 14,263,832l., and 5l. notes, 9,613,357l. The amount of gold held in reserve on that date was 23,533,644l., representing 44·08 per cent. of the liability.

NORFOLK ISLAND, 29° S. latitude, 168° E. longitude, area 18 square miles, population (1921) 717 (239 males and 378 females). The island was formerly part of the Colony of New South Wales and then of Van Diemen's Land. It has been a distinct settlement since 1856, and under an Order-in-Council of 1900 was governed by the Governor of New South Wales; but from July 1, 1914, the affairs of the island have been administered by the Commonwealth Government. In 1920-21 the imports (mostly from the Commonwealth and New Zealand) were valued at 22,673l., and the exports, 13,091l. To encourage the development of the fish industry the Commonwealth Government has granted an annuity of 1,000l. for three years to those engaged in the trade.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

Constitution and Government.

New South Wales became a British Possession in 1788; in 1843 a partially elective Legislative Council was established, and in 1855 responsible government was granted. The constitution is embodied in the consolidating Act passed in 1902. The legislative power is vested in a Parliament of two Houses, the first called the Legislative Council, and the second the Legislative Assembly. The Legislative Council consists of not less than twenty-one members (83 in July, 1922), appointed by the Crown for life. Members are not entitled to remuneration, but travel free on the State railways and tramways. The President receives an annual salary of 925*l.*, and the Chairman of Committees, 500*l.* One-fourth of the members, exclusive of the President, is necessary to form a quorum for the dispatch of business. The Legislative Assembly has 90 members. Under an Act passed in 1918 Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales are elected in accordance with the principles of proportional representation, and the State has been divided into electoral districts so arranged that those within the metropolitan and adjacent areas, and that containing the City of Newcastle, are represented by five, and the remaining districts by three members. In all there are 24 electorates—9 returning five members and 15 returning three members each. Postal voting is permissible. Every man or woman, being a natural born or naturalised British subject above 21 years of age, having resided six months in the Commonwealth, three months in the State, and one month in the electorate, is qualified as an elector. The hours of polling are from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., polling day being a public holiday from mid-day; under the liquor laws hotels are closed during the hours of polling. Members of the Legislative Assembly are paid 600*l.* per annum, in addition to which they are allowed to travel free on Government railways and tramways in the State, and receive a postage allowance for correspondence. The leader of the Opposition is allowed 250*l.* per annum in addition. The Speaker of the Legislative Assembly receives a salary of 1,400*l.* per annum, the Chairman of Committees 840*l.*, the Premier 2,000*l.*, the Attorney-General 1,600*l.*, and the other ministers, except the Vice-President of the Executive Council, 1,500*l.* each. The salary of the Vice-President of the Executive Council (leader of the Government in the Legislative Council) is 900*l.* The duration of a Parliament is not more than three years. At the State general election of 1922, 875,464 electors (466,949 males, and 408,515 females), or 69·98 per cent. of electors enrolled and qualified to vote, recorded their votes. In New South Wales, at the Senate Federal election of 1919, 400,477 males (or 72·77 per cent.) out of 550,363 enrolled, and 317,088 females (or 59·93 per cent.) out of 529,076 enrolled, voted. At the House of Representatives (Federal) election of 1919, 385,614 males (or 73·06 per cent.) out of 527,779 males enrolled voted, and 308,183 females (or 60·85 per cent.) out of 508,129 women enrolled voted. The Women's Legal Status Act, 1918, provides that women shall not by reason of sex be disqualified from holding the position of Member of the Legislative Assembly, Mayor or Member of a Local Government Council, Judge of the Supreme Court, or of a District Court, Chairman of Quarter Sessions, Stipendiary or Police Magistrate, Justice of the Peace, Barrister or Solicitor of the Supreme Court, or Conveyancer. The executive is in the hands of a Governor, appointed by the Imperial Government.

Governor.—His Excellency Sir Walter Edward Davidson, K.C.M.G., from February 18, 1918. (Salary, 5,000*l.*)

Lieut.-Governor.—His Excellency the Honourable Sir William Portus Cullen, K.C.M.G., LL.D., Chief Justice of New South Wales.

In the exercise of the executive the Governor is advised by a Cabinet consisting of the following members (September 1922):—

Premier.—The Hon. Sir George Warburton Fuller, K.C.M.G.

Vice-President of the Executive Council.—

Secretary for Lands and Minister for Forests.—The Hon. W. E. Wearne.

Colonial Secretary and Minister for Public Health.—The Hon. C. W.

Oakes.

Attorney-General.—The Hon. T. R. Bavin.

Colonial Treasurer.—The Hon. A. A. C. Cocks.

Secretary for Public Works and Minister for Railways and State Industrial Enterprises.—The Hon. R. T. Ball.

Minister for Agriculture.—Captain The Hon. F. A. Chaffey.

Minister of Public Instruction.—The Hon. A. Bruntnell.

Secretary for Mines and Minister for Local Government.—The Hon. J. C. L. Fitzpatrick.

Minister of Justice.—The Hon. T. J. Ley.

Minister for Labour and Industry.—The Hon. E. H. Farrar.

Agent-General in London.—Sir Timothy A. Coghlan, K.C.M.G., I.S.O.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

Under the Local Government Act of 1906, the system of Local Government was extended to the whole of the State, with the exception of the Western Land Division, where, however, eight municipalities are incorporated. There are 184 boroughs and municipal districts under the title of municipalities, and in addition thereto 136 corporate bodies which are called shires.

The Local Government Act of 1919 repealed former Acts, but existing regulations remain in force until amended or cancelled. Provision is made for Government endowments to shires of a minimum of 150,000*l.* annually, payable on general rates. In addition to the ordinary powers exercised, the municipal and shire councils are authorised to borrow up to 20 per cent. of the unimproved value in municipalities, such loans to be guaranteed by the Government. General rates are charged on the unimproved value of the land, and not on the annual rental. Special local and loan rates may be imposed on the improved or unimproved value at the option of the Council. The rateable value of coal mines is fixed at 50 per cent. of the gross value of the average annual output for the preceding three years, and of other mining properties at 40 per cent. for the same period. Hospitals, benevolent institutions, public libraries, parks, churches, and unoccupied Crown lands are exempt from taxation. Municipalities which are not entitled to a statutory endowment under former Acts may, if in necessitous circumstances, receive endowments. Owners, ratepaying lessees and occupiers of rateable property of annual value not less than 5*l.*, whether male or female, unless not naturalised, in any municipality or shire, and paying rates, are entitled to vote for the election of aldermen or councillors, and are qualified for nomination for a civic office.

Area and Population.

The area of New South Wales, inclusive of Lord Howe Island and the Federal Capital Territory, is estimated at 310,372 square miles. The State is divided into various districts for departmental purposes, the most important division being that into 141 counties.

The population (including aborigines) at six consecutive censuses was :—

Year	Males	Females	Total	Pop. per square mile	Average increase per cent. per annum.
1871	275,531	228,430	503,981	1·62	3·7

Independent	8,908
Total Breadwinners	718,820

The number of persons classed as 'dependents' was 916,211, and 'unspecified,' 11,703.

The census population of Sydney (1921), including suburbs and shipping, was 905,947. At the end of 1921 the chief country towns, with their populations, were as follow:—Newcastle and suburbs, 88,640; Broken Hill, 26,310; Parramatta, 14,930; Maitland, E. & W., 12,060; Goulburn, 11,950; Granville, 13,780; Lithgow, 12,940; Bathurst, 9,300; Auburn, 14,220; Lismore, 8,810; Lidcombe, 10,520; Tamworth, 7,260; Orange, 7,500; Grafton, 4,610; Wagga Wagga, 7,730; Albury, 7,810; Katoomba, 9,180; Bankstown, 11,480; Prospect and Sherwood, 9,170; Wollongong, 6,730; Armidale, 5,190; Inverell, 4,370; Forbes, 4,390; Dubbo, 5,110; Casino, 3,500; Cowra, 3,830; Wellington, 3,910; Liverpool, 6,270; Glen Innes, 4,830.

The following table shows the births, deaths, and marriages for five years :

Year	Marriages	Total Births	Illegitimate	Total Deaths	Excess of Births
1913	16,311	52,134	2,802	19,732	32,402

1921	285,017	57,190	342,207	288,236	52,080	340,366

NOTE.—The excess of Departures oversea in 1917 and 1918 was due to departure of men in the Australian Imperial Forces.

In December, 1905, New South Wales revived the policy of assisted immigration, and assisted passages are now granted to female domestic servants and close relatives of residents. Free passages are granted to ex-service men and women who are nominated by friends already settled in New South Wales. 3,269 assisted persons arrived in 1920, and 4,500 in 1921.

Housing.—To relieve the urgent demands for small dwellings, a Government Housing Board was created for the purpose of purchasing or resuming land and erecting houses thereon for disposal by sale or lease. The housing scheme assists persons by liberal advances to become the owners of their own homes. Up to June 30, 1921, there had been constructed 1,159 houses, and 164 were in course of construction, the total amount expended by the Board being 898,447*l*.

Religion.

An Act abolishing State aid to religion was passed in 1862.

The Church of England, in the State is under the guidance of a Metropolitan who is Archbishop of Sydney, Metropolitan of New South Wales, and Primate of Australia and Tasmania. He is nominated by the Bishops in Australia and consecrated by the Archbishop of Canterbury. There were in 1922 seven dioceses. The affairs of the Roman Catholic Church are administered by the Bishops of seven dioceses under the Archbishop of Sydney. The following table shows the statistics of the religious denominations in New South Wales at the census of 1911 :—

Instruction.

Education is under State control, and instruction is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 14 years; in the State Primary and Superior public schools and High Schools education is free.

There were at the end of 1921, 3,216 Government schools, divided into 3,468 departments, and classified as follows:—High schools 27; public primary schools 2,020; provisional schools 477; half-time schools 190; house-to-house school 1; travelling schools 3; evening continuation schools 46; correspondence schools 3; subsidised schools 546; industrial and reformatory schools 3; total 3,216 schools. During 1921 there were 316,096 children enrolled, and an average attendance of 248,606, with 9,594 teachers. The pupils receiving Kindergarten instruction at Government schools numbered 9,296. In 1921 the expenditure on Public Instruction (exclusive of technical education and rates on school premises) was 3,520,664*l*.

The Public Schools Savings' Bank in 1921 received deposits amounting to 67,669*l*. The libraries in connection with the schools have 354,000 volumes and 23,436 periodicals.

At the end of 1921 there were 677 private schools (with 78,460 pupils and 4,069 teachers), of which 455 were Roman Catholic Denominational Schools, having 2,620 teachers and 63,060 pupils. The figures relating to private schools are exclusive of business colleges and shorthand schools.

The medical inspection of State school children and of many at private schools is conducted by the Government Medical Officers every three years. A travelling school hospital, a travelling ophthalmic clinic, a Metropolitan dental clinic, and six travelling dental clinics have been established.

The University of Sydney, founded in 1850, receives from Government a yearly subsidy, amounting, with special aid, to 127,712*l*. in 1921. The total revenue for 1921 was 233,499*l*. There were 3,317 students with 39 professors, 7 associate professors, 2 assistant professors, 148 lecturers and demonstrators. Degrees or certificates are granted in all branches of knowledge other than Theology and Divinity, and the benefits and advantages of the University are extended to women equally with men. During 1921 there were 364 degrees conferred by examination to men and 95 to women. There are 4 denominational colleges, Church of England, Roman^c Catholic, Presbyterian, and Methodist, and a college for women (unsectarian), affiliated to the University. The Technical College, with branch schools, comprises departments in agriculture, architecture, biology, chemistry, domestic science, electrical engineering, geology, mathematics, mechanical engineering, printing and lithography, sanitation, sheep and wool, women's handicrafts, art, commercial subjects, bakery; also separate classes and correspondence courses. There was a total enrolment of 18,974 in 1921.

Of establishments of an educational character there are the Australian Museum, Technological and Mining Museums and National Art Gallery, Public Libraries, Conservatorium of Music, also Botanical Garden and Zoological Garden.

Old Age, Invalidity and Accident Pensions, and Maternity Allowances.

In Australia the old age pension law grants (subject to conditions as to birth, residence, and character) a pension of 15s. per week to every woman over 60 years of age, and every man over 65 years of age, or over 60 if incapacitated by infirmity or injury from earning a living. The maximum pension of 39l. per annum (15s. per week) is subject to a proportionate reduction in respect of any income or property of the claimant, so that the pensioner's income with the pension shall not exceed 65l. per annum with men pensioners and 60l. with women. Benefits from friendly societies are not reckoned as income, nor any gifts and allowances from children or grandchildren; nor is deduction made for the home in which the pensioner permanently resides. Money payable to a pensioner while an inmate of a benevolent asylum or hospital may be paid to the institution for the pensioner. Since July 1, 1909, old age pensions have been paid throughout the Commonwealth by the Federal Government, and on June 30, 1922, 40,065 old age pensions were current in New South Wales.

Invalidity and Accident Pensions are paid to persons over the age of 16 years who are permanently incapacitated and who are not receiving an old age pension. From Dec. 15, 1910, the payment of these pensions was undertaken by the Federal Government, and 15,897 persons in New South Wales were in receipt of the benefits on June 30, 1922.

War pensioners in New South Wales at June 30, 1921, numbered 67,858, including 24,971 on account of incapacitated members of the A.I.F. and 42,887 on account of dependants. The annual liability for war pensions in New South Wales on June 30, 1922, was 2,189,798l.

Under the Maternity Allowance Act, passed by the Commonwealth Parliament in 1912, payment of maternity allowances is made to mothers of children born in Australia. A sum of 5l. is payable in respect of each birth, one allowance only being payable in cases of plural births. The allowance is payable to women who are inhabitants of the Commonwealth, or who intend to settle therein. The total number of claims paid in New South Wales during the year ended June 20, 1922, was 55,413.

Justice and Crime.

In New South Wales legal processes may be grouped within the Lower or Magistrates Courts, or of the Higher Courts presided over by appointed Judges. There is also an appellate jurisdiction. The Lower or Magistrate's Courts include Petty Sessions, Small Debts, Licensing, Children's, Coroner's, and Fair Rents Courts. All persons arrested and charged with offences, and all summoned persons, must be brought before the Magistrates' Courts, and dealt with summarily or committed to trial at the Higher Courts. Summary offences are punishable by fine or by imprisonment. The period of imprisonment that may be awarded by magistrates for purely summary offences ranges from a maximum of seven days where the total amount payable does not exceed 10s., to a maximum of twelve months where the amount exceeds 100l. The period of imprisonment is fixed by Statute: in some cases sentences up to two years may be imposed. Prisoners charged with capital crimes must be tried before the Supreme Court.

• The First Offenders (Women) Act, 1918, provides that when any woman who has not been previously convicted of any offence punishable either summarily or on indictment, is charged before any court with a minor offence, the hearing of such charge, etc., must, unless the defendant elects to be tried in open court, be in private and no persons other than those directly interested shall remain in the court, and a report of the proceedings must not be published.

In the Sydney, Parramatta, Newcastle, Broken Hill, Bathurst, and Wollongong districts stipendiary magistrates preside in the police courts; in other districts, police magistrates and honorary justices of the peace adjudicate. The licensing of houses for the sale of intoxicants is transacted by magistrates specially appointed for that purpose.

Children's Courts have been established with the object of removing children as far as possible from the atmosphere of a public court. Magistrates exercise powers in respect of children and of offences committed by and against children. Offenders against the universal training section of the Defence Act are prosecuted in the Children's Court.

The Fair Rents Courts were established in 1916, their function being the determination of the fair rental of dwellings leased for a term not exceeding three years at a rental not exceeding 156l. per annum.

A Profiteering Prevention Court was established in 1920. District Courts are held for the trials of civil cases where the property involved or the amount claimed does not exceed 400l. There is a Court of Industrial Arbitration.

The Supreme Court of New South Wales is under the presidency of the Chief Justice assisted by not more than seven puisne judges.

In 1920 there were 64,803 convictions before magistrates at Courts of Petty Sessions and Children's Courts, and 1,027 distinct persons were convicted at the Higher Courts. There are 24 gaols. On December 31, 1920, there were 1,129 prisoners in confinement.

Finance.

The following are statistics of net revenue for years ended June 30 :—

1922	9,881,053	2,608,820	21,732,322	2,015,619	35,637,820

¹ Including balance of revenue collected by the Federal Government and returned to State.

Under the heading 'Business Undertakings' is included revenue from railways, tramways, water supply and sewerage, and Sydney Harbour Trust.

The control of the customs and excise having passed to the Commonwealth Government on January 1, 1901, the taxation is obtained from stamp and probate duties, land tax, income tax, motor tax, betting taxes, totalizator tax, racecourse admission tax, and licences. A payment of 25s. per head per annum is made to the State by the Commonwealth Government, the bulk of whose revenue comes from customs and excise duties, income tax, land tax, probate and succession duties, and the Post Office.

The following table shows the net expenditure exclusive of expenditure from loans :—

Year ended June 30	Railways and Tramways (including Interest on Capital)	Water Supply and Sewerage (including Interest on Capital)	Public Instruction (excluding Endowments)	Interest on Public Debt, and Special Deposits	Other Services	Total Net Expenditure

The amount of the Public Debt proper on June 30, 1922, was 176,674,387*l.* (exclusive of Closer Settlement Debentures, &c., 4,121,936*l.*) with mean rate of interest 4·88 per cent. Of this amount about 79 per cent. has been spent on the construction of railways, tramways, water supply, sewerage, roads and bridges, harbours and rivers, and the Sydney Harbour Trust. The net return from business undertakings for the year 1921-22 was equal to 4·36 per cent. of the cost of construction ; or 3·51 per cent. of the existing Public Debt.

The expenditure from loans, exclusive of redemptions, up to June 30, 1922, was : Railways and tramways, 101,850,635*l.* ; conservation of water, artesian boring, etc., 8,772,651*l.* ; water supply and sewerage, 24,832,241*l.* ; roads and bridges, 2,188,038*l.* ; harbours and rivers navigation, 6,661,938*l.* ; Sydney Harbour Trusts, 9,497,242*l.* ; other works and services, 27,916,959*l.* ; total, 181,719,704*l.*

The financial statistics of the incorporated boroughs and municipal districts (area 1,821,134 acres) are as follows for the municipal year 1920 :—

The financial statistics of the 136 shires (area, 115,929,600 acres), during 1920, were as follows :—

Unimproved Capital Value, 120,872,326*l.* ; Income, 1,355,416*l.* ; Expenditure, 1,325,748*l.*

For Defence, see Commonwealth of Australia, p. 367. There is a complete naval establishment, the main works of which are at Garden Island, Sydney. Sydney is the headquarters of the squadron in Australian waters, and has a dockyard, naval coaling station, and victualling and other stores. The cost of defence is borne by the Commonwealth Government.

Production and Industry.

I. LAND SETTLEMENT.

The State of New South Wales is divided into three divisions—the Eastern, Central, and Western. The Districts in the Eastern and Central Divisions are, for the purpose of local administration, grouped into Land Board Districts, which are sub-divided into Land Districts. The Western Division is under the control of the Western Land Board—consisting of three Commissioners—and the head offices of the Lands Department and Western Land Board offices are in Sydney. In the Eastern and Central Divisions land may be acquired under various tenures; in the Western Division the land is leased by the State to pastoral tenants, mainly for grazing, but small areas in or near townships are leased for special purposes.

The total land alienated or in process of alienation on June 30, 1921, was 63,517,031 acres, exclusive of Federal Capital Territory. The total land occupied under leases of various kinds was 113,093,099 acres.

II. AGRICULTURE.

In 1920-21 there were 4,467,109 acres under crops (including 2,767 double cropped). The cultivated land is principally to be found in small holdings of less than 500 acres.

The area under cultivation in New South Wales during four years and the principal crops produced were as follows:

Year ended June 30		1918		1919		1920		1921

The principal fruit-culture of the State is that of the orange. There were in June, 1921, 28,435 acres under citrus fruit, with a production of 1,242,283 bushels of oranges, 279,023 bushels of lemons, 474,283 bushels of mandarins, and 14,167 bushels of other citrus fruit. During 1920-21 the production of bananas was 335,328 cases; apples, 891,345 bushels; peaches and nectarines, 789,879 bushels; plums and prunes, 211,271 bushels.

At June 30, 1921, the State had 33,851,828 sheep, 3,375,267 cattle, 663,173 horses, and 306,253 swine. The production of woolas in the grease was in the year ended June 30, 1921, 240,231,000 lbs. In the same year the production of tallow was 501,640 cwt.; butter, 81,268,011 lbs.; cheese, 6,407,209 lbs.; bacon and ham, 16,257,242 lbs.

There were 136,283 persons employed permanently in rural occupations during the year ended June 30, 1921.

There is a Forestry Commission. The total area of Crown lands as State forests amounts to 5,194,298 acres, and the area of timber reserves was 1,535,679 acres. The revenue from royalties, licences, &c., amounted in the year ended June 30, 1916, to 68,107*l.*; in 1917 to 67,273*l.*; in 1918 to 70,969*l.*; in 1919 to 97,592*l.*; in 1920 to 147,040*l.*; and in 1921 to 190,742*l.* There were 496 licensed sawmills, the employees numbering 5,645, and the value of plant and machinery was 908,192*l.* The output of native timber amounted to 156,112,000 superficial feet valued at 2,047,470*l.* The estimated value of production from Forestry in 1920-21 was 1,656,000*l.*

III. MINES AND MINERALS.

The aggregate value of all mineral products of N.S.W. to the end of 1921 was 328,368,646*l.* The following table gives details for the year 1921 :—

The following figures represent the estimated value of production from the various industries at the place of production for year ended June 30, 1921: Pastoral, 20,057,000l.; agricultural, 32,373,000l.; dairying and farmyard, 16,447,000l.; forests, fisheries, and wild animals, 4,089,000l.; mining, 13,096,000l.; manufacturing, 42,192,000l. Total, all industries: 128,254,000l.; value per head of population £61 7s. 6d.

Industrial Arbitration and Conciliation.

The Industrial laws of New South Wales provide for the regulation of the conditions of industries by means of industrial conciliation and arbitration, and for the repression of strikes and lock-outs. Provision has been made for the registration of industrial unions of employers and of employees, for the constitution of a Court of Industrial Arbitration and subsidiary Tribunals—such as Wages or Industrial Boards—to decide disputes and to determine rates of wages and other industrial matters, and for the appointment of a Board of Trade, under the presidency of a Judge of the Court, to exercise extensive powers regarding industrial conditions.

An Industrial Board, consisting of a chairman and two or four other members, representing equally the employers and employees, may be constituted for any industry or group of industries on the recommendation of the Industrial Arbitration Court; also special Boards to determine questions of demarcation. The Court and the Boards may make awards fixing the lowest rates of wages or salaries up to a maximum of £10 per week or £525 per annum, the times and hours of work, the rates of payment for overtime, the proportionate number of apprentices, and granting preference of employment to unionists, and determining any other industrial matter.

The Court or a Board may deal with wages and hours of employment, but no award may be made for wages lower than the living wage declared by the Board of Trade. Employees in rural industries are entitled to the living wage as determined after separate inquiry. Aged, infirm or slow workers may obtain permits to work for less than the minimum wage.

The Industrial Boards have been arranged upon the basis of craft or calling, those relating to allied industries being grouped under one chairman. At June 30, 1921, there were 271 Boards, but since 1916 they exercise their functions only in respect of cases which the Court may commit to them for special reasons, and awards are made usually by the Court in order to prevent delay in hearing and in determining, and to prevent the overlapping of awards.

The awards are binding on all persons in the industry and within the locality to which they relate for a period not exceeding three years specified, and after such period until varied or rescinded. Application for variation may be made whenever a living wage declaration has been made by the Board of Trade. Appeal from an award of a Board lies to the Court and from an award of a single Judge to the Full Court constituted by three Judges.

The Board of Trade, with powers of a Royal Commission, is composed of a President (who is Judge of the Court), a Deputy President, four Commissioners, and four additional Commissioners to represent rural industries. After public inquiry as to the cost of living, the Board declares annually the rates of living wage for adult employees of each sex; it is charged with the administration of matters relating to apprenticeship, and it is authorised to encourage organisations for the welfare of juvenile labour, &c., and for the improvement of industrial relationship between employers and workers.

Living Wage for Adult Employees.—In May 1922, the Board of Trade fixed the living wage for male employees in the State at 78s. per week, 13s. per day, or 1s. 7½d. per hour, and for females a living wage was fixed in December 1921 of 41s. per week, 6s. 10d. per day, or 10½d. per hour. Margins above the living wage are determined by award or agreement. These rates do not apply to rural workers, and the living wage for adult males engaged in rural industries was declared by the Board in October 1921 to be 66s. per week or 11s. per day, and the following deductions may be made:—for residence comprising a separate house of 3 rooms or more 12s., or less than 3 rooms 5s.; for board and residence 24s.; and for board without residence 19s.

Commerce and Communications.

The external commerce of New South Wales, exclusive of Inter-State trade, is included in the Statement of the Commerce of the Commonwealth. The total external commerce of the State is given in the following table:—

Year ended June 30	Imports Oversea	Exports Oversea

The chief exports are gold, silver, copper, lead, tin, ores, coal, wool, wool tops, milk, sausage casings, furs, metal manufactures, butter, wheat, flour, fruit, jams, &c., boots and shoes, timber, meat (frozen and preserved), rabbits, hides and skins, tallow, leather, coconut oil, pearl-shell.

With the exception of a steam tramway of 2½ miles in extent under private control all tramways are the property of the Government. There were, on June 30, 1922, 229½ miles open for traffic, the capital cost being 9,505,732*l*. The gross earnings for 1921-22 were 3,610,135*l*.; the working expenses, 3,015,616*l*.; and the percentage of working expenses to earnings 83·53. On June 30, 1922, 5,116 miles of Government railway were open; the revenue for 1921-22 was 15,213,019*l*.; the expenditure, 11,116,302*l*.; the number of passengers carried, 121,298,861. There are 8 private railways having a total mileage of 158 miles.

Money and Credit.

The value of gold coin and gold bullion issued at the Royal Branch Mint, Sydney, during seven years, was:—

Year	Gold	Year	Gold
1913	2,274,740	1919	1,952,000
1916	1,535,584	1920	469,405
1917	1,738,679	1921	853,094
1918	3,807,734

In addition to the above, Australian silver coin to the value of 1,466,050*l*., and bronze coin valued at 90,389*l*., were issued to December 31, 1921.

There were 16 banks trading in New South Wales in 1922, the average assets in the June quarter being: coin, 10,282,955*l*.; bullion, 335,043*l*.; landed property, 2,620,237*l*.; notes and discounted bills, &c., 98,335,071*l*.; notes and bills of other banks, 792,442*l*.; balances due from other banks, 2,832,745*l*.; total assets, 125,375,157*l*. (including 10,176,664*l*. Australian notes).

The liabilities of the banks (exclusive of those to shareholders) were, for June, 1922 ; Notes in circulation, 68,953*l.*; bills in circulation, 969,186*l.*; deposits not bearing interest, 52,276,678*l.*; deposits bearing interest, 54,086,297*l.*; total deposits, 106,862,975*l.*; balances due to other banks, 1,541,923*l.*; total liabilities, 108,943,037*l.*.

The Government Savings Bank of New South Wales is under the control of three commissioners. Its business is carried on in three separate departments—the Savings Bank, the Rural Bank, and the Advances for Homes. In the Rural Bank Department money is accepted on current account, fixed deposits at interest are received, and operations may be extended to include the general business of banking. The Advances for Homes are made to enable persons to acquire homes or to pay off existing mortgages on their homes. The loans current in each department of the Bank at June 30, 1921, were: Savings Bank, 2,219,908*l.*; Advances to Settlers, 3,423,871*l.*; Advances for Homes, 3,173,751*l.*; total loans, 8,817,530*l.*

Statistics of Savings Banks are given below; the figures include the returns of the Savings Bank Department of the Commonwealth Bank of Australia:—

VICTORIA

Constitution and Government.

Victoria, formerly a portion of New South Wales, was, in 1851, proclaimed a separate colony, with a partially elective Legislative Council, and in 1855 responsible self-government was conferred. The legislative authority is vested in a Parliament of two Chambers. The Upper House consists of 34 members, elected for six years, and the Lower of 65, elected for three years (unless sooner dissolved). Members of the Council must be in possession of an estate of the net annual value of 50*l.* for one year prior to their election; and electors must be in the possession or occupancy of property of the rateable value of 10*l.* per annum if derived from freehold, or of 15*l.* if derived from leasehold or the occupation of rented property. No electoral property qualification is required for graduates of British or Colonial universities, matriculated students of the Melbourne University, ministers of religion of any denomination, certificated teachers, lawyers, medical practitioners, and officers of the army and navy active and retired. One-half of the members of the Legislative Council retire every three years. The members of the Legislative Assembly require no property qualification, and are elected by universal male and (since 1908) female suffrage, and no person may vote in more than one district, nor twice in the same district. Clergymen of any religious denomination are not allowed to hold seats in either the Legislative Council or the Legislative Assembly.

Members of the Legislative Assembly are entitled to reimbursement for expenses at the rate of 500*l.* per annum, and members of both Houses have free passes over all the railways.

Governor.—The Right Hon. The Earl of Stradbroke.

Lieutenant Governor.—Hon. Sir William H. Irvine, K.C.M.G.

In the exercise of the executive the Governor is assisted by a Cabinet of responsible ministers.

The Ministry (October, 1922) is as follows:—

Premier and Minister of Agriculture and Water Supply.—Hon. H. S. W. Lawson, M.L.A.

Chief Secretary, and Minister of Public Health.—Major the Hon. M. Baird, M.L.A.

Treasurer.—Hon. W. M. McPherson, M.L.A.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT. •

For purposes of local administration the State is divided into urban and rural municipalities. The former, called cities, towns, and boroughs, ought not to be of a greater area than nine square miles, and in being constituted must contain at least 500 householders, and rateable property capable of yielding 300*l.* upon a rate of one shilling in the £. The latter, called shires, are portions of country, of undefined extent, containing rateable property capable of yielding a revenue of 1,500*l.* on a rate of one shilling in the £. In 1921 there were 53 urban and 139 rural municipalities, only 650 square miles in the State not being included within their limits. Every ratepayer has one or more votes, according to the amount of his rates.

Area and Population.

The State has an area of 87,884 square miles, or 56,245,760 acres, about $\frac{1}{4}$ part of the whole area of Australia. The State is divided into 37 counties, varying in area from 920 to 5,933 square miles.

The growth of the population, as shown by census returns, is exhibited in the following table:—

Date of Enumeration	Males	Females	Total	Annual rate of increase per cent.
March 29, 1857 . . .	264,334	146,432	410,766	—
April 7, 1861 . . .	328,651	211,671	540,322	7·88

April 4, 1921 . . .	754,629	776,900	1,531,529	1·54

The estimated population at December 13, 1921, was 1,550,952 (764,810 males, 786,142 females).

The average density of the population is 17 persons to the square mile, or one person to every 37 acres.

The population in 1891 included 9,377 Chinese and 565 aborigines; in 1901, 7,349 Chinese and 652 aborigines; and in 1911, 5,601 Chinese and 643 aborigines.

At the date of the census of 1921, the Australian-born numbered 1,330,328, or 87 per cent. of the population; natives of New Zealand, 11,191; of British Isles, 160,880; of Germany, 3,693; of other countries, 20,236; 1,111 were born at sea and the birthplaces of 3,841 were unspecified.

Of the total population in 1911, there were 577,053 bread-winners and 721,137 dependants, while 17,361 were not accounted for. Of the bread-winners there were—professional, 43,819; domestic, 62,175; commercial, 91,611; industrial, 187,773; engaged in transport, 39,238; primary producers, 144,384 (including agricultural, 86,152; pastoral, 29,340; fisheries, 873; mining, 20,239; forestry, 5,151; water conservation, 1,627; capture of wild animals and their produce, 1,002); indefinite, 8,053.

About three-fifths of the total population of Victoria live in towns. At the census of 1921 it was ascertained that the town population numbered nearly one million, out of a total population of 1,531,280.

Inclusive of the suburbs the estimated population on December 31, 1921, of Melbourne was 795,100, or half of that of the State; Ballarat, 38,500; Geelong, 36,170; Bendigo, 33,170; Warrnambool, 7,739; Castlemaine, 7,000; Mildura, 5,100; Maryborough, 4,747; Hamilton, 5,098; and Wonthaggi, 5,176.

The following are the births, deaths, and marriages in the State for five years :—

Year	Total Births	Illegitimate	Deaths	Marriages	Surplus of Births
1917	33,035	1,820*	14,555	9,506	18,480
1918	31,601	1,844	15,177	9,156	16,424
1919	31,621	1,825	19,370	11,706	12,251

Of the immigrants in 1921, 29,854 were females, and of the emigrants 28,159 were females.

Religion.

There is no State Church in Victoria, and no State assistance has been given to religion since 1875. At the date of the census of 1921 77 per cent. of the population were Protestants, 21 per cent. were Roman Catholics, and a half per cent. were Jews. The following were the enumerated numbers of each of the principal religions in 1921:—Episcopalians 620,445 (including 'Protestant,' so stated, 18,636); Presbyterians, 257,072; Methodists, 183,829; other Protestants, 100,097; Roman Catholics, 322,565; Jews, 7,677; Buddhists, Confucians, &c., 1,367; others (including unspecified), 38,228.

Instruction.

Educational establishments in Victoria are of four kinds, viz., the University, established under a special Act and opened in 1855, with its four affiliated colleges, State schools (primary and secondary), technical schools or colleges, and registered schools. Out of the general revenue the University received a subsidy amounting to 28,175*l.* for the year ending June 30, 1922. It is both an examining and a teaching body, and grants degrees in all Faculties except Divinity.

Affiliated to the University are four Colleges—Trinity, Ormond, Queen's and Newman—in connection with the Church of England, Presbyterian, Methodist and Roman Catholic Churches respectively; also the School of Mines at Ballarat. From the opening of the University to the end of 1921, 11,188 students matriculated, and 7,386 direct degrees were conferred. In 1921 the students who matriculated numbered 710, the direct graduates numbered 380, and there were 2,654 students attending lectures.

Public instruction is strictly secular; it is compulsory for children between the ages of 6 and 14, and free for the subjects comprised in the ordinary course of instruction. In 1920 there were 4,233 State schools with 6,637 teachers, a total enrolment of 247,337 scholars, and an average attendance of 158,554, or 64 per cent. of the numbers on the roll. Amongst persons aged 15 years and upwards at the census of 1911, 98 per cent. were able to read and write. In 1920–21 the total cost of public instruction, including grants to the University, was 2,117,151*l.*—all paid by the State. Secondary education is for the most part under the control either of private persons or proprietary bodies, usually connected with some religious denomination. There were, in 1920, 489 registered schools in Victoria, with 1,950 teachers, and a net enrolment of 59,314 scholars. A large proportion of these were in connection with the Roman Catholic denomination, the members of which do not as a rule avail themselves of the free education afforded by the State.

Under the auspices of the Education Department are 24 technical schools, 20 junior technical schools, 30 high schools (including agricultural high schools), 39 higher elementary schools, and 5 schools of domestic arts. In 1921 there were 647 teachers attached to the technical schools, irrespective of agricultural and horticultural colleges, the number of individual students being 10,620.

Old Age Pensions, &c.

On July 1, 1909, the Federal Old Age Pensions Act came into operation, and the State pensioners were taken over by the Federal authorities. The number in Victoria on June 30, 1922, was 30,988. Pensions are also granted to invalids, 11,444 being on the register on June 30, 1922. The amount paid in old age and invalid pensions during 1921–22 was 1,581,898*l.*

An Act was passed by the Federal Parliament in October, 1912, providing for the payment, on application, of 5*l.* to the mother of every child born in the Commonwealth, no additional sum to be paid for twins. During the year ended June 30, 1922, the allowance was granted to 36,257 mothers in the State of Victoria.

The number of War Pensions granted in Victoria to June 30, 1922, was 75,664, and the annual liability in respect thereof was 2,064,114*l.*

Justice and Crime.

There is a Supreme Court with a Chief Justice and five puisne judges. There are courts of general and petty sessions, county courts, courts of insolvency, courts of mines, and courts of licensing.

The following are the criminal statistics for five years:—

	1917	1918	1919	1920	1921
Arrested	12,689	10,346	11,993	14,582	15,249

Committed for trial	440	340	506	759	715
Sentenced after commitment	276	209	307	442	483

There are 7 gaols and 4 reformatory prisons in Victoria, besides 4 police gaols. At the end of 1921 there were confined in these prisons and police gaols 723 males and 48 females.

Finance.

The revenue and expenditure of the State in the years shown were :

Year ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure	Year ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1914	10,958,057	10,944,718	1920	15,866,184	15,752,459

		Mining, agriculture, and stock	783,832
		Other expenditure	603,680
Total	19,054,475	Total	18,941,698

The amount raised by taxation (exclusive of taxes collected by Commonwealth) as shown in the above table, viz. 3,846,833*l.*, was equivalent to a proportion of 2*l.* 10*s.* 4*d.* per head of population.

Victoria has a debt, incurred in the construction of public works, which amounted, on June 30, 1921, to 97,317,831*l.* (inclusive of temporary Treasury bills). Of this debt 58,315,473*l.* was borrowed for the construction of railways; 11,078,949*l.* for waterworks; 1,672,839*l.* for State school buildings, &c.; 17,991,954*l.* for closer settlement; and 8,258,616*l.* for other public works and purposes. The nominal rate of interest on the public debt varies from 3 to 6½ per cent., and averages 4·42 per cent.

The net local ordinary revenue and expenditure (Municipalities, Harbour Trusts, Metropolitan Board of Works, and Fire Brigade Boards) for 1921 were respectively 4,858,817*l.* and 4,751,160*l.* The net local debt (exclusive of amounts borrowed first by Government) amounted to 18,224,592*l.* on June 30, 1921.

The estimated total value of the rateable property of the State in 1921 amounted to about 423,485,383*l.*, and the annual value was 22,745,584*l.*

Production and Industry.

I. AGRICULTURE.

Of the total area of Victoria about 33,004,997 acres at the end of 1921 were either alienated or in process of alienation. Of the remainder about 4,843,878 acres are at present suitable for agriculture; 8,545,989 acres for pastoral purposes; 149,516 acres are held under perpetual lease; State forests, timber, water, and other reserves, 5,536,373 acres; auriferous land, 620,586 acres; roads, 1,757,040 acres; and unsold land in towns, &c., 1,787,381 acres.

The total number of holdings in 1921-22 was 79,655.

The following table shows the areas under the principal crops and the produce of each for five years:—

Years ended March 31	Total Area Cultivated	Wheat		Oats		Barley		Potatoes		Hay
	1,000 Acres	1,000 Acres	1,000 Bushels	1,000 Acres	1,000 Bushels	1,000 Acres	1,000 Bushels	1,000 Acres	1,000 Tons	1,000 Acres	1,000 Tons

1922	16·80	19·39	23·13	23·52	2·72	1·34

In 1921-22 there were 32,923 acres of vines, yielding 1,357,696 gallons of wine. (1920-21, 29,255 acres, 2,222,805 gallons.)

In addition, green forage covered 89,410 acres, and gardens (both market and private) and orchards occupied an extent of 103,795 acres in 1921-22.

There is a small beet-sugar undertaking in the hands of the government. In the season 1921-22 1,600 acres were harvested and 1,872 tons of sugar extracted.

At the end of March, 1922, there were in the State 496,124 horses, 1,750,369 head of cattle, 12,325,818 sheep, and 230,770 pigs. The wool produced in the season 1916-17 amounted to 94,845,024 lbs., valued at 5,927,814*l*; in 1917-18 to 105,424,682 lbs., valued at 6,410,077*l*, in 1918-19 to 126,644,061 lbs., valued at 7,621,413*l*, in 1919-20 to 132,847,167 lbs., valued at 7,908,007*l*, and in 1920-21 to 90,250,571 lbs., valued at 4,729,400*l*. The quantity of butter produced in 1920 was 64,938,458 lbs.

At the end of 1920 the area of State Forests in Victoria was 4,432,600 acres. The amount of timber sawn in 1920-21 in Victoria Saw Mills from Victorian logs was 113,215,040 super. feet, valued at the mill at 905,720*l*.

The estimated value of Victorian production in 1920-21 was as follows:—

Agricultural Production	25,190,350	Miscellaneous	5,159,996
Pastoral and Dairying	24,816,620

The total quantity of gold raised from 1851 to 1921 is estimated at 70,860,259 oz. (fine), of an aggregate value of 300,994,473*l*. The estimated number of miners at work on the gold-fields in 1921 was 3,050. About 2,004 persons were employed in coal-mining. Total mineral production, 1921, 1,490,935*l*., compared with 1,607,645*l*. in 1920.

III. MANUFACTURES.

The total number of manufactories, works, &c., in 1920-21, was 6,532, of which 1,646 used steam or gas engines; the aggregate horse-power used was 182,143; the number of hands employed was 140,743; and the lands, buildings, machinery, and plant were valued at 35,492,735*l*. The value of materials used was 65,401,425*l*., and of articles produced or work done, 106,008,294*l*. The wages paid (excluding working proprietors) amounted to 21,377,216*l*. The manufactures are almost entirely for home consumption.

Commerce and Communications.

The commerce of Victoria, exclusive of inter-State trade, is included in the statement of the commerce of the Commonwealth of Australia.

The total value of the imports and exports of Victoria, excluding inter-State trade, in six years, was:—

Years	Total Imports (Oversea)	Total Exports (Oversea)	Years	Total Imports (Oversea)	Total Exports (Oversea)
	£	£		£	£
1913	24,387,073	17,835,395	1919-20	33,788,287	43,124,940

Credit.

A branch of the Royal Mint was opened at Melbourne on June 12, 1872. Up to Dec. 31, 1921, 39,363,069 oz. of gold, valued at 164,311,113*l*., was received at the mint, and gold coin and bullion issued of the value of 154,146,962*l*. The minting of silver coin was commenced in January, 1916, and bronze coin in 1919.

On June 30, 1922, the Savings Bank of Victoria (with which have been amalgamated the Post Office Savings Banks) had 144 banks and branches with 340 agencies at post offices in the State. There were (excluding the Commonwealth Savings Bank) 970,431 depositors, with a total balance of 45,968,222*l*. There is a special branch of the Savings Bank, called the 'Advances Department,' which makes advances to farmers and others at 6 per cent. interest, these being repayable by instalments extending over a term not exceeding 31½ years. The requisite funds are raised by the issue of bonds, taken up either by the Commissioners of Savings Banks or by the general public, and repayable by half-yearly drawings. The amount advanced during 1920-21 was 2,236,925*l*.; and the total balance of loans at June 30, 1921, was 6,758,648*l*.

During the December quarter of 1921 there were in Victoria 16 banks, possessing 760 branches and agencies, with notes in circulation, 88,665*l*.; deposits 82,249,429*l*.; the total liabilities being 83,741,022*l*.; gold and silver, coined and in bars, and Australian notes, 16,929,527*l*.; property, 1,512,303*l*.; advances, &c., 65,591,955*l*.; total assets, 84,033,765*l*. Total paid-up capital, 36,001,087*l*.

QUEENSLAND

Constitution and Government.

Queensland, formerly a portion of New South Wales, was formed into a separate colony in 1859, and responsible government was conferred. The power of making laws and imposing taxes is vested in a Parliament of one House—the Legislative Assembly, which comprises 72 members, returned from 72 electoral districts for three years, elected by ballot. Members of the Assembly are entitled to payment of 500*l*. per annum, with travelling expenses, and an allowance for stationery and postage. At the General Election of October, 1920, there were 455,728 persons registered as qualified to vote under the 'Electors Act Amendment Act of 1914.' This provides for male and female adult franchise, a twelve months' continuous residence in the State being the only proviso.

Prior to 1922 there was also a Legislative Council, but this has been abolished.

Governor of Queensland.—Lieut.-Col. Sir Matthew Nathan, P.C. (Ire.), G.C.M.G. (1920).—(Salary, 3,000*l*.)

Lieutenant-Governor.—Hon. W. Lennor.

The Executive Council of Ministers consists (1922) of the following members :—

Premier, Chief Secretary, Treasurer, and Vice-President of the Executive Council.—Hon. E. G. Theodore.

Home Secretary.—Hon. W. McCormack.

Secretary for Public Lands.—Hon. J. H. Coyne.

Secretary for Mines.—Hon. A. J. Jones.

Secretary for Railways.—Hon. J. Larcombe.

Secretary for Public Instruction.—Hon. J. Huxham.

Attorney-General.—The Hon. John Mullan.

Secretary for Agriculture and Stock.—Hon. W. N. Gillies.

Secretary for Public Works.—Hon. William F. Smith.

Minister without Portfolio.—Hon. James Stopford.

Each minister has a salary of 1,000*l.*; the Vice-President of the Executive Council receives 300*l.*

Agent-General for Queensland in Great Britain.—J. Arthur Fihelly. Office.—409 Strand, London. Secretary, P. J. Dillon.

Provision is made for Local Government by the subdivision of the State into areas denominated respectively cities, towns and shires. These are under the management of aldermen and councillors, who are elected by the ratepayers and are charged with the control of all matters of a parochial nature, more especially the construction and maintenance of roads and bridges within their allotted areas. Shires for the most part consist of purely rural districts.

The number and area of these subdivisions, together with the receipts and expenditure for the year 1920, were :—

	No.	Area in square miles	Receipts	Expenditure	Capital Value
Cities . . .	11	207.5	697,968	843,703	14,518,963
Towns . . .	25	314.5	327,536	236,717	4,311,744
Shires . . .	134	669,372	811,834	925,953	49,051,635
Totals . . .	170	669,894	1,870,338	2,106,373	68,402,342

Area and Population.

Queensland comprises the whole north-eastern portion of the Australian continent, including the adjacent islands in the Pacific Ocean and in the Gulf of Carpentaria. Estimated area 670,500 English square miles, with a seaboard of 2,250 miles. In 1825 a branch penal settlement was made at Moreton Bay; in 1842 free settlers were admitted to the country, and during the next twenty years great progress was apparent.

The increase in the population at different periods since 1846 has been as follows :—

Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum	Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum	Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum
1846	2,257	—	1871	120,104	6.74	1900	498,129	2.78
1856	18,544	72.16	1876	173,283	8.25	1911	605,813	2.16
1861	30,050	17.06	1881	213,525	4.64	1921	757,634	2.51
1864	61,467	34.83	1886	322,853	10.24
1868	99,901	15.03	1891	393,718	4.39

At the census of April, 1921, the population consisted of 399,610 males, and 358,024 females. The estimated population on December 31, 1921, was 770,016 (405,593 males, 364,423 females). In 1911 there were 6,138 male and 576 female Chinese; 1,865 male and 400 female 'Polynesians'; 1,428 male and 75 female Japanese; 4,573 persons of other Asiatic, &c., races. In addition there were 5,145 male and 3,542 female full-blooded Aborigines living in a civilised manner. The total number of aborigines has been estimated at 20,000.

As to occupation the population in 1911 was classified as follows:—Professional class, 17,653; domestics, 26,570; commercial, 34,564; industrial, 68,262; transport and communication, 23,142; agricultural, pastoral, mining, &c., 101,904; indefinite, 4,890; independent, 2,758; dependent class (wives, children, scholars, students, dependent relatives, &c.), 326,070.

Of the total population, 1911, 382,216 persons (exclusive of aborigines) were born in the State; 65,266 in England; 31,599 in Ireland; 20,530 in Scotland; 2,620 in Wales; 38,921 in N. S. Wales; 15,943 in Victoria; 3,348 in S. Australia; 482 in W. Australia; 1,798 in Tasmania; 3,987 other Australians, including 'Australia' undefined: 2,576 in New Zealand; 11,979 in Germany; 2,641 in Denmark; 1,054 in Sweden; 685 in Norway.

The following table shows the births, deaths, and marriages for five years:—

Years	Total Births	Illegitimate	Deaths	Marriages	Excess of Births
1917	19,787	967	6,555	4,868	13,232
1918	19,560	1,046	7,158	4,821	12,402
1919	18,699	1,074	8,860	5,431	9,839
1920	20,257	1,617	7,946	6,670	12,311
1921	20,333	1,059	7,143	5,965	13,190

The immigration and emigration, including arrivals and departures by sea and by rail across the border, and of Expeditionary Forces, have been as follows:—Immigration, 1917, 123,243; 1918, 110,878; 1919, 79,005; 1920, 89,299; 1921, 84,364. Emigration, 1917, 118,138; 1918, 104,749; 1919, 58,862; 1920, 89,099; 1921, 81,802.

Brisbane, the capital, had in 1921 a population, within a ten mile radius, of 209,699. At the census, 1921, other towns contained: Rockhampton, 24,182; Townsville, 21,348; Maryborough, 10,635; Gympie, 6,519; Ipswich, 20,526; Toowoomba, 20,702; Charters Towers, 9,499; Bundaberg, 9,276; Mt. Morgan, 7,214.

Religion.

There is no State Church. Previous to 1861 valuable grants of land had been made to the principal religious denominations, which they still retain. The following were the numbers in 1911:—Church of England, 212,702; Church of Rome, 137,086; Presbyterian, 75,560; Methodist, 59,920; Lutheran, 24,235; Baptist, 13,715; other Christian sects, 90,556; Jews, 672; other Non Christians, 5,518; no religion, 1,906; unspecified, &c., 21,893.

Instruction.

Primary secular education is free and compulsory. According to the marriage statistics, 99.99 per cent. of persons married during 1921 were able to read and write. The Public Expenditure on account of education for the year*1921 was 1,390,683½, and for 1922 the sum of 1,299,843½. has been provided by the State. During the year 1921 there were 1,663 State schools (including 12 high schools) in operation, with 4,173 teachers, and an average daily attendance of 99,152 pupils. Secondary education is provided for by 10 grammar schools, 6 for boys and 4 for girls, with, in 1921, 108 teachers and an average attendance of 1,649 pupils; 12 'High Schools' with 135 teachers and 1,511 scholars. There were besides 165 private schools, with 966 teachers, and an average daily attendance of 20,256 pupils. The Government grants annually a considerable number of scholarships, tenable for three years, to the various grammar schools. There were 17 technical schools in 1921 with 11,993 distinct students. The Queensland University (established in 1911) in Brisbane, had, at the end of 1921, 8 professors and 20 lecturers, &c., with 316 students on the roll.

Justice and Crime.

Justice is administered by Supreme Courts, Magistrates' Courts, and Courts of Petty Sessions. In these last Justices of the Peace sit, presided over in the more important centres by Police magistrates. The Supreme Court consists of a Chief Justice and six puisne judges. The total number of persons convicted of serious offences by the Superior Courts in 1921 was 338, and the summary convictions at petty sessions in 1921 numbered 15,288 (excluding 7,191 cases of bail estreated). Including penal establishments, there were, at the end of 1921, 11 prisons, with 380 male and 13 female prisoners. The total police force, including native troopers, averages about 1,176 men.

Pauperism, Pensions, etc.

Charitable institutions are maintained by public subscription, supplemented by State endowment; hospitals, benevolent asylums, an institution for the blind, deaf, and dumb, refuges and homes helped. Old Age and Invalidity Pensions are now payable by the Commonwealth. The number of Old Age Pensioners in the State at June 30, 1922, was 13,478, and of Invalid Pensioners, 5,152. The number of War Pensioners at the same date was 23,782 (including dependants). Maternity allowance was paid to 20,403 mothers during 1921-22.

Finance.

The following table shows the net revenue and expenditure of Queensland during five years ending June 30 :—

—	1917-18	1918-19	1919-20	1920-21	1921-22
	£	£	£	£	£
Revenue . .	8,491,482	9,415,543	11,294,000	12,601,031	12,311,378
Expenditure .	8,900,934	9,587,532	11,267,000	12,591,201	12,499,970

Estimates, 1922-23 :—revenue, 12,202,700½; expenditure, 12,779,540½.

The gross income from or expenditure on account of Departments under the control of the Commonwealth is not included.

The following were the chief sources from which revenue was received

The chief items of expenditure during 1921-22 were as under:—Interest on public debt, 3,286,096*l.*; public instruction, 1,295,606*l.*; treasurer's department, 373,592*l.*; public lands department, 280,660*l.*; department of agriculture, 126,640*l.*; cost of working railways, 4,868,362*l.* The total expenditure from loans, mostly on public works, was 2,599,573*l.*, of which the principal items were railways, 1,168,480*l.*; soldiers' settlement, 459,201*l.*; loans to local bodies, 423,347*l.*

The estimated value of landed property in 1921 for assessment for Local Government purposes was 68,402,342*l.* This includes lands leased from the Crown for pastoral purposes, the lessees' interest in which has been capitalised for assessment purposes at 8,340,583*l.*, but is exclusive of unoccupied Crown lands, the property of local bodies, reserves for public purposes, and lands upon which are erected buildings for public worship.

The gross public debt of the State amounted, on June 30, 1922, to 85,691,228*l.*

Defence.

For Defence, see under Commonwealth of Australia.

Production and Industry.

Of the total area of the State, 17,152,428 acres (1921) have been alienated: in process of alienation, under deferred payment system, are 8,280,296, leaving 403,687,276 acres still the property of the Crown, or about 94·07 per cent. of the total area. The receipts from the sale of land up to the end of 1921 amounted to 10,360,458*l.* Land is made available for selection in the following modes and classes:—(1) Agricultural Selections—i.e., Perpetual Lease Selections; (2) Grazing Selections—i.e., Grazing Homesteads and Grazing Farms; and (3) Perpetual Lease Prickly-pear Selections. The largest area that may be acquired by any one person as a Perpetual Lease Selection is 2,560 acres. The annual rent for the first 15 years of the term is $1\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. of the notified capital value. The greatest area which may be applied for or held as a Grazing Homestead or a Grazing Farm is 60,000 acres. The term may be any number of years not exceeding 28. A Grazing Farm must be continuously occupied during the whole term of the lease by the selectors residing on it personally or by bailiff; and it must be enclosed with a substantial fence within three years from the issue of the licence to occupy. The area of a Prickly-pear Selection must not exceed 2,560 acres. During the first period of the lease no rent is payable, but the prickly-pear must be regularly eradicated and the land kept clear; thereafter the rent is $1\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. of the notified capital value.

A large proportion of the area is leased in squatting runs for pastoral purposes, amounting to 201,010,760 acres in 1921, besides 78,658,048 acres in grazing farms and homesteads, and 33,526,240 acres under occupation licence. The live-stock in 1921 numbered 747,543 horses, 7,047,370 cattle, 18,402,399 sheep, and 145,083 pigs. The total area under cultivation in 1921 was 1,505,256 acres, and of this 804,507 acres were under crops, besides which 459,914 acres are laid down with permanent artificial pasture. The wool production, expressed as greasy, in 1915 was 113,777,272 lbs.; 1919, 118,035,461 lbs.; 1920, 114,809,963 lbs.; 1921, 132,579,733 lbs.

A considerable area consists of natural forest, eucalypti, pine and cedar being the timbers mostly in demand, although a considerable quantity of more ornamental woods are utilised by cabinet makers. The amount of wood cut in the various saw mills in 1921, was (in superficial feet):—pine, 73,554,024; cedar, 311,657; hardwood, 30,026,956; other, mostly cabinet timber, 9,094,653; number of railway sleepers, 168,857. Forest reservations total 4,043,482 acres (1921).

The quantity actually cut for all purposes is nearly double these quantities. The crops, &c., in two years were as follows:—

	Acres		Yield

From the commencement of gold mining to end of 1921, the production amounts to 19,741,010 ozs. of the value of 83,854,426*l.*, and the aggregate value of all mining to 135,636,285*l.*

In the western portion of the State water is comparatively easily found by sinking artesian bores. Up to June 30, 1921, 3,874 bores were recorded as having been sunk. Total depth bored, 658·2 miles. The continuous yield of water is estimated at 300,140,000 gallons per diem; 1,254 bores are flowing and supplies are pumped from 1,528 others.

Commerce and Shipping.

The commerce of Queensland, exclusive of inter-State trade, is comprised in the Statement of the Commerce of the Commonwealth of Australia.

The total value of the overseas imports and exports of Queensland in recent years is given in the following table:—

	£	£		£	£
1916-17	6,263,102	14,542,270	1919-20	7,218,694	14,403,922

² Excluding bullion and specie.

Trade with other Australian States has ceased to be recorded by the Commonwealth Authorities.

In 1921-22 the net customs revenue amounted to 2,330,118*l.*, including excise 982 467*l.*, or about 26·97 per cent. of the total value of overseas imports. The chief exports are copper, tin, coal, meat (preserved or frozen), hides, skins, tallow, wool, and sugar.

The registered shipping in 1921 consisted of 145 sailing vessels of 6,193 net tons, and (including river steamers) 110 steamers of 20,095 net tons; total, 255 vessels of 26,288 net tons.

For Shipping, Railways, Posts and Telegraphs see under Commonwealth of Australia.

Banks.

There are 10 banks established in Queensland (excluding the Commonwealth Bank), of which the following are the statistics for the end of 1921:—Due to the Treasury on account of notes issued by the Government through the banks, nil; deposits, 26,856,068*l.*; total liabilities, 27,800,169*l.*; coin and bullion, 2,066,728*l.*; advances, 21,142,741*l.*; landed property, 790,173*l.*; total assets, 29,285,859*l.* The Commonwealth Savings Bank had in Queensland at Dec. 31, 1921, 331,792 depositors, and 19,109,233*l.* in deposits.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

Constitution and Government.

South Australia was formed into a British Province by Letters Patent of February, 1836, and a partially elective Legislative Council was established in 1851. The present Constitution bears date October 24, 1856. It vests the legislative power in a Parliament elected by the people. The Parliament consists of a Legislative Council and a House of Assembly. The former is composed of twenty members. Every three years half the members retire, and their places are supplied by new members elected from each of the five districts into which the State is divided for this purpose. The executive has no power to dissolve this body. The qualifications of an elector to the Legislative Council are, to be twenty-one years of age, a natural born or naturalised subject of His Majesty, and have been on the electoral roll six months, besides having a freehold of 50*l.* value, or a leasehold of 20*l.* annual value, or occupying a dwelling-house the rent of which is not less than 17*l.* per annum, or a registered proprietor of a Crown lease with improvements to the value of at least 50*l.*, the property of the elector; head teacher of a college or school residing on premises; postmaster or postmistress residing in the building; railway stationmaster residing in premises; member of police force in charge of a station; officiating minister of religion. By the Constitution Amendment Act, 1894, the franchise was extended to women, who voted for the first time at the General Election of April 25, 1896. There were 87,283 (21,465 women) registered electors in 1921. The qualification for a member of Council is merely that he be thirty years of age, a natural born or naturalised subject, and a resident in the State for three years. Each member of the Council and also of the House of Assembly, receives 400*l.* per annum and a free pass over Government railways. A member's salary was increased from 200*l.* per annum on December 1, 1921.

The House of Assembly consists of 46 members elected for 3 years, representing 19 electoral districts. The qualifications for an elector are that of having been on the electoral roll for 6 months, and of having arrived at 21 years of age; and the qualifications for a member are the same. There were 272,102 registered electors in 1921. Judges and ministers of religion are ineligible for election as members. The election of members of both houses takes place by ballot.

The executive is vested in a Governor appointed by the Crown and an Executive Council, consisting of 6 responsible ministers and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

Governor of South Australia.—Major-General Sir George Tom Molesworth Bridges, K.C.M.G., C.B., D.S.O., Aug., 1922.

The Chief Justice (Hon. Sir George J. R. Murray, K.C.M.G., 2,000*l.*) being also Lieutenant-Governor, acts during the absence of the Governor.

The Governor has a salary of 5,000*l.* per annum. The departments of the Public Service are controlled by the following ministers:—

Premier and Attorney-General.—Hon. Sir Henry N. Barwell, K.C.M.G., I.L.B., M.P.

Chief Secretary and Minister of Marine.—Hon. J. G. Bice, M.L.C.

Treasurer and Minister of Railways and Industry.—Hon. W. Hague, M.P.

Commissioner of Public Works, Mines and Education.—Hon. T. Pascoe, M.L.C.

Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. G. F. Jenkins, M.P.

Commissioner of Crown Lands and Immigration and Minister of Irrigation and Repatriation.—Hon. G. R. Laffer, M.P.

The provision for the payment of Ministers was increased from 5,000*l.* to 7,750*l.* to date from December 1, 1921. They are jointly and individually responsible to the Legislature for all their official acts, as in the United Kingdom.

Agent-General for South Australia in London.—Sir E. Lucas.

Area.

The total area of South Australia is 380,070 square miles. The original boundaries of the State, according to the statute of 4 & 5 Will. IV. cap. 95, were fixed between 132° and 141° E. long. for the eastern and western boundaries, the 26° of S. lat. for the northern limit, and for the South the Southern Ocean. The boundaries were subsequently extended, under the statute of 24 and 25 Victoria, cap. 44. By Royal Letters Patent, dated July 6, 1863, all the territory lying northward of 26° S. latitude and between the 129th and 138th degrees of East longitude, and now known as the Northern Territory (see below) and covering 523,620 square miles, was added, but on January 1, 1911, this Territory was transferred to the Commonwealth.

The settled part of the State is divided into counties, hundreds, municipalities, and district councils, the last being the most general, as they cover most of the settled districts. The ratepayers have the power of levying rates, &c., and applying the funds for road-making and other purposes. There are 49 counties proclaimed, covering 53,825,920 acres. This area covers the settled portion of the State, 41,185,184 acres being in occupation. Outside this area there are three extensive pastoral districts—the western, northern, and north-eastern, covering 189,418,880 acres, 92,921,788 being under pastoral leases, with a population of less than 5,000. There are 35 municipalities and 150 district councils.

Population.

Population (exclusive of aborigines):—

1921 . . .	248,293	247,043	495,336	86,778	21·2

The population of the State, June 30, 1922, was estimated at 505,069.

Population of the city of Adelaide and suburbs, 1921, 260,542.

The number of full-blooded aborigines in the State has been estimated at 1,609. Living in a wild state beyond the reach of civilization there are many more.

The following are the statistics of births, deaths, and marriages for five years:—

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1914	12,905	4,009	4,713	8,192
1918	11,357	3,190	4,390	6,967
1919	11,060	3,855	5,475	5,585
1920	12,023	4,881	5,083	6,945
1921	11,974	4,383	4,982	6,992

South Australia is a healthy country, with a good climate, and has a high birth and low death rate. Birth-rate, 24·07, death-rate, 10·02, marriage-rate, 8·81 per 1,000 of population in 1921. Infantile mortality, 85·39 per 1,000 births, one of the lowest rates in the world.

Of the total number of births in 1921, 375 were illegitimate.

Religion.

The aggregate number of churches and chapels in the State in 1920 was 1,780. At the census of 1911 the numbers belonging to the leading denominations were as follows:—Church of England, 113,781; Roman Catholic, 50,964; Methodists, 100,402; Lutherans, 26,681; Baptists, 21,863; Presbyterians, 22,567; Congregationalists, 13,357; Church of Christ, 9,324; Salvation

Army, 3,835 ; other Christians, 23,769 ; Jews, 765 ; Mohammedans, 440 ; Confucians, &c., 226 ; other non-Christian, 2,143 ; not stated, 18,441. No aid from the State is given for religious purposes.

Education.

Public instruction (primary, secondary, technical) is under the charge of the Educational Department. Teachers are paid from the general revenue, public lands being set apart for educational purposes. Education is secular, free, and compulsory. The Government grants exhibitions and scholarships, carrying the holders to higher schools and universities. In 1921 there were 1,004 schools, 22 being high schools, 13 domestic art and 8 woodwork centres ; the number of children under instruction during 1921 was 79,769. There is a training college for teachers. The University of Adelaide, incorporated in 1874, is authorised to grant degrees in arts, law, music, medicine, dentistry, and science. There are several denominational secondary schools. There were 171 private schools, with 13,951 pupils, in 1921. There are a school of mines and industries in Adelaide, with 5 branches in the larger country centres, 5 Soldiers' Vocational Schools, 1 School of Arts and Crafts, and Apprentice Classes. The Public Library, Museum, Art Gallery, and Local Institutes are supported or assisted by the State.

Justice and Crime.

There is one supreme court, a court of vice-admiralty, 5 courts of insolvency, and over 100 local courts and police magistrates' courts. There are circuit courts held at several places. There were 97 convictions for felonies and misdemeanours in the Higher Courts and 8,968 in the Magistrates' Courts, in 1921. The total number of persons in gaols at the end of 1921 was 252.

Old Age Pensions.

Old Age and Invalidity Pensions are now paid by the Commonwealth Government. The number of pensioners in South Australia at June 30, 1922, was: Old Age, 10,014 ; Invalid, 2,499 ; War, 14,210.

1919 . . .	5,798,314	5,876,807	1922 . . .	7,771,752	7,826,241

Most of the revenue is derived from inland revenue, railways, and territorial receipts, while most of the expenditure is on account of public works, railways, and interest on public debt.

The public debt of the State, dating from 1852, amounted, on June 30, 1921, to 48,556,552*l*. Over half of the public debt has been spent on railways, waterworks, and telegraphs.

Production and Industry.

Of the total area of South Australia (243,214,800 acres), 13,954,977 acres were alienated and in process of alienation under systems of deferred payments on June 30, 1921. Altogether about 110,000,000 acres are unoccupied. The freehold and leasehold land in South Australia amounts to 134,000,000 acres, of which 5,000,000 acres are under cultivation each year.

Bread-stuffs exported 1921-22 beyond the Commonwealth, 8,403,389*l.*, and pastoral products, 3,973,171*l.*

Fruit culture is extensively carried on, and annually about 130,000 cwt. of dried fruit, 1,250,000 cases of fresh fruit, and 5,600,000 gallons of wine are produced, large quantities of which are exported to overseas countries, chiefly to the United Kingdom. The chief fruit crops, besides grapes, are currants, apples, apricots, peaches, almonds, oranges, lemons, olives, cherries, pears, plums, quinces, strawberries, raspberries. The live stock in June, 1921, consisted of 268,187 horses, 376,399 cattle, 6,359,946 sheep, and 78,395 pigs. An area of over 150,000 square miles is held under pastoral leases.

The mineral wealth as yet discovered consists chiefly of copper, silver and gold. The value of copper produced in 1921 was 106,370*l.* (32,657,093*l.* of copper has been produced since the foundation of the State); gold, 11,163*l.*; ironstone flux, 628,770*l.*; phosphate rock, 6,203*l.*; crude salt, 127,107*l.*; gypsum, 29,427*l.* Including other minerals, the total value was 944,052*l.* Grand total to date, 39,968,485*l.*

In 1921 there were 1,438 factories in the State, employing 30,430 hands. Wages and salaries amounted to 4,866,211*l.* Gross value of output, 20,454,539*l.*; machinery, land and buildings, &c., valued at 8,968,914*l.*

A new government department, known as the Department of Chemistry, has been established for the purpose of fostering new industries by the utilisation of products at hand and there is also an Advisory Board of Science and Industry.

Commerce and Shipping.

The Commerce of South Australia, exclusive of inter-State trade, is comprised in the statement of the Commerce of Australia given under the heading of the Commonwealth.

The chief exports of the State are wool, wheat, wheat-flour, copper and other minerals, meats, butter, honey, wine, fruits (fresh and dried), skins and hides, tallow, leather, and manures.

In 1920-21, 947 vessels of 2,887,035 tons entered, and 943 vessels of 2,918,848 tons cleared the ports of the State.

The State possesses about 44,000 miles of made roads. There are (1922) 3,400 miles of railway in the State, including the Transcontinental Railway which has been built from Port Augusta in South Australia to Kalgoorlie in Western Australia, and which, in connection with various Statelines, completes a through rail connection between Brisbane, on the east coast, and Fremantle on the west coast. Of the Transcontinental line, which is of 4ft. 8½in. gauge, 600 miles are within the borders of South Australia.

There are several good harbours, and the river Murray (navigable for 2,000 miles) is used for conveying the produce grown on the irrigation settlements along its banks. In the city and suburbs are 114 miles of electric tramways.

Banks.

There are 9 banking associations in addition to the Commonwealth Government Bank. In 1922 their deposits were 20,226,698*l*.

The Savings Bank is managed by a board of trustees appointed by the Government, and has 31 branches and 309 agencies. On June 30, 1922, there were 329,711 depositors, with a total balance of 14,795,131*l*. The Commonwealth Savings Bank (not included above) had 46,895 depositors and 2,090,652*l*. deposits at the same date. Penny Savings Banks, agencies at schools, 677, depositors, 37,894, deposits, 46,024*l*.

The total banking deposits, 37,158,505*l*, averaged 73*l*. per head. Over 80 per cent. of the population have savings bank accounts.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

Constitution and Government.

In 1791 Vancouver, in the Discovery, took formal possession of the country about King George Sound. In 1826 the Government of New South Wales sent 20 convicts and a detachment of soldiers to King George Sound and formed a settlement then called Fredericks Town. In 1827 Captain James (afterwards Sir James) Stirling surveyed the coast from King George Sound to the Swan River, and in May, 1829, Captain Fremantle (afterwards Sir Charles Fremantle, G.C.B.) took possession of the territory. In June, 1829, Captain Stirling founded the Swan River Settlement, now the Commonwealth State of Western Australia, and the towns of Perth and Fremantle, and was appointed Lieutenant-Governor. Western Australia thus became a British settlement in 1829.

Large grants of land were made to the early settlers, and agricultural and pastoral occupations were pursued by a small population with varying success, until, in 1850, the State was in a languishing condition, and the inhabitants' petition that it might be made a penal settlement was acceded to. Between 1850 and 1868, when transportation ceased, 9,718 convicts were sent out. The Imperial convict establishment was transferred to the Colonial Government on March 31, 1886.

In 1870 partially representative government was instituted, and in 1890 the administration was vested in the Governor, a Legislative Council, and a Legislative Assembly. The Legislative Council was, in the first instance, nominated by the Governor, but it was provided that in the event of the population of the Colony reaching 60,000, it should be elective. In 1893 this limit of population being reached, as set forth in a proclamation dated July 18, of that year, the Colonial Parliament passed an Act (57 Vict. No. 14) amending the constitution.

By the Constitution Acts Amendment Act, 1899, further amended by the Constitution Acts Amendment Act, 1911, it is provided that the Legislative Council shall consist of 30 members representing 10 electoral provinces and holding their seats for six years. Members must be 30 years of age, resident in the State for two years, and either be natural-born British subjects or naturalized for 5 years and resident in the State for 5 years. Every elector must have resided in the State for 6 months, and must possess within the province freehold estate of the clear value of £50, or be a householder occupying a dwelling-house of the clear annual value of £17, or holder of a lease of the value of £17 per annum, or the holder of a lease or licence from the Crown of the annual rental of £10, or have his name on the electoral list of a Municipality or Roads Board in respect of property in the province of the annual rateable value of £17. The Legislative Assembly consists of 50 members, each representing one electorate, and elected for 3 years. Members must be 21 years of age, have resided in Western Australia for twelve months, and be either natural-born subjects of the Crown or naturalized for 5 years. Electors must be 21 years of age, natural-born or naturalized subjects of the Crown, and must have resided in the State for 6 months and be on the roll, and must be resident in the district for at least one month when making their claims. Members of and electors for both Houses may be of either sex. No person can be registered as a voter in more than one district or more than once in each Province for which he holds a sufficient qualification. Members of the Legislature are paid 400*l.* a year, and travel free on all Government railways. The entire management and control of the waste lands of the Crown in Western Australia is vested in the Legislature of the State. By the Parliament (Qualification of Women) Act, 1920, it has been enacted that a woman shall not be disqualified by sex or marriage for being elected to or sitting and voting as a member of the Legislative Council or the Legislative Assembly. So far one woman member has been elected for the Legislative Assembly.

State of political parties (1922):—Legislative Council: "Non-party," 16; Country Party, 6; National Labour, 5; Labour Party, 3. Legislative Assembly: Country Party, 17; Nationalist, 10; National Labour, 6; Labour Party, 17.

Governor.—Rt. Hon. Sir F. A. Newdegate, K.C.M.G. (April, 1920).

Lieutenant-Governor.—Hon. Sir Robert Furse McMillan, Kt. (June, 1921).

The salary provided for the Governor is 4,000*l.* per annum. He is assisted in his functions by a cabinet of responsible ministers, as follows:—

Premier, Treasurer, and Minister for Lands and Repatriation.—Hon. Sir Jas. Mitchell, K.C.M.G., M.L.A.

Minister for Agriculture.—Hon. H. K. Maley, M.L.A.

Minister for Education, Justice, and the North-Western Territory—Hon. H. P. Colebatch, C.M.G., M.L.C.

Minister for Works, Water Supply, Trading Concerns, etc.—Hon. W. J. George, C.M.G., M.L.A.

Minister for Mines, Railways, Industries, etc.—Hon. J. Scaddan, M.L.A.

Colonial Secretary and Minister for Public Health.—Hon. R. S. Sampson, M.L.A.

Agent-General in London.—Hon. Sir J. D. Connolly, K.B.

Offices.—Savoy House, Strand.

Area and Population.

As defined by Royal Commission, Western Australia includes all that portion of the continent situated to the westward of 129° E. longitude, together with the adjacent islands. The greatest length of this territory from Cape Londonderry in the north to Peak Head (south of King George Sound) in the south is 1,480 miles, and its breadth from Steep Point near Dirk Hartogs Island, on the west to the 129th meridian, on the east, about 1,000 miles. According to the latest computations, the total estimated area of the State is 975,920 English square miles, or, 624,588,800 acres. It is divided into 38 magisterial districts.

Western Australia was first settled in 1829, and for many years the population was small.

The enumerated population in the various census years was as follows :—

Years	Males	Females	Total
1848	2,818	1,804	4,622
1854	7,779	3,964	11,743
1859	9,522	5,315	14,837
1870	15,375	9,410	24,785
1881	17,062	12,646	29,708
1891	29,807	19,975	49,782
1901	112,875	71,249	184,124
1911	161,565	120,549	282,114
1921	177,913	155,200	332,213

There were enumerated in 1911, 6,369 pure and 1,475 half-caste aborigines (the former not included in the table) in the settled districts and virtually in the employment of the settlers. The number of wild natives is not known, but the total number of aborigines has been roughly estimated at about 30,000.

As in all countries where the white man has settled among races that cannot in a large measure adapt themselves to his forms of civilisation, the natives, in so far as they existed in the present centres of settlement, are dying out, a natural consequence of the loss of their original hunting-grounds. They are of quick intelligence, but disinclined for the civilised modes of life. The Government has taken the best measures available for their protection.

Of the total population in 1911, 104,208 were returned as born in Western Australia. The number of married persons was 96,482 (50,702 males and 45,780 females); widowers, 4,180; widows, 5,785; divorced, 187 males and 103 females; unmarried, 106,060 males and 68,807 females. The number of males under 21 was 58,838, and of females 56,203. Of the males over 21, 47,323 had never been married, and of the females over 21, 13,609. The estimated population on September 30, 1914 (excluding full-blooded aborigines) was: males, 182,682; females, 143,522; total, 326,204; on January 31, 1917, the figures were: males, 158,598; females, 148,608; total, 307,206. The decrease since 1914 was due to enlistments for the war. The total enlistments during the war numbered 34,353, of whom 23,670 had returned on October 31, 1920. The population on August 31, 1922, was estimated to be: males, 181,153; females, 159,327; total, 340,480.

Perth, the capital, at the time of the 1921 census, had a population, within the 10-mile radius area of the Metropolitan district, of 154,866. This, however, includes the chief port of the State, Fremantle, with its suburbs, the population of which, at the census, was 25,526. The other principal municipalities, with census population of 1921, are:—Kalgoorlie, 7,898; Boulder, 8,218; Albany, 3,980; Bunbury, 4,478; Collie, 3,314; Geraldton, 4,176; Northam, 3,583.

The movement of population for the State in 5 years is given as follows :—

Years	Marriages	Births	Deaths	Immigrants	Emigrants
1914	2,660	9,204	3,043	27,270	31,097
1918	1,612	7,106	2,833	24,262	25,245
1919	2,194	6,937	3,590	32,561	18,285
1920	2,931	8,149	3,308	29,930	31,277
1921	2,656	7,807	3,480	29,333	29,806

In 1914 there were 388 ; in 1918, 287 ; in 1919, 292 ; in 1920, 318 ; and in 1921, 314 illegitimate births.

Religion.

The religious division of the population was as follows at the census of 1911.—Church of England, 109,435 ; Methodists, 34,348 ; Presbyterians, 26,678 ; Congregationalists, 6,203 ; Baptists, 4,801 ; other Protestants, 18,189 ; Roman Catholics, 56,616 ; Catholics (Greek and undefined), 5,754 ; other Christians, 1,736 ; Jews, 1,790 ; Mahometans, 1,517 ; Buddhists, 1,795 ; other non-Christians, 748 ; indefinite, 1,555 ; no religion, 1,260 ; not stated, 9,689.

Instruction.

Of the total white population of 15 years and upwards in 1911, 1 07 per cent. were stated to be unable to read. Primary education is compulsory.

The following table shows the average cost per head and attendance in Government schools and in private schools in three years:—

—	No. of Schools	No. of Scholars	Av. Attendance	Cost per Head of av. Attendance
Government Schools				£	s.	d.
1919	680	47,314	41,012	6	12	7½
1920	695	48,102	42,029	7	15	4½
1921	708	49,489	42,676	9	9	3½
Private Schools
1919	124	11,939	10,322	—
1920	128	12,151	10,517	—
1921	122	11,813	10,461	—

Education is free throughout from the kindergarten to the University and comprises ample provision also for secondary education, technical schools, continuation classes, scholarships, etc. During the financial year ended June 30, 1922, the total sum spent on education and schools, including a grant of 15,900*l.* to the University of Perth, was 571,926*l.*

Justice and Crime.

The following table gives the number of offences, apprehensions, and convictions for five years:—

—	1917	1918	1919	1920	1921
Apprehended or summoned . .	16,885	11,599	9,769	10,430	10,775
Summary convictions	10,535	10,162	8,702	9,198	9,605
Convictions in superior courts .	55	55	64	83	101

The total number of distinct persons committed to prison in the year ended June 30, 1921, was 1,183 ; the number of commitments totalled 2,146—viz.: adult males, 1,878, adult females, 268.

All the above figures are exclusive of aboriginal crime.

Pauperism and Old Age Pensions.

There are two charitable institutions, one situated at Claremont, and one at Fremantle, both supported by public funds, with 664 inmates on December 31, 1921. Twenty-three Government hospitals, also a Government sanatorium for consumptive patients, at Wooroloo, and two hospitals for the insane, are wholly supported by public funds, as is also a dépôt for diseased natives at Port Hedland, whilst three public and twenty-six other assisted hospitals exist, partly supported by private subscriptions and partly out of public funds, in addition to the numerous private hospitals situated in Perth and suburbs as well as the principal goldfield towns; eight Protestant and four Roman Catholic orphanage industrial schools are supported partly by private subscriptions and partly out of public money. There are also eight native and half-caste institutions, four Industrial Schools supported in a similar manner, two Government native settlements at Carrolup and Moore River, and a third at Moola Bulla utilised as a cattle station, and one Government receiving dépôt for State children who are afterwards sent to the various Institutions. On June 30, 1922, a total of 743 adults and 2,016 children, total, 2,759 persons in the State received monetary assistance from the public funds for widows and others.

Old Age and Invalidity Pensions are now paid by the Commonwealth Government. The number of pensioners in Western Australia at June 30, 1922, was: Old Age, 5,316; Invalid, 2,022; War Pensioners, 23,561.

Finance.

The revenue and expenditure of Western Australia in eight years, ended June 30, are given as follows:—

Years ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure	Years ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1914 (pre-war)	5,205,343	5,340,754	1919 . .	4,044,850	5,596,865
1916 . .	5,356,978	5,705,201	1920 . .	5,863,501	6,531,725
1917 . .	4,577,007	5,276,764	1921 . .	6,789,565	7,476,291
1918 . .	4,622,536	5,328,279	1922 . .	6,907,107	7,639,242

Production and Industry.

Large portions of the State, for some hundreds of miles inland, are hilly, and even mountainous, although the altitude, so far as ascertained, rises nowhere above that of Mount Bruce (4,024 ft.) in the North West Division, or the Stirling Range (3,640 ft.) in the South West. The greater part of the far interior may be described as a great tableland, with an altitude of from one to two thousand feet above sea-level, the surface of which consists in certain areas of sand-dune, varied by wide stretches of clayey soils. Long, straggling rivers, broken during the summer into a series of pools, cross the country as far inland as the hills extend, widening in many cases nearer the coast into large sea estuaries. The climate is one of the most temperate in the world, especially in the South-Western portion, where excessive cold is never, and excessive heat very rarely known. The summer heat, which is mostly dry, with hardly any rainfall, is during the greater part of the hot season relieved by cool sea breezes in the afternoon. The winters are rainy, but with occasional dry spells of perfect weather.

Of the area of Western Australia, which is equal to more than half that of European Russia, probably about three-fourths is suitable for pastoral purposes. Some 60,000 square miles, at least, are equally fitted for agricultural purposes, more especially for the production of wheat, wine, and fruit, considerable areas being already under cultivation. The forests are among the most extensive within the Commonwealth, and contain some of the very finest hardwoods in the world, including jarrah (Eucalyptus marginata) and karri (Eucalyptus diversicolor). Sandalwood (Santalum cygnorum) is also found. The forests are rich in gums and resins, and barks containing tannin. Gold, coal, and other minerals in abundance are found in many parts.

In Western Australia, in 1911, there were 53,587 persons engaged in various forms of primary production. Of these, 21,566 were directly engaged in agriculture; 4,200 in pastoral pursuits; 5,868 in forestry, and 18,199 in mining and quarrying. There were, on December 31, 1921, a total of 1,099 industrial establishments in the State, employing either machinery or at least four hands. The total number of persons employed by them was 19,093, as against 18,799 in 1914, the highest number previously reached. The combined output of these establishments in 1921 was computed at 12,846,308*l*. The total estimated value of Western Australian production during 1920 was 22,973,000*l*., distributed as follows:—agricultural, 8,733,000*l*.; pastoral, 4,380,000*l*.; dairy, poultry, and bee-farming, 1,033,000*l*.; forestry and fisheries, 1,850,000*l*.; mining, 3,259,000*l*.; manufacturing, 3,718,000*l*. (value added to the raw material by the production of the industrial establishments).

Up to June 30, 1922, of the entire acreage of the State, 9,724,931 acres had been alienated; on that date 16,031,176 acres were in process of alienation; the area alienated and in process of alienation thus amounting to 25,756,107 acres. At the same date there were in force leases comprising an area of 267,619,907 acres, of which 263,403,351 acres were pastoral, and 1,907,621 acres were timber, while 54,990 acres were under mining leases, and 35,828 acres were Miners' Homestead leases. The area under crop in 1919 was 1,605,088 acres; in 1920, 1,628,163 acres; in 1921, 1,804,986 acres; and in 1922, 1,901,677 acres. The chief crops for two recent years were as follows:—

Crops	1920-21	1921-22	1920-21	1921-22
	Acres	Acres	Bushels	Bushels
Wheat . . .	1,275,675	1,336,228	12,248,080	13,904,721

			Gallons Wine	Gallons Wine
Vines . . .	3,209 ¹	3,951 ¹	152,979	152,299

¹ Of this acreage, only 969 acres were productive for wine-making in 1920-21, and 814 acres in 1921-22.

The area under wheat in 1922-23 is forecasted at 1,874,945 acres (for grain and hay).

The Agricultural Bank, established under the 'Agricultural Bank Act, 1894,' had, to June 30, 1922, advanced a total amount of 4,292,128*l*. The Industries Assistance Board, established in 1915, had, to March 31, 1922, advanced to assisted settlers a total amount of 6,082,989*l*. Under the Government Scheme for Soldier settlement, advances made to June 30, 1922, amounted to 3,811,523*l*, and total advances approved to 4,425,153*l*. Up to the same date, 4,398 returned soldiers had been so assisted.

The principal areas occupied by the more important trees of Western Australia, and the quantity cut in two years, according to the official Industrial Returns, were as follows:—

	Acres.	1920 Super. ft. cut.	1921 Super. ft. cut.
Jarrah (with blackbutt and red gum)	8,900,000	121,635,201	160,767,018

² The acreage of timbered country given is that of the regions in which the various timbers are found. The approximate present area of prime forests of Jarrah, Karri, Wandoo, and Tuart, fit for reservation for all time, is 4,918 sq. miles, viz., Jarrah, 4,350, Karri, 400, Wandoo, 160, and Tuart, 8 sq. miles.

³ Previously included with salmon-gum, &c.

The live-stock at the end of 1921 consisted of 180,334 horses; 893,108 cattle; 6,506,177 sheep; 63,001 pigs; 30,352 goats; 5,856 camels; and 3,274 mules and donkeys.

² This does not include wool exported on skins, which, during 1921, amounted to 5,593,952 lbs.

Many millions of acres are available for pastoral purposes.

Gold was first obtained in Western Australia in 1886. The sensational gold finds at Coolgardie and Kalgoorlie in 1892 and 1893 gave an impetus to Western Australian gold mining, which, in a few years' time, placed this State at the head of all the Australian Colonies as regards gold output. The aggregate output to the end of 1921 was 34,302,122 fine ozs., valued at 145,706,152*l*. There were in the State, in 1921, 735 leases of gold mines; men employed in the mines, 5,843, viz., 2,796 above and 3,047 underground; output of gold, 553,731 fine ozs., value 2,352,098*l* (standard mint value, exclusive of premiums realised on export sales).

The mineral output of the State for two years is shown in the following table :—

Commerce and Communications.

The external commerce of Western Australia, exclusive of inter-State trade, is comprised in the statement of the commerce of Australia, given under the heading of the Commonwealth.

The total value of the imports and exports, including inter-State trade, in 6 years is shown in the subjoined statement :—

June	1916-17	1917-18	1918-19	1919-20	1920-21	1921-22
	£	£	£	£	£	£
Imports	9,385,010	7,649,233	8,023,990	12,368,331	14,839,241	12,037,779

The most important of the exports for 1921-22 were wheat (3,037,997*l.*) and flour (1,024,632*l.*), wool (3,202,145*l.*), gold specie (2,948,501*l.*), timber (1,040,640*l.*); pearls and shell (281,110*l.*), hides and skins (365,149*l.*), silver (18,590*l.*), sandal-wood (54,769*l.*), fruit (176,104*l.*).

There were on the West Australian register on December 31, 1921, 54 steamers of 10,086 tons, and 357 sailing vessels of 11,853 tons; total, 411 vessels of 21,939 tons. Tonnage inwards and outwards, 1921-22, from and to ports outside the State, 6,497,073.

For the year ending June 30, 1922, the State had 3,539 miles of State Government railway, and 450 miles of Commonwealth line, the latter being the western portion of the Trans-Australian line (Kalgoorlie-Port Augusta), which links the State Railway System to those of the other States of the Commonwealth.

Money and Credit.

There are eight banks in Western Australia besides the State Government Savings Bank and the Commonwealth Bank of Australia and Savings Bank. The total paid-up capital of the cheque paying banks (including the Commonwealth Bank) in the quarter ended June 30, 1922, was 18,986,969*l.*; the notes in circulation (1922) were 26,256*l.*; deposits, 12,287,163*l.*; total average liabilities, 12,823,460*l.*; total assets, 15,835,268*l.*

State Government Savings Banks.—The amount due to depositors on June 30, 1922, inclusive of interest, was 5,736,318*l.*, whilst in addition an amount of 61,133*l.* was due under the head 'Schools Savings Bank.'

Branches of the Commonwealth Savings Bank were opened in this State at the beginning of 1913. On March 31, 1922, 1,961,865*l.* stood to the credit of 57,261 depositors.

TASMANIA.

Constitution and Government.

Abel Jans Tasman discovered Van Diemen's Land (Tasmania) on November 24, 1642. The island became a British settlement in 1803 as a dependency of New South Wales; in 1825 its connection with New South Wales was terminated; in 1851 a partially elective Legislative Council was established, and in 1856 responsible government came into operation. On January 1, 1901, Tasmania was federated with the other Australian States into the Commonwealth of Australia.

Parliament consists of a Legislative Council and a House of Assembly. The Council has 18 members, elected on a property qualification of 10*l.* freehold or 30*l.* a year leasehold. Certain professional men and all 'returned soldiers' are also electors. Members sit for 6 years, and retire in rotation. There is no power to dissolve the Council. The House of Assembly has 30 members, elected for 3 years by adults with six months' residence in the State. Members of both Houses are paid 300*l.* a year. Women received the right to vote in 1903. Proportional representation was adopted in 1907, after a partial trial in 1896. The method is the single transferable vote in 6-member constituencies. By-elections are superseded (from 1919) by a recount of the votes at the preceding General Election.

State of parties, June, 1922: Nationalists, 12; Labour 12; Independent, 1; Country, 5.

Governor.—(Vacant, Feb. 1923.) (Salary, 2,750*l.*)

Chief Justice.—Hon. Sir H. Nicholls, Kt.

The Governor is aided in the exercise of the executive by a Cabinet of responsible ministers, as follows :—

Premier and Minister for Works.—Hon. J. B. Hayes, C.M.G., M.H.A.

Chief Secretary and Minister for Education.—Hon. J. C. McPhee, M.H.A.

Attorney General and Minister for Railways.—Hon. W. B. Propsting, C.M.G., M.L.C.

Minister for Lands.—Hon. E. Blyth, M.H.A.

Treasurer and Minister for Mines.—Hon. Sir W. H. Lee, K.C.M.G., M.H.A.

Honorary Ministers.—Hon. A. Hean, C.M.G., M.H.A., and Hon. T. Shields, M.H.A.

Each of the ministers has a salary of 950*l.* per annum. The Premier has an additional 200*l.* a year. A minister must have a seat in one of the two Houses.

Agent-General in London.—A. H. Ashbolt.

Secretary.—H. W. Ely.

Offices.—Australia House, Strand, London, W.C. 2.

Area and Population.

Area, with Macquarie (170 square miles), 26,215 square miles or about 16,778,000 acres, of which 15,571,500 acres form the area of Tasmania Proper, the rest constituting that of a number of small islands, in two main groups, the north-east and north-west.

The population has increased as follows (census returns) :—

Year	Population	Increase per Ct. per Annum	Year	Population	Increase per Ct. per Annum
1861	89,977	2·44	1901	172,475	1·64
1871	99,328	1·13	1911	191,211	1·04
1881	115,705	1·38	1921	213,877	1·12
1891	146,667	2·36

In 1921 there were 107,767 males and 106,110 females. The average density is 8·16 persons to a square mile. Of the total population in 1911, 79·2 per cent. were natives of Tasmania, 11·5 per cent. natives of the United Kingdom, and 7·3 per cent. natives of other Australasian colonies. There were 676 Chinese and other coloured aliens, and 227 half-caste aborigines. The pure aboriginal is extinct.

The population shows the usual Australian excess of males, fairly steady before the war, vanishing during the war, and since partly recovered, by June, 1921, to an excess of one male in every 100 of population.

The births, deaths, and marriages for five years were as follows :—

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1914	6,017	1,543	1,918	4,099
1918	5,280	1,131	1,802	3,478
1919	5,310	1,513	2,192	3,118
1920	5,740	1,999	2,036	3,704
1921	5,755	1,668	2,197	3,558

For the decade 1912-21, the birth-rate was 28·5, the death-rate 10·1, and the rate of natural increase of population 18·4 per 1,000, the highest in the Commonwealth. For the 4 years, 1918-21, the infant mortality averaged 67 per 1,000. Tasmania, with a high natural increase and small area, has been a source of population for the mainland States since the days when Tasmanians founded Melbourne and colonised Victoria. For the decade, the average loss by migration has been about 1,105 per annum, or 9·0 per 1,000, leaving a net annual rate of increase of population of 12·8 per 1,000.

Population of the capital, Hobart and Suburbs (census April 4, 1921), 52,163, of Launceston and Suburbs, 26,318.

Religion.

In 1911, belonging to the Church of England, 88,158; Roman Catholics, 28,581; Catholics (undefined), 4,080; Methodists, 24,975; Presbyterians, 15,735; Independents, 6,000; Baptists, 4,757.

Instruction.

Primary education is free and secular, and compulsory between the ages of 7 and 14. Nine-tenths of the primary teaching is at State schools. The average monthly enrolment at all schools is about 88 per cent. of the total children of 'compulsory' age, and the average attendance is 81 per cent. of the enrolment. The cost of primary education to the State in 1921 was 8*l.* 3*s.* per head of average attendance, exclusive of buildings, which cost annually about 15*s.* per head. Secondary education is about equally divided between the new State High Schools and the older endowed schools. The 5 State High Schools in 1921 had an average attendance of 770, at a cost of 20*l.* per head, exclusive of buildings.

There are 4 Technical Schools, and 4 junior Technical Schools, with a total enrolment of 1,208. A large Trade School in Hobart for repatriation purposes provides courses for 14 trades, and others are being organised. The total number of returned soldiers being trained in this way is 220.

The University of Tasmania, established 1890, confers degrees in arts, science, law and commerce. A complete engineering course with degree came into operation in 1921. There were in 1921, 227 students taking courses for degrees. University expenditure in 1921 (exclusive of capital expenditure) was about 13,103*l.* In 1921, 15 Tutorial Classes were provided by the University at different centres for the Workers' Educational Association, mostly in economics and history. Total average attendance 248. Medical inspection of children in primary schools (State and private) has been carried out since 1906. Dental treatment was commenced in 1916. The total cost in 1921 was 2*s.* 8*d.* per child on the roll.

Justice and Crime.

There are a Supreme Court, courts of petty, general, and quarter sessions, the latter presided over by a stipendiary magistrate, assisted by justices of the peace. According to the Police Report, during the year 1920-21, 5,189 persons were summarily convicted, and 131 persons were committed for trial. The figures for crime generally are higher than during the war, but show no appreciable increase over 1914 either for all offences, indictable offences, or offences against the person. The total police force on June 30, 1921, was 233. There were 2 gaols, with 92 male and 4 female inmates, at the end of June, 1922.

Old Age Pensions.

Old Age and Invalidity Pensions are paid by the Commonwealth Government. The number of pensioners in Tasmania on June 30, 1922, was : Old Age, 5,265 ; Invalid, 2,005 ; War, 9,846.

Revenue and Expenditure.

• The revenue is derived chiefly from taxation (income, land, death duties and taxation of betting), and from the rental and sale of Crown lands. Public services, on the whole, do not pay interest on capital cost. The customs and excise duties are now in the hands of the Commonwealth, and an amount equal to 25s. per head of population is returned to the State, with an additional special grant from 1911 to 1921, amounting to about 9s. per head.

Revenue . .	1,238,085	1,581,984	1,815,031	2,105,449	2,180,395
Expenditure .	1,235,514	1,644,512	1,828,301	2,189,157	2,302,077

The public debt of Tasmania amounted June 30, 1922, to 21,945,411*l.*, of which 30 per cent. has been spent on railways, 10 per cent. on hydro-electric works, and 27 per cent. on roads and bridges. The railways earned 0·87 per cent. on their capital, which bears an average interest of 3½ per cent.

State taxation amounts to 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per head, of which income tax provides 32*s.* 6*d.*, land tax 8*s.* 11*d.*, death duties 5*s.* 7*d.*, lottery and totalisator taxation 9*s.* 8*d.* Land and income taxes and death duties are also collected by the Commonwealth, averaging 3*l.* 6*s.* 11*d.* per head, and customs and excise of 5*l.* 19*s.* per head. The Commonwealth contribution to the State revenue represents about 23 per cent. of the customs and excise collected on account of the State.

Defence.

For defence, see under Commonwealth of Australia.

Production and Industry.

The total area of the colony is 16,778,000 acres, including 1,206,500 acres islands and lakes. Unalienated land, principally heavily timbered or mineral-bearing, amounts to about 8,500,000 acres.

The value in 1921-22 of agricultural and pastoral products was 4,592,004*l.*, of mining products, 854,730*l.*, and of manufactures (output less raw materials), 2,813,360*l.* ; total, 8,260,094*l.*

Pease " "	389,219	18·76	Fruit, bushels .	3,537,122	96·70

Live-stock in 1922: Horses, 38,439; cattle, 216,704; sheep, 1,551,273; pigs, 49,743. The numbers of all live-stock remain steady, in general, but there was a serious shortage of sheep in 1921. The wool-clip, 8 million pounds in 1921-22, is a little below the average.

Forests cover a considerable part of the island. The mills cut 63 million super. feet of timber in 1920. The export of logs is not recorded.

Chief mineral products for the year ended June 30, 1922:—

Mineral	Quantity	Value	Mineral	Quantity	Value
Copper . . . tons	6,158	441,736	Osmiridium . . oz.	1,456	35,541
Tin . . . tons	696	109,928	Coal . . . tons	64,828	57,791

Lead . . . tons	2,736	63,321	All minerals . .	—	854,730

The output of zinc by the Electrolytic Co. was considerably less in quantity than in the previous year, as the plant was idle for several months, owing to the maritime strike having disorganised the shipping arrangements for delivery of ores. The total mineral production has averaged 1,500,000*l.* for the last 20 years, increased prices balancing decreased quantities. Copper, tin and coal remain fairly steady in total value, but gold has fallen away greatly. Osmiridium is growing in importance, and silver-lead mining gives promise of revival. Tungsten ores (wolfram and scheelite) fell greatly in price in 1921, and production is decreasing.

Manufactures.—The two important manufactures for export are metal extraction and fruit-preserving. Others that have an output beyond local requirements are woollen mills and breweries. The carbide works at North-West Bay are expected to supply the needs of all Australia. The chief recent industrial development has been the provision, by a State department, of cheap hydro-electric power for manufacturing purposes. The Great Lake scheme is designed to supply 70,000 h.p. At present 18,000 h.p. are being generated, and an extension to 42,000 h.p. under construction. The total power so far surveyed for practicable schemes is 216,000 h.p. Power in large blocks has been sold as low as 2*l.* per h.p. per annum. Important applications of this power are to metal extraction and manufacture of carbide of calcium. The Electrolytic Zinc Works at Risdon, with an output of 15 tons per day, are being enlarged to a capacity of 100 tons per day. This plant will treat the complex ores of the West Coast, as well as the Broken Hill ore, on which it is now operating.

Commerce, Shipping, &c.

The commerce of Tasmania, exclusive of inter-State trade, is comprised in the statement of the commerce of Australia, given under the heading of the Commonwealth. Imports and exports:—

Direct Oversea Trade.	1913	1918-19	1919-20	1920-21	1921-22
	£	£	£	£	£
Total imports	1,025,081	608,786	813,341	2,264,933	1,355,951
Total exports	522,865	1,002,093	2,010,503	1,329,583	2,067,443

428 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—NORTHERN TERRITORY

The Commonwealth alone collects statistics relating to imports and exports, which are restricted to trade external to Australia. No information is yet available as to inter-State or to indirect foreign trade, but inter-State trade Statistics are being collected since July 1, 1922.

The exports are chiefly wool, copper, silver, tin, timber, fruit and jam, potatoes, hops, grain, hides and skins, bark.

The registered shipping in 1921 consisted of 70 sailing vessels of 2,412 tons, and 109 steamers of 13,000 tons; total, 179 vessels of 15,412 tons.

For shipping, railways, posts and telegraphs, see under Commonwealth of Australia.

Savings Banks.

The number of depositors in Savings Banks, including the Commonwealth Savings Bank, 1921, was 115,502, and the amount on deposit 4,159,502l.

THE NORTHERN TERRITORY OF AUSTRALIA.

Government.

The Northern Territory, after forming part of New South Wales, was annexed by Royal Letters Patent, dated July 6, 1863, to South Australia. On the establishment of Federation in 1901, the Territory entered the Commonwealth as a corporate part of the State of South Australia. The Commonwealth Constitution Act of 1900 made provision for the surrender to the Commonwealth of any territory by any State, and under this provision an agreement was entered into on December 7, 1907, by the Commonwealth and South Australia for the transfer of the Northern Territory to the former. After the necessary legislation approving this agreement had been passed by the two parliaments concerned, the Territory formally passed under the control of the Commonwealth Government on January 1, 1911. The Commonwealth at the same time assumed responsibility for the State loans contracted by South Australia on behalf of the territory; it took over by purchase the railway from Port Augusta to Oodnadatta; and it undertook to construct a transcontinental railway from Pine Creek southwards to the boundary of South Australia, and to connect these two railways. On June 30, 1921, the public debt was 3,968,297l.

Administrator.—F. C. Urquhart.

Government Secretary.—C. B. Story.

Area and Population.

The Northern Territory is bounded by the 26th parallel of south latitude, and the 129th and 138th degrees of east longitude. Its area is 523,620 square miles. The area alienated on June 30, 1921, amounted to 747 square miles absolutely; 231,137 were held under leases and licences; and the remainder, 291,736 square miles, was unoccupied. The coast line is about 1,040 miles in length. The Territory possesses many fine rivers and several good harbours, the principal harbour being Port Darwin, where Darwin is situated. The greater part of the interior consists of a tableland rising gradually from the coast to a height of about 1,700 feet. On this tableland there are large areas of excellent pasturage. The southern part of the territory is generally sandy with a small rainfall, but it can be watered by means of artesian bores. The climate is tropical, but varies considerably over the whole Territory. The proximity of the sea in the north keeps it fairly equable in the coastal region, but further south the climate is of a continental type, showing a great variation between the hottest and coldest months.

Population.—The population, excluding aborigines, has varied as follows:—

Year	Europeans	Others	Totals
1881	670	2,781	3,451
1891	1,144	3,754	4,898
1901	1,055	3,756	4,811
1911 (Census)	1,418	1,892	3,310
1916 (31st Dec.)	3,839	928	4,767
1920 (30th June)	2,770	1,161	3,931
1921 (Census)	2,462	1,408	3,870

Of the 1921 Census total 1,049 were females. In June 1918, Asiatics in the Territory numbered 1,177. The aborigines are estimated to number about 20,000.

The tribes inhabiting the Northern Territory are Larakaya and Worgait at Port Darwin, Melville Island Tribe, Port Essington Tribe, Djanan Tribe at Katherine Creek, Yangman Tribe round Elsey Creek, Mungarai Tribe along the upper part of the Roper River, Nullakun Tribe middle part of the Roper River, and the Mara Tribe south of the Roper River.

Finance.

The revenue and expenditure for 6 years were as follows:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure ¹	Year	Revenue	Expenditure ¹
	£	£		£	£
1913-14	73,657	532,535	1918-19	39,541	497,301
1916-17	102,980	805,365	1919-20	86,734	462,264

¹ Includes Commonwealth expenditure in connection with Port Augusta Railway up to 1920 (inclusive).

The chief sources of revenue for the year ending June 30, 1921, were the Customs and Excise, 4,450*l.*; Railways, 12,761*l.*; and Postal revenue, 8,584*l.* The chief items of expenditure (excluding interest, loans, &c.) were as follows:—Buildings, roads, bridges, farms, &c., 22,144*l.*; railways, 27,601*l.* The Commonwealth is also liable for interest on loans and redemption, in respect of Northern Territory and the Port Augusta Railway. The deficiency for the year was 279,699*l.*

Production and Industry.

The soils of the Territory differ greatly, but it is stated that most products known to the tropical and semi-tropical zones can be grown successfully. At present, however, agriculture is insignificant. In most parts the natural grasses are extremely rich in nutriment, and provide food for cattle, horses, sheep, and other stock. The numbers of stock on June 30, 1921, were :—Cattle, 659,840 ; horses, 37,837 ; sheep, 6,062 ; pigs, 1,322.

The Territory is rich in mineral resources, though these are very little developed. The aggregate value of the minerals produced to June 30, 1921, and in the year 1920-21, was as follows :—

—	Total to June 30, 1921	1920-21	—	Total to June 30, 1921	1920-21
	£	£		£	£
Gold . .	2,267,634	1,042	Silver & lead .	62,515	nil

Tin . .	520,189	7,793
			Total .	3,317,310	18,746

Commerce.

The overseas imports and exports are given as follows :—

TERRITORIES OF THE AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH. TERRITORY OF PAPUA (BRITISH NEW GUINEA).

This possession is the south-eastern part of the island of New Guinea, with the islands of the D'Entrecasteaux and Louisiade groups and all islands between 8° and 12° S. latitude, and 141° and 155° E. longitude. Area 90,540 square miles, of which about 87,786 are on the mainland of New Guinea, and 2,754 on the islands above mentioned. On April 4, 1922, the population was as follows:—European, 1,104; coloured (other than Papuan), 784; Papuans (estimated), 275,000. (For the part of New Guinea lately possessed by Germany and now administered by Australia, see below).

The acquisition of that portion of the island of New Guinea not claimed by Holland was long urged by Australian statesmen, and the growing influence of France and Germany in the Pacific created some alarm lest a country so near to Australia should pass into the hands of a foreign power. To prevent this the Government of Queensland annexed the south-eastern part of the island in 1883. This step was not ratified by the Imperial Government, but in 1887 that colony undertook to defray the cost of administration, and the territory was annexed to the Crown the following year. The Federal Government took over the control in 1901; the political transfer was completed by the Papua Act of the Federal Parliament in November, 1905, and on September 1, 1906, a proclamation was issued by the Governor-General of Australia declaring that British New Guinea was to be known henceforth as the Territory of Papua. There is an executive council composed of 6 official members, and a legislative council composed of the executive councillors and three non-official members nominated by the Governor-General of Australia.

Lieut. Governor and Chief Judicial Officer—J. H. P. Murray, C.M.G.

Government Secretary.—Herbert William Champion.

Tribes have in large areas settled down to peaceful habits. Four missionary bodies are at work; many hundreds of natives are being taught by these bodies. Approximately 229,283 acres of land have been leased, chiefly by planters, the principal cultures being coconuts (46,239 acres at December 31, 1921), rubber (7,545 acres), sisal hemp (5,822 acres). On December 31, 1920, there were 60,118 acres of plantations. By the Papua Act, 1905, freehold alienation is prohibited, but leases may be obtained at low rentals for long terms. Indigenous sago is plentiful in the western portion of the Territory, and there are considerable numbers of native-owned coconut trees. The forests contain valuable timbers, in most cases easily accessible by river. A regulation, which is strictly enforced, requires that each native shall plant a certain number of coconut trees or other economic trees or plants if his land is suitable.

There are three ports of entry—Port Moresby, Samarai, and Daru.

There are 8 magisterial districts, each in charge of a resident magistrate. There are also 2 relieving and 20 assistant resident magistrates, and 9 patrol officers. There is a Central Court at Port Moresby, but it holds sittings wherever and whenever necessary. For native government some simple regulations have been passed. There were (1922) 821 village policemen; armed constabulary, 307 (exclusive of Europeans who are officers of armed constabulary).

Throughout the Territory there are numerous schools belonging to the various Christian missions; the attendance of native children at these schools is compulsory if English is taught. The Native Taxes Ordinance came into force on January 15, 1919, imposing a tax not exceeding 10s. per head on indentured native labourers, and not exceeding 20s. per head on other natives. After expenses of collection are paid the balance is to be devoted firstly, to native education, and secondly, to other purposes having for their object the direct benefit of the natives. The education will be chiefly undertaken by the missions aided by grants from the taxation fund.

Revenue is mainly from customs duties. An annual subsidy of 50,000*l.* is given by the Australian Government. In addition, 27,500*l.* has been loaned to the Territory for the establishment of Government plantations, to be repaid from profits on the plantations. On December 31, 1922, the Government plantations covered 2,474 acres. Commonwealth grants are also made for various purposes. It is hoped that Papua will soon be self-supporting.

The minerals include gold, copper, tin, lead, zinc, cinnabar, iron, osmiridium, gypsum, manganese, sulphur, graphite, chromite, brown coal, and petroleum. There are 8 proclaimed mineral fields, seven of which are gold fields, and 1 copper. Mining is one of the most important industries. Gold is obtained in the Louisiade Islands, on the mainland, and on Woodlark Island. A large area near Port Moresby with promising copper deposits has been proclaimed a mineral field, and this is being vigorously developed by a strong company. A railway from the field to the coast has been constructed and smelters are being erected. Electric power from the Rouna Falls is also to be developed. In 1921 work was temporarily suspended, more money raised and assistance given by the Commonwealth Government, but work is now proceeding again. Copper ore exports in 1917-18, 1,112 tons, valued at 11,572*l.*; in 1918-19, 224 tons valued at 1,613*l.* In 1919-20 no copper ore was exported; but in 1920-21, 255 tons, valued at 1,830*l.* In 1917-18 the gold output was valued at 32,931*l.*; 1918-19, 21,550*l.*; 1919-20, 21,747*l.*; and in 1920-21, 9,890*l.* Indications of petroleum have been found over an area of 1,000 sq. miles, and boring by the Anglo-Persian Oil Company is still proceeding on behalf of the Australian Government. The trade is principally with Queensland and New South Wales. The chief imports are food-stuffs, tobacco, drapery and hardware; exports 1920-21, copra (2,984 tons, 68,579*l.*); gold (5,984 oz., 11,158*l.*); hemp (188 tons, 7,723*l.*); pearls (11,416 cts., 14,950*l.*); osmiridium (208 oz., 6,245*l.*); rubber (220 tons, 28,966*l.*); pearl shell (6 tons, 1,162*l.*); trochus shell (60 tons, 3,302*l.*). Number of horses (1921), 368; cattle, 2,344; mules, 123.

Steamers trade between Sydney and Port Moresby every three weeks, and small coastal vessels run at frequent intervals between the various inter-territorial ports. Ocean-going shipping entered and cleared 1920-21, 74,206 tons. There are wireless telegraph stations at Port Moresby, Samarai, Misima, and Popo.

There are branches of the Bank of New South Wales at Port Moresby and Samarai. Commonwealth Government notes are legal tender. The currency and its legal tender are the same as in the United Kingdom and Australia.

NEW ZEALAND.

New Zealand was first discovered in 1642 by Tasman, and the coast was explored by Captain Cook in 1769, and in subsequent years. It became a resort for whalers and traders, chiefly from Australia. In 1840 the native chiefs ceded the sovereignty to the British Crown and the islands became a British Colony.

The aborigines, called Maoris, are a branch of the Polynesian race; they are divided into about twenty clans, analogous to those of the Scottish Highlands. Between 1845 and 1848, and again between 1860 and 1870 about half of these clans were in revolt against British rule, but peace was permanently established in 1871.

Government and Constitution.

By Order in Council of September 9, 1907, and by Proclamation, the designation of the Colony of New Zealand was changed to the Dominion of New Zealand, on and from September 26, 1907. The present form of government was established by Statute 15 & 16 Vict., cap. 72, passed in 1852. The Colony was divided into six provinces, afterwards increased to nine, reduced later to eight, and again increased to nine. By a subsequent Act of the Colonial Legislature, 39 Vict., No. xxi., passed in 1875, the provincial system of government was abolished, and the powers previously exercised by superintendents and provincial officers were ordered to be exercised by the Governor. (Governor-General from June 1917), or by local boards. The legislative power is vested in the Governor-General and a "General Assembly" consisting of two Chambers—a Legislative Council and a House of Representatives. The Governor-General has the power of assenting to or withholding consent from bills, or he may reserve them for His Majesty's pleasure. He summons, prorogues, and dissolves the Parliament. He can send drafts of bills to either House for consideration, but in case of appropriations of public money must first recommend the House of Representatives to make provision accordingly before any appropriations can become law. He can return bills for amendment to either House.

The Legislative Council consists (June, 1922) of thirty-nine members, who are paid at the rate of 315*l.* per annum. Members hold their seats for seven years only, unless reappointed. Provision has been made for the Legislative Council to be made effective at a date to be fixed by Proclamation. Twenty-four members are to be elected at the first election and 40 at subsequent elections. Three Maori members may be appointed by the Governor-General. Present sitting members hold office till the end of the term of their appointment.

The House of Representatives consists of eighty members, including four Maoris, elected by the people for three years. They are paid at the rate of 450*l.* per annum. Every man registered as an elector is eligible as a member of the House of Representatives. Women are also eligible. For European representation every adult person (of either sex), if resident one year in the Dominion and one month in an electoral district, can be registered an elector for such Electoral District. No person may be registered on more than one electoral roll. Every adult Maori resident in any of the four Maori electoral districts can vote, provided he (or she) be not registered on any European roll. Registration is not required in Native districts.

The result of the general election of December, 1922, was: Reform Party, 38; Liberals and Independent Liberals, 25; Labour Party, 17.

Department of the High Commissioner in London :—

High Commissioner.—The Hon. Sir James Allen, K.C.B., 415 Strand, London, W.C. 2.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

For purposes of local government New Zealand is divided into counties and boroughs. The counties are subdivided into ridings. County councils are empowered to constitute road districts on petition being made. Besides the road districts, which are very numerous, there are town, drainage, electric supply, water supply, river, tramway, local railway, and harbour districts.

The ratepayers in the road districts of a county are qualified as electors for the purposes of the county council, and the members of each road board are elected by the ratepayers of the district.

Area and Population.

There are two principal islands, the North and South Islands, besides Stewart Island, and small outlying islands, including (since 1901), the Cook and some other islands in the Pacific Ocean. The group is 1,000 miles long, and 180 miles across at the broadest part; coast line 3,000 miles. New Zealand is about 1,200 miles east of Australia. Area, excluding islands annexed in 1901, 103,568 square miles. North Island, 44,130 square miles, South Island 58,120, Stewart Island 662 square miles. Acreage 66,292,232 acres, exclusive of the Cook and other islands (179,200 acres), and up to March, 1921, 27,390,625 acres had been alienated, including lands reserved and set apart by the State for special purposes (9,978,608 acres), but excluding State Forests (7,094,317 acres). Estimated population, June 30, 1922, 1,250,942, exclusive of Maoris, 52,751, and residents of Cook and other annexed Islands, 13,209 in 1921. Census population, exclusive of aborigines :—

Instruction.

The University of New Zealand is solely an examining body, with an annual grant of 4,000*l*. The number of graduates admitted after examination was, in 1921, 2,697. There are four affiliated colleges—the Otago University at Dunedin, with 55 professors and lecturers; the Canterbury College at Christchurch, with 29 professors and lecturers; the Auckland University College, with 24 professors and lecturers; and the Victoria University College at Wellington, with 24 professors and lecturers; students attending lectures in the four affiliated colleges (1921), 3,924. They are all endowed with lands. The Canterbury Agricultural College is a recognised school of agriculture.

At the end of 1921 there were 35 incorporated or endowed secondary schools, with 405 (excluding part-time) teachers and 10,030 pupils (excluding 774 in lower departments). Of the total income more than half is from endowments and Government payments. There are also 57 District High Schools with 103 teachers and 2,176 scholars. Children receiving secondary instruction at Technical High Schools (thirteen) numbered 3,349 in 1921. Of private secondary schools there were 20 registered, with 1,634 pupils. Ten secondary schools for Maoris had 418 pupils.

For primary schools there is an Education Department (which also exercises certain functions in regard to both university and secondary schools). There are 9 Local Education Boards. At the end of 1921 there were 2,437 public primary schools, 6,508 teachers (including 692 probationers), 207,357 scholars on the rolls; average attendance (1921), 182,306. Education is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 14. The instruction given at the public schools is secular only, and for the ordinary standard course entirely free. Where there are no schools classes may be formed in the public school for extra subjects, for which special subsidies are given.

The Education Department's functions include: (a), maintenance, etc., of destitute children; (b), care of epidemic orphans; (c), training of uncontrollable and delinquent children ; (d), supervision of adopted children, and juvenile offenders placed on probation by the courts ; (e), education, etc., of all afflicted children (deaf, blind, and feeble-minded). There are 7 schools of mines ; 4 normal schools ; 5 central schools of art ; 13 industrial schools, with 3,830 (1921) children or young persons ; a school for the deaf ; an institute for the blind (at Auckland) ; special schools for mentally backward boys in Otago and Nelson ; and a similar school for girls at Richmond, Nelson. There were also, at the end of 1921, 235 registered primary private schools, with 23,924 pupils.

There were 123 Native village schools, with 263 teachers and 5,882 scholars, including 779 Europeans. Total net expenditure by the State on Native schools in 1921-22 was 77,603*l*. Total expenditure out of public funds in 1921-22 upon education of all kinds 3,497,000*l*.

Justice and Crime.

There are eight supreme court judges, and thirty-three stipendiary magistrates. There are numerous magistrates' courts and justices of the peace.

In 1921 there were 35,446 summary convictions, and 1,419 convictions in supreme courts, including 1,002 cases sent up from lower courts for sentence. These figures do not include Maoris. At the end of 1921 the gaols contained 1,099 prisoners.

Pauperism, Pensions, etc.

The Dominion is divided into districts, with elective boards for the administration of the public hospitals and charitable relief. The Government subsidises bequests at the rate of 10*s*. in the pound ; voluntary contributions, 24*s*. in the pound ; and contributions by local authorities, according to a sliding scale, ranging from 12*s*. 3*d*. in the pound to 24*s*. 3*d*. in the pound, according to the value of rateable property within the district. The total expenditure on Charitable Aid during the year ended March 31, 1921, was 190,041*l*. During 1921 the benevolent and orphan asylums accommodated 6,411 inmates ; and 3,830 children (2,199 boys and 1,631 girls) were wholly or partly maintained by the State in industrial schools and other institutions in 1921.

In 1898 an Act, amended in 1905 and consolidated and amended in 1913, provided for old-age pensions. Every person, not an alien or an Asiatic, who fulfils certain conditions is entitled to a pension of 26*l*. a year. The joint annual income of a married couple in receipt of pensions must not exceed 100*l*. (including pensions). An Act of 1917 increased the rates of pensions payable during the period of the war and twelve months after. Pensions are also granted to widows, to miners incapacitated as a result of miners' phthisis, and to veterans of the Maori war. In addition are those pensions granted in respect of the recent war.

Defence.

In 1909 New Zealand passed a Defence Act, amended 1910, which provided for the gradual military training of every male New Zealander between the ages of 12 and 25, with further service in the Reserve up to age of 30. Under this Act a boy serves from 12 to 14 as a junior cadet, from 14 to 18 as a senior cadet, from 18 to 25 he becomes a soldier in the Territorial Force, and from 25 to 30 he serves in the Reserve. Senior cadets do 50 drills and a musketry course annually. The soldier in the Territorial Force does 30 drills, 6 whole-day parades, and 7 days continuous annual training. The pre-war strength of the Territorial Force was about 30,000, and the present strength is 25,200.

The New Zealand military forces are under a general officer commanding, who has at his disposal a general headquarters divided into the general staff and administrative services and departments. New Zealand is organised into 3 military commands, the Western, Central, and Southern, each command being under an officer commanding. Each command furnishes 1 mounted rifle brigade, 1 field artillery brigade, and 1 infantry brigade, and has attached to it a varying number of coast and pack artillery batteries, and certain depots. The forces are so organised as to be rapidly mobilised as a complete division and a mounted division.

The Naval Defence Act, 1920, provided for the establishment of a New Zealand Naval Force, to be raised and maintained by voluntary enlistment only, enlistment being for a prescribed period not less than two years. In time of war the Naval Force (including vessels acquired for defence purposes) is at the disposal of the British Government. The Naval force consists of training ship Philomel and cruiser Chatham which was recently presented by the Imperial Government. The establishment of a New Zealand Royal Naval Reserve is also provided for under the Act. A Naval Board was constituted in June 1921, which is charged with the control of all matters relating to the Naval Forces, of which it has executive command.

Production and Industry.

AGRICULTURE.

Two-thirds of the surface of New Zealand are suitable for agriculture and grazing. About 17,000,000 acres are still under forest. The total area under cultivation (including 16,112,598 acres in sown grasses and 147,678 in fallow) in 1922 was 18,381,363 acres. The area of Crown lands surveyed and open for selection on March 31, 1921, was 426,245 acres.

The largest freehold estates are held in the South Island. The extent of occupied holdings of or over one acre in 1921 (exclusive of holdings within borough boundaries) was as follows :—

1921	42,942,443	43,615,017	1,213,780	44,828,827

The value of imports is taken as the fair market value in the country exporting same, plus a uniform charge of ten per cent. for freight, &c. For exports the 'free-on-board in New Zealand' value is given; but, as regards the main items, the Collector of Customs examines carefully the amounts stated and compares them with current price lists, to prevent any over-estimate. Beginning with 1914 the country of origin of imports is obtained, as well as country of shipment. The country of shipment is obtained in cases of exports, but this may or may not be the country of ultimate destination. Very little cargo in transitu passes through New Zealand.

The principal imports and exports in 1921 are given as follows:—

The telegraph system is Governmental. On March 31, 1922, there were 13,767 miles of line and 52,177 of wire. Number of telegrams despatched during the year, 12,934,465. The telephone (Governmental) is very generally used. The telegraph and telephone revenue for the year 1921-22 was 1,314,068*l*.

Money and Credit.

There were, in December, 1921, six banks of issue doing business. Two of these were wholly New Zealand institutions, having a paid-up capital of 4,375,000*l*., besides which the Bank of New Zealand has 529,988*l*. of 4 per cent. guaranteed stock. The total average liabilities for 1921, in respect of New Zealand transactions, were 58,808,439*l*., and the average assets 63,701,282*l*. The average amount on deposit was 49,397,411*l*. The value of the notes in circulation in June, 1922, was 7,315,753*l*. Gold has almost entirely disappeared from circulation.

There are the post-office savings-bank and 5 private savings banks. The former had, March 31, 1922, 831 branches; the latter have not more than one or two branches each; number of depositors in Post Office Savings Banks at 31st March, 1922, 678,930; amount deposited during year, 29,125,998*l*.; withdrawn, 30,236,231*l*.; amount on deposit at end of year, 43,841,704*l*. At 31st March, 1921, 3,917,429*l*. was on deposit in private savings banks to the credit of 104,395 depositors.

Attached to New Zealand are the following islands:

Auckland Islands, 50° 31' S., 166° 19' E., 200 miles S. of Stewart Island. Area of largest about 330 square miles. Uninhabited. The New Zealand Government maintains a depôt of provisions and clothing for the use of shipwrecked mariners on the largest island of the group.

Chatham Islands, 43° 50' S., 177° W., 536 miles E. of New Zealand. Area 375 square miles; population (April, 1921) 445 (210 Europeans and 235 Maoris and Morioris).

The Cook and other South Pacific Islands were annexed to New Zealand in June, 1901. They lie between 8° and 23° S. lat., 157° and 170° W. long. The names of the islands with their populations (1921) are as follows:—

	Population		Population
Rarotonga	3,503	Palmerston Is. . . .	83
Mangaia	1,230	Penrhyn (Tongareva) . .	376
Atiu	837	Manahiki	432

Mitiaro	207	Suvarrow	—
Hervey Islands	—
Niue (Savage Is.) . .	3,750	Total	13,200

Total area of the Cook and other islands about 280 square miles.

Rarotonga is 20 miles in circumference; Atiu, 20 miles; Aitutaki, 21 miles; Niue (or Savage Island), 40 miles. Laws for the Cook Islands have been made since 1890 by a general Legislature, and are administered by an Executive Council, of which the Arikis, or native chiefs, are members. At Rarotonga and Niue there are (New Zealand) Resident Commissioners, whose approval is required for all enactments. The customs tariff of New Zealand is enforced. In 1915 an Act was passed by the New Zealand Parliament consolidating the laws relating to the Islands, and providing for the appointment of a member of the Executive Council of New Zealand as Minister of the Cook Islands. The Minister is charged with the administration of the Islands. The Act provides for the constitution of Island Councils, lower and higher Courts of Justice, and native land court, as well as for the establishment of public schools, &c. In 1921 the numbers of births, marriages, and deaths were respectively 411, 222, and 260. Education: there are 10 primary schools and one technical school in the group, with an attendance of over 1,400 scholars. Revenue, financial year 1921-22, 22,011*l.*; expenditure, 32,422*l.* The trade for 1921 was:—Imports, 139,313*l.*, including 120,006*l.* from New Zealand and 3,451*l.* from United Kingdom; exports 86,082*l.*, including 74,129*l.* to New Zealand, 6,826*l.* to United States of America. Chief exports, 1921 (Rarotonga):—Bananas, 21,680*l.*; oranges, 22,343*l.*; tomatoes, 11,169*l.*; coconuts, 645*l.*; coffee, raw, 608*l.*; copra, 11,841*l.* A wireless station has been completed at Rarotonga, and is now in use.

Kermadec Islands, 36° S., 178° 30' W., 600 miles N.N.E. of New Zealand. Area 15 square miles. Now uninhabited. The largest of the group is Raoul or Sunday Island, 20 miles in circuit; Macaulay Island is 3 miles in circuit.

Small uninhabited islands are: The Campbell Islands, the Three Kings Islands, the Antipodes Islands, and the Bounty Islands.

FIJI.

Constitution and Government.

The Fiji Islands were discovered by Tasman in 1643 and visited by Captain Cook in 1769. The sovereignty was offered by the natives to Great Britain in 1859, but declined. The question of annexation was brought forward some years later, and the sovereignty of the islands was ceded by the chiefs and people on October 10, 1874. The government is administered by a Governor appointed by the Crown, assisted by an Executive Council consisting of the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, other official members appointed by the Governor, and two nominated members selected by the Governor from the elected members of the Legislative Council. Laws are passed by the Legislative Council, of which the Governor is president. It comprises eleven nominated official members, seven elected members, two nominated Fijian members, and one nominated Indian member.

Governor of Fiji and High Commissioner for the Western Pacific.—Sir Cecil Hunter Rodwell, K.C.M.G. (appointed, 1918). Salary 3,500*l.* as Governor of Fiji, and 1,350*l.* as High Commissioner for the Western Pacific.

There is a constabulary consisting of Fijians and Indians, and a Defence Force (Europeans, half-castes, and Fijians).

For the purposes of native government the colony is divided into 17 provinces, in 6 of which a superior native chief exercises, under the title of Roko Tui, a form of rule which recognises to a large degree the principles of native administration by which the people formerly governed themselves. In seven of the provinces there are European commissioners. About 180 native officials are employed in subordinate administrative capacities. There are also 30 native stipendiary magistrates associated with 19 District Commissioners in the administration of justice. A European commissioner, who is also Government medical officer, resides in Rotuma.

Area and Population.

Fiji comprises a group of about 250 islands (about 80 inhabited) lying between 15° and 21° south latitudes and 177° east and 178° west longitude. The largest is Viti Levu, area 4,053 square miles; next is Vanua Levu, area 2,130 square miles. The island of Rotuma, between 12° and 15° of south latitude, and 175° and 177° east longitude, was added to the colony in 1880. Total area, including Rotuma, 7,083 square miles.

At the census of April 24, 1921, the population was 157,266; the Europeans, 3,878 (2,297 males, 1,581 females); Fijians, 84,475 (44,022 males, 40,453 females); Indians, 60,634 (37,015 males, 23,619 females);

Chinese, 910 (845 males, 65 females); half-castes, 2,781 (1,454 males, 1,327 females); others, 4,588 (2,831 males, 1,757 females).

Among Europeans the birth-rate in 1921 was 26·06 per 1000 and deaths 7·33; among Fijians, birth-rate, 31·96, death-rate, 27·61; among Indians, birth-rate, 38·00, death-rate, 7·5; half-castes, birth-rate, 17·22, death-rate, 3·91.

Suva, the capital, is on the south coast of Viti Levu: European population (census of April 24, 1921), 1,443, suburbs, 298, total, 1,741.

Religion and Instruction.

Attending at Methodist native churches in 1921, 78,944: Roman Catholic Mission, 11,564. The Methodist Mission comprises 20 European missionaries, 20 European mission sisters, 110 native ministers, 193 catechists, 757 teachers, and 3,851 local preachers, 4,422 class leaders, with 691 churches, and 366 other preaching places. The Roman Catholic Mission has 30 European ministers and 287 native teachers, 50 European sisters, 57 churches and chapels, 3 native training institutions.

There are two government grammar schools at Suva, one for boys and one for girls; one for both sexes at Levuka, and one for both sexes at Rarawai. In 1921 there were 447 scholars. The Queen Victoria School, also State-supported, is a boarding school for Fijian boys. There were 72 pupils in 1921. The Government pays grants-in-aid to 25 assisted primary schools and to 22 assisted vernacular schools. During 1920 the Wesleyan Mission had 362 schools with 13,409 scholars; the Roman Catholic had 122 schools with 2,700 scholars. The Roman Catholic Mission maintains 3 schools for Europeans, with 195 children in 1919. Expenditure on education, 1921, 25,491*l*.

Quantities and values of imports are ascertained by invoice and declaration, or by examination by Customs officers. The countries recorded are the countries of consignment, as disclosed by the shipping documents. In the case of exports, the values are declared by the exporter as the true values of the goods as they lie in the port of shipment, including cost of packages.

Shipping and Communications.

Fiji is in regular steam communication with New Zealand, Australia, Tonga and Samoa, Honolulu, Canada and England. During 1921 the number of merchant vessels entered at the ports of entry was 109 steamers of 322,000 tons, and 16 sailing vessels of 9,434 tons. Total tonnage entered and cleared in 1921, 662,880 (British, 644,511).

There is a private small-gauge railway of 120 miles from Tavua to Sigatoka.

The volume of transactions in postal matter during 1921 was as follows: letters and postcards, 1,353,000; newspapers, books, and book-packets, 820,000; parcels, 33,000. There is a Money Order system with the United Kingdom, Canada, the Australian States, New Zealand, Tonga, and India. There is telegraphic communication between Suva and Levuka, 54 miles, of which 11½ miles is by submarine cable. There is an overland telephone from Suva to Lautoka, 125 miles. Wireless telegraph stations have been erected at Suva, Labasa, Tavuni and Savusavu.

The Government Savings Bank had, at the end of 1921, 2,316 depositors, whose deposits amounted to 68,061*l.* The headquarters are at the Treasury Suva, and there are twelve branches throughout the Colony.

The Bank of New South Wales has three branches and the Bank of New Zealand has two in the Colony. Practically all of the notes issued by these banks have now been withdrawn from circulation in favour of the Government notes issued by the Commissioners of Currency. The currency notes in circulation on December 31, 1921, amounted to 419,827/. The coin portion of the note guarantee fund amounted to 85,327/, and the securities forming the investment portion of the fund to 335,118/, while the amount in transit for investment was 8,000/.

Money, weights, and measures are the same as in the United Kingdom.

PACIFIC ISLANDS.

TONGA.

(FRIENDLY ISLANDS.)

The Tonga or Friendly Islands continued up to 1899 to be a neutral region in accordance with the Declaration of Berlin, April 6, 1886. By the Anglo-German Agreement of November 14, 1899, subsequently accepted by the United States, the Tonga Islands were left practically under the Protectorate of Great Britain. A Protectorate was proclaimed over Tonga on May 19, 1900. In December, 1900, the British High Commissioner, with the assent of the King and native chiefs, assumed the exercise of civil and criminal jurisdiction over all subjects of Foreign Powers in Tonga, and the supervision of the financial administration.

Queen.—Saloto, succeeded on the death of her father, George II, on April 12, 1918.

There is a Legislative Assembly which meets annually, composed of seven nobles elected by their peers, seven elected representatives of the people, and the Ministers of the Crown, numbering seven, or twenty-one members in all. The elections are held triennially.

The kingdom consists of 3 groups of islands, called respectively Tonga, tabu, Haapai (which are low-lying groups of coral formation), and Vavau (which is high and mountainous), together with the outlying islands of Niuaatubutu, Taofahi, and Niuafoou, and lies between 15° and 23° 30' south, and 173° and 177° west, its western boundary being the eastern boundary of Fiji. There are two active volcanoes in the group, on the Islands of Tofna and Kao. The main group was discovered by Tasman in 1643. The climate is exceedingly mild and healthy, fevers and other tropical diseases being unknown. The temperature during seven months of the year, from May to November, rarely exceeds 84° F. in the shade, and seldom, even in the hottest part of summer, exceeds 90° F. Total area, approximately 385 square miles; Capital, Nukualofa; population, census, April, 1911, 23,011 Tongans; 346 other Pacific islanders, and 380 Europeans. Estimated population 1919, 22,689 Tongans, 250 half-castes, 247 other Pacific islanders, and 376 Europeans; total, 23,562. The natives are Christian, there being about 16,000 adherents of the Free Church of Tonga, 4,000 Wesleyan Methodists, and 3,000 Roman Catholics. The native Tongans enjoy free education, and free medical attendance and dental treatment. At the end of 1919, there were 64 public primary schools, with 2,742 pupils on the roll. At Tonga College there were 8 teachers and 65 students on December 31, 1919. The revenue amounted in 1920-21 to 91,000*l.*, and the expenditure to 66,000*l.* Native produce consists almost entirely of copra; the export in 1921 amounted to 9,600 tons, of which 5,000 tons went to America. Total imports, 1918 177,000*l.*; exports, 170,000*l.* The imports include drapery, flour, biscuits, fish, hardware, timber, sugar, meats; and the exports, copra, fungus, live-stock. The trade is with New Zealand, Australia and the United States of America. Steamer communication with the outside world since the war has been limited practically to one vessel of the Union Company's Fleet which maintains a four-weekly service with New Zealand, via Fiji and Samoa. There is a wireless station at Nukualofa which keeps up telegraphic communication through Samoa or Fiji.

Since May 1, 1905, British coin is the only legal tender. The weights and measures are the same as in Great Britain. Accounts are kept in pounds, shillings, and pence.

High Commissioner and Consul-General for the Western Pacific.—Sir Cecil Hunter Rodwell, K.C.M.G.

Agent and Consul.—Islay McOwan.

The High Commissioner of the Western Pacific, assisted by deputies, has jurisdiction, in accordance with an Order in Council of 1893, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the Pacific Islanders' Protection Acts of 1872 and 1875, and to settle disputes between British subjects living in these islands. The jurisdiction of the High Commissioner extends over all the Western Pacific not within the limits of Fiji, Queensland, or New South Wales, or the jurisdiction of any civilised Power, and includes the Southern Solomon Islands, and the various small groups in Melanesia.

In the sections devoted to New South Wales and New Zealand mention is made of various annexed Pacific Islands. The following summary (omitting islands described elsewhere) gives the names and positions of islands which are unattached:—

Ducie Island, 24° 40' S. lat., 124° 48' W. long. Pitcairn Island, 25° 5' S., 130° 5' W.; area 2 sq. m.; pop. in 1914, 140 (35 adult males, 39 adult females, 66 children). The affairs of the island are conducted by a Council of 7 members, with a President, who acts also as Chief Magistrate, and a Vice-President, who is also Government Secretary, subject to the control of the High Commissioner for the Western Pacific. In religion the islanders (descendants of the mutineers of the Bounty) are 'Seventh Day Adventists.' The products of the island are sweet potatoes, beans, sugar cane, yams, taro, melons, pumpkins, oranges, bananas, pineapples, and arrowroot, which is prepared in limited quantities with antiquated appliances. Excellent coffee also grows, and its cultivation will probably extend. On the Island there are about 200 wild goats and a small stock of chickens. Phoenix Group between $2^{\circ} 30'$ and $4^{\circ} 30'$ S. lat., and 171° and $174^{\circ} 30'$ W. long. Eight islands: Mary, Enderbury, Phoenix, Birney, Gardner, McKean, Hull, Sydney; area of group, 16 sq. m., pop. 59.

Gilbert and Ellice Islands Colony. The islands in this group were proclaimed as Protectorates in 1892 and annexed (at the request of the native governments) as Gilbert and Ellice Islands Colony, on November 10, 1915. The Colony includes several groups of islands. (1) The Union, or Tokelau Group, between $8^{\circ} 30'$ and 11° S. lat., and 171° and 172° W. long. Five clusters of islets, the principal of which are Fakaofu or Bowditch, Nukunono or Duke of Clarence, Atafu or Duke of York; area of group, 7 sq. m.; pop. 1,000 natives approximately. (2) The Ellice Islands, between $5^{\circ} 30'$ and $11^{\circ} 20'$ S. lat., and 176° and 180° E. long. The principal islands are Funafuti, Nukufetan, Vaitupu, Nui (or Netherland), Niutao (or Lynx or Speiden), Nanumaga (or Hudson), Nanomea (or St Augustine), Nukulaelae (or Mitchell); area of group, 14 sq. m.; pop. (1919), 3,500. (3) Fanning Island, $3^{\circ} 50'$ N., 159° W.; area 15 sq. m., pop. 150, and Washington Island, $4^{\circ} 40'$ N., $160^{\circ} 20'$ W., area 6 sq. m., and Ocean Island. The last-named island is the Colony headquarters. It is situated $0^{\circ} 52'$ S., and $169^{\circ} 35'$ E., is six miles in circumference, and was annexed by Great Britain in 1901. The island is exceedingly rich in high-grade phosphate, which is worked by the British Phosphate Commission, who purchased the rights of the Pacific Phosphate Company in 1921. Population: native, 450, European, 80, Chinese and Pacific Islands' labourers, 500. A wireless station on the island maintains telegraphic communication via Fiji and Australia. (4) Christmas Island, situated roughly 2° N. lat., and 157° W. long, discovered by Cook in 1777, annexed by Great Britain in 1888, and included in the Colony in November, 1919, is the largest atoll in the Pacific, being over 100 miles in circumference. It is leased to the Central Pacific Coconut Plantations, Ltd., for a term of 87 years from January 1, 1914. Population, European, 2, Tahitians, 40. (5) The Gilbert Islands on the equator. The principal islands are Butaritari, Makin, Tarawa, Abaian, Marakei, Maiana, Abemama, Kuria, Ananuka Nonouti, Tapiteuea, Beru, Nikunan, Onotoa, Tamana, and Arorae. Area, 166 sq. m.; estimated pop. (1919), 30,000 natives and 400 foreigners. Education is in the hands of various missions. Revenue of the Colony for the year ended June 30, 1921, 54,079*l.*, of which the principal items were: Customs, 16,974*l.*; native taxes, 19,049*l.*; licences, &c., 10,383*l.*; royalty on phosphates, 3,977*l.*; interest on deposits and investments, 1,198*l.*; miscellaneous, 2,498*l.* The expenditure for the same period amounted to 45,380*l.* Principal crops: pandanus fruit and coconuts. The trade in 1919-20 amounted to 129,788*l.* for imports, and 213,042*l.* for exports (phosphates, 158,751*l.*, and copra, 54,010*l.*). The Colony is administered by the High Commissioner through a Resident Commissioner, whose headquarters are at Ocean Island.

Resident Commissioner.—H. R. McClure.

British Solomon Islands, about 8° S. and 160° W., are Guadalcanar, Malaita, Isabel, San Cristoval, New Georgia, Choiseul, Shortland, Mono (or Treasury), Vella Lavella, Ronongo, Gizo, Rendova, Russell, Florida, Rennell, and numerous small islands (the Lord Howe Group or Ontong Java, the Santa Cruz Islands, Tucopia and Mitre Islands, and the Duff, or Wilson Group, are also included in the Solomon Islands Protectorate). Area 11,000 sq. miles; European population (1919), 675; native population, about 150,000.

Asiatics, 75. They are under British Protection. Revenue, for the year ended March 31, 1922, 56,433*l.*; expenditure, 45,451*l.* About 30,000 acres planted by white planters were under coconuts in March, 1914, and about 300 acres under rubber; sweet potatoes, pineapples, bananas are grown. Copra exported, 1919-20, 8,160 tons. The value of imports in 1921-22 was 251,564*l.*; and of exports, 182,887*l.* (mainly copra, 12,109 tons, 173,916*l.*). Foreign-going vessels entered, 1919-20, 12,435 tons; cleared, 12,387 tons. A paper currency was issued in 1917-18. Little gold is in circulation, and only 4,600*l.* Protectorate paper money. The chief medium of exchange is Commonwealth bank notes. There is a Resident Commissioner, whose headquarters are at Tulagi, a small island off the south coast of Florida. (For part of the Solomon Islands lately owned by Germany and now administered by Australia, see section on late German New Guinea below.)

Resident Commissioner.—R. R. Kane, M.C.

Starbuck Island, 5° 30' S. lat., 155° W. long.; area 1 sq. m., uninhabited. Malden Island, 4° S. lat., 155° W. long.; area 35 sq. m., contains a considerable deposit of guano, and is leased to the Malden Island Proprietary, Ltd., for a period of 21 years from January 1, 1922. Jarvis Island, on the equator, 159° W., area 1½ sq. m., pop. 30. Palmyra, 6° N., 162° 30' W., area 1½ sq. m. Baker Islands, on the equator.

These islands are mostly of coral formation; most of them grow coconut trees, and some of them are valuable for their guano.

The New Hebrides, however, are under the joint administration of English and French officials, as arranged by the Anglo-French Convention of February, 1906, ratified October, 1906. This convention guarantees the interests of French, British, and natives, respectively; fixes the conditions of land-holding in the Islands; and provides for the regulation of the recruitment of native labourers. Within the Islands Great Britain is represented by a Resident Commissioner, who reports to the High Commissioner for the Western Pacific. The larger islands of the group are Espiritu Santo, Mallicolo, Epi, Efate or Sandwich, Erromanga, Tanna, Futuna or Erronan, and Aneityum. Area, 5,500 square miles; population about 60,000. At the end of 1920 there were within the group 317 British and 1,300 French subjects. There are 3 French Catholic mission schools, and many Presbyterian. Settlers have acquired large areas within the islands; and though there are many disputes as to rightful possession, and much of the land is still uncleared, coconuts (for copra), maize, millet, coffee, cocoa, cotton, and bananas are grown, and a timber factory on Aneityum prepares Kauri wood for export. The distillation and importation of spirits are prohibited. The joint revenue in 1921 amounted to 25,892*l.*, and the joint expenditure to 18,947*l.* An expenditure of 12,262*l.* on purely British services was also incurred. There are several French and British trading companies. Imports, 1920, 159,174*l.*; exports, 215,187*l.* The trade is mostly with Sydney and Nouméa (New Caledonia). The imports are provisions and foodstuffs, clothing, metal-work, and furniture; the exports are maize (1,200 tons in 1916), copra (4,100 tons), coffee (260 tons), cotton (1,700 tons), sandalwood (110 tons), cocoa (228 tons), and other island products. Vessels visit the islands frequently, including the repeated voyages of one British and two French companies, whose steamers provide for communication with Sydney, Nouméa, the Solomon Islands, and sometimes the Gilbert Islands.

British Resident.—M. King, C.M.G. French Resident.—M. d'Arboussier.

MANDATED TERRITORIES IN THE PACIFIC: NEW GUINEA, WESTERN SAMOA, AND NAURU ISLAND.

TERRITORY OF NEW GUINEA.

(LATE GERMAN NEW GUINEA.)

German New Guinea was the name given to all those territories held by Germany in the Western Pacific which were governed from Rabaul, the capital of these Possessions. It included : Kaiser Wilhelm's Land (acquired in 1884), Bismarck Archipelago (acquired in 1884), The German Solomon Islands, Nauru, the Caroline Islands, the Marshall Islands, and the Marianne or Ladrone Islands (excepting the Island of Guam). The possessions were territories protected by the German Imperial Authorities (Schutzgebiete). There were no local legislators, and the Governor appointed by the Imperial Crown was all-powerful. These Possessions were occupied by an Australian Force on September 12, 1914. The islands north of the Equator, namely, the Marshall, Caroline, Pelew, and Ladrone (Marianne) Islands, are administered by Japan as 'mandatory. Those south of the Equator, namely, the Bismarck Archipelago, those of the Solomon Islands formerly owned by Germany, and (late) German New Guinea, are assigned to Australia. (German Samoa is assigned to New Zealand.) The mandate from the League of Nations is dated December 17, 1920, and on May 9, 1921, the Australian Government established its civil administration in the Territory. The laws of the Commonwealth, subject to local modifications as necessary, may be applied to the mandated territories. The military training of the natives, except for local police or defence purposes, is prohibited, and no naval or military base or any fortifications may be established.

Nauru, a small islet just south of the Equator, is assigned to the British Empire as mandatory (see p. 461).

The non-indigenous population at the last census, April 4, 1921, was 3,173, of which the British numbered 715, Chinese 1,402, Dutch 215, German 579, Japanese 87, and United States of America 60. The number of persons engaged in agricultural pursuits was 460, and those practising religion professionally numbered 256.

The present Administrator of the Territory of New Guinea is Brigadier-General E. A. Wisdom, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D., the seat of Administration being at Rabaul.

The territory is divided into 10 Administrative Districts, viz.: Rabaul, comprising the north-eastern portion of New Britain; Talasea, comprising the northern and north-western portion of New Britain; Gasmatta, comprising southern and western New Britain; Kæwieng, comprising the northern portion of New Ireland, and including New Hanover and St. Mathias Islands; Namatanai, comprising the southern portion of New Ireland, and groups of islands to the east and north-east thereof; Kieta, which includes the islands of Bonganville and Buka, and groups to north and north-east; Manus, comprising the Admiralty Islands, Hermit Islands, and Ninigo Group; and Morobe, Madang, and Eitape on the mainland of New Guinea, which districts include the whole of the mainland of late German New Guinea and off-lying islands.

1. NEW GUINEA.—Kaiser Wilhelm's Land, the northern section of south-east New Guinea, was declared a German protectorate in 1884. It lies between 2° 15' and 8° south latitude, and 141° 30' and 148° east longitude. The area, including Vulcan or Manam, Dampier or Karkar, Long, Bagabag or Rich, Schouten, Le Maire, and some smaller islands, is 70,000 square miles. The native population has been variously estimated at from 110,000 to 350,000, but so little is known of the interior that any figures are very conjectural. The coastal districts have a native population of two to the square mile. The territory was under the control and development of the New Guinea Company from 1885 to 1899. The first settlement was formed at Finschhafen, which is situated about 80 miles north of the Papuan border. Out-stations were formed at Konstantine and Hatzfeldt harbours. The principal station on the mainland is at Frederick Wilhelm's Haven, now called Madang. The coast-line is very little broken, and there are few good harbours. From the 141st to 144th meridian there are no good harbours with the exception of Angriff's Haven (Wanimo), and the only anchorages are open roadsteads under the lee of islands. There are high ranges running parallel with the coast plain, which is from 20 to 100 miles wide and broken with steep spurs in some places extending to the actual coast-line. The ranges in the interior have been little explored, and some of their summits are known to exceed 12,000 feet. The principal rivers are the Kaiserin Augusta, or Sepik, which is navigable for over 250 miles. It rises in the Dutch territory and flows east. The Ramu, or Ottillie, rises in the south-east, and flows into the sea about 20 miles south-east of the mouth of the Sepik. The Markham is another large river, which flows into Huon Gulf. The climate is hot and the rainfall large. There are three missionary societies at work in Kaiser Wilhelm's Land: the Nenendettelsauer Mission (Lutheran), the Rheinische Mission (Lutheran Calvinistic), and the Catholic Mission of the Holy Ghost Society. These missions are also planters and traders. The chief harbours are: Frederick Wilhelm's Haven (now Madang), Finsch Haven, Erima Haven, Adolph Haven (now Morobe), and Angriff's Haven (now Wanimo). Frederick Wilhelm's Haven is close to, and Erima Haven is in Astrolabe Bay. Inter-island trade is carried on by small steamships and motor-schooners. There is a five-weekly service from Australia to Madang.

The area of cultivation in 1914 was 16,800 acres, which showed a decrease on the previous two years. The greater part of this area is planted with coconuts (about 14,000 acres). Rubber and cocoa are also grown. Tropical fruits grow very abundantly. The staple articles of food of the natives are yams, taro, sago, and bananas. There is very little land used for pasture in Kaiser Wilhelm's Land. The land is rich in mineral wealth, but no minerals are worked on account of the difficulty of transporting mining machinery. Native labour is used to work the plantations, and the natives are recruited either from the adjacent villages or from other parts of the Possessions. There are upwards of 6,000 native labourers so recruited for plantation purposes.

The chief towns are: Madang and district (non-indigenous population, 272); Morobe and district (non-indigenous population, 139); Eitape and district (non-indigenous population, 103).

2. BISMARCK ARCHIPELAGO.—In November, 1884, a German Protectorate was declared over the New Britain Archipelago and several adjacent groups of islands, and in May, 1885, they were renamed the Bismarck Archipelago. The chief islands are New Britain (formerly called Neu Pommeru), area 10,000 square miles; New Ireland (formerly called Neu Mecklenburg), area 4,600 square miles; Neu Hannover, 530 square miles; Neu Lauenburg, or Duke of York Islands, area 22 square miles; the Admiralty Islands (principal island, Manus), area 600 square miles. The Archipelago lies between $141^{\circ} 30'$ and 156° east longitude, and the Equator and 8° south latitude. The other groups included in this Archipelago are St. Matthias Islands, Gardner Islands, Abgaris or Fead Islands, Nissan or Sir Charles Hardy Islands, The French Islands, Rook Islands, Hermit Islands, Ninigo Group, Anchorite and Commerson Islands. In these various groups there are upwards of 100 small islands. The total native population of the Archipelago has been estimated at 188,000.

New Britain, the largest island of this group, is a long island of crescent shape lying east and west. It has a mean breadth of 50 miles and a length of 300 miles. The island is practically undeveloped except for the peninsula in the north, which is called Gazelle Peninsula, and four plantations on the northern coast, and six plantations on the southern coast, west of Henry Reid Bay. A Government station has been established about midway along the southern coast and is named Gasmatta (non-indigenous population 16), Talasea (non-indigenous population 34), is situated on the north coast. The interior of the island is little known. The native population numbers about 50,000. A mountain chain traverses the entire length of the island, and in the centre consists of several irregular ranges. There are several active volcanoes, and the range shows signs of great volcanic activity in the past. The highest known peak is the Father, about 7,500 feet high, which is an active volcano. This island has very fine harbours; the best is Simpson's Harbour in Blanche Bay, which affords a good anchorage in all weathers. Others are, Matupi Harbour, Jacquinot Bay, Rugen Haven, Arawe, Lindenhafen, and Powell Haven on the east and south coasts; and Rein Bay, Talasea Harbour, and Garua Haven on the north coast. The only one visited by oversea shipping is Simpson Harbour. The principal settlement is around the shores of Blanche Bay; the chief crop is coconuts. There are two missionary societies at work in this island: the Wesleyan, with headquarters near Rabaul, and the Catholic Mission of the Sacred Heart, with headquarters at Kokopo. The chief town is Rabaul (non-indigenous population, 1,350), which since 1910 is the seat of the Government. The old capital was at Kokopo (non-indigenous population, 369), which is situated 14 miles south-east of Rabaul. At Rabaul there is an anchorage for all ships and a fine jetty has been built. Rabaul is well laid out and has a fine public garden.

New Ireland, the second in size and importance of the Bismarck Archipelago, is situated north of New Britain, from which it is separated by St. George's Channel. The chief town is Kaewieng (non-indigenous population, 356), at the north-west extremity of the island. The only other town is Namatanai (non-indigenous population, about 148), on the south-east coast. The island has a long range of mountains running through it. It is of older formation than New Britain, and does not show any signs of recent volcanic activity. The principal harbour is Nusa, on the north coast of which Kaewieng, the seat of the local administration, is situated. The interior of the island, with the exception of the extreme southern end, is fairly well known. The native population is about 28,000. The soil is fertile and the climate similar to that of New Britain. The chief industry is coconut growing. There are numerous plantations around the coast near Kaewieng.

The Admiralty Islands are the most important of the small groups. The chief island is Manus, sometimes called Great Admiralty Island. The chief town is Lorengau (population, including district, about 40) on the north-east coast. The native population of the group is 4,000 and the non-indigenous population 132. Coconuts are the chief article of cultivation, and there are valuable pearl and other shell fisheries.

3. SOLOMON ISLANDS.—Germany owned part of this group, including the islands of Bougainville (area 3,500 square miles, native population 15,000) and Buka (area 300 square miles, native population 2,000), but Choiseul, Isabel or Mahaga, and various smaller islands to the east of Bougainville were transferred to Great Britain in 1899. These islands are very mountainous. Of the several volcanic cones, Bagano (in the Crown Prince range) is the only active volcano. The highest mountain is the dormant volcano Mount Balbi (in the Emperor range), 10,170 feet high situated in the centre of the island. The principal harbour is Kieta, situated on the east coast of Bougainville, where there is a Government station. Other good harbours are: Rawa and Tinputz on the north-east coast of Bougainville. There is a good harbour on the west side of Buka, named Carola Hafen. Missionary work amongst the natives is carried on by the Marist Brothers of the Roman Catholic Mission. As the plantations are new there is comparatively little export trade. The natives grow bananas, coconuts, taro, and sweet potatoes. The non-indigenous population is 148.

TERRITORY OF WESTERN SAMOA.

The former German Samoan Islands, now the Territory of Western Samoa, include Savaii and Upolu, the largest of the Samoan or Navigators' Islands. Samoa is a group of islands in the Western Pacific, lying in 13½ deg. to 14 deg. S. lat., and 168 deg. to 173 deg. W. long. The islands are some 130 miles N. of Tonga and between 400 and 500 miles N.E. of Fiji. The group consists of nine islands, in addition to rocks and islets. They are all, with the exception of Rose Island, of volcanic formation, and are, for the most part, surrounded with coral reefs. The four largest islands are Savaii, Upolu, Tutuila and Manua. By the Anglo-German Agreement of November 14, 1899, ratified by the United States in January, 1900, Great Britain renounced all rights over the islands in favour of Germany as regards Savaii, Upolu, Apolima and Manono, and in favour of the United States as regards Tutuila and other islands. Under the German Imperial Governor there was a native High Chief with a native council, the several districts being administered by chiefs. Justice was administered by native as well as European judges and magistrates.

On August 29, 1914, the British occupied German Samoa. By the Treaty of Peace, 1919, Germany surrendered her possessions abroad, and Samoa is assigned under a mandate from the League of Nations to His Majesty the King in right of his Dominion of New Zealand, which has been empowered to govern Western Samoa. The mandate is dated December 17, 1920, and under that authority the Governor-General of New Zealand in Council has made laws for Western Samoa. The military training of the natives, except for local police or defence purposes, is prohibited, and no naval or military base or any fortifications may be established.

Provision has been made for a nominated Legislative Council, consisting of not less than four official members, and unofficial members not exceeding in number the official members. The Administrator is entitled to preside over every meeting of the Council. No person is qualified for appointment to the Legislative Council unless he is either a natural born British subject or a Samoan, or was born in Samoa. The civil administration was inaugurated on May 1, 1920.

Savaii, with a length of 48 miles and a breadth of 25 miles, has an area of about 660 square miles; Upolu has an area of between 550 and 600 square miles. Both islands are mountainous, fertile, and well watered. Several adjacent islets, exceedingly fertile, were included in the German dependency. The port of Apia is in Upolu. The inhabitants of the islands are Polynesians, professing Christianity (Protestants, Catholics, and Mormons). Population of Western Samoa, as recorded at June 30, 1922, was:—European, 2,074; Samoan natives, 33,953; coolie labourers, 1,547; other islanders, 217; total, 37,791. There are three Government schools, and also schools conducted by the London Missionary Society, the Methodist Mission, the Catholic Mission, and the Lutter Day Saints' Mission—the number of scholars recorded being 12,193. There are 60 miles of good roads. The chief product is copra, and other products are cocoa, rubber, cardamoms, sugar. The revenue collected in Western Samoa for the year ended March 31, 1922, was 135,569*l.* (mainly customs, 85,129*l.*; Court fees, &c., 10,747*l.*; native taxes, 8,725*l.*; wireless station, 2,905*l.*; post office, 5,064*l.*); the ordinary expenditure was 137,181*l.* There was an excess of assets over liabilities of 25,717*l.* on March 31, 1922. Imports for 1921, 408,892*l.* (from United Kingdom, 56,032*l.*, New Zealand, 132,830*l.*, Australia, 109,226*l.*, United States, 73,310*l.*); exports, 241,539*l.* (to United Kingdom, 28,318*l.*, United States, 173,351*l.*). The exports are mainly copra (7,428 tons, 190,520*l.* in 1921) and cocoa-beans (750 tons, 36,363*l.* in 1921). In 1921, 77 vessels (73,074 tons, of which 60 vessels of 66,664 tons were British) entered at the port of Apia and 78 vessels (71,523 tons, of which 60 vessels of 66,664 tons were British), cleared. There is regular steam communication with New Zealand. A wireless station has been erected at Apia.

The currency before the British occupation was in marks, but English and American gold and silver coin were legal tender. Since the occupation the German currency has been replaced by sterling. A branch of the Bank of New Zealand was opened at Apia in April, 1915.

The Hon. E. P. Lee, Minister of External Affairs for New Zealand, is in charge of Samoa and other late German Islands assigned to New Zealand.

Administrator.—Major-General G. S. Richardson.

NAURU ISLAND.

Nauru was surrendered by the Germans on September 9, 1914; it was, however, not until November 6 of the same year that it was effectively occupied by troops (Australian) from Rabaul. In accordance with the terms of the capitulation, local laws and customs were continued, as far as practicable, and a Civil Administration was established on January 1, 1915. The change from German to British rule was effected without any break in the ordinary life of the island—the main difference between the two systems, from a native point of view, being that whereas under the German rule, the people were left entirely to themselves, provided the poll-tax was paid regularly, under the new régime they found themselves called upon to take part in the improvement of the island hygienically, socially, and administratively. The mandate for its administration has been conferred on the British Empire. The mandate, as approved by the League of Nations, is dated December 17, 1920. The military training of the natives, except for local police or defence purposes, is prohibited, and no naval or military base or any fortifications may be established. Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand agreed that Australia should appoint the first Administrator for a term of five years, and the expenses of administration are to be defrayed out of the proceeds of the sale of phosphates if the ordinary revenue is not sufficient to meet the expenditure.

The island lies just south of the Equator, about 400 miles from the nearest Marshall Islands. It is a circular atoll of approximately 12 miles in circumference, surrounded by a reef. There is no anchorage adjacent to the island. There is an extensive plateau bearing phosphate of a high grade, the mining rights of which are vested in the British Phosphate Commission subject to the rights of the native landowners. It is chiefly on the fertile section of land between the sandy beach and the plateau that the natives have established themselves, and from which they obtain the necessary food for themselves and families. With the exception of a small fringe round a shallow lagoon, about one mile inland, the plateau which contains the phosphate deposits has but few inhabitants.

Population, 1922: 110 Europeans, 514 Chinese, 1,113 Nauruans, 392 other South Sea Islanders; total, 2,129.

Education.—Attendance at school both for European and Native children is compulsory. The Native schools are subsidised by the Government and are in the hands of the Roman Catholic and Protestant Missions. Daily average number of children attending these schools: Roman Catholic Mission, 72; Protestant Mission, 170.

The school for European children is in the hands of the Government, and a teacher has been obtained on loan from the Victorian Education Department to act as master, and as inspector of the native schools.

Finance.—The revenue and expenditure of the island, from January 1, 1915, have been as follows:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1916	8,403	5,872	1919	6,761	4,727
1917	9,474	16,531	1920	10,611	4,818
1918	8,557	5,042	1921	9,519	11,851

Assets, December 31, 1921, 14,226*l.*; liabilities, 48*l.* An amount, which cannot be estimated, still remains to be paid by the Nauru Administration, in connection with the maintenance of the Wireless Station at Nauru, as its share of expenditure since 1917.

Import duties are imposed on beer, spirits, wines, and tobacco, and a 10% ad valorem duty on practically all other goods except food supplies which are admitted free. By a concession obtained in 1905 from the German Government, the Phosphate Commission receives exemption for all materials and plant used for the exploitation of phosphates, as well as for provisions required for its employees. An export duty of 10*s.* per ton is charged on copra. A poll-tax of 15*s.* per year is collected from all adult male natives. A Royalty of 6*d.* per ton to the Government, and 3*d.* per ton to the native landowners is paid for every ton of phosphate shipped. Of the 3*d.* per ton to the native landowners, 1*d.* is paid into a Trust Fund held by the Administrator for the benefit of the Nauruans generally. The Phosphate Commission contributes also 1,000*l.* a year to the upkeep of the police.

Commerce.—The export trade of the island consists, with the exception of a small quantity of copra, almost entirely of phosphate, mined on the island by the British Phosphate Commission, and shipped by the Commission to Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand and other countries. Phosphate exported (in tons): 1917, 101,267; 1918, 76,440; 1919, 69,336; 1920, 149,609; and 1921, 236,435.

The imports consist almost entirely of food supplies, and machinery for the British Phosphate Commission, for use in connection with their works. Value of imports: 1918, 55,840*l.*; 1919, 45,977*l.*; 1920, 109,119*l.*; 1921, 140,302*l.*

Shipping.—Practically the whole of the shipping coming to the island consists of steamers under charter to the British Phosphate Commission to carry phosphate to Great Britain, Australia, and New Zealand, and occasionally to Japan. Numbers of vessels entered and cleared: in 1919, 34 of 89,575 tons; in 1920, 52 of 129,289 tons; and in 1921, 64 of 206,159 tons.

Communications.—Mail communication to and from Australia and other parts of the world is almost solely by the chartered vessels of the British Phosphate Commission; generally speaking, there is a fortnightly service between Nauru and Australia, but there is no regular service.

Wireless Station.—The outstanding feature of Nauru, apart from the phosphate works, is the Wireless Station, which was erected by the Germans to link up the island with their other Pacific possessions and Tsingtau. It was opened in December 1913, and though partially dismantled shortly after the outbreak of war, was soon restored, and has been in use ever since.

Administrator.—Brigadier-General T. Griffiths, C.M.G., C.B.E., D.S.O.

PART THE SECOND

THE UNITED STATES

UNITED STATES.

(UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.)

Constitution and Government.

THE Declaration of Independence of the thirteen States of which the American Union then consisted was adopted by Congress July 4, 1776. On November 30, 1782, Great Britain acknowledged the independence of the United States, and on September 3, 1783, the treaty of peace was concluded.

The form of government of the United States is based on the Constitution of Sept. 17, 1787, to which ten amendments were added Dec 15, 1791; an eleventh amendment, Jan. 8, 1798; a twelfth amendment, Sept. 25, 1804; a thirteenth amendment, Dec. 18, 1865 (slavery abolished); a fourteenth amendment, July 28, 1868; a fifteenth amendment, March 30, 1870 (equal rights for white and coloured citizens); a sixteenth amendment, February 25, 1913 (income tax authorised); a seventeenth amendment, May 31, 1913; an eighteenth amendment, January 29, 1919 (liquor prohibition amendment); and a nineteenth amendment, August 26, 1920 (woman suffrage).

By the Constitution, the government of the nation is entrusted to three separate authorities, the Executive, the Legislative, and the Judicial. The executive power is vested in a President, who holds his office during the term of four years, and is elected, together with a Vice-President chosen for the same term, in the mode prescribed as follows:—‘Each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors, equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress: but no senator or representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an elector.’ The practice is that in every State the electors allotted to the State are chosen by direct vote of the citizens on a general ticket, on the system known in France as scrutin de liste. The Constitution enacts that ‘the Congress may determine the time of choosing the electors, and the day on which they shall give their votes, which day shall be the same throughout the United States’; and further, that ‘no person except a natural-born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the office of President; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years, and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.’

The quadrennial election is held every fourth (leap) year. Electors are chosen in the several States on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November; the electors meet and give their votes at their respective State capitals on the second Monday in January next following their appointment; and the votes of the electors of all the States are opened and counted in the presence of both Houses of Congress on the second Wednesday in February. The presidential term begins on March 4, in the year following leap years.

The President is commander-in-chief of the army and navy, and of the militia in the service of the Union. The Vice-President is ex-officio President of the Senate; and in the case of the death or resignation of the President, he becomes the President for the remainder of the term.

President of the United States.—Warren Gamaliel Harding, of Ohio, born near Blooming Grove, Morrow County, in Ohio, November 2, 1865; educated at Ohio Central College; journalist since 1884; senator in the legislature of Ohio, 1899-1903; Lieutenant-Governor of Ohio, 1904-1906; defeated candidate for Governor, 1910; United States Senator from Ohio, 1915-1920.

Vice-President of the United States.—Calvin Coolidge, of Massachusetts, born at Plymouth, Vermont, July 4, 1872; graduated at Amherst College, 1895; admitted to the Bar, 1897; member of the State Senate, 1912-1915; President of the Senate, 1914 and 1915. Lieutenant-Governor of Massachusetts, 1916-1918; Governor, 1919 and 1920.

Since the adoption of the Constitution the offices of President and Vice-President have been occupied as follows:—

By a law which came into force Jan. 19, 1886, in case of removal, death, resignation, or inability of both the President and Vice-President, the Secretary of State, and after him, in the order of the establishment of their departments, other members of the Cabinet, shall act as President until the disability of the President is removed or a President shall be elected. On the death of a Vice-President the duties of the office shall fall to the President pro tempore of the Senate, who receives the salary of the Vice-President.

The administrative business of the nation is conducted by ten chief officers, or heads of departments, who form what is called the 'Cabinet.' They are chosen by the President, but must be confirmed by the Senate. Each of them presides over a separate department, and acts under the immediate authority of the President. They are, in the order prescribed by law for their succession to the Presidency, in case both the President and the Vice-President die or become unable to take office:—

1. Secretary of State.—Charles Evans Hughes, of New York, born in New York, 1862; graduated at Brown University, 1881; admitted to the Bar in New York, 1884; Lecturer and Professor of Law in Columbia and Cornell Universities, 1891-1900; Governor of New York, 1907-1910; Associate Justice Supreme Court of the United States, 1910-1916; defeated candidate for President, 1916. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

2. Secretary of the Treasury.—Andrew William Mellon, of Pennsylvania, born in Pennsylvania, 1852; educated at the University of Pittsburgh; prominent in the development of coal, coke, and iron industries, and in banking. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

3. Secretary of War.—John Wingate Weeks, of Massachusetts, born in New Hampshire, 1860; graduated at Annapolis Naval Academy, 1881; member of Congress, 1905-1913; Senator from Massachusetts, 1913-1919. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

4. Attorney-General.—Harry M. Daugherty, of Ohio, born in Ohio, 1860; university education; admitted to the Bar, 1881; member of the Ohio legislature, 1888–1893. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

5. Postmaster-General.—Dr. Hubert Work, of Colorado, born in Pennsylvania, 1860; graduated at the University of Michigan, and (in medicine) at the University of Pennsylvania; President 1912, of the American Medico-Psychological Society; First Assistant Postmaster-General, 1921; present appointment, March 4, 1922.

6. Secretary of the Navy.—Edwin Denby, of Michigan, born in Indiana, 1870; graduated at the University of Michigan Law School, 1896; admitted to the Bar, 1896; gunner's mate, U.S. Navy, in the Spanish War, 1898; member of the Michigan legislature, 1902–1903; member of Congress, 1905–1911; enlisted private U.S. Marine Corps, 1917; promoted sergeant and major, 1919. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

7. Secretary of the Interior.—Albert Bacon Fall, of New Mexico, born in Kentucky, 1861; Associate Justice and Attorney-General of New Mexico (Territory); United States Senator from New Mexico (State), 1912–1921. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

8. Secretary of Agriculture.—Henry Cantwell Wallace, of Iowa, born in Illinois, 1866; educated at Iowa State College; editor of papers devoted to agriculture; Chairman of war work, and member of the International Committee of the Y.M.C.A. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

9. Secretary of Commerce.—Herbert Clark Hoover, of California, born in Iowa, 1874; graduated civil engineer, Leland Stanford Jr. University, 1895; engaged in mine development in America, Australia, and China; Chairman (in London) of the American War Relief Committee, 1914–1915; American Food Administrator, 1917–1919; Administrator of Food Relief for Belgium, 1915–1918; Commander of the French Legion d'honneur. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

10. Secretary of Labour.—James John Davis, of Illinois, born in Wales, 1873; prominent officer in Labour organisations. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

The Ministry for Labour was created in 1913.

Each of the above ministers has an annual salary of 12,000 dollars, and holds office during the pleasure of the President.

The whole legislative power is vested by the Constitution in a Congress, consisting of a Senate and House of Representatives. The Senate consists of two members from each State, chosen by popular vote for six years. Senators must be not less than thirty years of age; must have been citizens of the United States for nine years; and be residents in the States for which they are chosen. Besides its legislative functions, the Senate is entrusted with the power of ratifying or rejecting all treaties made by the President with foreign Powers, a two-thirds majority of senators present being required for ratification. The Senate is also invested with the power of confirming or rejecting all appointments to office made by the President; and its members constitute a High Court of Impeachment. The judgment in the latter case extends only to removal from office and disqualification. The House of Representatives has the sole power of impeachment.

The House of Representatives is composed of members elected every second year by the vote of citizens who, according to the laws of their respective States, are qualified to vote for members of the State legislature. By amendments of the Constitution, disqualification on the ground of race, colour, or sex, is forbidden. Accordingly the electorate consists practically of all citizens of both sexes over 21 years of age. But the franchise is not universal. There are requirements of residence varying in the several States as to length from three months to two years; differing requirements as to registration; in some States the payment of taxes is necessary to qualify for the suffrage; in others the ability to read—in Massachusetts the ability to read English. Some of the Western States admit to the franchise unnaturalised persons who have formally declared their intention to become citizens. Several of the Southern States have adopted methods—which differ from one another—too complicated for explanation here, with the expressed avowed purpose of excluding the negroes from the franchise and yet avoiding the constitutional consequences of discriminating 'on account of race, colour, or previous condition of servitude.' Untaxed Indians are excluded from the franchise, in most States convicts, in some States duellists and fraudulent voters; in Massachusetts voters are required to be able to read English. In some Southern States they are required to give a reasonable explanation of what they read. Women by the Federal Constitution 19th amendment, 1920, have the vote and eligibility for both the Federal and the State Legislatures on the same terms as men.

The number of members of the House of Representatives to which each State is entitled is determined by the census taken every ten years. By the Apportionment Act consequent on the census of 1910 the number of representatives is 435.

In 1912 with the admission of Arizona and New Mexico it became 435, distributed as follows:—

Alabama . . . 10	Maryland . . . 6	Oregon . . . 3
Arizona . . . 1	Massachusetts . . 16	Pennsylvania . . 36
Arkansas . . . 7	Michigan . . . 13	Rhode Island . . 3
California . . . 11	Minnesota . . . 10	South Carolina . . 7

		Total . 435

On the basis of the census of 1910 there is one representative to every 210,415 inhabitants. Although the census of 1920 provides the numbers necessary to make a fresh apportionment of representatives, Congress has not yet (March, 1923), made such an apportionment. The House of Representatives has passed a Bill fixing the number at 435 representatives, as at present, and distributing them among the States, but the Senate has not acted upon the Bill.

The popular vote for President in 1920 was 26,661,606, or about one in four of the entire population.

According to the terms of the Constitution, representatives must not be less than twenty-five years of age, must have been citizens of the United States for seven years, and be residents in the States from which they are chosen. In addition to the representatives from the States, the House admits a 'delegate' from each organised Territory, who has the right to speak on any subject and to make motions, but not to vote. The delegates are elected in the same manner as the representatives.

Each of the two Houses of Congress is made by the Constitution the 'judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members'; and each of the Houses may, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.

The Congress of the United States has the power to propose alterations in the Constitution, by the 5th article of the same. The article orders that the Congress, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to the Constitution, or, on the application of the Legislatures of two-thirds of all the States, shall call a convention for proposing the amendments, which in either case shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or other mode of ratification may be proposed by Congress.

The salary of a senator, representative, or delegate in Congress is 7,500 dollars per annum, with an allowance, based on distance, for travelling expenses. The salary of the Speaker of the House of Representatives is 12,000 dollars per annum.

No senator or representative can, during the time for which he is elected, be appointed to any civil office under authority of the United States which shall have been created or the emoluments of which shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States can be a member of either House during his continuance in office. No religious test is required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States, or in any State.

The period usually termed 'a Congress' in legislative language continues for two years; as, for example, from noon, March 4, 1923, until noon, March 4, 1925, at which latter time the term of the representatives to the 68th Congress will expire, and the term of the new House of Representatives will begin. The term of one-third of the Senators expires at the same time.

The 68th Congress (1923-25), elected November, 1922, is constituted as follows: Senate, 53 Republicans, 42 Democrats, 1 Farm Labour; House of Representatives, 225 Republicans, 207 Democrats, 1 Socialist, 1 Farm Labour, and 1 Independent.

The National Government has authority in matters of general taxation, treaties and other dealings with foreign powers, army, navy, and (to a certain extent) militia, commerce, foreign and inter-State, postal service, coinage, weights and measures, and the trial and punishment of crime against the United States.

Slavery was abolished throughout the whole of the United States by the thirteenth Amendment of the Constitution, passed December 18, 1865. The vast change in the political and social organisation of the Republic made by this new fundamental law was completed by the fourteenth and fifteenth Amendments of the Constitution, passed in 1868 and 1870, which gave to the former slaves all the rights and privileges of citizenship.

STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

The Union comprises 13 original States, 7 States which were admitted without having been previously organised as Territories, and 28 States which had been Territories—48 States in all. Each State has its own constitution, which must be republican in form, and each constitution derives its authority, not from Congress, but from the people of the State. Admission of States into the Union is granted by special Acts of Congress, either (1) in the form of 'enabling Acts,' providing for the drafting and ratification of a State constitution by the people, in which case the Territory becomes a State as soon as the conditions are fulfilled, or (2) accepting a constitution already framed, and at once granting admission.

Each State is provided with a Legislature of two Houses, a Governor, and other executive officials, and a judicial system. Both Houses of the Legislature are elective, but the Senators (having larger electoral districts) are less numerous than the members of the House of Representatives, while in some States their terms are longer and, in a few, the Senate is only partially renewed at each election. Members of both Houses are paid at the same rate, which varies from 150 to 1,500 dollars per session, or from 1 to 8 dollars per day during session. The duties of the two Houses are similar, but in many States money bills must be introduced first in the House of Representatives. The Senate has to sit as a court for the trial of officials impeached by the other House, and besides, has often the power to confirm or reject appointments made by the Governor. In most of the States the sessions are biennial, the Governor having power to summon an extraordinary session, but not to dissolve or adjourn. State Legislatures are competent to deal with all matters not reserved for the Federal Government by the Federal constitution, or falling within restrictions imposed by the State constitutions. Among their powers are the determination of the qualifications for the right of suffrage, and the control of all elections to public office, including elections of members of Congress and electors of President and Vice-President; the criminal law, both in its enactment and in its execution, with unimportant exceptions, and the administration of prisons; the civil law, including all matters pertaining to the possession and transfer of, and succession to, property; marriage and divorce, and all other civil relations; the chartering and control of all manufacturing, trading, transportation, and other corporations, subject only to the right of Congress to regulate commerce passing from one State to another; the regulation of labour; education; charities; licensing, including regulation of the liquor traffic; fisheries, and game laws. The revenues of the States are derived chiefly from a direct tax upon property, in some cases both real and personal, in others on land and buildings only. The prohibition upon Congress to levy direct taxes save in proportion to population, contained originally in the national constitution, left this source of revenue to the States exclusively until 1913, when an amendment was adopted authorising the imposition of an income tax by Congress.

The Governor is chosen by direct vote of the people over the whole State. His term of office varies from 1 year to 4 years and his salary from 1,000 to 10,000 dollars. His duty is to see to the faithful administration of the law, and he has command of the military forces of the State. His power of appointment to State offices is usually unimportant. He may recommend measures, but does not present bills to the legislature. In some States he presents estimates. In all but two of the States the Governor has a veto upon legislation, which may, however, be overridden by the two houses, in some States by a simple majority, in others by a three-fifths or two-thirds majority.

The officials by whom the administration of State affairs is carried on (secretaries, treasurers, members of boards of commissioners, &c.) are usually chosen by the people at the General State elections for terms similar to those for which governors hold office, the party in power appointing its own adherents.

In the Territories of Hawaii and Alaska there is a local legislature, the form of which has been prescribed by the National Government. These bodies have powers similar to those of the States, but any of their acts may be modified or annulled by Congress. The Governor of a Territory is appointed for 4 years by the President to whom he makes an annual report. The President appoints also the Territorial secretaries and other officials, together with the Territorial judges. Porto Rico, although not designated as a 'territory' in the technical sense, is self-governing. Its government is organised on a system almost identical with that of the territories. The Philippine Islands are governed by a civil Governor and elected Upper and Lower Legislative Chambers.

The District of Columbia is the seat of the United States Government, provided by the State of Maryland for the purposes of government in 1791. It is co-extensive with the city of Washington, and embraces an area of 60 square miles. The district has no municipal legislative body, and its citizens have no right to vote either in national or municipal concerns. By an Act of Congress of 1878, its municipal government is administered by three commissioners, appointed by the President.

The unit of local government in the North, especially in the New England States, is the rural township, governed directly by the voters who assemble annually or oftener if necessary, and legislate in local affairs, levy taxes, make appropriations, and appoint and instruct the local officials (select men, clerk, school-committee, &c.). Where cities exist the township government is superseded by the city government. Townships are grouped to form counties, each with its commissioners and other paid officials who have charge of public buildings, lay out highways, grant licences, and estimate and apportion the taxation necessary for county purposes. In the South the counties are themselves the units, though subdivided for educational or other special purposes. Their officials have in general additional functions, as the care of the poor and the superintendence of schools. In the Middle and North-Western States the two systems of local government are mixed. In the West all the public land is already divided into townships six miles square.

Area and Population.

I. PROGRESS AND PRESENT CONDITION.

Population of the United States at each census from 1790. Residents of Hawaii, Alaska, Porto Rico, the Philippine Islands, Guam, Samoa, Virgin Islands, and Panama Canal zone, and persons in the military and naval service stationed abroad are not included in the figures of this table. The residents of Indian reservations are not included prior to 1890.

II. MOVEMENT OF POPULATION.

The registration area for births was established in 1915, and the birth rates are computed from returns for certain areas for which the registration of births is accepted by the Bureau of the Census as approximately complete. In 1920 these areas included Connecticut, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, and Wisconsin, California, Oregon, South Carolina, Nebraska, and the District of Columbia. The estimated population of this area was 63,659,441, or 59·8 per cent. of the total estimated population of the United States, and the number of births (exclusive of stillbirths) returned was 1,508,874, or 23·7 per 1,000 population.

Death rates are computed from returns for states and cities which were admitted to the registration area for deaths on the basis of approximately complete registration. In 1920 these areas included California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, Wisconsin, the District of Columbia, and the territory of Hawaii, and 16 cities in non-registration states. The estimated population for the registration area was 87,745,921, or 82·3 per cent. of the total estimated population of Continental United States and the territory of Hawaii; and the number of deaths returned from this area was 1,147,158, corresponding to a death rate of 13·1 per 1,000 population.

Marriage rate per 10,000 (for 1916), based on total population, 105. Divorce rate per 10,000, based on total population, 112.

It is estimated that, from the foundation of the Government up to 1820, about 250,000 alien passengers arrived.

The total number of immigrants from 1820 to 1921 (June 30) was 34,435,332. In the following statement, immigrants from Canada and Mexico are included in the total:—

Year	British Isles	Germany	Sweden, Norway, and Denmark	Austria and Hungary	Italy	Russia and Finland	France	Total Immigrants
1917	16,141	1,857	13,771	1,258	34,596	12,716	3,187	295,403
1918	2,447	447	6,506	61	5,250	4,242	1,798	110,618

1921	79,577	6,803	22,854	12,649	222,260	10,193	9,552	805,228

Of the total number in 1921, 449,422 were males, and 355,806 were females.

The total number of immigrants from China between 1820 and 1921 was 352,236. In the year 1920 there were 2,148 Chinese immigrants; in the year 1921, 4,017. In 1912 there were 6,172 Japanese immigrants; in 1919, 10,056; in 1920, 9,279; and in 1921, 7,531.

Increase of native white, and foreign-born white population from 1850 to 1920, by decades:—

1920	81,108,161	12,721,749	18·6	13,712,754	367,209	2·8

Of the total increase of 13,738,354 in the population of the country between 1910 and 1920, whites contributed 13,088,958; negroes, 695,868; and other races, 14,028. The increase in the native population was 13,393,648, and that in the foreign-born 404,806.

The percentage of increase for the whites was 18·6, and for the negroes, 6·5. The native white population increased 18·6 per cent., and the foreign-born white, 2·8 per cent.

* In 1920 whites constituted 89·7 per cent. of the total population, as compared with 88·9 per cent. in 1910. Native whites constituted 76·7 per cent. of the total in the later year and 74·4 in 1910, while foreign-born whites formed 13 per cent. of the total in 1920, as compared with 14·5 per cent. ten years earlier.

Instruction.

Each State of the Union has a system of free public schools established by law. The work of these is largely supplemented by private and parochial schools. In 1880 the percentage of illiterates in the population above ten years of age was 17 per cent., in 1890 12.3 per cent., in 1900 10.7 per cent., in 1910 7.7 per cent., in 1920 6 per cent. The following statistics are for 1920.

	Total Population	Per cent. of total population	Population 10 years of age and over
			Total	Unable to Read and Write

Since the admission of the State of Ohio in 1803, the United States Government, upon the organization of all new States excepting a few in which no lands of the public domain were available, has set aside for the benefit of the public schools therein from one to four 'sections' (square miles) of land in each township of six miles square. The proceeds of the sale of this land make the principal part of the permanent school funds of such States. The income of permanent school funds and unsold school lands constitutes about 2.7 per cent. of the revenue receipts of the schools of the country. Taxation and appropriation yield about 92.1 per cent. of the total revenue receipts, and other sources yield about 5.2 per cent. In 1920 the amount expended on public schools of elementary and secondary grades was $82,608,357 dollars. In 1920 the 670 universities, colleges, and professional schools, including the 400 co-educational colleges, the 153 colleges for men only, and the 117 colleges for women only, had an income of 189,235,242 dollars from productive funds, from fees, and from United States Government, State, and Municipal appropriations, and from all other sources.

In 1920 there were in the United States 2,398 daily newspapers, 14,008 weeklies, 487 semi-weeklies, 3,156 monthlies, 293 semi-monthlies, and 670 other periodicals. The total number of periodicals was in 1916, 23,024 (in 1918, 22,842); in 1870 the total number was 5,871; in 1900, 20,806; and in 1911, 22,806.

Justice and Crime.

The judicial system, like the executive and legislative systems, is dual. The Federal or National Government maintains courts for the trial of civil and criminal cases under national laws which include Admiralty, Patent, Banking, Bankruptcy, and other laws, both civil and criminal, of the United States; the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts includes cases between citizens of different States when the amount involved is in excess of 3,000 dollars; and of crimes against the laws of the United States. The State Courts have jurisdiction over all civil and criminal cases arising under State laws which do not conflict with the National Constitution and laws enacted by Congress. The State Courts also have jurisdiction of proceedings in probate and divorce

In the separate States the lowest courts are those of Justices of the Peace, but in many towns and cities of fairly substantial population, Police Judges have jurisdiction as Examining Magistrates in criminal matters and to hear and determine misdemeanours for violation of the municipal laws. In all matters, except in misdemeanours for violation of the municipal laws, the Justices of the Peace have also jurisdiction in such towns or cities as examining magistrates, as well as to hear and determine civil cases involving usually not more than 200 dollars, and also to hear, determine and sentence for certain petty crimes which are not heinous.

The States are divided into counties and the latter into towns, cities, villages and townships, and there is usually a circuit or district court for each county, in some of which there are one or more judges for the county, while in others the judge's jurisdiction embraces the courts of two or more counties and he goes from county to county to hold terms of court therein. These are the highest State Courts of original jurisdiction and they have grand and petit juries.

The highest court in each State is the Supreme or Appellate Court with a Chief Justice and Associate Justices and, in some States, commissioners who hear and determine cases under assignment of the Chief Justice and the Associate Justices. The Chief Justice and Associate Justices are usually elected by the people, but sometimes are appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the State Senate; they usually hold office for a term of years, but sometimes for life or during good behaviour. Their salaries range from 2,500 to 17,500 dollars.

The Judges of the United States Courts, which include the District Courts, the Circuit Courts of Appeal, and the Supreme Court of the United States, are appointed for life, but retire, with full pay, at the age of 70 years, if they so desire, and if they have served the full period of ten years.

The United States District Courts are the lowest of the Federal Courts. There are 81 of these, each State forming one or more districts. These Courts appoint Commissioners, who have the power of Examining Magistrates, but may not finally adjudge and determine, except in the Territory of Alaska, where they have jurisdiction equivalent to that of the Justices of the Peace and Probate Courts of the counties of the States. The United States District Courts try all criminal cases arising under the Laws of the United States, as indicated above, including capital offences, which are punishable by death when the crime is committed on land or territory owned by the Federal Government.

The Supreme Court consists of the Chief Justice and 8 Associate Justices, appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate. The United States is divided into 9 circuits, to each of which the Chief Justice or an Associate Justice is assigned, and such Chief Justice or Associate Justice, respectively, has primary jurisdiction of applications for peremptory orders in any such district respectively. The Supreme Court has jurisdiction of cases on appeal or in error from the inferior Courts, and has original jurisdiction in cases affecting foreign Ministers and those between the different States. The salary of the Chief Justice is 15,000 dollars, and that of each of the Associate Justices 14,500 dollars.

The District of Columbia, in which the seat of the National Government is located, has a Municipal Court, a Supreme Court, and a Court of Appeals. The Municipal Court has jurisdiction in matters equivalent to those of the Justices of the Peace and Police Magistrates of cities and towns; the Supreme Court is the highest Court of original jurisdiction, and is equivalent to the District or Circuit Courts of the States, and the District Courts of the United States. The Circuit Court of Appeals has jurisdiction in cases of appeal or in error from the Supreme Court of the District, and is equivalent to the Supreme Court or Court of Appeals of the various States, and the Circuit Courts of Appeals of the United States.

The territories and insular possessions have different judicial systems, generally following the State organizations, but having as well jurisdiction of cases under the Federal Laws, except Porto Rico, which has a United States District Court, separate and distinct from the Municipal, Circuit, and Territorial Supreme Courts.

Finance

The following table gives what the Treasury terms 'Ordinary receipts and expenditures.' 'Ordinary receipts' include receipts from customs, internal revenue, direct tax, public lands, and 'Miscellaneous,' but do not include receipts from loans, premiums, or Treasury notes, or revenues of Post-Office Department. 'Ordinary expenses' include disbursements for War, Navy, Indians, pensions, payments for interest, and 'Miscellaneous,' but do not include payments for premiums, principal of public debt, or disbursements for postal service paid from revenues thereof.

On June 10, 1921, the President approved An Act to provide a National Budget System and an independent Audit of Government Accounts. This provides for an annual budget system for the first time in the history of the United States.

1915	3,057,836,873	1922	22,964,079,191

The gross debt was made up as follows:—Debt bearing no interest, 227,792,723 dollars ; matured debt on which interest has ceased, 25,250,880 dollars ; and interest-bearing debt (between 2 and 6 per cent) 22,711,035,587 dollars. The net debt—that is, what remains after deducting the cash in the Treasury—was 22,996,416,115 dollars on June 30, 1922.

In 1900 the true value of property was estimated at 88,517,366,775 dollars ; in 1904, at 107,104,192,410 dollars, and in 1912 at 187,739,071,090 dollars.

STATE FINANCE.

The revenues required for the administration of the separate States are derived from direct taxation, chiefly in the form of a tax on property real and personal ; and the greater part of such revenue is collected and expended by the local authorities, county, township, or school district.

For details see the separate States.

Defence.

I. ARMY.

The Army of the United States, as authorised under the Act of Congress of June 4, 1920, consists of the Regular Army, the National Guard while in the service of the United States, and the Organised Reserves, including the Officers' Reserve Corps and the Enlisted Reserve Corps.

Original enlistment in the Regular Army is for a period of one or three years at the option of the soldier, and re-enlistments are for a period of three years. Enlisted men are classified in seven grades. The pay of the lowest grade, or private, is 21 dollars per month (about 4 shillings a day at normal exchange rates), and that of the highest grade, or master sergeant, is 126 dollars per month. In addition enlisted men receive an increase of 5 per cent. of their base pay for each 4 years of service in the army, the total increase not to exceed 25 per cent. Certain enlisted men also receive additional pay as specialists, the maximum addition under this head being 30 dollars per month.

The strength of the Regular Army, including the Philippine Scouts, as authorised by the Act of Congress approved June 30, 1922, is as shown in the following table:—

	Officers	Enlisted men	Total
Infantry	2,941	48,857	51,798
Field Artillery	1,331	18,176	19,507
Coast Artillery	841	13,626	14,467
Quartermaster Corps	739	8,474	9,213
Cavalry	666	10,584	11,250
Air Service	1,062	8,500	9,562

Chemical Warfare Service	71	445	516
Miscellaneous and Detached	2,029	5,808	7,837
Finance Department	100	401	501
Warrant Officers	—	600	600
Total	12,000 ¹	132,748	144,748

¹ Authorised strength on and after January 1, 1923.

The actual strength at the end of June, 1922, was 146,506, including 13,247 officers, 1,123 warrant officers, and 132,136 enlisted men.

The war organisation and establishments of the Regular Army on mobilisation are as follows:—

Army Corps	83,850	Infantry Brigade	6,408
Infantry Division	19,997	Artillery Brigade	3,400
Cavalry Division	7,463

At the end of June, 1922, the Regular Army troops stationed abroad were as follows:—

Philippines	13,869	Porto Rico	1,450
Germany	1,231	Alaska	584
Hawaii	10,869	Miscellaneous ¹	1,009
Panama	8,334
China	671
France	7	Total	37,524

¹ Including troops en route, military attachés, etc.

The Officers' Reserve Corps consists of officers of all grades, including general officers, organised into sections corresponding to the various branches of the Regular Army. In the higher grades it is at present composed principally of men who served as officers during the World War, and on June 30, 1922, had a strength of 67,390. These officers may be called for training not exceeding 15 days each year, and with their own consent may be ordered to active service at any time and for any period, provided that the appropriations for the purpose are not exceeded.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps, maintained for the purpose of keeping up the strength of the Officers' Reserve Corps, is organised into units at civil educational establishments. It is divided into a Senior Division, formed mainly at the universities, and a Junior Division, formed mainly at the secondary schools. On June 30, 1922, 88,967 students were enrolled in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, of whom 51,742 were enrolled in senior units and 37,225 in junior units. Students of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps before being commissioned in the Officers' Reserve Corps must graduate from Reserve Officers' Training Corps camps, to be maintained each summer for a period of six weeks.

The Enlisted Reserve Corps consists of men voluntarily enlisted therein who have qualifications making them eligible for enlistment in the Regular Army. Provided the appropriations for the purpose are not exceeded, enlisted reservists may be called up for training not exceeding fifteen days each year, and with their own consent may be ordered to active service at any time and for any period.

The National Guard, or organised militia, is maintained by the several States with the aid of grants from the Federal Government. It is organised into the same arms of the service as the Regular Army, and is supplied by the Federal Government with uniforms, arms, and equipment of the same type as issued to the Regular Army. Service in the National Guard is purely voluntary. When Congress shall have authorised the use of the armed land forces of the United States for any purpose requiring the use of troops in excess of those of the Regular Army, the President may draft into the military service of the United States any or all members of the National Guard, to serve for the period of the war or emergency. The present authorised enlisted strength of the National Guard is about 424,000, but only about 160,000 had been organised up to June 30, 1922. Enlistment is for three years. Minimum training required includes 48 drill periods of one and one half hours each year, in addition to fifteen days' training in encampments or manoeuvres. For these drill periods, pay for each drill attended is provided, under certain instructions, for officers and men at approximately one-thirtieth of the monthly pay for like grades in the Regular Army.

Citizens' military training camps are operated during the summer months, at which thousands of young men acquire military training each year, without cost to themselves. Three courses are provided, the highest of which has as its object the training of non-commissioned officers and specialists of the Regular Army, National Guard, and Organised Reserves with a view to qualifying them for service as officers in the Officers' Reserve Corps. Civilians attending the highest course must have had prior military training equal to that obtainable in the lowest of the three courses.

The President is Commander-in-Chief of both the Army and the Navy. The Secretary of War controls the Army with the aid of an Assistant Secretary and a Chief of Staff. The former has supervision of the procurement of all military supplies, and is charged with the mobilisation of industrial establishments for wartime needs, while the latter is entrusted with the general supervision of the Army.

Although the infantry during the war were chiefly armed with a modified Enfield rifle, the Springfield rifle, of American design, remains the standard small arm. The 75 mm. field gun and 155 mm. howitzer have been adopted as the principal light mobile artillery weapons.

II. NAVY.

The United States Navy will not be affected by the Washington Treaty, as is the British Navy. Fifteen old ships are to be scrapped, not one of them a Dreadnought and none of them will be scrapped until France and Italy have ratified the Treaty. The only modern ship to be scrapped is the battleship Washington, which was about three-parts completed. The great schemes of naval expansion, which involved enormous and crushing expenditure, have been abandoned. The 1916 programme included 4 battleships and 4 battle-cruisers, and that of January 1919 6 additional battleships and 2 battle-cruisers. None of these will be constructed. When the Colorado and West Virginia battleships join the Fleet, the Delaware and North Dakota, completed in 1909, are to be scrapped, but there will be no further scrapping until 1934. The replacement tonnage of capital ships is to be the same as in the British Navy, viz. 525,000 tons. Attention is now chiefly devoted to the completion of ten light cruisers and the expansion of the flotillas, but a bill has been introduced for the modernizing of 13 existing battleships at an ultimate cost of 6,480,000/. The Secretary's report, December 1922, states that there is deficiency in fast cruisers, aircraft-carriers, submarines and aircraft.

The gross appropriations have recently been as follows: 1920-21, 134,468,717/.; 1921-22, 184,352,204/. During these two years the amounts for naval new construction have been severally 21,370,597/. and 18,493,784/. The Naval Appropriation Act, 1923-24, passed Congress with a total sum of 69,550,000/., and a request that the President will negotiate for further naval reduction.

The total number of enlisted men and marines voted in 1921-22 was 139,000. This establishment was to be reduced as a consequence of the Washington Treaty, to 115,000, but in 1922-23 there was a reduction to 86,000 enlisted men and 19,500 marines. These figures remain in the new Act. The establishment of permanent officers has been little reduced.

The administration of the American Navy is in the hands of the Secretary of the Navy, acting directly under the President; and the Secretary is solely responsible. The system has been developed by the institution of a Naval Department Council, advising the Secretary. Its most important member is the Chief of Operations, who is in practice Chief of the Staff, and is concerned with every part of the work and operations of the Fleet: education, training, and the sufficiency of bases, supplies, &c. The other members of the Council are the Chief of the Department of the Personnel (under the name of Bureau of Navigation), and the Chiefs of the following Bureaux: Construction and Repair; Engineering; Aeronautics (newly constituted 1921-22); Supplies and Accounts; Yards and Docks; Ordnance; and Medicine and Surgery; also the Commandant of the Marine Corps and the Judge Advocate-General. The Chief of Operations is also President of the Naval General Board, which is an advisory body of senior officers, ex-officio, and other, who are consulted on large questions of policy, including the shipbuilding programme.

The Government Naval Stations and construction and repairing establishments are at Portsmouth, N.H.; Boston, Mass.; Brooklyn, N.Y.; League Island, Pa.; Washington, D.C.; Norfolk, Va.; Pensacola, Fla.;

Mare Island, Cal.; and Puget Sound; and naval stations are at Newport, R.I.; New London Conn.; Charleston, S.C.; Port Royal, S.C.; Key West, Fla.; New Orleans, La.; Guantanamo, Cuba; Hawaii; Tutuila, Samoa; Cavite, P.I. A naval base is being established on San Francisco Bay.

The Atlantic and Pacific Fleets have now been united in a single command as the "United States Fleet."

The following is a classified statement of the strength of the United States Navy on December 31, 1920, 1921, and 1922. A new system of classification came into force, the whole Fleet being separated into the First Line and Second Line, the latter comprising the older ships which had little fighting value. Battleships of the class are omitted in the following summary, and vessels unserviceable for war purposes, gunboats, yachts, tugs, training-ships, &c., are not included :—

	Effective at end of
	1920	1921	1922
First Line Battleships	19	18	18
Second Line Battleships	19	17	— 1
Light Cruisers, First Line	—	3	3

Destroyers, First Line	250	284	302
Submarines (102, First Line, 1922) . .	110	120	144

The following table shows the existing American Navy, with indications of how it is to be changed and reduced. The second line battleships, now on the list for scrapping, have been omitted here. They are the Kentucky and Alabama, 1896; Ohio, 1900; New Jersey, Virginia, Georgia, Nebraska, and Rhode Island, 1902; and also the Illinois, 1897; Louisiana and Connecticut, 1903; Kansas, Vermont, Minnesota and New Hampshire, 1905; and South Carolina and Michigan, 1906, which last-named nine ships have not yet been condemned.

In the armament column, guns of lesser calibre than 3 inch are not given.

Ships in italics are not expected to be completed by the end of the present year.

Other vessels of the United States navy may be summarised. There are 3 old second line monitors; the air-craft carrier, Langley, completed; the discontinued battle-cruisers Lexington and Saratoga to be converted to the same use; the aircraft tender Wright; 4 mine-layers; about 50 small 'eagle' patrol vessels, and 60 submarine-chaser patrol vessels; about 30 old gunboats, cruisers, and yachts rated as patrol vessels; 9 tenders for destroyers and 7 for submarines; 4 repair ships; 12 colliers and 13 oilers; and a large number of auxiliary mine-sweepers and tugs.

The main strength of the destroyer flotillas lies in the first line boats, of which there are 161 35-knot boats, many of them reaching 1,300 tons, and carrying 4 4-in. guns, 1 3-in. anti-aircraft, and 4 21 in. triple torpedo-tubes; 97 earlier 35-knot boats (1918-19), many of them fitted for mine-laying; and 44 80-knot boats (1916-18). There are also 21 boats of the second line which are likely to be removed. The first line boats number 302. About a dozen are building.

The first line submarine flotilla comprises 16 of the O class, 500-625 tons; 27 of the R class for coastal uses, 569-680 tons; and 50 of the S class, 900-1,126 tons, many not yet completed, and 12 Fleet submarines, 1,100-2,000 tons, of which 6 are completed—a total of 105. There are also 43 second line submarines.

The public lands are divided into two great classes. The one class have a dollar and a quarter an acre designated as the minimum price, and the other two dollars and a half an acre, the latter being the alternate sections, reserved by the United States in land grants to railroads, &c. Titles to these lands may be acquired by location under the homestead laws; or, as to some classes, by purchase for cash. The homestead laws give the right to 160 acres of a-dollar-and-a-quarter lands to any citizen or applicant for citizenship who will actually settle upon and cultivate the land. The title is perfected by the issue of a patent after three years (law of June 6, 1912) of actual settlement. The only charges in the case of homestead entries are fees and commissions. On July 1, 1921, 542,510,252 acres were unappropriated and unreserved, of which 352,780,760 were in Alaska. During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1921, the area patented was 10,117,810 acres, of which 8,181,226 acres were patented under the homestead laws. It is provided by law that one to four sections, of 640 acres of land, in each 'township,' are reserved for common schools, so that the spread of education may go together with colonisation.

The power of Congress over the public territory is exclusive and universal, except so far as restrained by stipulations in the original cessions.

The Reclamation Service (organised under the Reclamation Act of June 17, 1902) is engaged in the investigation, construction, and operation of irrigation works in the arid and semi-arid States of the West. Thirty projects have been authorised for construction or operation for irrigation of lands in Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming. These projects aggregate 3,200,000 acres, and the major works aid in securing an additional 1,000,000 acres under private canals that generally get stored water from the Government reservoirs. The funds for this work have come chiefly from the sale of public lands, and the money expended is returned to the fund by easy payments of settlers, usually in twenty annual instalments without interest, in accordance with the Reclamation Extension Act of August 13, 1914. The Service has built on the 30 projects over 12,000 miles of canals, ditches and drains, including 100,000 canal structures, and involving the excavation of 174,000,000 cubic yards of materials. In connection with this work there have been constructed 100 storage and diversion dams with an aggregate volume of 13,700,000 cubic yards, including the Arrowrock dam, the highest in the world (349 feet), the Elephant Butte dam on the Rio Grande, forming the largest artificial irrigation reservoir in the United States. The net construction cost to June 30, 1922, was 135,000,000 dollars.

According to census returns the total acreage of farms and the improved acreage have been :—

Years	Farm area. Acres	Improved area. Acres	Value of farm property Dollars	Value of products in preceding year Dollars

In 1920, 4,917,386 farms were occupied by native whites, 581,068 by foreign-born whites and 949,889 by negroes and other non-whites. Of the occupants, 3,925,090 were owners, 68,449 managers, 585,005 cash tenants, 1,678,812 share tenants, 127,822 share-cash tenants and 63,165 not reporting.

The estimated gross value at farm of all crops and animal products was, in 1918, 22,480,000,000 dollars; in 1919, 24,932,000,000 dollars; and in 1920 (preliminary estimate), 22,000,000,000 dollars.

The areas and produce of the principal cereal crops for three years are shown in the subjoined tables.

The output of cane sugar in 1919-20 amounted to 244,250,000 pounds; and in 1920-21 352,228,000 pounds; and the preliminary estimate for 1921-22 was 540,541,000 pounds. The beet sugar production in 1919-20 was 1,452,902,000 pounds; and in 1920-21 was 2,180,242,000 pounds; and the preliminary estimate for 1921-22 was 2,024,764,000 pounds.

Cotton acreage and production (excluding "linters"), for the last six years were:—

Years	Acres harvested	Bales (500 lbs. gross)	Years	Acres harvested	Bales (500 lbs. gross)
1917	33,841,000	11,302,000	1920	35,878,000	13,489,603

1919	33,566,000	11,420,763	1922	33,742,000	9,964,000

The estimated cotton production in 1922 was grown in the following States: Texas, 3,290,000 bales; Mississippi, 1,010,000; Arkansas, 1,040,000; Georgia, 725,000; North Carolina, 852,000; South Carolina, 530,000;

Alabama, 835,000; Oklahoma, 635,000; Tennessee, 400,000; Louisiana; 357,000; Missouri, 149,000; California (including some grown in Mexico), 85,000; Arizona, 42,000; Virginia, 25,000; Florida, 25,000; all other, 15,000 bales.

In 1922 there were under tobacco 1,725,000 acres, which yielded 1,324,840,000 lbs. of tobacco. The chief tobacco-growing States were North Carolina, 515,000 acres, yielding 306,940,000 lbs.; Kentucky, 525,000 acres, yielding 446,250,000 lbs.; Virginia, 209,000 acres, yielding 156,750,000 lbs.; Tennessee, 130,000 acres, yielding 94,250,000 lbs.; South Carolina, 90,000 acres, yielding 57,600,000 lbs.; Wisconsin, 40,000 acres, yielding 45,600,000 lbs.; Ohio, 52,000 acres, yielding 46,800,000 lbs.; Pennsylvania, 43,000 acres, yielding 56,760,000 lbs.; Connecticut, 28,000 acres, yielding 35,000,000 lbs.; Maryland, 35,000 acres, yielding 26,950,000 lbs.; Georgia, 11,000 acres, yielding 5,940,000 lbs.; Indiana, 18,000 acres, yielding 16,200,000 lbs.; Massachusetts, 9,000 acres, yielding 11,925,000 lbs.

The following table exhibits the number of farm animals in 1910 (April 15), 1920 (January 1), and 1921 and 1922 (January 1):—

Live Stock	1910 (Census)	1920 (Census)	1921 (Estimate)	1922 (Estimate)
Horses . . .	19,833,113	19,767,161	19,208,000	19,099,000
Mules . . .	4,209,769	5,432,391	5,455,000	5,436,000
Cattle of all kinds	61,803,866	66,652,559	65,587,000	65,352,000
Sheep . . .	52,447,861	35,033,516	37,452,000	36,048,000
Swine . . .	58,135,676	59,346,409	56,097,000	56,996,000

The value of farm animals in the United States on January 1, 1922, was:—Cattle other than milch cows, 982,466,000 dollars; milch cows, 1,224,767,000 dollars; total value of all farm animals, 4,779,957,000 dollars.

In 1921 98,862,276,000 lbs. of milk were produced, 1,705,438,000 lbs. of butter, 355,838,000 lbs. of cheese, 1,464,163,000 lbs. of condensed milk.

In 1901 the estimated production of wool was 302,502,328 pounds; in 1918, 298,670,000 pounds; in 1919, 298,258,000 pounds; in 1920, 277,905,000 pounds; and in 1921, 273,064,000 pounds.

The census reports for 1914 show that the value of canned vegetables was 84,413,667 dollars; of canned fruits, 24,897,174 dollars; of dried fruits, 34,771,912 dollars; of canned soups, 7,877,057 dollars; and of all other products, including preserves, pickles, sauces, cider, and vinegar produced in canning establishments, 6,055,892 dollars. The total value of canned products, in 1914, was 158,015,702 dollars.

II. FORESTS AND FORESTRY.

The United States forests cover 463,000,000 acres, or about one-fifth of the whole country. The original forests of the United States covered 822,000,000 acres, with a stand of not less than 5,200 billion feet of merchantable timber, of which about 2,215 billion board feet still remains. Forests publicly owned contain a little over 27 per cent. of all timber standing, forests privately owned contain at least 70 per cent., and States and municipalities together hold less than 3 per cent. of the total stand.

There are five great forest regions—the northern, the southern, the central, the Rocky Mountain, and the Pacific. The standing timber in the United States is being cut and destroyed at the rate of 26 billion cubic feet per year, or more than four times as fast as new timber is growing.

The heavy demands for timber have been rapidly pushing the great centres of lumber industry toward the South and West. In consequence, the State of Washington now leads in lumber production, followed closely by Oregon, Louisiana, Mississippi, and California.

The annual consumption, including waste in logging and in manufacture, is more than 24,000,000,000 cubic feet of wood. It includes over 110,000,000 cords of firewood, more than 40,000,000,000 board feet of lumber, 650,000,000 feet logs for veneer, 87,500,000 hewed ties, nearly 1,296,000,000 staves, over 82,000,000 sets of heading, over 333,000,000 barrel hoops, over 4,550,000 cords of native pulpwood, 250,000,000 cubic feet of round mine timbers, 900,000,000 fence posts, 1,550,000 cords of wood for distillation, 1,250,000 cords for tanning extract, 200,000 cords for excelsior, and 4,250,000 telegraph and telephone poles, 8,850,000,000 shingles, and 2,375,000,000 lath.

The present net area of the 147 national forests, including those in Alaska and Porto Rico and lands acquired by purchase in the White Mountains and Southern Appalachian regions for national forest purposes, is 156,837,282 acres.

The operating costs of the national forests are about 4,000,000 dollars annually. For improvements (roads, trails, telephone lines, bridges, cabins, etc.) there is an annual appropriation of 400,000 dollars, plus ten per cent, of the receipts. In addition, the Federal Aid Roads Act in 1916, made available 1,000,000 dollars yearly for ten years, for roads and trails within or partly within the national forests. There was also included in the Post Office appropriation bill, which was approved February 28, 1919, an item of 9,000,000 dollars to be allotted during a three-year period, and available until expended for road work. On November 9, 1921, an Act was approved for an expenditure of 15,000,000 dollars for forests roads and trails, which appropriation is also available until expended. The total regular appropriation for the support of the Forest Service, including its diversified investigative and co-operative work, for the fiscal year 1922 is 6,899,302 dollars, including 300,000 dollars for fire-fighting and 400,000 dollars for co-operative fire protection.

The receipts from the several sources for the last three fiscal years were as follows:—

Fiscal Year	Timber	Grazing	Special Uses, &c.	All Sources
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
1920	2,067,395	2,486,040	240,046	4,793,482
1921	1,775,901	485,079	243,955	2,504,935
1922	1,828,191	2,962,972	277,364	5,068,527

The receipts for the fiscal year 1921 were much less than for either 1920 or 1922. The principal reason for this is that the Agricultural Appropriation Act, approved March 3, 1921, contained a provision that the payment of grazing fees, to the amount of approximately 1,900,000 dollars, for the calendar year 1921, might be paid on December 1, in the fiscal year 1922.

Under the law 25 per cent. of the receipts is paid to the States in which the national forests are located, to be expended for roads and schools. This is in addition to the 10 per cent. of the receipts already mentioned as available for improvements, which is expended under the direction of the Secretary of Agriculture for road and trail building in national forests in co-operation with State authorities or otherwise.

The grazing receipts for the calendar year 1921 were paid by the holders of 31,027 permits to graze 1,999,580 cattle, 78,115 horses, and 2,453 swine, and of 6,214 permits to graze 6,936,377 sheep and 43,574 goats.

The following table shows, by States, the total cut under sale of timber from the national forests in the calendar year 1921:

State	Board Feet	State	Board Feet	State	Board Feet
Oregon . . .	137,054,000	South Dakota .	20,342,000	Nevada . . .	1,393,000
California . .	125,149,000	Alaska . . .	14,316,000	Florida . . .	1,017,000
Idaho . . .	85,446,000	Utah . . .	10,669,000	Michigan . . .	283,000

New Mexico . .	24,814,000	New Hampshire .	3,341,000

Besides Government protection of national forests against fire, co-operation in fire protection on the forested watersheds of navigable streams is extended to individual States, under provisions of Federal law. In order to obtain this co-operation, the State must provide by law for a system of forest-fire protection and must expend each year at least as much as the Federal Government in maintaining the system. The number of States now co-operating is 26. Altogether, 166 million acres are fairly well protected against forest fires under this law by the combined private, State, and Federal appropriations, at an average cost of less than two cents per acre.

The movement for national forestry has been followed by a widespread development of State forest activities. To-day, 34 States have forest departments, and practically all show recognition of the need for a State forest policy. Many States have established Forest Reserves and Parks which are administered independently. There are approximately 350 such State forests and parks, with a total acreage of more than six million.

III. MINING.

The following are the statistics of the metallic products of the United States in 1920 and 1921 (long tons, 2,240 lbs.; short tons, 2,000 lbs.). The values are: For iron, at point of production; for nickel and platinum, the values at New York City; for copper, lead and zinc, the values are those of sales; for quicksilver, the value at San Francisco.

The total value of the mineral products in 1920 was 6,951,410,000 dollars; in 1921, 4,056,000,000 dollars.

The total production of coal from 1807, the date of the earliest record, to the close of 1921 was 14,479,195,100 short tons.

The precious metals are mined mainly in California, Colorado, Alaska, and Nevada for gold, and Montana, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, and Colorado for silver. The production of gold and silver in the United States from 1792 to 1921 was as follows:—

Precious stones are found in considerable varieties in the United States, the total production was valued in 1916 at 217,793 dollars, in 1917 at 131,012 dollars, in 1918 at 106,523 dollars, in 1919 at 111,763 dollars, in 1920 at 265,205 dollars, and in 1921 at 518,280 dollars. The stones found are sapphires (in Montana), turquoise, tourmaline, garnets, beryl, agates, amethyst, ruby, topaz, &c.

IV MANUFACTURES.

The following table shows the condition of manufacturing industries in the United States as reported at each census from 1880 to 1919. The censuses of 1904, 1909, 1914, and 1919, unlike the earlier censuses, did not include hand and neighbourhood industries, but were confined to establishments conducted under the factory system or producing goods for the general market.

Census	Number of establishments	Capital	Persons employed	Value of products	Cost of materials
		Dollars		Dollars	Dollars

² Excluding hand and neighbourhood industries.

³ Includes officers, firm members, clerks and wage earners.

⁴ Includes salaried officials, clerks, &c., and wage earners; does not include proprietors and firm members.

The censuses of 1890, 1900, and 1905 cover Alaska: the census of 1910 covers Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico; the censuses of 1914 and of 1919 cover Continental United States.

The censuses of manufactures for 1919 and 1914 (not including Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico) were confined to establishments under the factory system, to the exclusion of neighbourhood industries and hand trades such as custom dress-making, tailoring, carpentering, grist and saw-milling. The census results were as follows:—

In 1914 there were 353 blast furnaces in active plants with a daily capacity of 109,426 tons; in 1919, 411, with a daily capacity of 138,347 tons. In 1919 the output of pig-iron was 30,543,167 tons, value 785,960,412 dollars; in 1914 it was 23,269,731 tons, value 312,761,617 dollars. Bessemer, or modified Bessemer, steel plants in 1914 had 115 converters; in 1919, 138; total daily capacity of ingots or direct castings, double turn, in 1914, 53,106 tons; in 1919, 55,809 tons. Open-hearth steel plants in 1914 had 864 basic and acid furnaces; in 1919, 1,162; daily capacity of steel, in 1914, 93,650 tons; in 1919, 134,050 tons. The total value of products of the steel works and rolling mills in 1919 was 2,823,902,376 dollars; in 1914, 918,664,565 dollars. The value of output comprised :—

Products	1919	1914
	Dollars	Dollars
Steel rails	92,849,481	54,009,918
Iron and steel bars, &c.	394,323,000	110,480,914

The output of tin plates in 1919 was of the value of 165,846,133 dollars ; in 1914, 60,258,024 dollars. The output of terne plates in 1919 was of the value of 11,351,462 dollars ; in 1914, 6,012,321 dollars.

The output of sawed lumber in 1919 amounted to the value of 1,043,818,216 dollars ; in 1909, to 684,479,859 dollars. The output of the leather, tanned, and curried industry, in 1919, was valued at 928,591,701 dollars ; in 1914, at 367,201,705 dollars. The boot and shoe products manufactured in 1919 were valued at 1,155,041,436 dollars ; in 1914, at 501,760,458 dollars ; leather gloves and mittens, products, 1919, 46,940,511 dollars ; in 1914, 21,614,109 dollar...

The value of the output of paper and wood-pulp products in 1919 was 788,059,377 dollars ; in 1914, 332,147,175 dollars. The value of the output of printing and publishing industries including bookbinding and blank books, engraving steel and copper plate, lithographing, book and job music, and newspapers and periodicals, in 1919, were valued at 1,699,789,229 dollars ; in 1914, 901,534,801 dollars.

The output of the chemical and allied industries for 1914 and 1919, comprised products to the values shown below :—

Products	1914	1919
	Dollars	Dollars
Chemicals (acids, &c.)	191,895,464	643,992,900
Cotton seed products (crude)	156,036,437	352,138,000

Total	39,054,644	31,015,364	36,925,987	16,688,126

The production of tin plates and terne plates was in 1904, 461,134 tons (census); in 1917, 1,512,146 tons; in 1918, 1,473,939 tons; in 1919, 1,150,898 tons; in 1920, 1,436,686 tons; and in 1921, 793,198 gross tons.

The total production of rolled iron and steel in 5 years is given (in gross

(tons) in the following table (official figures of the American Iron and Steel Institute, New York):—

Years	Iron and steel rails	Bars, hoops, skelp, and shapes, etc.	Wire rods Gross tons	Plates and sheets, except nail plate	Nail plate Gross tons	Total Gross tons
1917	2,944,161	18,695,921	3,137,138	8,267,616	22,864	33,067,700

Fermented liquors, 27,712,648 barrels in 1918-19; 9,231,280 barrels in 1919-20; 9,220,188 barrels in 1920-21; and 11,014,508 barrels in 1921-22. The last two items, however, represent cereal beverages containing less than a half of 1 per cent. of alcohol by volume, as no fermented liquor was produced for consumption as such during the fiscal years 1921 or 1922.

V. FISHERIES.

The following table gives various statistics for the fishing industry in the United States:—

In the United States the values are fixed not according to average prices, but according to invoices or shipping papers, which the importers and exporters have to produce. For imports the invoices are signed by an American Consul; for exports the shipping papers are signed by the exporter or agents at the port of shipment. The quantities and values are determined by declarations.

The 'most favoured nation' treatment in commerce between Great Britain and the United States was agreed to for 4 years by the treaty of 1815, was extended for 10 years by the treaty of 1818, and indefinitely (subject to 12 months' notice) by that of 1827.

Internal Communications.

Railway history in the United States commenced in the year 1828. According to Poor's Railway Manual, the extent of railways in operation in 1830 was 23 miles ; it rose to 52,922 miles in 1870 ; to 167,191 miles in 1890. According to the Interstate Commerce Commission's corresponding mileage, it was (year ended on June 30) in 1900, 198,964 ; in 1910, 249,992 ; in 1915, 264,378 ; in 1916 (year ended December 31), 265,381 ; in 1918, 264,233 ; in 1919, 263,707 ; in 1920, 263,821. The ordinary gauge is 4 ft 8½ in.

The following table, based on the figures of the Interstate Commerce Commission, shows some railway statistics for 4 years :—

		per 100 square miles of land area	per 10,000 of the population	Number of passengers	Weight of freight, in tons
1917	253,626	8.53	24.82	1,066,638,474	2,270,085,053
1918	253,529	8.53	24.47	1,084,997,896	2,305,824,940
1919	253,152	8.51	24.11	1,177,820,454	2,043,229,775
1920	254,845	8.50	23.92	1,234,862,048	2,950,983,278

The total capital invested in railways (stock, funded and unfunded debt) on December 31, 1920, was 21,891,450,785 dollars, and the total amount of dividends declared and interest accrued was 906,642,952 dollars. This item was divided as follows: 573,272,453 dollars interest accrued, and 333,370,499 dollars dividends declared. The number of locomotives was 68,942.

The telegraphs of the United States are largely in the hands of the Western Union Telegraph Company, which had (December 31, 1921) 246,063 miles of pole line and cable, 1,522,062 miles of wire, and 24,632 offices. The receipts in 1921, were 105,228,075 dollars; expenses 95,542,563 dollars; net income 9,685,512 dollars.

The following table relates to the business of another important company; the figures of the table do not represent the operations of one company, but the aggregation of the figures of many companies which go to make up the telephone system which is generally known as the American Telephone and Telegraph Company ('Bell Telephone System') on January 1 of each year:—

Currency and Credit.

The monetary system is monometallic, and has been so since 1873, gold being the standard.

The Act of February 28, 1878, commonly known as the Bland-Allison Act, required the purchase by the Secretary of the Treasury of silver bullion at the market price of silver of not less than 2,000,000 dollars or more than 4,000,000 dollars worth per month, the same to be coined as fast as so purchased into silver dollars. 378,166,793 silver dollars were coined under the Bland-Allison Act. The Act of July 14, 1890, known as the Sherman Act, required the purchase of 4,500,000 ounces of fine silver monthly, which was paid for in Treasury notes issued as the silver was purchased. The total amount of silver purchased under this Act from August 13, 1890, to November 1, 1893, date of repeal of the purchasing clause, was 168,674,682 five ounces, costing 155,931,002 dollars, the coinage value of which was 218,054,438 in silver dollars. From the bullion purchased under the Act of July 14, 1890, there were coined to December 31, 1901, 149,710,163 silver dollars. Under the Act of March 3, 1891 for re-coining of trade dollars, 5,078,472 silver dollars were coined, making a total of 532,955,428 standard silver dollars coined from March 1, 1878, to December 31, 1901.

The following metallic and paper money was in the United States on December 1, 1922:—

There is no Central National Bank in the United States, but the Federal Reserve Act, adopted on December 23, 1913, set up a Federal Reserve Bank in each of the 12 districts into which the United States is divided for the purpose. The 12 Federal Reserve Banks, their paid-in capital (50 per cent. of the subscribed capital), and their surplus funds on October 4, 1922, are shown as follows:—

District	Federal Reserve Bank	Paid-in Capital (in thousands of dollars)	Surplus	District	Federal Reserve Bank	Paid-in Capital (in thousands of dollars)	Surplus
1	Boston . .	8,090	16,483	8	St. Louis . .	4,787	9,388

Every National Bank is required to become a stockholder, to the extent of 6 per cent. of its capital and surplus (of which 50 per cent. must be paid in), in the Federal Reserve Bank of the district in which it is situated. State banks and Trust companies may also become member banks under certain conditions. On June 30, 1922, there were 8,244 National Banks members of the Federal Reserve System and 1,648 Member State Banks and Trust Companies giving a total of 9,892 member banks. The largest district was Chicago with 1,441 member banks, the smallest Boston with 433 members.

The Federal Reserve Banks, except for open market purchases, do no banking business with the public, but only with their member banks. They may issue Federal Reserve notes against gold or commercial paper with a minimum gold reserve of 40 per cent. The whole system is under the control of the Federal Reserve Board, composed of the Secretary of the Treasury and the Controller of the Currency, both ex-officio, together with six other appointed members.

The following is a statement of the combined resources and liabilities of the 12 Federal Reserve Banks on October 4, 1922, and October 5, 1921:

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The dollar of 100 cents is of the par value of 49.32*d.*, or 4.8665 dollars to the pound sterling.

The monetary unit, in accordance with the monetary law of March 14, 1900, is the gold dollar of 25.8 grains (or 1.6718 gramme) .900 fine. The Government undertakes to maintain parity between gold and silver coin, and a fund of 150,000,000 dollars in gold has been established for the repayment of United States notes and Treasury notes in gold at sight.

Gold coins in common use are 20, 10 and 5-dollar pieces called double eagles, and half-eagles. The eagle weighs 258 grains or 16.71818 grammes .900 fine, and therefore contains 232.2 grains or 15.0464 grammes of fine gold.

The silver dollar weighs 412.5 grains or 26.730 grammes .900 fine, and therefore contains 371.25 grains or 24.057 grammes of fine silver. Subsidiary silver coins contain 347.22 grains of fine silver per dollar.

British weights and measures are usually employed, but the old Winchester gallon and bushel are used instead of the new or imperial standards. They are:—

Wine Gallon = 0.83333 gallon.

Ale Gallon = 1.01695 „

Bushel = 0.9692 imperial bushel.

Instead of the British cwt. a Cental, of 100 pounds, issued; the short ton contains 2,000 lbs.; the long ton, 2,240 lbs.

ALABAMA.

Constitution and Government.—The State of Alabama was admitted into the Union on December 14, 1819. The legislature consists of a Senate of 35 members and a House of Representatives of 106 members; all the legislators being elected for four years.

Governor.—W. W. Brandon, 1923-1927 (7,500 dollars).

Secretary of State.—William P. Cobb.

The State is divided into 67 counties. The State Capital is Montgomery.

Area and Population.—Area 51,998 square miles, including 719 square miles of water. Census population Jan. 1, 1920, 2,348,174.

The population at the date of each Federal census was as follows:—

Years	Population
	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1890	834,912	678,489	1,513,401	29·5
1900	1,061,390	827,307	1,828,697	35·7
1910	1,229,811	908,282	2,138,093	41·7
1920	1,447,522	900,652	2,348,174	45·8

By sex and race the population in 1920 was thus distributed :—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	733,039	439,779	76	211	1,173,105
Female	713,993	460,873	9	194	1,175,069
Total	1,447,032	900,652	85	405	2,348,174

The foreign-born white population numbered 17,662 (0·8 per cent. of the total population of the State), of whom 2,427 (13·7 per cent.) were German, 1,942 (11·0 per cent.) English, 809 Irish, 975 Scotch, 1,582 (9·0 per cent.) Russian, and 2,732 (15·5 per cent.) Italian. The large cities (census population in 1920), Birmingham 178,806; Mobile, 60,777; Montgomery (capital), 43,464. Of the total population in 1920, 21·7 per cent. were urban and 38·4 per cent. Negro.

Religion and Instruction.—Protestant churches are in the ascendancy in the State. The order of strength of different religious bodies is: Baptist, Methodist, Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, Disciples of Christ.

The public elementary schools in 1921 had 2,198 male and 9,374 female teachers, and 523,083 enrolled pupils; the public high schools had 1,564 teachers and 40,086 pupils. In 1921 the 6 public normal schools had 3,385 pupils; the 10 agricultural schools 49 teachers and 1,412 enrolled pupils (1920). Total expenditure on education (1921) 9,289,626 dollars (excluding private and denominational schools). For superior and professional education there are various institutions, the most important (1921) being (for men and both sexes):—

Founded	Institutions	Instructors	Students
1831	University of Alabama (State)	120	2,345
1859	Southern University, Greensboro' (M. E. So.)	26	263
1872	Alabama Polytechnic Institute	111	1,195
1909	Woman's College of Alabama	35	377
1880	Tuskegee Normal & Industrial Inst. (Coloured)	206	1,736

Finance and Defence.—The revenue is derived partly from occupation taxes, but mostly from taxes on property of all kinds, the assessment being made at 60 per cent. of the cash value for State and county purposes by the county assessors on the sworn statements of the taxpayers.

The receipts and disbursements in the year 1922, were:—

	Dollars
Balance in hand, Oct. 1, 1921	624,639
Receipts, 1921-22	15,621,701
Total	16,246,340
Disbursements, 1921-2	15,429,192
Balance, Sept. 30, 1922	817,148

The bonded debt of the State in 1922 amounted to 8,954,000 dollars. The assessed value of real property and of personal property in 1922 was 950,000,000 dollars.

According to the Council of the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders, Alabama has a defaulted debt estimated at 30,000,000 dollars, but the State denies any liability for such estimated indebtedness, having legally adjudicated all claims. The amount so claimed is made up of unauthorised charges, for which no lawful warrant ever existed.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 77 officers and 1,514 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Alabama is largely an agricultural State; the number of farms in 1920 was 256,099; the farm area was 19,576,856 acres, of which 9,893,407 acres were improved land; the value of all farm property was 690,848,720 dollars. The chief crops are maize, 50,932,000 bushels in 1922; wheat, 218,000 bushels; oats, 5,540,000 bushels; potatoes, 3,840,000 bushels. Other crops are hay and vegetables. Tobacco, 1,500,000 pounds. Sugar-cane is largely grown and 8,760,000 gallons of syrup were manufactured. On January 1, 1921, the live-stock comprised 158,000 horses, 322,000 mules, 507,000 milch cows, 791,000 other cattle, 123,000 sheep, and 1,861,000 swine. In 1921 the area under cotton was 2,352,000 acres; the yield was 635,000 bales of cotton, valued at 50,800,000 dollars. The wool clip for 1921 yielded 189,000 pounds. Area of national forest lands on June 30, 1921, 65,167 acres.

In 1919 there were 3,654 manufacturing establishments with capital amounting to 455,593,000 dollars, employing 107,159 wage-earners who earned 99,066,000 dollars, used raw material worth 300,664,000 dollars, and turned out products valued at 492,731,000 dollars. The pig-iron output amounted to 2,339,939 tons in 1920; 16,294,099 short tons of coal were mined the same year (the estimated output for 1921 was 12,200,000 short tons); other large industries are railway-car construction, the manufacture of fertilisers, of cotton-seed oil and cake, and of turpentine and resin. On August 31, 1921, there were 1,281,444 active spindles in the State consuming 309,646 bales of cotton.

The chief port of Alabama is Mobile, through which there is a large trade. The exports comprise raw cotton (over 12,062,000 dollars annually), timber, lumber, &c. (6,800,000 dollars), cereals and flour (2,950,000 dollars), and lard (1,800,000 dollars), besides cattle, sheep and other animals, nuts, hops, fruit, flax-seed and oil, sugar, tobacco, &c. The port is the outlet not only for products of Alabama, but for those of neighbouring States. The imports at Mobile are mostly from Mexico and consist largely of bananas, other tropical fruits, and sisal grass. The harbour channel is deepened to 22½ ft.

The larger rivers in the State are navigable (except at low water) for several hundred miles; the Alabama river for 400 miles. In 1921 the railways within the State had a length of 5,376 miles, exclusive of 362 miles of electric railway.

In 1916 there were 16 savings banks in the State with 229,000 depositors who had to their credit 13,311,009 dollars, making an average of 58 dollars to each depositor.

British Vice-Consul at Mobile.—Thomas John McSweany.

ARIZONA.

Government.—Arizona was admitted into the Union as a Sovereign State on February 14, 1912. In the laws which the first State Legislature of Arizona enacted, the affairs of State government are placed under direct control of the people, who can at any time exercise the machinery of the Initiative, Referendum and the Recall. Among the amendments to the Constitution upon which the people voted in 1912 was one giving the State power to engage in industrial pursuits.

The State Senate consists of 19 members, and the House of Representatives 35. The State is represented in the National Congress by one member of the lower house and two Senators.

Governor.—G. W. P. Hunt, 1923-25 (6,500 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Ernest R. Hall.

The State capital is Phoenix (population in 1920, 29,053). Tucson had a population of 20,292 in 1920. The State is divided into 14 counties.

Area, Population and Instruction.—Area 113,810 square miles, including 146 square miles of water. The Indian reservations had an area of 28,865 square miles in 1921, with a population of 43,519. According to the 1920 census, population is 334,162.

The population in four census years was:—

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile	Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1890	86,886	1,357	88,243	0.8	1910	202,345	2,069	204,354	1.8
1900	121,083	1,848	122,931	1.1	1920	326,157	8,005	334,162	2.9

In 1920 the population by race and sex was:—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	159,345	5,859	1,370	17,028	183,602
Female	132,104	2,146	349	15,961	150,560
Total	291,449	8,005	1,719	32,989	334,162

In 1920, 78,099, or 23.4 per cent of the total population of the State, were foreign-born white, of whom 2,882 were English, 60,325 (77.2 per cent.) Mexicans, 1,962 Canadians, 1,516 Germans, 1,206 Irish, and 1,261 Italian. Of the total population in 1920, 35.2 per cent. were urban and 2.4 per cent. Negro.

The order of strength of religious bodies is: Roman Catholic, Latter-Day Saints, Presbyterian, Methodist, Congregationalist.

School attendance is compulsory for children between the ages of 8 and 16 years during the entire school term. Instruction is free for children from 6 to 21 years of age. The enrolled pupils in 1921-22 in the 446 district elementary schools were 95,824, and there were 1,883 teachers. Forty-one public high schools had 7,731 pupils and 421 teachers. Two public normal schools at Tempe and Flagstaff had 506 students and 56 teachers. Total expenditure for elementary, high schools, and university maintenance 1921-22 was 7,789,201 dollars. The State University of Arizona, at Tucson, founded in 1885, had 100 professors and 1,190 students in 1920-21. There is a State Agricultural School also at Tucson.

Finance and Defence.—Revenues are derived mainly from the general property tax levied on all property not specially exempted. The revenue and expenditure in the year ending June 30, 1922, were:—

	Dollars
Balance in hand July 1, 1921	2,864,243
Receipts, 1921-22	11,862,119
Total	14,726,362
Disbursements, 1921-22	9,485,852
Balance, June 30, 1922	5,240,510

The bonded debt, June 30, 1922, amounted to 3,312,972 dollars. The net value of taxable real and personal property amounted to 830,536,582 dollars for 1921.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 30 officers and 594 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Arizona, with its dry climate, is not well suited for agriculture, but along the watercourses and where irrigation is used the soil is productive. In Maricopa County 80,000 acres of long staple Egyptian cotton is under cultivation. The wide pasture-lands in this State are favourable for the rearing of cattle and sheep. Several large reservoirs for the storage of water have been and are being constructed by the United States and State Government, notably the Roosevelt dam, which supplies water to the rich Salt River Valley District, of which Phoenix is the principal city. The Government completed the Yuma project, by which the waters of the lower Colorado River are brought to the Arizona side under the river by means of an inverted syphon.

In 1920 Arizona contained 9,975 farms, of which 537 were Indian. There were 712,803 acres, of improved land, out of a total farm area of 5,089,323 acres. The total value of all farm property was 233,592,989 dollars. The most important crops (1922) were as follows:—Cotton, 42,000 bales; wheat, 1,274,000 bushels; corn, 1,170,000 bushels; barley, 825,000 bushels; hay, 578,000 tons; oats, 620,000 bushels; beans, 24,000 bushels; and potatoes, 510,000 bushels. On January 1, 1921, there were 120,000 horses, 12,000 mules, 45,000 milch cows, and 1,100,000 other cattle, 1,200,000 sheep, and 40,000 swine. The wool clip in 1921 amounted to 5,000,000 pounds of wool. The national forests in the State have an area (June 30, 1921) of 11,355,846 acres, and just recently the Grand Canyon has been made a National Park.

The mining industries of the State are important, producing gold, silver, copper, lead, and zinc. The production of gold in 1921 amounted to 160,498 ounces, valued at 3,317,800 dollars (1920, 240,032 ounces, valued at 4,961,900 dollars, of silver, 2,519,200 ounces, value 2,519,200 dollars; and of copper 155,165,656 pounds fine.

The capital invested in manufacturing industries in the State in 1919 amounted to 101,486,000 dollars; the raw material used cost 92,648,000 dollars, and the output was valued at 120,769,000 dollars; there were employed 8,528 wage-earners who earned 12,015,000 dollars. The value of the output showed an increase of 88.4 per cent. over 1914.

The lower course of the Colorado river is the only navigable waterway of the State. In 1921 there were 2,461 miles of steam railroad, the principal lines being the Southern Pacific, the Santa Fé Pacific, and the Santa Fé Prescott and Phoenix. There are (1921) 54 miles of electric railway.

On June 30, 1921, there was 1 savings bank in the State with 2,312 depositors, who had to their credit 1,256,000 dollars, being 543.25 dollars to each depositor.

ARKANSAS.

Government.—The State was admitted into the Union on June 15, 1836. The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 35 members, elected for four years, partially renewed every two years, and a House of Representatives of 100 members elected for two years. The Sessions are biennial and limited to 60 days unless extended by a two-thirds vote of each House. Senators and Representatives must be citizens, the former 25 years of age and the latter 21, and both must have resided in the State two years, and in the county or district one year next before election. The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and seven Representatives.

Governor.—Thomas C. McRae (1923-25) (4,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—T. J. Terral.

The State is divided into 75 counties. The State Capital is Little Rock.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area 53,335 square miles (810 square miles being water). Census population on Jan. 1, 1920, 1,752,204.

Population in the four census years was as follows:—

Years	Population
	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1860	324,191	111,259	435,450	8.3
1900	944,708	366,856	1,311,564	25.0
1910	1,131,558	442,891	1,574,449	30.0
1920	1,279,984	472,220	1,752,204	33.4

In 1920 the population by birth and sex was :—

	White		Negro	Asiatic	Indian
	Native.	Foreign.
Male	649,578	8,591	236,895	103	61
Female	616,204	5,384	235,325	18	45
Total	1,265,782	13,975	472,220	121	106

There were 895,228 males and 856,976 females in 1920.

Of the foreign-born white population which, in 1920, represented 0·8 per cent. of the total population, 3,979 (28·5 per cent.) were German, 1,137 (8·1 per cent.) English, 676 Irish, 1,314 (9·4 per cent.) Italian, and 880 Canadians.

Little Rock (capital) had a population of 65,142 in 1920; Fort Smith, 28,870; Pine Bluff, 19,280; Hot Springs, 11,695. Of the total population in 1920, 16·6 per cent. were urban and 27·0 per cent. Negro.

The most numerous religious bodies in the State are Baptist, Methodist, Roman Catholic, Disciples of Christ, and Presbyterian, in the order named.

The State has a full public school system under which separate schools are provided for white and black children. No child under 14 can be employed in a manufacturing establishment unless he attends school 12 weeks each year and can read and write English.

In 1920 the public schools had 12,558 teachers and 569,940 enrolled pupils; 1 public normal school had 21 teachers and 434 students. The University of Arkansas, founded in 1872 at Fayetteville, had, in 1918, 136 professors and 641 students. There were in 1921-22 a large Baptist college (Ouachita College at Arkadelphia founded in 1886) with 21 professors and 263 students, a Presbyterian college (Arkansas College, founded in 1872 at Batesville) with 14 professors and 150 students, and a Methodist Episcopal college (Hendrix College, founded in 1884 at Conway) with 18 professors and 330 students. Philander Smith College, established in 1877, at Little Rock (for coloured students) had 14 professors and 108 men and 136 women students.

Finance and Defence.—The total receipts and expenditure for the year 1922 were :—

	Dollars.
Balance in hand, July 1, 1921	638,449
Receipts, 1921-22	6,937,593
Total	7,576,042
Disbursements, 1921-22	6,645,851
Balance, June 30, 1922	930,191

The State debt on June 30, 1922, amounted to 2,488,166 dollars, consisting of 3 per cent. interest-bearing bonds. The assessed value of real and personal property (1921) was 589,751,692 dollars. According to the Council of the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders, the State has a defaulted debt estimated at about 8,700,000 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 86 officers and 1,520 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Arkansas is an agricultural State. In 1920 the total farm area was 17,456,750 acres, of which 9,210,556 acres were improved land (number of farms, 232,604). The value of all farm property in 1920 was 924,395,483 dollars. In the north maize (45,825,000 bushels in 1922), wheat (1,118,000 bushels), oats, potatoes, hay and forage crops are grown; in the south, cotton and tobacco. For 1922 the cotton area was 2,844,000 acres, and the yield 1,040,000 bales, valued at 122,720,000 dollars. In the north-west, fruits, especially apples and peaches, are grown. The cultivation of roses (for perfumes) is pursued locally. Live stock on January 1, 1921, comprised 258,000 horses, 327,000 mules, 429,000 milch cows, 643,000 other cattle, 191,000 sheep, and 1,459,000 swine. The wool clip in 1921 yielded 355,000 pounds of wool. The national forests in Arkansas on June 30, 1921 had an area of 926,985 acres.

The State has a large coal area; 2,103,596 short tons were mined in 1920, while the estimated output for 1921 was 1,400,000 short tons. The State also produces manganese ores and lead, whetstones (from nevaculite), bauxite (for aluminium); the phosphate rock deposits are little worked. The quarries yield limestone, sandstone, granite, and slate, besides asphalt, mineral waters, and natural gas.

Of the industries the cutting and working of timber is the most important (1,697 establishments), the State having a forest area of 25,600,000 acres. Arkansas, according to the census of manufactures of 1919, has 3,123 manufacturing establishments employing 4,566 salaried officials, and 49,954 wage-earners. Their united capital amounted to 138,818,000 dollars, the cost of materials used in a year to 102,813,000 dollars; the value of output in a year 200,813,000 dollars; and wages paid 47,186,000 dollars. The output showed an increase of 138.6 per cent. over 1914.

The foreign trade of the State is carried on through the port of New Orleans, cotton and lumber transported down the Mississippi being the chief exports. In 1921 there were in the State 5,052 miles of steam railway and 129 miles of electric railway.

CALIFORNIA.

Constitution and Government.—California, though unexplored and practically unknown to Europeans, was from its discovery down to 1846 politically associated with Mexico. On July 5, 1846, the American flag was hoisted at Monterey, and a proclamation was issued declaring California to be a portion of the United States, and on February 2, 1849, by the treaty of Guadalupe, the territory was formally ceded by Mexico to the United States, and was admitted to the Union September 9, 1850.

The State Legislature is composed of the Senate of forty members, elected for terms of four years—half the number being elected each two years—and the Assembly, eighty members, elected for two years. Regular sessions are held once in two years.

The qualifications for eligibility to the Senate or Assembly are citizenship of the State for three years and residence in the district for one year.

California is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 11 Representatives.

Governor.—Friend W. Richardson, 1923-27 (10,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—F. C. Jordan.

California is divided into fifty-eight counties, one of which—San Francisco—has a combined county and city government. The legislative authority is vested in a board of 18 supervisors elected from the city and county at large. Each of the other counties is governed by a board of 5 supervisors elected from districts. The seat of the State Government is at Sacramento.

Area and Population.—Area 158,297 square miles (2,645 square miles being water). Population on Jan. 1, 1920, 3,426,861.

The population at the date of each of the Federal censuses was as follows :

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1870	555,975	4,272	560,247	3·6
1900	1,474,008	11,045	1,485,053	9·5
1910	2,355,904	21,645	2,377,549	15·3
1920	3,388,098	38,763	3,426,861	22·0

In 1920 the population by sex and race was :—

	White	Negro	Chinese ¹	Japanese	Indian
Male	1,710,223	19,837	29,032	45,414	9,085
Female	1,554,488	18,926	5,043	26,538	8,275

Of the total population in 1920, 1,813,591 were males, and 1,613,270 were females (68·0 per cent. were urban, and 1·1 per cent. Negro).

There are about 25 Indian reservations in the State, their total area (1921) being 677 square miles, with a population of 12,725.

Three-fourths of the population of California are of American birth. Of the 681,662 persons of white foreign birth in 1920, representing 19·9 per cent. of the total population of the State, 67,180 (9·9 per cent.) were German, 45,308 (6·6 per cent.) Irish, 58,572 (8·6 per cent.) English, 16,597 Scotch, 59,562 Canadian, 20,387 French, 88,502 (13·0 per cent.) Italian, 31,925 Swedish, 86,610 (12·7 per cent.) Mexicans, and 10,313 Greeks, with a sprinkling of Portuguese, Spanish, Norwegians, Danes, Swiss, Russians, and Armenians.

According to the census of 1920 the population of the larger cities was: San Francisco, 506,676; Los Angeles, 576,673; Oakland, 216,261; San Diego, 74,683; Sacramento, 65,903; Berkeley, 56,036; Fresno, 45,086; Pasadena, 45,354. In 1921 the death-rate was 13·2 per 1,000; the birth-rate, 20·2; and the marriage-rate, 13·1.

Religion and Instruction.—In the matter of religious association all churches are represented in California, the Roman Catholic being much stronger than any other single church; next are Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists, Congregationalists, Disciples of Christ and Episcopalians.

Education is compulsory for children 8–16 years of age for eight months in the year. In 1921–22, the 6,376 elementary school districts had an enrolment of 570,763 pupils (296,265 boys and 274,498 girls), with 17,707 teachers; the 342 public high schools had an enrolment of 227,190 pupils (113,295 boys and 113,895 girls), and 7,284 teachers; the 7 normal schools had 3,847 students (605 men and 3,242 women) and 239 teachers; there were 597 public kindergartens, with an enrolment of 40,131 pupils (19,885 boys and 20,246 girls) and 838 teachers. The total expenditure in the year 1921-22 for the above branches of education was 93,063,004 dollars.

There are in California two great universities—the State University, or University of California, at Berkeley (established in 1868) and Leland Stanford Junior University. The former comprises the colleges of letters and science, commerce, mechanics, mining, civil engineering, chemistry and agriculture, as well as the Lick Astronomical Department. In 1921 the University had at Berkeley 486 professors and teachers with 9,609 students. Leland Stanford Junior University near Palo Alto was chartered in 1885, and opened its doors to students in 1891. An endowment, now amounting to about 24,000,000 dollars in interest-bearing funds, besides large landed estates, was given by Mr. and Mrs Leland Stanford in memory of their son. In 1922 it had 362 professors and teachers and 3,459 students. The University of Southern California at Los Angeles (Meth. Episcopal) had 113 instructors and 2,187 students (1921). There are several other prosperous colleges in the State.

California is the only State in the American Union having a comprehensive library system, at the head of which stands the State Library at Sacramento with about 300,000 volumes (including the Sutro Branch at San Francisco).

Finance and Defence.—For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, the receipts and disbursements of all State funds was as follows:—

	Dollars
Cash on hand, July 1, 1921 . . .	12,415,240
Receipts, 1921-22 . . .	95,767,273
Total . . .	108,182,513
Disbursements, 1921-22 . . .	84,066,708
Cash in hand, June 30, 1922 . . .	24,115,805

The assessed value of taxable property on June 30, 1922, was 5,135,984,563 dollars. The net bonded debt amounted to 75,964,500 dollars on June 30, 1922.

The Mare Island Navy Yard, the most important of the Federal naval establishments on the Pacific coast, is situated in California about 25 miles north of San Francisco, and there are United States Army posts at San Francisco, Benicia, Monterey, and San Diego. The National Guard, on June 30, 1921, consisted of 96 officers and 2,045 enlisted men.

Agriculture and Forestry.—At the date of the Federal census (1920) there were 117,670 farms, comprising 29,365,667 acres, of which 11,878,339 acres were improved. The value of farms in 1920 was 3,431,021,861 dollars, and the value of the annual product 587,600,591 dollars. Total national forest area (June 30, 1921) is 19,172,982 acres. California is the only State in which the best European varieties of grapes are successfully cultivated. Extending seven hundred miles from north to south, and being intersected by several ranges of mountains, California has almost every variety of climate, from the very wet to the very dry, and from the temperate to the semi-tropical.

Irrigation is extensively practised, being necessary in the more arid districts and beneficial in a larger area.

The wheat industry has declined in relative importance, while horticulture has made rapid strides. The cereal crops in 1922 were maize, 4,176,000 bushels; wheat, 15,303,000 bushels; oats, 5,250,000 bushels; barley, 36,864,000 bushels. Apples, pears, peaches, figs, apricots, plums, grapes, oranges, lemons, and other fruits are grown in vast quantities. Olives, honey, hops, walnuts, and almonds are also largely produced.

On January 1, 1922, the farm animals were 367,000 horses, 61,000 mules, 632,000 milch cows, 1,380,000 other cattle, 2,450,000 sheep, and 834,000 swine. The wool clip (1922) produced 13,455,000 pounds of wool. There are 9 ostrich farms in the State.

Mining, Manufactures, etc.—Gold was first discovered in 1848. In 1921 the gold output (728,590 ounces) was valued at 15,061,300 dollars, and the silver output (3,606,708 ounces) valued at 3,606,708 dollars. Other mineral products were (1921) copper, 15,906,883 pounds, and (1920) 4,903,738 pounds of lead (392,300 dollars); quicksilver, 10,287 flasks (of 75 pounds net), valued at 775,527 dollars. California is one of three most important petroleum-producing States of the Union (Oklahoma and Texas being the other two); in 1921 the output reached 114,709,000 barrels, valued at 162,000,000 dollars. Granite and stone, &c. (1920), were valued at 7,299,289 dollars; Portland cement (6,709,160 barrels), valued at 14,962,945 dollars (output in 1921, 7,073,000 barrels). From California comes all of the borax produced in the United States. The output in 1920 was 127,065 short tons, valued at 2,794,205 dollars. The State also produced pyrite, 146,001 short tons (530,581 dollars); salt, 230,538 tons (972,648 dollars); mineral waters, 2,391,791 gallons (421,643 dollars); magnesite, 83,695 short tons, value 1,033,491 dollars. Bismuth, asbestos, manganese, lithium, tungsten, chromium, infusorial earth, ochre, and a great variety of precious stones are found in the State. In 1920 there were 50 different mineral substances, exclusive of a segregation of the various stones grouped under Gems. The value of all the minerals produced in 1919 was 196,473,560 dollars; in 1920, 242,099,667 dollars; in 1921, 244,856,910 dollars.

In California in 1919 there were 11,742 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 1,242,980,000 dollars, employing 40,714 salaried officials and 243,692 wage-earners (earning 305,207,000 dollars), using materials costing 1,218,859,000 dollars, and giving an output worth 1,981,205,000 dollars.

The coast and river fisheries are important, giving employment to 5,000 persons. A year's catch is thirty to forty million pounds, worth about 4,000,000 dollars. Salmon is the most valuable variety of fish taken, but as many as one hundred and thirty different varieties of fish are found in the markets of San Francisco.

Commerce and Transportation.—The chief commercial port of California is San Francisco, through which in the year ending June 30, 1922, the imports amounted to the value of 127,657,445 dollars, and the exports to 130,286,495 dollars.

Railways have been built in California to the extent of 8,356 miles (1921) for steam roads and about 3,252 miles (1921) for electric railways. San Francisco is now the terminus of three trans-continental railways.

In September, 1921, there were 103 savings banks in the State, and 236 savings departments of departmental banks with 1,590,346 depositors who had to their credit 898,871,966 dollars, being an average of 565 dollars to each depositor.

British Consul-General at San Francisco.—H. B. Livingston.

There are British Vice-Consuls at San Francisco, Los Angeles, and San Diego.

Government.—The State was admitted into the Union on Aug. 1, 1876. The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 35 members elected for four years, one-half retiring every two years, and of a House of Representatives of 65 members elected for two years. Sessions are biennial. Eligible to either House are all citizens of the United States male and female 25 years of age and 12 months resident in the district for which they seek election. Qualified as electors are all persons male and female (except criminals and insane) 21 years of age who are citizens of the United States, and have resided in the State for 12 months immediately preceding the election.

Governor.—William E. Sweet, 1923-1925 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Carl S. Milliken, 1923-1925.

The State sends to the Federal Congress two Senators and 4 Representatives.

The State is divided into 63 counties. The State Capital is Denver.

Area and Population.—Area 103,948 square miles (290 square miles being water). Indian reservations in 1921 covered an area of 618 sq. miles, with a population of 785. Census population on Jan. 1, 1920, 939,629.

Population in four census years was as follows:—

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1860	34,231	46	34,277	0.3
1900	531,130	8,570	539,700	5.2
1910	787,571	11,453	799,024	7.7
1920	928,311	11,318	939,629	9.1

¹ Including Asiatics and Indians. In 1920, 291 Chinese and 1,383 Indians.

In 1920 the population by sex and race was :—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	444,215	5,834	1,918	734	492,731
Female	439,858	5,484	907	649	446,898
Total	924,103	11,318	2,825	1,383	939,629

In 1922 the foreign-born white population numbered 116,954 (12·4 per cent. of the total State population) of whom 9,584 were English, 3,357 Scottish, 6,191 Irish, 11,992 (10·3 per cent.) German, 16,669 (14·3 per cent.) Russian, 12,579 (10·8 per cent.) Italian, 10,112 Swedish, 7,621 Canadian, 10,894 Mexican. Denver, the capital, had a population in 1920 of 256,491, Pueblo, 43,050; Colorado Springs, 30,105; Trinidad, 10,906; Boulder, 11,006. Of the total population in 1920, 48·2 per cent. were urban and 1·2 per cent. Negro.

Religion and Instruction.—Roman Catholics outnumber other denominations, Methodists and Presbyterians ranking next, then Baptists and Congregationalists.

In 1922 the 2,938 public elementary and the 262 high schools had 8,977 teachers with 272,693 enrolled pupils. Public school teachers are trained at the State Teachers' College, which in 1922-23 had 100 teachers and 6,211 students. Another State normal school has been established at Gunnison, having (in 1919) 38 teachers and 991 students. Public School expenditure, ending June 30, 1922, 19,579,543 dollars. For superior education there are several colleges. Colorado College, founded in 1874 at Colorado Springs, had 65 professors and 700 students in 1921-22; the University of Colorado, opened in 1877 at Boulder, had 200 professors and 2,715 students. The University of Denver, founded by Territorial Charter in 1864, had 168 professors and teachers and 3,500 students in 1922-23; the Chamberlin Observatory in University Park stands at an altitude of 5,280 feet above sea-level. There are also an Agricultural College, at Fort Collins, with 107 teachers and 1,774 students in the main College, and 958 in Secondary Institutions; and a School of Mines with 30 teachers and 478 students in 1922.

On July 1, 1922, the number of prisoners in penal institutions was 1,611, being 171·4 per 100,000 of the population.

Finance and Defence.—The revenue and expenditure for the 2 years ending November 30, 1922, was as follows :—

	Dollars
On hand December 1, 1920	2,121,493
Receipts in 1920-22	33,981,516
Total Receipts	36,103,009
Disbursements in 1920-22.	33,981,516
Balance Dec. 1, 1922	2,121,493

The State debt on July 1, 1922 was 9,494,000 dollars. The assessment valuation for 1921 amounted to 1,584,006,487 dollars.

On June 30, 1921, the National Guard consisted of 51 officers and 774 men.

Production and Industry.—The number of farms in 1920 was 59,934, with a total area of 24,462,000 acres, of which 7,744,757 acres were improved land. The value of all farm property in 1920 was 1,076,794,749 dollars. By irrigation large portions of the State have been brought under cultivation. The Federal Government is now carrying out two reclamation projects affecting 193,000 acres. The chief crops are wheat (21,776,000 bushels in 1922), oats (4,625,000), maize (18,320,000 bushels), barley, potatoes, and great quantities of hay. Fruit and vegetables are widely cultivated. Within the State stock-raising is older than husbandry; on January 1, 1922, the number of farm animals was: 421,000 horses, 32,000 mules, 243,000 milch cows; 1,375,000 other cattle, 1,954,000 sheep, 455,000 swine. The wool clip in 1921 yielded 6,839,000 pounds of wool. The national forests in the State have an area (June 30, 1921) of 13,290,354 acres.

Colorado has great mining and smelting industries, coal (12,278,225 short tons in 1920; 9,130,000 short tons estimated output for 1921), and the ores of the precious metals being extensively worked. In 1921 the value of the gold output (355,459 ounces) was 7,347,800 dollars; the silver output was 6,310,694 fine ounces valued at 6,310,694 dollars; the copper output was 6,592,598 pounds. Portland cement, mica, tungsten, bismuth, graphite, rose quartz, and fluorspar are also produced.

The manufacturing industries of Colorado, according to the census of 1919, employ a capital of 243,827,000 dollars; 2,631 establishments with 35,254 wage-earners who earned 42,975,000 dollars. They gave an output valued at 275,622,000 dollars (an increase of 101.4 per cent. over 1914), the value of raw material used being 174,870,000 dollars.

There are large works for the smelting and refining of metals (iron, lead, copper, zinc); the chief base metals refined are lead and zinc, but three-fourths of the value of the smelting products is for gold and silver.

Denver is the centre of distribution for the live stock traffic of the Rocky Mountain States.

In 1922, there were in the State 5,163 miles of main-track steam railway, and 469 miles of electric railways.

On December 29, 1922, there were 232 State banks with savings deposits amounting to 35,459,976 dollars.

CONNECTICUT.

Government.—Connecticut has been an organised commonwealth since 1637. In 1639 a written constitution was adopted which, it is claimed, was the first in the history of the world formed by a social compact. This was confirmed by a charter from Charles II. in 1662, and replaced in 1818 by a State Constitution, framed that year by a constitutional convention. Connecticut was one of the thirteen original States of the Union.

The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. All citizens (with necessary exceptions) 21 years of age, resident in the State for a year and in the town for six months preceding the election, have the right of suffrage provided that they can read the Constitution in English. The Senate at present consists of 35 members, the House of Representatives of 258 members. Members of each House are elected for the term of two years, and each receives 300 dollars for that term and one mileage each way for each session, at the rate of 25 cents per mile. Legislative sessions are biennial.

Governor.—Charles A. Templeton, 1923–25 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary.—Donald J. Warner.

The State is represented in the Federal Congress by two Senators and five Representatives. For local administration the State is divided into eight counties which are sub-divided into towns within which are cities and boroughs. The State Capital is Hartford.

Area, Population, and Instruction.—Area 4,965 square miles, (145 square miles being water). Census population on January 1, 1920, 1,380,631, and in the last four census years as follows —

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1840	301,856	8,122	309,978	64·3
1900	893,194	15,226	908,420	188·5
1910	1,099,582	15,174	1,114,756	231·3
1920	1,359,585	21,046	1,380,631	286·4

The population by sex and colour in 1920 was :—

	White	Negro	All Others	Total
Male	683,837	10,778	720	695,335
Female	674,895	10,268	133	685,256
Total	1,358,732	21,046	853	1,380,631

In 1920 the foreign-born white population representing 27·3 per cent. of the total State population, numbered 376,513 of whom 22,708 were English ; 7,487 Scottish ; 45,464 (12·1 per cent.) Irish ; 22,614 (6·0 per cent.) German ; 38,719 (10·3 per cent.) from Russia ; 46,623 Polish ; 17,697 Swedish ; 80,322 (21·3 per cent.) Italian. Of the total population (in 1920) 67·8 per cent. were urban and 1·5 per cent. Negro.

The chief towns are New Haven (with census population on Jan. 1, 1920)

162,537; Bridgeport, 143,555; Hartford (capital), 138,036; Waterbury, 91,715; New Britain, 59,316; Stamford, 35,096; Meriden, 29,867; New London, 25,688; Norwalk, 27,743; Norwich, 22,304; Torrington, 20,623; Bristol, 20,620; Danbury, 18,943; Ansonia, 17,643; and Middletown, 13,638.

Of the religious bodies the most important in order of strength are the Roman Catholic, Congregationalist, Protestant Episcopal, Methodist, and Baptist.

Elementary instruction is free for all children between the ages of 4 and 16 years, and compulsory for all children between the ages of 7 and 16 years. In 1920-21 the 1,314 public elementary schools had 6,436 teachers with 238,738 enrolled pupils. There were also 77 public high schools with 1,224 teachers and 29,087 pupils. The four normal schools had (1921-22) 39 teachers and 792 pupils, the 12 model schools 105 teachers and 4,176 pupils. Total current expenditure on education 16,723,885 dollars. Instruction in agriculture and the mechanic arts is provided at the Connecticut Agricultural College founded at Storrs in 1881 with 59 professors and 440 students in 1921-22; its work is supplemented by the Storrs Agricultural Experiment Station, and the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station located at New Haven. Yale University, New Haven, founded in 1701, had, in 1921-22, in all departments, 753 professors and teachers and 3,930 students. Wesleyan University, Middletown, founded in 1831, had, in 1921-22, 62 professors and teachers, and 540 students. Trinity College, Hartford, founded in 1824, had (1921-22) 32 professors and teachers, and 263 students. Connecticut College for Women had (1921-22) 46 teachers and 389 students.

Including private and ecclesiastical institutions, there were in the State on June 30, 1922, 119 benevolent establishments (exclusive of almshouses). On June 30, 1922, the number of paupers in 62 almshouses was 2,264, being 163.9 per 100,000 of the population, and of prisoners in penal institutions 7,691. The cost of State paupers for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, was 165,975 dollars.

Finance and Defence.—The total receipts and expenditure for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, were :—

DELAWARE.

Government.—Delaware is one of the thirteen original States of the Union. The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 17 members elected for four years and a House of Representatives of 35 members elected for two years. Senators must be 27 years of age, and Representatives 24; both must be citizens who have resided three years in the State, and one year immediately preceding the election, in the electoral district.

With necessary exceptions all citizens, registered as voters, who have resided in the State one year, in the county three months, and in the district 30 days next preceding the election have the right to vote. But no person who shall attain the age of 21 after the year 1900 has the right to vote unless he is able to read English and to write his name: United States soldiers and sailors merely stationed in the State are not considered resident.

Delaware is represented in Congress by two Senators and one Representative.

Governor.—William D. Denney, 1921–25. (4,000 dollars.)

Secretary of State.—Alden R. Benson

The State capital is Dover (population 4,042 in 1920). Delaware is divided into three counties.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area 2,370 square miles (405 square miles being water). Census population on Jan. 1, 1920, 223,003, and in the last four census years as follows:—

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per sq. mile
1800	49,852	14,421	64,273	32.7
1900	154,038	30,697	184,735	94.0
1910	171,141	31,181	202,322	103.0
1920	192,662	30,341	223,003	113.5

In 1920 the population by sex and colour was:—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . .	98,049	15,655	49	2	113,755
Female . .	94,566	14,680	2	—	109,248
Total . .	192,615	30,335	51	2	223,003

The foreign-born whites, 1920 (8.9 per cent. of the total State population), numbered 19,810, of whom 2,895 (14.6 per cent.) were Irish, 1,632 (8.2 per cent.) German, 1,497 (7.6 per cent.) English, 4,136 (20.9 per cent.) Italian, 3,847 (19.4 per cent.) Polish and 2,244 (11.3 per cent.) Russian.

The largest city in the State is Wilmington, with a census population of 110,168 in 1920. Other towns (1920), Dover, 4,042; Milford, 2,703. Of the total population in 1920, 54.2 per cent. were urban and 13.6 per cent. Negro.

The most numerous denominations of the State are: Methodist, Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, Episcopalian, and Baptist.

The State has free public schools and compulsory school attendance, separate schools being provided for white and coloured children. In 1919–20, the 446 public schools had 961 teachers and 37,135 enrolled pupils. The 26 high schools had 173 teachers and 3,045 pupils. Total expenditure for school purposes, 1,738,884 dollars. The State has two normal schools, agricultural and mechanical colleges and at Newark, Delaware College, founded in 1834, having, in 1919, 52 professors and 296 students. A college for coloured students at Dover has 6 professors and 136 students.

Finance and Defence.—For the year ending January 13, 1922, the receipts and disbursements of the State General Fund were:—

	Dollars
Cash in hand, January 12, 1921	99,856
Receipts 1921-22	5,640,823
Total	5,740,679
Expenditure, 1921-22	5,454,877
Cash in hand January 13, 1922	285,802

On January 10, 1922, the outstanding debt amounted to 4,880,785 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921 consisted of 27 officers and 464 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Delaware is mainly an agricultural State, 85 per cent. of the land being in farms, which in 1920 numbered 10,140, and had a total area of 944,511 acres, 653,052 acres being improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 80,137,614 dollars. The chief crops are maize and wheat, but fruit and tomato-growing are important, about 16,000 acres are devoted to tomatoes. Delaware stands second in the States of the Union in the quantity of tomatoes packed. On January 1, 1921, the State had 33,000 horses, 6,000 mules, 8,000 sheep, 68,000 pigs, 45,000 milch cows, and 22,000 other cattle. The wool clip in 1921 yielded 16,000 pounds.

The State has oyster and other fisheries which are receiving increasing attention.

The mineral resources of Delaware are not extensive, consisting chiefly of clay products, stone, sand and gravel.

The capital invested in manufacturing industries in the State in 1919 amounted to 148,208,000 dollars; the salaried employes numbered 3,344 and the wage-earners 29,035 (the latter earning 37,265,000 dollars); the cost of materials used was 85,433,000 dollars, and the output was valued at 165,073,000 dollars (an increase of 194.6 per cent. over 1914).

The leather output comprised 11,005,292 goatskins valued at 10,232,463 dollars. Other industries are fruit-canning, and the manufacture of hosiery and knitted goods.

In 1921 the length of steam railway in the State was 335 miles, besides 158 miles of electric street railway track.

There is an active coastwise trade, particularly with New York, which is connected with Wilmington by a line of steamers. Chesapeake Bay and Delaware Bay are connected by a canal. There is some foreign commerce direct through Wilmington.

In 1921, there were 2 mutual savings banks in the State, with 43,416 depositors who had to their credit 19,238,000 dollars, being 443.11 dollars to each depositor.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Government.—The District of Columbia is the seat of Government of the United States, and consists of an area of approximately sixty-nine and one-quarter square miles, which was ceded by the State of Maryland to the United States as a site for the National Capital. It was established under the authority and direction of Acts of Congress approved July 16, 1790, and March 3, 1791, which were passed to give effect to a clause in the eighth section of the first article of the Constitution of the United States, giving Congress the power:—

‘To exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cession of particular States and the acceptance of Congress, become the seat of the Government of the United States, and to exercise like authority over all places purchased, by the consent of the legislature of the State in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dockyards, and other needful buildings.’

The authority of the United States over it became vested on the first Monday of December, 1800.

The present form of local government, which dates from July 1, 1878, is a municipal corporation, and is administered by a board of three Commissioners having in general equal powers and duties. Two of these Commissioners are appointed from civil life by the President of the United States, and confirmed by the Senate of the United States, for a term of three years each. The other Commissioner is detailed from time to time by the President of the United States from the Engineer Corps of the United States Army, to continue as such during the President's pleasure. This Commissioner is selected from among the captains or officers of higher grade having served at least fifteen years in the Corps of Engineers of the Army of the United States. The Commissioners are in a general way vested with jurisdiction covering all the ordinary features of municipal government, except that the Congress of the United States, only, has authority to enact legislation and appropriate money for the municipal expenses. Congress has, by sundry statutes, empowered the commissioners to make and enforce reasonable and usual police regulations for the protection of lives, health, quiet, &c., of all persons, and the protection of all property within the District, and other regulations of a municipal nature. The Commissioners have also been constituted a ‘Public Utilities Commission.’

Secretary to the Board of Commissioners.—Daniel E. Garges.

Area and Population.—The area of the District of Columbia originally was 100 square miles, but by the retrocession to the State of Virginia, in the year 1846, of the portion derived from that State, was reduced to 69·245 square miles, 60·01 of which are land.

Census population January 1, 1920 was 437,571.

The population at the date of each of the Federal Censuses was as follows:—

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile	Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1870	88,296	43,404	131,700	2,270.7	1900	192,016	86,702	278,718	4,645.3
1880	118,028	59,596	177,624	3,062.5	1910	236,623	94,446	331,069	5,517.8
1890	154,820	75,572	230,392	3,972.3	1920	327,605	109,966	437,571	7,292.9

By sex and race the population of 1920 was thus distributed:—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . . .	152,031	50,855	637	20	203,543
Female . . .	171,829	59,111	71	17	231,028
Total . . .	326,860	109,966	708	37	437,571

In 1920, 25.1 per cent. of the total population was Negro, while of the 28,548 foreign-born white population, representing 6.5 per cent. of the total State population, 2,990 (10.5 per cent.) were English, 4,320 (15.1 per cent.) Irish, 3,382 (11.8 per cent.) German, 5,181 (18.1 per cent.) Russian, 3,764 (13.2 per cent.) Italian, and 1,689 (5.9 per cent.) Canadian.

A portion of the District of Columbia embracing 6,654 acres is known as the City of Washington, 'The Federal Capital'. But that name is, and has been since February 11, 1895, a geographical distinction only, as the territory it includes is not a municipality separate from the rest of the District, but is subject to the same government in every respect.

Religion and Instruction.—The most numerous religious bodies are : Roman Catholic, Baptist, Methodist, Protestant-Episcopal, Presbyterian, Lutheran, and Christian Science.

The public schools of the District in 1921 had 1,581 white teachers and 48,058 white pupils, and 719 Negro teachers and 21,483 Negro or coloured pupils. Total number of pupils, 69,541. There were 9 public high schools with 440 teachers and 10,500 pupils; and 26 private schools with 2,500 pupils. For the instruction of teachers there were 2 public normal schools with 30 teachers and 250 pupils. Total expenditure on public education (1921), 4,797,944 dollars, exclusive of repairs and permanent improvements.

Superior education is given in Georgetown University, an institution under the management of the Jesuit Order, founded in 1795; it has 257 professors and 2,712 students: the George Washington University, non-sectarian, founded in 1821, has 280 instructors, and 4,632 students; the Howard University, principally engaged in the higher education of Negroes, was founded in 1867, and has 168 instructors and 1,954 pupils; the Catholic University, a post-graduate institution, was founded in 1884, and has 90 professors and 1,835 students; the American University has 48 instructors and 315 students.

Finance and Defence.—The revenues of the District are derived from the general real property tax, taxes on corporations and companies, and licences for various businesses and from appropriations by the United States, of approximately three-sevenths of the total revenues.

In 1922 the finance of the District of Columbia was as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, July 1, 1921	8,563,826
Receipts, 1921-22	22,915,798
Total	31,479,624
Disbursements, 1921-22	22,929,020
Balance, July 1, 1922	8,550,604

The net bonded debt at the end of the financial year 1922 amounted to 156,234 dollars. The District of Columbia has no other debt.

In 1921 the assessed valuation of the real property within the municipality amounted to 472,874,209 dollars; and of tangible personal property such as furniture, horses, wagons, ships, etc., 119,826,184 dollars, and intangible personal property such as stocks, bonds, etc., 335,749,819 dollars; total 928,450,212 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 19 officer and 313 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—The District has considerable industries, the products of which are mainly for local consumption. The United States census of manufactures in 1921 showed that the salaried officials, superintendents, managers and clerks numbered 2,941; and the average number of wage-earners employed during the year was 8,536; the raw material used cost 28,865,000 dollars, and the output was valued at 67,629,000 dollars.

Within the District are 388 miles (1921) of electric street railway track, as single track.

On June 30, 1922, there were in the District 50 national banks, trust companies and savings banks. Their aggregate resources and liabilities balanced at 233,512,000 dollars. Their paid-in capital stock stood at 21,614,000 dollars; surplus funds at 12,450,000 dollars; individual deposits at 170,010,000 dollars; United States deposits at 805,000 dollars; national bank notes outstanding, 5,694,000 dollars; and loans and discounts at 122,271,000 dollars.

FLORIDA.

Government.—On March 27, 1513, Florida was discovered by Juan Ponce de Leon, a Spanish soldier and adventurer, who landing on Easter Sunday (Pascua Florida or Feast of Flowers) called the place Florida. It was claimed by Spain until 1763, then ceded to England; back to Spain in 1784, and to the United States in 1819. Florida was admitted into the Union on March 3, 1845. The present constitution dates from 1887. The State Legislature consists of a Senate of 32 members, and House of Representatives with 84 members. Sessions are held biennially, and are limited to 60 days. Senators are elected for four years, Representatives for two, the Senate being renewed by one-half every two years.

Governor.—Cary A. Hardee, 1921–25 (6,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—H. C. Crawford.

The State Capital is Tallahassee (population 5,637 in 1920). The State is divided into 61 counties.

Area and Population.—Area 58,666 square miles, including 3,805 square miles of water. The Indian reservations had an area in 1921 of 36 square miles, and a population of 452.

Census population on January 1, 1920, 968,470. Population in census years as follows :—

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1880	142,803	126,690	269,493	4.9
1910	443,950	308,669	752,619	13.7
1915	559,787	360,394	920,181	15.7
1920	638,983	329,487	968,470	17.7

In 1920 the population by sex and birth was as follows :—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indians	Total
Male . . .	327,644	167,156	249	271	495,320
Female . . .	310,509	162,331	63	247	473,150
Total . . .	638,153	329,487	312	518	968,470

Of the total, the foreign-born white, 1920 (4.4 per cent. of the total State population), numbered 43,008, of whom 8,700 (20.3 per cent.) were from the West Indies, 4,451 (10.3 per cent.) from England, 1,304 from Ireland, 1,068 from Scotland, 3,534 from Germany, 4,745 from Italy, 4,121 from Canada, and 4,091 from Spain. The largest cities in the State are : Jacksonville with a census population of 91,558 in 1920; Tampa, 51,608; Pensacola, 31,035; Miami, 29,571; Key West, 18,749. Of the total population in 1920, 36.7 per cent. were urban, and 34 per cent. Negro.

• Religion and Instruction.—Of the church members of the State 41.6 per cent. are Baptist, and 37.2 per cent. Methodist. Others are chiefly Roman Catholics, Protestant Episcopalians, and Presbyterians.

Attendance at school is compulsory. There are no provisions as to religious instruction in public schools. Separate schools are provided for white and coloured children.

In 1920 the 2,584 public elementary schools had 6,296 teachers and 212,465 enrolled pupils. In 125 public high schools there were 525 teachers and 12,695 pupils in 1920. Total expenditure on education (1920), 7,003,188 dollars. The State provides higher education in a University of the State of Florida, at Gainesville (founded 1884) with, (1922) 60 professors and 1,060 students, and a State College for Women (founded at Tallahassee in 1905), with 784 students; Rollins College at Winter Park (founded 1885) has 31 professors and 370 students. There is also the John B. Stetson (Baptist) University at De Land (founded in 1887), with 40 professors and 543 students.

Finance and Defence.—For the year 1921 the receipts and disbursements amounted to the following sums :—

	Dollars
Balance Jan. 1, 1921	2,270,950
Receipts in 1921	8,552,405
Total	10,823,355
Disbursements in 1921	9,127,882
Balance Jan. 1, 1922	1,695,473

On January 1, 1922, the public debt of the State consisted of refunding bonds to the amount of 601,567 dollars at three per cent. interest, all of which were held by State educational funds. The assessed value of real property for 1920 is 253,785,338 dollars; for personal property, 104,664,992 dollars; railroad and telegraph property, 51,138,608 dollars; making a total for 1920 of 409,588,938 dollars.

On June 30, 1921, the National Guard consisted of 61 officers and 1,180 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Florida is largely a peninsula stretching from north to south, between the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico. Agriculture is pursued generally in all parts of the State. In 1920 there were 54,005 farms, with a total acreage of 6,046,691, of which 2,297,271 acres were improved. Total value of all farm property in 1920, 330,301,717 dollars. The chief products are pineapples and oranges, the former fruit being grown almost nowhere else in the United States. Other crops are tobacco, 3,300,000 pounds in 1922; rice, 75,000 bushels in 1922; besides maize, oats and peas. In 1922 the cotton area was 124,000 acres, and the yield 25,000 bales, valued at 2,875,000 dollars. On January 1, 1921, the State had 58,000 horses, 40,000 mules, 89,000 sheep, 1,493,000 pigs, 156,000 milch cows, and 917,000 other cattle. The wool clip in 1921 yielded 150,000 lb. The total forest area on June 30, 1921, was 317,511 acres.

The chief mineral product is phosphate rock; fullers' earth, lime, and mineral waters are also produced.

Florida, with its long coast line, has extensive fisheries. The chief fishery products are shad, red snappers, mullet, turtles, and sponges, of which Florida has almost a monopoly. Pensacola is said to be the most important fresh fish market on the Gulf. From this port tar, resin, and turpentine are exported to the value of over 500,000 sterling annually, and also cotton (1,806,000 lb.), tobacco, and phosphate produced in other States.

The manufacturing industries of Florida in the year 1919 had 2,382 establishments, with a capital invested of 206,294,000 dollars; the average number of wage-earners was 74,415; the amount paid in wages was 67,433,000 dollars. The value of the raw material used was 92,680,000 dollars, and the output was valued at 213,327,000 dollars (an increase of 163 per cent. over 1914).

The tobacco industries are prosperous, and Key West and Tampa compete with Cuba in the manufacture of fine cigars.

The State has facilities for transportation both by land and water. A large trade is carried on through Pensacola, where the domestic exports were principally cottons; other merchandise being forest products, phosphate, tobacco, wheat, flour, &c. The harbour channel is now 30 feet deep at low tide. In 1921 there were 5,212 miles of steam railway, and 197 miles of electric railway. The Atlantic Coast Line is the leading railroad.

In 1920 there were 3 savings banks in the State, with 6,931 depositors who had to their credit 1,486,609 dollars, being 214.40 dollars to each depositor.

GEORGIA

Government.—The colony of Georgia (so named from George II.) was founded in 1733. Georgia entered the Union as one of the thirteen original States.

The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 51 members and a House of Representatives of 193 members. Both Senators and Representatives are elected for two years. Legislative Sessions are annual and limited to 50 days. There is manhood suffrage, but residence and United States citizenship are required. The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and 12 Representatives.

Governor.—C. M. Walker, 1923–1925 (7,500 dollars).

Secretary.—G. L. McLendon.

Georgia is divided into 155 counties. The State Capital is Atlanta.

Area and Population.—Area 59,265 square miles, of which 540 square miles are water. Population on January 1, 1920, 2,895,832 (census).

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1800	102,261	60,425	162,686	2.8

In 1920 the population by sex and birth was :—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . .	854,109	590,443	203	68	1,444,823
Female . .	835,005	615,922	25	7	1,451,009
Total . .	1,689,114	1,206,365	228	125	2,895,832

Of the total population (1920) 16,186, representing 0.6 per cent. of the total State population) were foreign-born white, of whom 1,936 (12 per cent.) were from Germany, 1,112 from Ireland, 1,593 from England, 1,473 (9 per cent.) from Greece, and 3,452 (21.3 per cent.) from Russia. The largest cities in the State are Atlanta (capital) with census population (1920) of 200,616; Savannah, 83,252; Macon, 52,995; Augusta, 52,548; Columbus, 31,125. Of the total population in 1920, 25.1 per cent. were urban, and 41.7 per cent. Negro.

Religion and Instruction.—Baptists and Methodists predominate, Baptists having more than half of the religious membership of the State.

Since 1916 education has been compulsory. At the head of the State school system is a State Superintendent of Schools, elected by the people for two years. In 1921 the 6,644 public elementary schools had 676,444 enrolled pupils and 13,810 teachers, while the 1,603 public high schools had 53,020 pupils and 2,267 teachers. Three public normal schools had 118 teachers and 2,405 pupils in 1921-22. Total expenditure for education (1921), 17,964,678 dollars.

For higher education the more important State institutions are as follows :—

Begun	Institutions	Professors (1921-22)	Students (1921-22)
1801	University of Georgia, Athens	76	1,378
1888	Georgia School of Technology	134	2,525
1872	North Georgia Agricultural College	16	156

Finance and Defence.—The amounts received and disbursed in the year 1920 are stated as follows :—

	Dollars
Balance, January 1, 1920	1,171,285
Receipts in 1920	19,145,325
Total, 1920	20,316,610
Disbursements, 1920	19,036,777
Balance, January 1, 1921	1,279,833

On January 1 1920, the bonded debt of the State amounted to 5,818,202 dollars, including an unfunded debt of 90,202 dollars on which interest at seven per cent. per annum was paid to the University trustees. According to the Council of the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders the State has a defaulted debt estimated at 13,000,000 dollars. The assessed valuation of real and personal property in 1921 amounted to 1,346,882,681 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 100 officers and 1,922 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—In 1920 there were 310,732 farms in the State, having an area of 25,441,061 acres, of which 13,055,209 acres were improved land. Total value of all farm property in 1920 was 1,356,685,196 dollars; 41 per cent. of the farms are operated by Negroes, and 86 per cent. of Negro farms are rented. The Negro farmers raise little but cotton, in the production of which Georgia ranks second among the States, while it is the largest producer of sea-island cotton. For 1922 the cotton yield was 725,000 bales as against 787,000 bales in 1921, the area under cultivation being 3,466,000 acres and the value of the yield 86,638,000 dollars. In the northern part of the State the cultivation of cereals is of importance, corn being grown on five times the area of other cereals. The yield of corn (maize) in the State in 1922 was 52,620,000 bushels. Oats and wheat are also grown, while rice is an important product of coast counties (72,000 bushels in 1922). The growth of sugar cane is increasing. Forests of pines, &c., cover 42,000 sq. miles. On January 1, 1921, the farm animals were 132,000 horses, 347,000 mules, 470,000 milch cows, 763,000 other cattle, 119,000 sheep, 3,102,000 swine. The wool clip in 1921 yielded 160,000 lb.

The fisheries of the State are of some importance, especially the oyster and shad fisheries.

The State has varied mineral resources: gold, silver, coal, iron, and manganese ores, iron pyrites, bauxite, graphite, lime, ochre, infusorial earth, natural cement, talc and soapstone, marble and other quarries, and mineral springs being worked, but none to a great extent. The marble of Georgia has a high reputation all over the States. The clay-working industries (bricks, tiles, pottery) are also important.

In 1919 Georgia had 4,803 manufacturing establishments with a total capital of 448,700,000 dollars, employing 12,795 salaried officials and 123,441 wage-earners, using material costing 440,490,000 dollars, and giving an output worth 693,237,000 dollars. The amount of wages paid was 101,180,000 dollars.

On August 31, 1921, there were 2,640,800 active spindles in the State, consuming 614,079 bales of cotton.

The means of transportation by sea and land are ample. The principal port is Savannah, which has 8 miles of river frontage, and which, by harbour improvements, is to be made accessible to vessels of large tonnage. The river is being deepened, and now has a mean low water depth of 26 feet, and a depth of 32 at high tide on the bar. From this port in 1921-22 the imports amounted to 9,960,958 dollars, and the exports to 74,300,519 dollars, chiefly cotton, cotton seed, and meal and cake of cotton seed, besides turpentine and lumber.

The steam railways in the State have a length (1921) of 7,326 miles, beside 478 miles (1921) of electric railway.

In 1918, Georgia had 23 savings banks with 48,000 depositors who had to their credit 11,874,016 dollars, being 247·38 dollars to each depositor.

British Consul at Savannah.—Arthur M. Brookfield.

There is a British Vice-Consul at Brunswick and Darien.

Total	425,668	920	2,180	3,098	431,866

Of the total population 38,963 (9 per cent. of the total) were foreign-born white, 4,451 being English, 4,143 German,* 4,954 Canadian, 5,112 Swedish,* 2,482 Norwegian, and 1,410 Irish. Of the total population in 1920, 27.6 per cent. were urban and 0.2 per cent. Negro.

Among the leading religious denominations of the State are to be found : Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists, Congregationalists, Disciples of Christ, Mormons, and Catholics.

In 1920-21 the 1,508 public elementary schools had 3,418 teachers, and 101,654 enrolled pupils. The 208 high schools had 14,804 pupils ; number of teachers, 932. The two public normal schools had 530 pupils and 86 teachers in 1921. Total expenditure on education (1920-21) was 8,314,657 dollars. Superior instruction is given in the Presbyterian College of Idaho at Caldwell, the Methodist College at Gooding, and the State University of Idaho, founded at Moscow in 1892, which had 100 professors and 1,420 students in 1922. The State has an industrial training school, and a school for the deaf and blind. There are also 5 sectarian colleges or schools to which, however, pupils are admitted without respect to their religious belief.

Finance and Defence.—For the biennium ending September 30, 1920, the receipts and disbursements were as follows :—

	Dollars
Cash in hand, October 1, 1918	705,187
Receipts, 1918-20	18,461,455
Total	19,166,642
Disbursements, 1918-20	16,967,502
Balance, September 30, 1920	2,199,140

On Sept. 30, 1920, the State bonded debt amounted to 3,880,750 dollars, and the assessed value of real and personal property for 1921 to 499,473,727 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 32 officers and 337 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—A great part of the State is naturally arid, but extensive irrigation works have been carried out irrigating 2,488,806 acres (1920), and there are now being constructed works to cost 18,811,000 dollars for the irrigation of a further 480,000 acres in the State. In 1920 the number of farms was 42,106, with a total area of 8,375,873 acres, of which 4,511,680 acres were improved land. Total value of all farm property in 1920, 716,137,910 dollars. The most important crop is wheat, to which, in 1922, 1,123,000 acres were devoted, the yield amounting to 24,275,000 bushels. Other crops in 1922 were oats, 6,156,000 bushels ; barley, 2,890,000 bushels ; besides potatoes and hay. Fruit and vegetables are also grown. There is an active live-stock industry, the number of horses on January 1, 1921, being 284,000 ; mules, 8,000 ; sheep, 2,623,000 ; milch cows, 146,000 ; other cattle, 505,000. The wool clip (1921) was 16,800,000 pounds. The State contains (June 30, 1921) 18,712,241 acres of national forest.

The State has rich deposits of gold (26,229 ozs. in 1921), silver (7,200,319 ozs. in 1921), and other metals. About 7,000 miners are employed. Coal is mined, but not to a great extent. Iron, nickel, cobalt, mica, phosphate rock, antimony, tungsten, granite, sandstone, limestone and lime, pumice, and salt are worked more or less.

Besides the agricultural and mining industries the State has manufactures of considerable importance. In 1919 there were together 922 industrial establishments, employing a total of 16,248 persons, including 13,917 wage-earners, with a total capital of 96,061,709 dollars, cost of material being 43,948,505 dollars and value of output 80,510,749 dollars. The chief of these industries are the working of lumber and timber, (capital, 17,872,000 dollars ; wage-earners, 8,291 ; cost of material, 3,345,000 dollars and value of product, 30,088,000 dollars), and flour and grist milling (capital, 2,038,000 dollars ; wage-earners, 304 ; cost of material, 2,025,000 dollars, and value of product, 13,501,000 dollars). Within the State there are 260 lumber mills ; one at Potlatch is said to be one of the largest in the world and can cut 750,000 feet daily. Idaho has also 78 flour mills.

The State has (1921) 2,877 miles of steam railway, besides 102 miles (1921) of electric railway track. The principal railways crossing the State are the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific, Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul, and the Oregon Short Line. In 1915 (May 5), the Celilo Canal, on the Oregon side of the Columbia River, was opened and Idaho now has a seaport, Lewiston. Vessels can pass from the Pacific to Lewiston, a distance of 480 miles.

ILLINOIS.

Government.—Illinois was first discovered by Joliet and Marquette, two French explorers, in 1673. In 1763 the country was ceded by the French to the British. In 1783, Great Britain recognised the title of the United States to Illinois, which was admitted into the Union on December 3, 1818. The Legislature consists of a Senate of 51 members elected for four years (about half of whom retire every two years), and a House of Representatives of 153 members elected for two years. Sessions are biennial. Qualified electors are all citizens 21 years of age, resident in the State one year, in the county 90 days, and in the district 30 days next before the election.

The State is divided into Senatorial districts, in each of which one Senator and three Representatives are chosen. For the election of Representatives each elector has three votes, of which he may cast one for each of three candidates, or one and a half for each of two, or all three for one candidate.

Governor.—Len Small, 1921–25 (12,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Louis L. Emmerson.

Area and Population.—Area 56,665 square miles, of which 622 square miles are water. Census population on Jan. 1, 1920, 6,485,280.

Finance and Defence.—For the year ending June 30, 1922, the total receipts and disbursements were:—

	Dollars
Cash Balance, July 1, 1921	4,256,487
Receipts, 1921-22	28,155,342
Total	32,411,829
Disbursements, 1921-22	26,884,402
Balance, July 1, 1922	5,527,427

The assessed valuation of real and personal property was 3,554,812,791 dollars in 1922.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 123 officers and 1,902 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Kansas is pre-eminently agricultural, but suffers from lack of rainfall in the west. In 1920 there were 165,286 farms, with an area of farmland of 45,425,179 acres, of which 30,600,760 acres were improved land. The total value of farm property in 1920 was 3,302,806,187 dollars. The chief crops are maize (98,391,000 bushels in 1922), wheat (122,887,000 bushels), and hay. Oats, barley, rye, potatoes and flax are also grown. The production of Kaffir corn is mostly confined to this State. Various orchard fruits are cultivated. The State has an extensive live-stock industry comprising, on January 1, 1921, 1,108,000 horses, 250,000 mules, 898,000 milch cows, 2,075,000 other cattle, 405,000 sheep, and 1,810,000 swine. The wool-clip in 1921 yielded 1,878,000 pounds.

Kansas has coal-fields with an area of about 15,000 square miles, from which 5,926,408 short tons were mined in 1920 (estimated output 1921, 3,600,000 short tons). In Kansas there are also found oil fields (the yield of crude petroleum in 1921 was 36,232,000 barrels), natural gas, and zinc (16,573 short tons smelted in 1921). The quarries yield sandstone, limestone, gypsum, and there is a large output of Portland cement. The State also produces salt, which is important both for live-stock and dead-meat industries.

In the manufacturing industries in 1919 there were 3,474 establishments with 3,562 proprietors or firm members, 12,938 salaried employees, and 61,049 wage-earners. The raw material used during the year cost 750,088,000 dollars, the output was valued at 913,667,000 dollars, and the wages paid amounted to 73,060,000 dollars. The output showed an increase of 182·7 per cent. over 1914 figures. The slaughtering and milling industries are the most important.

Kansas, traversed by numerous rivers and six important trunk railways has abundant transport facilities. There were 9,388 miles of steam railway line in 1921 and 515 miles of electric railway track (1921) within the State.

In 1919 there was 1 savings bank with 744 depositors, who had to their credit 295,000 dollars, being 396·51 dollars to each depositor.

Of the total population in 1920, 26·2 per cent. were urban, and 9·8 per cent. Negro.

The predominant religious denominations of the State are: Baptist, Roman Catholic, and Methodist, less numerous bodies being Disciples of Christ and Presbyterians.

Kentucky has a law for compulsory attendance at school between the ages of 7 and 14 years for eight consecutive weeks, but in the larger cities, for the full term. In 1919 the elementary schools of the State had 13,349 male and female teachers and 535,332 pupils. 293 public high schools had 1,327 male and female teachers and 23,511 pupils. The State had 2 public normal schools with 129 teachers and 2,310 students in 1918. For superior instruction there are universities and colleges, the more important of which (1921-22) were as follows :—

Begun	Institutions	Staff	Students
1819	Central University of Kentucky, Danville (Presb.)	12	287
1855	Berea College (non-Sect.)	141	2,550

1837	University of Louisville	200	900

Expenditure on education in 1919, 8,628,476 dollars.

On July 1, 1922, the number of prisoners in penal institutions was 3,824, being 158·2 per 100,000 of the population.

Finance.—For the year ending June 30, 1921, the receipts and expenditure were as follows :—

	Dollars
Balance, July 1, 1920	429,008
Receipts, 1920-21	16,222,062
Total	16,651,070
Disbursements, 1920-21	14,360,008
Balance, July 1, 1921	2,291,062

The bonded debt of the State is 6,285,962 dollars, and the assessed value of real and personal property was 2,248,356,058 dollars in 1919.

Production and Industry.—Kentucky is largely an agricultural State. In 1920 there were 270,626 farms with an area of 21,612,772 acres, of which 13,975,746 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 1,511,901,077 dollars. The central portion of the State contains the 'blue grass region' which, having a rich soil, produces cereals, grasses and fruits of fine quality. In 1922 the maize crop amounted to 88,060,000 bushels; and the wheat crop to 7,475,000 bushels, other farm products being hay, potatoes, sweet potatoes, water-melons, and fruits of many sorts. Besides hemp is grown some cotton, and also sorghum. The chief crop, however, is tobacco, under which in 1922 were 525,000 acres, yielding 446,250,000 pounds, valued at 87,019,000 dollars.

Stock raising is important in Kentucky, which has long been famous for its horses. The live-stock on January 1, 1921, consisted of 420,000 horses, 250,000 mules, 466,000 milch cows, 562,000 other cattle, 1,137,000 sheep, and 1,429,000 swine. In 1921 the wool clip yielded 2,600,000 pounds of wool.

The principal mineral product of Kentucky is coal, 35,690,726 short tons being mined in 1920 (output for 1921 estimated at 30,000,000 short tons). Output of petroleum for 1921, 8,950,600 barrels. The quarries also yield sandstone and limestone, and the clay working establishments turned out bricks, tiles, pottery, &c. Other mineral products are iron, lead, stone, barytes, lime, natural cement, asphalt, natural gas, and mineral waters.

In 1919 the census of manufactures showed there were 3,957 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 276,535,000 dollars; 69,340 wage-earners who earned 67,034,000 dollars, and turned out manufactures worth 395,660,000 dollars, the value of the raw material used being 235,716,000 dollars. The output showed an increase of 71·8 per cent. over 1914 figures.

The Ohio and Mississippi rivers provide natural facilities for transport. In 1921 the State had 3,929 miles of steam railway besides 455 miles (1921) of electric railway track. The principal railway lines are the Louisville and Nashville, the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Illinois Central, and the Southern.

LOUISIANA

Government.—Louisiana was admitted into the Union on April 8, 1812. The Legislature consists of a Senate of 39 members and a House of Representatives of 101 members, Senators and Representatives being chosen for four years. Sessions are biennial.

Qualified electors are (with the usual exceptions) all registered citizens resident in the State for two years and in the parish one year next before the election.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and eight Representatives.

Governor.—John M. Parker, 1920-1924 (7,500 dollars).

Secretary of State.—James J. Bailey.

Louisiana is divided into 64 parishes (corresponding with the counties of other States). The State Capital is Baton Rouge.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 48,506 square miles (3,097 square miles being water). Census population on January 1, 1920, 1,798,509.

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1900	730,821	650,804	1,381,625	30.4

Total . .	1,096,611	700,257	575	1,066	1,798,509

Most of the white population are descended from the early French settlers. In 1920 the foreign-born whites (2.5 per cent. of the total State population) numbered 44,871, of whom 16,264 (36.2 per cent.) were Italian, 5,147 (11.5 per cent.), German, 4,182 French, 2,399 Mexican, 2,000 Irish, and 1,819 English. The largest city in the State is New Orleans with a census population of 387,219 in 1920. Other cities are Shreveport, 43,874; Baton Rouge (Capital), 21,782. Of the total population in 1920, 34.9 per cent. were urban, and 38.9 per cent. Negro.

Most of the Southern States are strenuously Protestant, but over 61 per cent. of the population of Louisiana are Roman Catholic. Of Protestants in the State, Baptists and Methodists are the most numerous, then Protestant Episcopalians and Presbyterians.

Attendance in the elementary schools is compulsory. In 1920-21 the elementary public schools had 211,227 enrolled white pupils; the public high schools had 26,840 pupils. Total number of teachers, 7,756. The 4 public normal schools had 134 teachers and 3,439 students in 1919. Expenditure on education (1919-20) was 11,088,689 dollars. Superior instruction is given in the Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College. The university was opened in 1860, and the college in 1874; on June 1, 1877, they were by law united into one and the same institution with its seat at Baton Rouge. In 1922 it had 106 professors and 1,242 students. Tulane University (founded in 1834) in New Orleans had, in 1922, 387 professors and 2,580 students. This university has State support to the extent of the remission of certain taxes. The Roman Catholics have Jefferson College at Convent with 8 professors and 50 students, and a University (Loyola University, founded 1904) at New Orleans with 52 professors and 800 students. The New Orleans University (established 1874) is for coloured persons. It had 20 instructors and 492 enrolled students in 1920. There is an Industrial Institute at Ruston and another at Lafayette. The State has also an institution for the deaf and dumb and another for the blind, both at Baton Rouge.

Finance and Defence.—For the year 1921 the receipts and the disbursements were :—

	Dollars
Balance in hand, January 1, 1921	3,540,042
Receipts, 1921	22,606,955
Total	26,146,997
Disbursements, 1921	22,692,860
Balance December 31, 1921	3,454,137

The bonded and floating debt of the State up to March 1, 1922, amounted to 10,354,000 dollars. According to the Council of the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders the State has a defaulted debt estimated at 6 million dollars. The assessed valuation of property in 1921 amounted to 1,718,286,902 dollars.

On June 30, 1921, the militia or State National Guard, with headquarters at Baton Rouge, consisted of 28 officers and 413 enlisted men. There is also a naval militia.

Production and Industry.—The surface of the State is chiefly a great plain sloping from north and north-east to the Mississippi delta. The State is divided into two parts, the uplands and the alluvial and swamp regions of the coast. A delta occupies about one-third of the total area. Louisiana surpasses the other States in extent of navigable waterways—3,782 miles. The Gulf coast-line is 1,250 miles in length. Agriculture is the leading industry. In 1920 the State had 135,463 farms, with an area of 10,019,822 acres, of which 5,626,226 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 589,826,679 dollars. The products and manufactures of Louisiana are very various. The chief crops in 1922 were corn, 1,706,000 acres, producing 29,002,000 bushels; rice grown on 555,000 acres, yielding 19,980,000 bushels. For 1922 the cotton area was 1,185,000 acres, and the yield 357,000 bales, valued at 42,840,000 dollars. Oats, potatoes, and tobacco are also grown, but not extensively. On January 1, 1922, the State contained 173,000 horses, 178,000 mules, 124,000 sheep, 756,000 swine, and 220,000 milch cows. In 1921 the wool clip yielded 508,000 lb.

Louisiana has valuable fisheries. Oyster reefs extend almost continuously along the coast, and the oyster fisheries are the most valuable south of Virginia, the area suitable to planting and growing oysters being over 7,000 sq. miles.

Rich sulphur mines are found in Louisiana, and wells for the extraction of sulphur by means of hot water and air at the surface are in operation. The yield of crude petroleum in 1921 was 26,523,000 barrels.

The manufacturing industries are chiefly those associated with the products of the State: sugar, lumber, cotton-seed, rice. In 1919 there were 2,617 manufacturing establishments which employed altogether 12,216 salaried employees, and 98,265 wage-earners. The material used cost 431,404,000 dollars, and the output was valued at 676,190,000 dollars.

Brewing, confectionery, printing, and other works are also prosperous.

A large international trade is carried on through the port of New Orleans, where in the year ending June 30, 1922 the imports amounted to 104,056,671 dollars, and the exports to 365,116,311 dollars. The exports consisted of cotton and cotton-seed products, wheat, flour, rice, and other produce.

The State has ample facilities for traffic, having, besides 24,900 miles of public roads, the Mississippi and other waterways, with 4,794 miles of navigable water. In 1921 the steam railways in the State had a length of 5,223 miles, besides (1921) 309 miles of electric railway track. The principal lines are operated by the Illinois Central, Louisville and Nashville, Texas and Pacific, the Gulf Coast Line, the Rock Island, and the Southern Pacific systems.

In 1918, there were 14 savings banks in the State with 100,000 depositors having to their credit 38,863,885 dollars, which is 338.64 dollars to each depositor. The bank clearings at New Orleans in 1918 amounted to 2,575,655,000 dollars.

MAINE.

Government.—Maine was admitted into the Union on March 3, 1820. There is a Legislature of two Houses, the Senate, consisting of 31 members, and the House of Representatives with 151 members, both Houses being elected at the same time for two years. The suffrage is possessed by all registered male citizens of the United States, 21 years of age, who can read English and write his own name; but paupers and un-taxed Indians have no vote.

Governor.—Percival P. Baxter, 1923-25 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Frank W. Ball.

For local government the State is divided into 16 counties, subdivided into towns, cities, plantations and various unincorporated places. The State Capital is Augusta.

Area, Population, Education.—Area, 33,040 square miles, of which 29,895 square miles are land. Census population on January 1, 1920, 768,014. Population for four census years.

The foreign-born white population (14.0 per cent. of the total State population) numbered 107,349, of whom 38,570 (35.9 per cent.) were English Canadian, 35,580 (33.1 per cent.) French Canadian, 5,748 (5.4 per cent.) Irish, 5,149 English, 2,171 Scotch, 2,026 Swedish, 3,763 Russian and 2,797 Italian. Within the State, especially in the north, there is a strong French and French-speaking element.

The largest city in the State is Portland with a census population of 69,272 in 1920. Other cities and towns (with population in 1920) are : Lewiston, 31,791; Bangor, 25,978; Biddeford, 18,008; Auburn, 16,985; Augusta, 14,144; Bath, 14,731; Waterville, 13,351. Of the total population in 1920, 39.0 per cent. were urban and 0.2 Negro.

The largest religious body is Roman Catholic; then come Baptists, Congregationalists, Methodists, and Protestant Episcopalians.

Education is free for pupils from 5 to 21 years of age, and compulsory from 5 to 14. Cities and towns have elective school attendance committees. In 1921 the 4,516 public elementary schools had 4,781 teachers and 118,233 enrolled pupils. The 202 public high schools had 951 teachers and 19,831 pupils. For the training of teachers in 1921 there were five public Normal Schools with 101 teachers and 1,000 students. The University of Maine, founded in 1868 at Orono, had (1922) 119 professors and teachers and 1,307 students. It is endowed by and receives large appropriations from the State. Bowdoin College, founded in 1794 at Brunswick, had (1922) 35 professors and 450 students, Bates College at Lewiston 40 professors and 556 students, and Colby College at Waterville 28 professors and 486 students.

Public schools are mainly supported by appropriations from the towns or cities and from the State, and by the income from school funds. Total expenditure on education in 1921, 8,048,535 dollars.

Finance, and Defence.—For the financial year ending June 30, 1922 the amount of revenue and expenditure was as follows :—

	Dollars
Balance, July 1, 1921	2,011,376
Receipts, 1921-22	15,843,365
Total	17,854,741
Payments, 1921-22	15,990,977
Balance, July 1, 1922	1,863,764

The bonded debt on July 1, 1922 amounted to 11,283,300 dollars.

In 1921 the assessed value of real property amounted to 484,754,706 dollars, and of personal property to 152,648,727 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921 consisted of 80 officers and 1,288 enlisted men.

Production, Commerce, Railways.—The products of Maine are derived chiefly from agriculture, forestry, quarrying, and fisheries. The State has, besides other attractions, excellent hunting and fishing, and is a favourite summer resort. The soil is not generally fertile, an important exception being that of the Aroostook valley, which is well adapted for the growing of fruit and vegetables. In 1920 the State contained 48,227 farms with a total acreage of 5,425,968 acres, of which 1,977,329 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 270,526,733 dollars. The chief crops are oats (1922), 4,940,000 bushels; maize, 1,312,000 bushels; buckwheat, potatoes, and hay. On January 1, 1921, the farm animals comprised 104,000 horses, 171,000 milch cows, 129,000 other cattle, 140,000 sheep, and 97,000 swine. The wool clip in 1921 amounted to 660,000 pounds of wool.

The commercial mineral products of Maine are, considering the size and population of the State, few in number and of minor importance. Only one mineral, feldspar, has Maine ranked first during the last three years.

In the State are large granite works, cotton mills, paper mills, manufactures of clothing, &c. On August 31, 1921, there were 1,114,020 active spindles in the State consuming 153,165 bales of cotton. In 1919, according to the census of manufactures of that year, the State had 2,995 manufacturing establishments employing altogether 7,916 salaried officials and 88,651 wage-earners, the latter earning 94,225,000 dollars. Their aggregate capital amounted to 419,158,000 dollars; the cost of raw materials in a year to 254,569,000 dollars, and the value of a year's output to 456,822,000 dollars.

In 1921 there were 2,294 miles of steam railway and 528 miles (1921) of electric railway within the State. The railways are connected with the Canadian railway systems.

On June 30, 1921, there were 42 mutual savings banks in the State, with 237,556 depositors, having to their credit 106,603,000 dollars, being 448.75 dollars to each depositor.

At Portland there is a British vice-consul.

MARYLAND.

Government.—Maryland was one of the thirteen original States. The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Delegates. There are 27 senators and 102 Delegates. The Senators serve for four years, and the Senate is renewed to the extent of half every two years. Delegates are elected for two years.

There is universal suffrage for United States citizens who have resided one year in the State, six months in the Congressional District, and one day in the precinct next preceding election. It is necessary for a person entering the State to declare his intention of becoming a resident of the State one year before he is entitled to register as a voter.

Maryland is represented in Congress by two Senators and six Representatives.

Governor.—Albert C. Ritchie, 1920-24 (4,500 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Philip B. Perlman.

The State is divided into 23 counties and Baltimore City. The State Capital is Annapolis.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 12,327 square miles, of which 9,941 square miles are land and 2,386 are water, the Chesapeake Bay alone occupying 1,203 square miles. The extreme breadth from north to south is 128 miles; the extreme length from east to west is 315 miles. Census population on January 1, 1920, 1,449,661.

Female	599,136	121,026	30	14	720,206
Total	1,204,737	244,479	413	32	1,449,661

Of the total population 102,177 (or 7·0 per cent.) were foreign born whites, of whom 22,032 were from Germany (21·6 per cent.), 9,543 from Italy, 6,580 from Ireland, 24,791 (24·3 per cent.) from Russia, 12,061 from Poland, and 5,095 from England.

The largest city in the State and also the chief manufacturing and commercial centre, is Baltimore, with a census population in 1920 of 733,826. Other cities, with population in 1920, are Cumberland, 29,837; Hagerstown, 28,064; Frederick 11,066; Annapolis (Capital), 11,214. Of the total population in 1920, 68 per cent. were urban and 16·9 per cent, Negro. Nearly 51 per cent. of the population of the State live within the corporate limits of the City of Baltimore.

The prevailing forms of religion are Protestant, but Roman Catholics have 35·3 per cent. of the Church membership in the State.

Education is compulsory for children 8 to 12 years of age in the entire State since September 1, 1916, and 8 to 16 unless legally employed.

In 1920, there were in the 2,423 public elementary and high schools of the State, 181,547 white (92,964 boys and 88,583 girls) and 43,543 coloured (21,091 boys and 22,452 girls) elementary pupils and 15,541 white (6,825 boys and 8,716 girls), and 987 (278 boys and 709 girls) high school pupils. The State had 3 normal schools, with 74 teachers and 350 pupils in 1920. The total expenditure on education in 1920 was 8,916,441 dollars.

The most important institution for higher education is Johns Hopkins University, organised in 1876. It is non-sectarian, and in 1922 had 400 instructors and 3,200 students. Its hospital with educational features is famous. Goucher College, formerly the Woman's College of Baltimore, founded in 1888, has 71 instructors and 886 students. Other institutions are the Peabody Institute for the Education of Music, the Maryland Institute School of Art and Design, Walter's Art Gallery, Maryland University, Maryland Agricultural College with 185 professors and 2,200 students; the Princess Anne Academy for Coloured Youths, with 4 teachers and 47 students.

Finance and Defence.—For the year ending September 30, 1920, the total receipts and disbursements were as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, Sept. 30, 1919	2,445,716
Receipts, 1919-20	13,083,601
Total	15,529,317
Disbursements, 1919-20	12,304,346
Balance, Sept. 30, 1920	3,224,971

On September 30, 1920, the gross debt of the State amounted to 28,364,880 dollars, and the net debt to 18,343,876 dollars. In 1919 the assessed valuation of real and personal property amounted to 1,392,944,923 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 99 officers and 1,826 enlisted men. The Federal authorities have a navy recruiting rendezvous and a navy pay office at Baltimore. The United States Naval Academy, for the education of boys intended for the Federal naval service, is at Annapolis.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture is an important industry in the State, about 82 per cent. of the area being in farms mostly worked by their owners. In 1920 there were 47,908 farms with an area of 4,757,999 acres, of which 3,136,728 acres were improved land. The total value of farm property in 1920 was 463,638,120 dollars. The chief crops are wheat (578,000 acres, producing 9,537,000 bushels in 1922), maize (25,400,000 bushels, valued at 17,272,000 dollars), hay, potatoes (51,000 acres, 5,151,000 bushels, valued at 3,091,000 dollars in 1922), vegetables and fruit. In 1922 the yield of tobacco was 26,950,000 pounds, valued at 4,582,000 dollars. Maryland canned 29.4 per cent. of the tomatoes put up in the United States in 1920. The dairy output in 1920 was worth 13,407,526 dollars; the poultry products, 10,798,096 dollars. The farm animals in the State on January 1, 1921, were: horses, 158,000; mules, 25,000; milch cows, 180,000; other cattle, 132,000; sheep, 220,000; swine, 427,000. The wool clip in 1921 yielded 523,000 pounds of wool.

Of mining industries in the State the most important is coal-mining, which, in 1920, gave an output of 4,065,239 short tons (the output for 1921 being estimated at 2,500,000 short tons). Second in importance is clay-working. Quarrying is also of importance. Other products were sand, talc, slate, lime, and natural rock cement.

The fisheries of the State are valuable, especially the oyster fisheries, which yield more than any other State in the Union. Other fishery products are shad, bass, perch, and various shell-fish.

According to the census report of 1919, Maryland had 4,937 manufactories, capital employed 619,607,000 dollars; persons engaged in manufactories 165,869; (proprietors and firm members 5,129; salaried employees 20,398; average number of wage-earners 140,342); salaries 42,004,000 dollars; wages 147,867,000 dollars; cost of material 549,347,000 dollars; value of products 873,945,000; an increase over 1914 of 131·4 per cent.

The State has ample facilities for traffic both by sea and land, having a network of roads nearly 1,000 miles in extent (1920), steam railways with (1921) 1,435 miles of line in the State and 705 miles of electric railway (1921), while 87 steamboat lines enter the port of Baltimore, which is one of the best ports on the Atlantic coast.

There were 193 State banks and trust companies in the State on December 31, 1920, with resources of 267,648,738 dollars. These included a number of mutual saving institutions which, on June 30, 1921, numbered 17 and had 278,259 depositors with 126,686,000 dollars to their credit, being 455·28 dollars to each depositor. The total amount of deposits in all the banks of Maryland on December 31st, 1920, was 166,473,063 dollars.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Constitution and Government.—In 1614, the Plymouth Company undertook exploring expeditions to New England, and obtained a Royal Charter granting sovereign powers over the region lying to the north of Virginia. It is supposed that the coast of Massachusetts was visited by the Norsemen as early as the year 1,000, but the first permanent settlement within the borders of the present state was made at Plymouth in December, 1620, by the Pilgrims from Holland, who were separatists from the English Church. This was the nucleus of the Plymouth Colony. In 1628 another company of Puritans settled at Salem, and from that beginning the Massachusetts Bay Colony was formed. In 1630 Boston was settled. In 1629 the whole region called New England was formed into a province.

By a special Charter the Government was divided between the colony of Plymouth and that of Massachusetts Bay, but in 1692 they were re-united, and thenceforward acted together both in peace and war. In the struggle which ended in the separation of the American colonies from the mother country, Massachusetts took the foremost part, and became one of the thirteen original States of the Union.

There is a legislative body consisting of a Senate and a House of Representatives, styled collectively the General Court of Massachusetts. The Senate consists of 40 members elected biennially by popular vote, the State being divided into 40 senatorial districts each of which returns one senator. The House of Representatives consists of 240 members, elected in 165 districts, each of which returns one, two, or three representatives according to population. There is an annual session of the Legislature.

All citizens of the United States who can read and write may vote in all State elections, provided they are not paupers or under guardianship, and provided they have lived one year in the State and six months in the election district or precinct.

The State sends 2 Senators and 16 Representatives to the Federal Congress.

Governor.—Channing H. Cox, 1923–25 (salary, 10,000 dollars).

Secretary of the Commonwealth.—Frederic W. Cook, 1923.

There are 14 counties in the State, varying largely in population, and there are 39 cities and 316 towns. The State Capital is Boston.

Area and Population.—Area 8,266 square miles (227 square miles being water.) The population as determined by the Federal Census of January 1, 1920, was 3,852,356.

The population at the date of each of the censuses was as follows:—

Years (Census)	White	Coloured	Total	Per sq. mile
1890	2,215,373	23,574	2,238,947	284.3
1900	2,769,764	35,582	2,805,346	356.2
1910	3,324,926	41,490	3,366,416	427.4
1915	3,644,273	49,037	3,693,310	463.9
1920	3,803,524	48,832	3,852,356	479.2

In 1920 the population by sex and race was :

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . . .	1,864,317	22,912	2,523	262	1,890,014

For the financial year ending January 31, 1922, the actual receipts of the city of Boston were 62,957,012 dollars, and the actual expenditures were 62,075,873 dollars, while the net funded debt of the city, including the Cohituate Water Debt and the Suffolk County Debt for which the city is responsible, was 79,913,010 dollars.

The military force of the State is the Massachusetts National Guard, with an estimated actual strength of 499 officers and 8,083 enlisted men on December 31, 1922.

Production, Industry, Commerce.—In 1920 the number of farms in Massachusetts (a farm being defined for census purpose as 'any tract of land of three or more acres used for agricultural purposes, and also any tract containing less than three acres which produced at least 250 dollars' worth of farm products in the year 1919') was 32,001, with an area of 2,494,477 acres, of which 908,834 acres were improved land. The value of all farm property (including land valued at 127,653,607 dollars) in the State in 1920 was 300,471,743 dollars. Of the 32,001 farms in the State approximately 87 per cent. were operated by the owners, 5 per cent. by managers, and 7 per cent. by tenants. The total value of the agricultural products of the State during the year 1922, was estimated at 44,146,000 dollars. The principal crops in 1922 with their values were: Hay (taml), 587,000 tons, valued at 22,278,000 dollars; potatoes, 2,610,000 bushels, valued at 2,480,000 dollars; maize, 2,600,000 bushels, valued at 2,444,000 dollars; tobacco, 11,925,000 pounds, valued at 3,678,000 dollars. On Jan. 1, 1923, there were on farms in the State 47,000 horses, 189,000 milch cows, 39,000 other cattle, 16,000 sheep, and 72,000 pigs. In 1921 the wool-clip yielded 95,000 pounds.

In the last half of the nineteenth century so many industrial enterprises came into existence that Massachusetts has been quite transformed from an agricultural into a manufacturing community. At present nearly three-fourths of the population dwell in the cities or closely settled places.

The census of manufactures in the State in 1920 showed that the total capital invested in manufactures was 2,987,620.867 dollars, employing on the average 695,832 persons, who earned 891,176,822 dollars, using raw material valued at 2,489,237,446 dollars, and turned out products worth 4,370,276,822 dollars (in 1905, 1,124,092,051 dollars).

Condensed statistics of the more important industries are given in the following table (Massachusetts Statistics of Manufactures, 1920) :—

There is very little mining within the State. The principal minerals, as in most of the New England States, are from the stone quarries and the clay pits. There are large stone quarries at Quincy, Rockport, Worcester, and Milford.

A large foreign trade is carried on through the Massachusetts Customs District (i.e., Boston and eight minor ports) by twenty-two Trans-Atlantic steamship lines. In the year ending June 30, 1922 the imports were valued at 163,075,778 dollars and the exports at 50,296,797 dollars.

In 1921 the vessels engaged in foreign trade which entered the Massachusetts District had a tonnage of 2,999,593; and those which cleared, 1,813,632.

The total number of immigrant aliens from Trans-Atlantic ports admitted at the port of Boston during the year 1921, arriving for the first time and intending to remain permanently, was 4,809.

On December 31, 1921, there were 2,107 miles of main and branch steam railroads in the State. The 3 principal railroads, the Boston and Albany (New York Central lessee), the Boston and Maine, and the New York, New Haven and Hartford, each having a terminus in Boston, have operated about 96 per cent. of the railroad mileage and conducted over 96 per cent. of the entire passenger and freight business as expressed in gross revenue from those sources. In 1921, the total length of electric railways (main and second track, surface and elevated) within the State was 2,731 miles. • The elevated track is confined to Boston Cambridge and Everett.

In September, 1922, there were 158 National banks in operation in the State, of which 13 were in Boston. The total assets of the National banks amounted to 1,035,307,000 dollars. On October 31, 1922, there were in operation in the State 196 savings banks with assets of 1,440,676,651 dollars and 209 co-operative banks with assets of 225,021,101 dollars and 102 trust companies having aggregate assets of 1,161,325,221 dollars. For many years there have been no State banks, strictly so called, in Massachusetts, but one such bank, incorporated during the year 1917, reported on October 31, 1922, total assets of 653,502 dollars. The total clearings of the Boston Clearing House during the calendar year 1922 amounted to 16,452,605,137 dollars.

MICHIGAN.

Government.—Michigan was admitted into the Union on January 26, 1837. According to the revised constitution adopted in 1908 the legislative authority is vested in a Senate of 32 members elected by the counties or groups of counties for 2 years, and a House of Representatives of 100 members, the electoral districts being re-arranged according to population every 10 years. Electors are all citizens over 21 years of age resident in the State for 6 months next preceding the election, and resident at the time of the election in the district, county, or township for which the election is held.

The State is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 13 Representatives.

• Governor.—Alexander J. Groesbeck, 1923-25 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Charles J. De Land.

For local government the State is organised in counties, cities, townships, and villages. There are 83 counties, each of which is a corporate body with a Board of Supervisors as its administrative authority. Cities must have each a population of not less than 3,000, but a few which have been long incorporated have a smaller population. Villages in the legal sense have a population of at least 300 within an area of a square mile. In 1922 there were 113 cities and 337 villages in the State. The State Capital is Lansing.

Area, Population, Education.—Area, 57,980 square miles, of which 500 square miles are water. This is exclusive of 16,653 square miles of Lake Superior, 12,922 square miles of Lake Michigan, 9,925 square miles of Lake Huron, and 460 square miles of Lakes St. Clair and Erie. The total length of Michigan coast line is 1,620 miles.

Population 1920 census, 3,668,412.

Total	3,601,627	60,082	1,089	5,614	3,668,412

Of the total population in 1920, 726,635 (or 19.8 per cent.) were foreign-born whites, of whom 164,502 (22.7 per cent.) were from Canada, 86,047 (11.8 per cent.) from Germany, 47,149 from England, 45,313 from Russia, 103,926 (14.3 per cent.) from Poland, 16,531 from Ireland, 24,707 from Sweden, 30,096 from Finland, 13,175 from Scotland, 6,888 from Norway, 30,216 from Italy, 22,004 from Austria, and 136,072 from all others. In 1921 the area of the Indian reservations was 191 acres, and the population 7,593.

According to the census of 1920 the population of the principal cities was :—

Cities	Pop.	Cities	Pop.	Cities	Pop.
Detroit	993,678	Jackson	48,374	Port Huron . . .	25,944
Grand Rapids . .	137,634	Bay City	47,554	Ann Arbor . . .	19,516

Kalamazoo . . .	48,487	Pontiac	34,273	Marquette . . .	12,718

Of the total population in 1920, 61.1 per cent. were urban and 1.6 per cent. Negro.

The more important religious bodies are the Roman Catholic, Episcopal, Methodist, Lutheran, Baptist, Presbyterian, and Congregational.

Education is compulsory for the school term for children from 7 to 16 years of age. The total net expenditure for graded and ungraded public schools, for the fiscal year 1920-21, was 50,739,530 dollars; for the University, State colleges, normal and State schools, 5,229,799 dollars. In 1921 the 7,100 public schools had 720,953 enrolled pupils and 24,938 teachers. The 4 normal schools had 273 teachers and 17,000 pupils. The highest education provided by the State is given in the University of Michigan, founded in 1841 at Ann Arbor; in 1922 it had 714 professors and teachers and 9,803 students. There is a State Agricultural College at Lansing, founded in 1857; it had, in 1922, 171 professors and 1,484 students. There is a College of Mines at Houghton, founded in 1886; in 1922 it had 25 instructors and 331 students.

Poor Relief.—The whole number of poor persons maintained in the infirmaries during the year ending September 30, 1921, was 7,176, of whom 5,126 were males and 2,050 females. The number of persons temporarily relieved outside the infirmaries was 103,287. The number of permanent indigent persons maintained outside the infirmaries was 14,073, the number of persons supported at public institutions 1,854, and the whole number of different persons who received assistance in any form during the period was 1,216,390. The whole amount expended in the care and support of the poor is reported at 3,473,787 dollars. There are 14 charitable institutions, 3 penal, and 2 juvenile reformatory institutions maintained by the State; there are also 54 licensed child-placing agencies, 58 licensed maternity hospitals, 1,185 licensed boarding homes for children, and 24 private institutions for the aged and defective.

Finance and Defence.—For the year ending June 30, 1922, the revenue and expenditure were as follows :—

	Dollars
Balance, July 1, 1921	19,834,661
Receipts, 1921-22	103,072,192
Total	122,906,853
Disbursements, 1921-22	95,438,958
Balance, June 30, 1922	27,467,895

The total bonded indebtedness of the State was 45,500,000 dollars on June 30, 1922. This includes 20,000,000 dollars for soldier bonus and 10,000,000 dollars for highway bonds.

In 1920 the total assessed valuation of the State as equalized by the State Board of Equalization amounted to 5,319,702,886 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 128 officers and 2,451 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—The State is largely agricultural. In 1920 it contained 196,447 farms with a total area of 19,032,961 acres, of which 12,925,521 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 1,763,334,778 dollars. In 1922 the chief crops were oats, 49,434,000 bushels; corn, 60,716,000 bushels; wheat, 14,326,000 bushels; hay, 4,457,000 tons; potatoes, 37,842,000 bushels; beans, 4,809,000 bushels. The estimated yield of sugar beets was 1,106,000 tons. On January 1, 1922, there were in the State 1,115,000 sheep, 594,000 horses, 967,000 milch cows, 576,000 other cattle, and 1,051,000 swine. In 1921 the wool-clip yielded 7,714,000 pounds of wool. The area of national forest land (June 30, 1921) was 89,466 acres.

Michigan ranks sixth among the States in production of mineral wealth. It yields iron ore and copper. Copper output in 1921 amounted to 100,918,001 lb. Other minerals are silver, coal, clay and clay products (brick, tile, pottery), graphite, asbestos, grindstones, gypsum, sandstone, limestone, mineral waters, and (in small quantity) petroleum are worked. The value of the salt mined in 1919 was 9,456,138 dollars, and of Portland cement 838,300 dollars. The mineral output in 1917 was valued at 162,484,767 dollars; in 1918, at 199,264,604 dollars.

The industries of the State are concerned chiefly with lumber, timber, agricultural products, metal-working, and the manufacture of automobiles, furniture, stoves, and machinery. According to the census of manufactures of 1919 the number of manufacturing establishments was 8,305, with an aggregate daily wage of 639,708,000 dollars, and 71,065 salaried employees, and 471,242 wage-earners. The output was valued at 3,466,188,000 dollars, the value of the raw material used being 1,919,243,000 dollars.

On December 31, 1921, there were 8,785 miles of steam railway in operation, besides 1,208 miles of electric railway. During 1920 a tonnage of 79,282,496 net tons with 68,451 passengers passed through the St. Mary's Falls Ship Canal. This canal is located at Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, and serves as a gateway between the lakes; it is the largest ship canal in the world.

On Dec. 1, 1921, there were 561 State banks and 11 trust companies, and 118 national banks in Michigan, having to their credit 1,084,187,417 dollars.

MINNESOTA.

Government.—Minnesota was admitted into the Union on May 11, 1858. The legislature consists of a Senate of 67 members, one being elected in each of the legislative districts, and a House of Representatives of 131 members elected in the same districts in numbers proportioned to population. Senators are elected for 4 years, all terms expiring at the same time. Representatives are elected for 2 years.

Governor.—J. A. O. Preus, 1923-25 (7,500 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Mike Holm.

There are 86 counties, few of which contain less than 400 square miles and 2,000 inhabitants. Townships, as in other western States, are, geographically, areas of land 6 miles square, each divided into 36 sections of one square mile, numbered on a uniform principle. When organised they are corporate bodies with a town-meeting, 3 supervisors, and other officers elected for one year. Incorporated villages have not less than 175 inhabitants; they form separate election and assessment districts and have each a village council. The State Capital is St. Paul.

Area, Population, Education.—Area 84,682 square miles, of which 3,824 square miles are water. This is exclusive of 2,514 square miles of Lake Superior. Census population on Jan. 1, 1920, 2,387,125.

The population at the date of each of the Federal Censuses was as follows :

Year	White	Coloured	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1890	1,296,408	13,875	1,310,283	16.2
1900	1,737,038	14,358	1,751,394	21.7
1910	2,059,227	16,481	2,075,708	25.7
1920	2,368,936	18,189	2,387,125	28.5

In 1920 the population by sex and race was :—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	1,231,728	4,851	534	4,424	1,241,537
Female	1,133,208	3,958	85	4,337	1,141,588
Total	2,368,936	8,809	619	8,761	2,387,125

The foreign-born white inhabitants in 1920 numbered 486,164 (20.4 per cent. of the total) comprising 74,634 (15.4 per cent.) Germans, 112,117 (23.1 per cent.) Swedes, 90,188 (18.6 per cent.) Norwegians, 7,432 Italians, 26,936 English Canadians, 10,289 Irish, 16,904 Danes, 6,796 French Canadians, and 10,958 (2.3 per cent.) English. The Indian Reservations in the State have an area (1921) of 865 square miles and contain 12,968 Indians.

The largest towns are Minneapolis with a population of 380,582 in 1920; St. Paul (the administrative capital), 234,698; Duluth, 98,917; Winona, 19,143; Hibbing, 15,089; St. Cloud, 15,873. Of the total population in 1920, 44.1 per cent. were urban and 0.4 per cent. Negro.

The chief religious bodies are: Roman Catholic, Lutheran, Methodist, Presbyterian, and Baptist.

In 1922 the 8,834 public elementary schools of the State had 15,857 teachers and 463,625 enrolled pupils; 402 public high schools had 4,135 teachers and 67,434 pupils. For the instruction of teachers there were 6 public normal schools with 208 teachers and 2,528 pupils in 1922. Total expenditure on education in 1922, 56,344,211 dollars. The University of Minnesota at Minneapolis, founded in 1868, had 1,250 professors and 8,943 students in 1922. Hamline University, at St. Paul, founded in 1854, had 38 instructors and 556 students. St. John's (Roman Catholic) University, at Collegeville, founded in 1857, had 40 instructors and 450 students. Carleton College, at Northfield, founded in 1866, had 65 instructors and 842 students in 1922.

Finance and Defence.—The revenue and expenditure for the year ending July 1, 1922, were:—

	Dollars
Balance on July 1, 1921	13,919,886
Receipts to June 30, 1922	53,439,731
Total	67,359,617
Payments to June 30, 1922	56,800,260
Balance July 1, 1922	10,559,357

State debt (1921), 20,199,800 dollars. The assessed value of property was (1921): 2,527,379,848 dollars.

The National Guard of the State of Minnesota on June 30, 1921, consisted of 256 officers and 4,768 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Minnesota is largely an agricultural State. In 1920 it contained 178,478 farms with a total area of 30,221,758 acres, of which 21,481,710 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 3,787,420,118 dollars. In 1922, 3,979,000 acres of land under maize yielded 131,307,000 bushels. Other crops were wheat, 27,036,000 bushels; oats, 142,746,000 bushels; barley, 24,062,000 bushels; flax-seed, 3,770,000 bushels. On January 1, 1921, the farm animals included 332,794 horses, 2,080,469 milch cows, and 940,842 other cattle; 509,064 sheep, and 2,380,862 swine. In 1921 the wool-clip amounted to 2,340,000 pounds of wool. The total national forest area on June 30, 1921, was 1,047,857 acres.

The mining of iron ores, mostly red hematite, in the Mesabi and Vermilion ranges has reached great importance. The production in 1921 amounted to 17,648,603 long tons valued at 62,780,754 dollars. Certain quarry products also are of value, viz., granite, sandstone, and limestone and clay products.

Other industries are connected with the traffic in cattle, sheep, and swine, while important manufacturing industries are the making of boots and shoes, clothing, furniture, metal goods, and machinery. According to the census of manufactures of 1919 there were in the State 6,225 manufacturing establishments with a total capital of 690,386,000 dollars, employing 115,623 wage-earners, who were paid in the year 127,307,000 dollars; the cost of raw material used was 883,090,000 dollars, and the output was valued at 1,218,130,000 dollars.

Minneapolis is an important centre of the grain trade. Duluth is the chief port on Lake Superior.

In 1921, Minnesota had 9,114 miles of steam railway, besides 757 miles of electric railway track. From St. Paul 10 railways, with a total length of 64,517 miles radiate. The Great Northern Railway Company of St. Paul has a line of steamers which sail between Puget Sound and China, Japan, and the Philippines, the railway of the company carrying vast loads of merchandise from St. Paul to the port of shipment at very low freights.

On June 30, 1921, there were 1,160 State banks, 9 mutual savings banks, 26 trust companies and 341 national banks. The mutual savings banks had 153,638 depositors with 58,657,875 dollars to their credit, being 381.79 dollars to each depositor. Total deposits in State banks were 347,852,084 dollars, in trust companies 27,951,155 dollars, and 212,813,000 dollars in national banks.

The foreign-born inhabitants in 1920 numbered 8,019 (0·4 per cent. of the total State population) of whom 929 were German, 1,841 (23 per cent.) Italian, 590, English, and 412 Irish. In 1920 the urban population was 13·4 per cent. of the whole, and the Negro population 52·2 per cent. of the whole.

The largest cities (with population in 1920) are Meridian, 23,399 ; Vicksburg, 18,072; Hattiesburg, 13,270 ; Jackson, 22,817.

About half the church-going inhabitants of Mississippi are Baptists and one-third are Methodists. The remainder are mostly Roman Catholics and Presbyterians.

There is no law for compulsory attendance at school ; white and coloured children are taught in separate schools. In 1921 the number of schools was 6,403, with an average daily attendance of 303,921, and 9,573 teachers. In 1918 172 public high schools had 1,041 teachers and 29,139 pupils. One public normal school in 1921 had 28 teachers and 1,322 students. For higher education Mississippi has 20 universities and colleges. These institutions comprise the University of Mississippi, established 1848, which in 1922 had 37 instructors and 678 students; Mississippi College (1826), Clinton (Bapt.), with 18 professors and 375 students ; Rust University, for coloured students (1872), Holly Springs (M.E.), with 16 professors and 463 students ; and Millsaps College (1892), Jackson (M.E.So.), with 15 professors and 389 students. The Agricultural and Mechanical College (founded 1880) had (1921) 1,827 students. The Alcorn Agricultural and Mechanical College for coloured youths had 25 professors and 470 students. The Mississippi Industrial Institute and College, founded in 1885 at Columbus for the education of the young women of the State, had (1921) 896 students.

Finance and Defence.—The receipts and disbursements for the year ending September 30, 1922, were as follows :—

	Dollars
Balance in hand Oct. 1, 1921	2,608,407
Receipts to Sept. 30, 1922	14,904,874
Total	17,513,281
Disbursements to Sept. 30, 1922	13,449,340
Balance in hand October 1, 1922	4,063,941

In 1922 the bonded debt of the State amounted to 13,446,500 dollars. According to the Council of the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders the State has a defaulted debt of 7,000,000 dollars. For 1922 the assessed valuation of real property and personal property amounted to 765,198,435.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 45 officers and 780 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture is the chief industry of the State, which has a semi-tropical climate and a rich soil. In 1920 the farms numbered 272,101 with an area of 18,196,979 acres, of which 9,325,677 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 964,751,855 dollars. The chief product is cotton, which was grown on 3,078,000 acres, and yielded 1,010,000 bales in 1922, valued at 121,705,000 dollars. Other crops are maize, 51,065,000 bushels in 1922 ; rice, wheat, oats, potatoes. On January 1, 1921, there were in the State 256,000 horses, 312,000 mules, 571,000 milch cows, 680,000 other cattle, 149,000 sheep, and 1,783,000 swine. In 1921 the wool-clip yielded 470,000 lbs.

Though there are mineral deposits in Mississippi such as hydraulic limestone, coal, gypsum, and rich clay, there is no mining enterprise.

In 1919 there were 2,455 establishments engaged in the manufacturing industries ; their aggregate capital amounted to 154,117,000 dollars ; they employed 4,081 salaried employees, and 57,560 wage-earners, the latter earning 51,256,000 dollars; the raw material used cost 96,678,000 dollars, and their output was valued at 197,747,000 dollars.

The State in 1921 had 4,369 miles of steam railway, besides 95 miles of electric railway. The railroads with greatest length of line in the State are the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley, the Illinois Central, the Southern, the Mobile and Jackson and Kansas City, the Mobile and Ohio, and the Gulf and Ship Island railways. The Mississippi river and the Gulf Coast provide natural facilities for transport.

In 1918, there were 11 savings banks in the State, with 15,000 depositors who had to their credit 4,493,451 dollars, being 299·56 dollars to each depositor.

Finance and Defence.—For the year 1921 the revenue and expenditure were :—

	Dollars
Balance, January 1, 1921	12,449,030
Receipts, 1921	32,086,559
Total	44,535,589
Disbursements, 1921	29,732,403
Balance, Jan. 1, 1922	14,803,186

On July 1, 1922, the bonded debt of the State amounted to 20,298,839 dollars. The assessed value of real property (January 1, 1922) was 3,348,437,933 dollars; of personal property, 920,527,673 dollars.

On June 30, 1921, the National Guard consisted of 193 officers and 2,283 men.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture is the chief occupation in the State. In 1920 the number of farms was 263,004, with a farm area of 34,774,679 acres, of which 24,832,966 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 3,591,068,083 dollars. The chief crops are cereals. In 1922 the maize crop amounted to 175,275,000 bushels, wheat to 38,618,000 bushels, and oats 17,872,000 bushels. Potatoes and sorghum are grown throughout the State. In the south-eastern lowlands the important product is cotton, the area under which (1922) was 198,000 acres, and the yield 149,000 bales, valued at 16,018,000 dollars. The acreage in 1922 under tobacco was 5,000, from which the crop was 4,500,000 pounds, valued at 1,305,000 dollars. There are many orchards, and small fruit is grown. Stock-raising is important, especially the raising of hogs, of which, on January 1, 1921, there were 4,047,000 in the State; there were also 873,000 milch cows, 1,659,000 other cattle, 1,388,000 sheep, and 1,030,000 horses. The wool-clip in 1921 yielded 6,645,000 pounds of wool.

The productive coal-fields of Missouri have an area of about 14,000 square miles, and employ 11,104 miners. In 1920, 5,369,565 short tons of coal were produced; the estimated output for 1921 is 3,700,000 tons. Other important minerals are zinc and lead. The lead ores at Mine La Motte, Missouri, contain cobalt and nickel. Other products are Portland cement, grindstones, pig-iron, copper, blue and white lead, lime-stone, sandstone, and granite.

Missouri has prosperous manufacturing industries, the more important of which depend on agriculture and forestry. In 1919 there were 8,592 industrial establishments; the capital invested in all the industries of the State amounted to 938,761,000 dollars; the number of persons employed in them (including proprietors, clerks, and wage-earners) was 244,039, and the year's output was valued at 1,594,208,000 dollars, the value of raw materials used being 1,056,457,000 dollars.

In the State there were in 1921, 8,116 miles of steam railway, besides 1,158 miles of electric railway track. The northern portion of the State is better supplied with railways than the southern. The principal lines in the State are the Missouri Pacific, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé; the St. Louis and San Francisco; and the St. Louis South Western. St. Louis is the terminal for the larger river steamers, and there is a heavy traffic between it and the Gulf of Mexico. The market for the grain and animal produce of the Western States is largely reached via Missouri.

NEBRASKA.

The Nebraska region was first reached by white men from Mexico under the Spanish general Coronado in 1541. It was ceded by France to Spain in 1763, retroceded to France in 1801, and sold by Napoleon to the United States as part of the Louisiana purchase in 1803. Fort Atkinson on the Missouri River, the farthest western post of the United States, was established in 1819 and abandoned in 1827. Bellevue, the present oldest continuous settlement, was established by French fur traders about 1820. The creation of Nebraska territory was part of the programme of the United States government in 1844 as a step in establishing a military highway to hold Oregon, then in controversy with Great Britain. On May 30, 1854, Nebraska became a territory and on March 1, 1867, a State. "Arbor Day," now a world-wide institution observed with planting of trees, originated in Nebraska on January 4, 1872.

Government.—The Legislature consists of a Senate of 33 members and a House of Representatives of 100 members. The Legislators are elected for two years. The franchise extends only to native born citizens, including women, and to persons of foreign birth, who shall become citizens of the United States by naturalisation at least thirty days prior to an election. Voters must have resided in the State for six months, in the county for 40 days, in the precinct for ten days next before the election. The present constitution was adopted in 1875. Important amendments adopted in 1912 and 1920 provide for legislation through the initiative and referendum, for a State Board of Control over sixteen State institutions, for biennial instead of annual elections, and permit cities of more than 5,000 inhabitants to frame their own charters.

Nebraska is represented in Congress by two Senators and six Representatives.

Governor.—Charles W. Bryan, 1923-25 (7,500 dollars).

Secretary of State.—D. M. Amsberry.

There are 93 counties in the State. The State Capital is Lincoln.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area 77,510 square miles, of which 702 square miles are water. The population in decennial census years from 1880 was :—

	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1880	450,017	2,385	452,402	5.9

A grant of 3,000,000 acres of public lands for permanent endowment of her schools was made by the Federal Government. Of this 1,661,405 acres are still held by the State. Further sale of this land, with some minor exceptions, is forbidden, Nebraska being the only State which has adopted the policy. The total value of the permanent school endowment is 21,564,714 dollars.

Finance and Defence.—For the financial year ending June 30, 1922, the receipts and disbursements of the State funds were :—

	Dollars
Balance, July 1, 1921	2,228,523
Receipts, 1921-22	15,345,536
Total	17,574,059
Disbursements, 1921-22	13,564,191
Balance, June 30, 1922	4,009,868

The State has no debt. In 1922 the assessed valuation of real and personal property (under a law requiring the assessed value to be 20% of the actual value) amounted to 3,171,747,870 dollars, of which 862,116,791 dollars were personal, and 2,329,631,079 dollars real property.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 49 officers and 1,050 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Nebraska is one of the most important agricultural States. In 1920 it contained 124,417 farms with a total area of 42,225,175 acres, of which 23,109,624 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 4,201,655,992 dollars. The Federal irrigation district in Western Nebraska embraces 300,000 acres, two-thirds of which is already under water. The principal crops are cereals, hay, potatoes, and apples. In 1922 the yield of maize was 182,400,000 bushels; wheat, 59,838,000 bushels; oats, 56,106,000 bushels. Beet-sugar is also produced. The live-stock industry is pursued on a large scale. On January 1, 1921, the State contained 965,000 horses, 99,000 mules, 560,000 milch cows, 2,650,000 other cattle, 290,000 sheep, and 3,063,000 swine. From 222,000 sheep in 1921 the wool-clip yielded 1,641,000 pounds of wool. The area of national forest lands, June 30, 1921, was 205,944 acres.

Nebraska has some quarries and mines. The more important of these are sand quarries, limestone quarries, potash plants, and brick and tile plants. There are also possibilities of oil and gas. The Alkali Lakes of Nebraska have become the largest producers of potash for the American market. In 1920 there were 12 plants, and 21,804 short tons of potash were produced from 87,100 short tons of crude potash.

The most important manufacturing industries are associated with the pastoral and agricultural produce of the State. In 1919 there were 2,884 manufacturing establishments in the State; their aggregate capital amounted to 245,256,684 dollars; the persons owning or working them (including 2,916 proprietors and firm members, 9,639 salaried employees, and 36,521 wage-earners) numbered 49,076; the material used cost 480,774,122 dollars, and the output was valued at 596,042,498 dollars. The chief of these industries is slaughtering and meat-packing, which has its centre at South Omaha.

Other industries are printing and publishing, soap and candle making, brick and tile work, smelting, sugar manufacture, &c.

In 1921 there were 6,166 miles of steam railway in the State, besides the 256 miles of electric railway track. Omaha is a centre whence 9 trunk lines of railway radiate. Commercial navigation of the Missouri river, which was abandoned for 35 years, has been resumed, steamboats and barges carrying grain and live stock ply between Omaha and Sioux City every week.

In September, 1919, there were 999 State banks and 189 National banks in the State, with total resources of 1,032,365,000 dollars. In June, 1918, there were also 19 savings banks with 19,940 depositors, who had to their credit 4,357,983 dollars, being 218.55 dollars to each depositor.

There is a British Vice-Consul at Omaha.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Government.—New Hampshire was one of the thirteen original States of the Union. The sense of the people as to the calling of a convention for the revision of the Constitution must be taken every seven years. If a convention is held the amendments to the Constitution which it proposes must be laid before the people, and approved by two-thirds of the qualified voters present and voting on the subject. The Legislature consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. The Senate consists of 24 members, elected for two years. The House of Representatives consists of from 419 to 422 members, the number varying slightly with each session, as representation is on the basis of population. Electors are all citizens 21 years of age, resident six months in the place to be represented, able to read and write, duly registered and not under sentence for crime or paupers.

Governor.—Fred H. Brown, 1923-25 (3,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Edwin C. Bean.

New Hampshire is represented in the Federal Congress by 2 Senators and 2 Representatives. The State is divided into 10 counties. The State Capital is Concord.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area 9,341 square miles, of which 310 square miles are water. Census population on Jan. 1, 1920, 443,083.

The population at the date of the Federal censuses was as follows:—

Years	White	Coloured	Total	Per Sq. Mile.
1890	275,840	690	276,530	41.7
1900	410,791	797	411,588	45.6
1910	429,906	666	430,572	47.7
1920	442,331	752	443,083	49.1

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . .	221,667	333	99	13	222,112
Female . .	220,664	288	4	15	220,971
Total . .	442,381	621	103	28	443,083

Of the total population in 1920, 91,233 (representing 20.6 per cent. of the total population) were foreign-born white, of whom 1,886 were Swedes, 3,467 Russians, 1,714 Germans, 4,367 English, 7,908 Irish, 52,274 (57.3 per cent.) Canadian, 3,997 Polish, 5,280 Greeks, 2,074 Italians.

The largest city of the State is Manchester, with a population of 78,384 in 1920. Other cities are Nashua, 28,379; Concord (capital), 22,167; Dover, 13,029; Berlin, 16,014; Portsmouth, 13,569; Laconia, 10,897; Keene, 11,210; Rochester, 9,673. Of the population in 1920, 63.1 per cent. were urban and 0.1 per cent. Negro.

The prevailing form of religion is the Roman Catholic, which has 63 per cent. of the Church membership; other bodies are Congregational, Baptist, Methodist, and Protestant Episcopal. Religious instruction is not given in the public schools. The Roman Catholics maintain parochial schools in all the cities and some of the large towns.

The State law requires that at least 36 weeks of schooling must be provided in every town annually. School attendance is compulsory for children from 8 to 14 years of age during the whole school term; and if they have not completed the elementary grades the school age extends to 16. In 1921 the 1,964 public elementary schools of the State had 2,361 teachers (2,266 females), and 71,692 enrolled pupils (36,419 boys and 35,273 girls); 73 public high schools had 519 teachers (187 females) and 9,675 pupils (4,484 boys and 5,191 girls). The 2 normal schools had 31 teachers and 357 students in 1921. The principal colleges within the State are Dartmouth College, at Hanover, founded in 1769, and the New Hampshire College of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts, at Durham, founded in 1868. They are non-sectarian. Dartmouth had (1922) 160 instructors and 2,011 students; the State College 106 instructors and 973 students. Expenditure on Education in 1920, 3,960,075 dollars.

Finance and Defence.—The revenue and expenditure for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, were:—

	Dollars
Cash balance, July 1, 1921	789,041

There is no federal naval establishment within the State, though the navy yard at Kittery, Me., is known as the Portsmouth Navy Yard, because Portsmouth, N. H., is its port of entry.

Production and Industry.—The majority of the population is employed in agriculture, but manufacturing interests are not far behind. The total land area of the State is 5,779,840 acres, of which 1,441,000 acres are cultivated, 720,000 acres uncultivated, and 3,602,000 acres under forest. The area of national forest lands on June 30, 1921, was 383,111 acres. In 1920 there were 20,523 farms with a total acreage of 2,603,806 acres, or 126.9 acres to each farm, and of this 702,902 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 118,856,115 dollars. The chief crops are (1922), hay (585,000 tons), corn (1,032,000 bushels), potatoes (1,400,000 bushels), oats (684,000 bushels); the chief fruit crop is apples. On January 1, 1921, the farm animals in the State were 39,000 horses, 101,000 milch. cows, 70,000 other cattle, 31,000 sheep, and 57,000 swine. In 1921 the wool-clip yielded 155,000 pounds.

Minerals are little worked, but granite and mica are quarried, and mineral waters and scythe stones are worked.

The manufacturing interests, aside from forest products, are largely confined to the Southern part of the State. In 1919 the capital invested in the 1,499 manufacturing concerns of the State amounted to 329,167,000 dollars; the wage-earners numbered 83,074; the wages paid amounted to 79,326,000 dollars; the raw materials used were valued at 239,528,000 dollars, and the output at 407,205,000 dollars. Boots and shoes rank first, followed by cotton and woollen goods. On August 31, 1921, there were 1,428,415 active spindles, and the amount of cotton consumed was 220,241 bales. An important occupation in the State is the summer entertainment of guests in the mountain and lake regions.

The Boston and Maine Railroad owns or leases all the steam railroad lines within the State except the Grand Trunk in the extreme north. In 1921 the length of steam railway in the State was 1,252 miles, and of electric railway, 250 miles.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture, market-gardening, fruit-growing, horticulture, and forestry are pursued within the State. In 1920 New Jersey had 29,702 farms with a total area of 2,282,585 acres, of which 1,555,607 acres were improved land. The value of all farm property in 1920 was 311,847,948 dollars. In 1922 the chief crop was maize, acreage 236,000, producing 9,912,000 bushels, valued at 6,938,000 dollars; of hay there was an acreage of 303,000 acres, producing 485,000 short tons, valued at 8,778,000 dollars. The yield of potatoes in 1922 was 16,435,000 bushels. The farm animals on January 1, 1921, comprised 87,000 horses, 151,000 milch cows, 73,000 other cattle, 29,000 sheep, and 182,000 swine. In 1921 the wool-clip yielded 55,000 pounds.

New Jersey has valuable fisheries, the lakes and streams being stocked with trout, perch, black bass, &c., while there are shad, menhaden, and sturgeon fisheries on the Delaware River and Bay and round the coast. Value of shell fish for the year ending June 30, 1921, 10,125,000 dollars.

The mineral deposits consist of magnetic iron, zinc, manganese, talc, soapstone, and graphite. Clay and clay-products led in 1920 with a total output valued at 82,134,233 dollars; the chief product being sanitary ware, in which New Jersey is pre-eminent. New Jersey ranks second in the production of zinc ore; it mined 550,770 tons in 1920. The iron ore mined (431,567 tons) in 1920 was valued at 2,595,949 dollars. The chief stone quarried is trap rock, the total output in 1920 being valued at 2,777,018 dollars. Limestone was also quarried to the value of 493,665 dollars. In 1920 sand and gravel to the value of 4,330,844 dollars was produced. New Jersey also produces Portland cement, coke, lead and zinc pigments, mineral waters, peat, green-sand marl (from which potash salts are being made), and other products of minor importance.

In 1919 the manufacturing establishments numbered 11,057 and employed 508,686 wage-earners; the raw material used was valued at 2,270,473,279 dollars, and the output at 3,672,064,987 dollars. The capital value was estimated at 2,835,577,127 dollars, while 600,658,345 dollars were paid in wages. The principal industries (with value of output in 1918) are oil refining (328,120,677 dollars), high explosives (197,074,042 dollars), foundry and machinery (181,085,155 dollars), silk goods (120,075,052 dollars), chemical products (189,117,335 dollars), drawn wire and wire cloth (93,350,127 dollars).

In 1918, according to State statistics, there were 44 establishments for canning fruit and vegetables, employing 4,610 persons, who packed 4,134,117 pounds of fruit, and 144,727,505 pounds of vegetables, of a total value of 5,797,094 dollars.

In 1921 the length of steam railroad within the State was 2,449 miles; electric railway track, 1,293 miles; the length of canals was 174 miles.

On June 30, 1921, there were 26 mutual savings banks in the State with 357,541 depositors who had to their credit 183,254,000 dollars, being 512.54 dollars to each depositor, also 1 strictly savings bank with 42,729 depositors, who had 20,905,000 dollars to their credit, being 489.25 dollars to each depositor. There were (December, 1920) 27 State Banks having time deposits amounting to 47,576,218 dollars; 126 trust companies having 800,000 depositors and 499,247,447 dollars on deposit; and 217 national banks having 467,741,000 dollars deposits.

NEW MEXICO.

Constitution and Government.—New Mexico from the time of its discovery by Europeans was politically associated with Mexico. On May 11, 1846, the Mexican war began; when peace was made February 2, 1848, New Mexico was recognised as belonging to the United States. On September 9, 1850, the Organic Act of the Territory was passed by the United States Congress. The boundaries of the Territory had been made to include part of Texas, but Utah was formed into a separate Territory; in 1861 part of New Mexico was transferred to Colorado, and in 1863 Arizona was disjoined, leaving to New Mexico its present area. On June 20, 1910, Congress passed an Enabling Act permitting the Territory of New Mexico to frame a State Constitution, and in January, 1912, New Mexico was admitted to Statehood.

The State legislature consists of 24 members of the Senate and 49 members of the House of Representatives.

Governor.—James F. Hinkle, 1923–25 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Manuel Martinez.

For local government the State is divided into 31 counties. The administrative capital of the State is Santa Fé, population (as shown by the census of 1920), 7,236.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 122,634 square miles (131 square miles being water area). Census population on January 1, 1920, 360,350.

In five census years the population was:—

Years.	White. ¹	Negro.	Total.	Per Sq. Mile.
1880	118,550	1,015	119,565	1.0
1890	158,326	1,956	160,282	1.3
1900	193,700	1,610	195,310	1.6
1910	325,673	1,628	327,301	2.7
1920	354,617	5,733	360,350	2.9

In 1920 the population by sex and race was:—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	175,350	4,593	364	10,149	190,456
Female	159,323	1,140	63	9,363	169,894
Total	334,673	5,733	432	19,512	360,350

In 1920, 29,077 (8.1 per cent. of population) were foreign-born whites, of whom 1,178 were Germans, 19,906 (68.5 per cent.) Mexicans, 888 English, 434 Irish, 423 Austrians, and 1,678 (5.8 per cent.) Italians.

Of the total population in 1920, 18 per cent. were urban, and 1.6 per cent. Negro.

The largest towns are Albuquerque, with population of 15,157 in 1920; Raton, 5,544; Roswell, 7,033; and Santa Fé with 7,236. Indian reservations, with an area of 6,287 square miles in 1921, have Indian population of 23,287, chiefly Navaho, Apache, and Pueblo (or town) Indians.

The prevailing form of religion is Roman Catholic, but various Protestant bodies have schools and churches within the State. Religious instruction in public schools is prohibited by law, but boards of directors may open school-houses for the use of religious societies, &c., at times outside the regular school hours.

Elementary education is free, and all children between 6 and 16 years of age are compelled to attend school. The use of the English language is enforced in schools. There are (1920) 1,430 public elementary schools in the State with 81,399 enrolled pupils, and 2,752 teachers; and 71 public high schools with 257 teachers and 3,870 pupils in 1920. Besides, there are 26 Indian schools with 2,291 pupils, and 141 teachers (maintained by the Federal Government). Three public normal schools had 60 teachers and 2,009 students. Total expenditure on education (1920), 3,301,712 dollars. For special and higher instruction there are various institutions; a College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, founded at Las Cruces in 1889, with 45 professors and 392 students, a School of Mines, founded at Socorro in 1895, with 8 professors and 81 students (1921-22), a Military Institute, an Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, an Institute for the Blind, an Orphans' School, and a Reform School. At Albuquerque is the University of New Mexico, founded in 1889; it had 33 professors and 266 students in 1922. The State schools are maintained by funds assigned by the State Government, and by the proceeds of the school tax levied by the commissioners of each county, municipality and district.

Finance and Defence.—For the year ending November 30, 1922, the revenue and expenditure were as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, December 1, 1921	3,481,099
Receipts for year 1921-22	8,716,256
Total	12,197,355
Disbursements for year 1921-22	6,889,125
Balance, December 1, 1922	5,308,230

The total bonded indebtedness of the State on December 1, 1922, was 4,712,000 dollars. The assessed value of real and personal property in 1921 was 363,721,981 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 28 officers and 474 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—New Mexico produces cereals, vegetables, fruit, and cotton. The principal crops in 1922 were: maize, 2,475,000 bushels; wheat, 885,000 bushels; potatoes, 200,000 bushels. Irrigation, which is indispensable over wide tracks of fertile country, is extending, in 1911 the irrigated area had reached 750,000 acres. The Rio Grande project provides for reservoir construction for the irrigation of 180,000 acres in New Mexico and Texas. Private enterprise also is devoted largely to reservoir and canal construction. In 1920 there were 29,844 farms with an area of 24,409,633 acres, of which 1,717,224 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 325,185,999 dollars. The farm animals on January 1, 1921, comprised 225,000 horses, 91,000 milch cows, 1,406,000 other cattle, 2,666,000 sheep, and 85,000 swine. In 1921 the wool-clip amounted to 10,100,000 pounds of wool. The national forest area (June 30, 1921) covered 8,382,683 acres, and there are about 4,000,000 acres of heavily forested country in private ownership.

The State has valuable mineral resources, of which, in 1921, gold (9,824 ounces), silver (579,374 ounces), copper (18,076,999 pounds), coal (2,300,000 short tons), lead, and zinc were the most important. The quarries yield granite, sandstone, limestone, and marble. Turquoise is profitably worked in four localities within the State; the sands contain traces of platinum.

The manufactured output of New Mexico in 1919 amounted to the value of 17,857,000 dollars. The chief industries are lumber and timber work; flour and grist milling, car construction and railway repair work. There are also woollen mills and cement works. The aggregate capital of all industries, was 15,226,000 dollars; the number of wage-earners was 5,736, earning in a year 6,658,000 dollars, and the cost of materials used was 7,727,000 dollars.

In 1921 there were 2,972 miles of steam railway and 11 miles of electric railway track within the State (1921).

NEW YORK STATE.

Constitution and Government.—From 1609 to 1664 the region now called New York was under the sway of the Dutch; then it came under the rule of the English, who governed the country till the outbreak of the War of Independence. Between July 9, 1776, and April 20, 1777, a Convention framed a Constitution under which New York was transformed into an independent State, afterwards, in 1788, entering the Union as one of the 13 original States.

The legislative authority is vested in a Senate of 51 members elected every two years, and an Assembly of 150 members elected annually. There are annual sessions.

The right of suffrage resides in every citizen 21 years of age, who has been a citizen for 90 days, and has resided in the State for a year preceding the election. A voter must also have resided four months in the county, and 30 days in the election district.

The question whether there shall be a Convention to revise the Constitution has to be submitted to the people every 20 years, beginning with 1916, 'and also at such times as the Legislature may by law provide.'

The State is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 43 Representatives.

Governor.—Alfred E. Smith, 1923–25 (10,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—John J. Lyons.

The seat of the State executive is at Albany.

For local government the State is divided into 62 counties.

Cities are in 3 classes, the first class having each over 175,000 inhabitants and the third under 50,000. Each is incorporated by charter, under special legislation. The government of New York City is vested in a board of Aldermen, elected for 2 years. Its members are the President, elected by the city; the presidents of the 5 city boroughs (Bronx, Manhattan, Brooklyn, Queens, and Richmond); 67 aldermen, one elected in each of the 67 districts, constituting a board of 73 members. The chief executive officer is the Mayor, elected for 4 years; he appoints all the heads of departments, except the Comptroller, who is elected by the city.

Area, Population.—Area 49,204 square miles (1,550 square miles being water). Census population on January 1, 1920, 10,385,227. Population in census years :—

Of the total population in 1920, 82·7 per cent. were urban and 1·9 per cent. Negro. Indian reservations in 1921 covered an area of 137 square miles and had a population of 6,053.

In 1921 the death-rate was 12·2 per 1,000 of population, the birth-rate 22·6, and the marriage rate 19·2.

The chief churches are Roman Catholic, Methodist, Presbyterian, Protestant Episcopal, and Baptist.

Education.—Education is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 16. Instruction in physical training and kindred subjects of all pupils above 8 years of age in the elementary and secondary schools of the State is made compulsory by an amendment of 1916 to the Education Law. In 1920-21 the children enrolled in the 11,844 public schools numbered 1,744,758; the number of teachers was 55,825. There were 995 public high schools and academies with 230,165 pupils and 9,500 teachers. There were 10 public normal schools with 391 teachers and 8,121 students. There were 155 vocational schools employing 1,783 teachers with 99,644 pupils. Total expenditure on education in 1921 was 215,848,927 dollars. There were 143 universities, colleges, professional and technical schools with 6,310 professors and teachers, and 67,196 students.

The University of the State of New York is governed by a Board of Regents, whose members are at all times three more than the existing judicial districts of the State—at present 9 districts and 12 Regents. The University is the State Education Department. The Regents elect by ballot the President of the University and the Commissioner of Education.

The names, year of foundation, and numbers of instructors and students in 21 of the 39 colleges and universities in 1920-21 were as follows:—

Defence.—Under the provisions of the Military Law of the State a new active organisation was created September 1st, 1917, to take the place of the National Guard then in the Federal service. This was known as the New York Guard. Since the return of the National Guard divisions from France, the formation of a new National Guard, under Federal regulations, has made steady progress, until almost the entire enlisted and commissioned strength of 20,948 in the organised militia on June 30, 1922, were federalised National Guard, leaving only one regiment, the 15th (Coloured) Infantry, to be federalised.

In the same way the Naval Militia, while it was never federalised in the same sense as the National Guard, was actually in the Federal service as a part of the Naval Reserve. On June 30, 1922, the new Naval Militia included 2,059 officers and men.

Production, Industry, Commerce.—New York has large agricultural interests. In 1920 it contained 193,195 farms of a total area of 20,632,803 acres, of which 13,158,781 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property was 1,908,483,201 dollars. Common agricultural crops are raised; market-gardening, fruit-growing, sugar-beet production, and tobacco culture are pursued. In 1922 the crops comprised corn, 28,329,000 bushels; wheat, 9,014,000 bushels; oats, 31,770,000 bushels, besides potatoes, hay, and other products. The area under tobacco was 2,000 acres; the yield, 2,200,000 pounds. Beet sugar is produced. The farm animals on January 1, 1921, comprised 536,171 horses, 7,323 mules, 2,081,074 dairy cattle, and 63,170 other cattle, 578,726 sheep, and 600,560 swine. The wool-clip in 1921 yielded 2,941,000 pounds of wool.

Other productive industries are mining and quarrying. In 1920 the mines within the State yielded 959,408 tons of iron ore, valued at 6,263,252 dollars. The output of gypsum in 1920 was 780,295 tons, valued at 6,438,929 dollars. Salt produced amounted to 13,593,578 barrels valued at 7,584,921 dollars. Mineral springs yielded 5,242,047 gallons, valued at 671,066 dollars. The output of Portland cement was 6,049,150 barrels, valued at 12,206,698 dollars. The output of talc was 68,168 tons, valued at 977,228 dollars. The quarry products of granite, trap rock, sandstone, marble, limestone, and lime was valued at 8,918,492 dollars. The value of brick, tile, and pottery was estimated at 19,113,684 dollars. The yield of crude petroleum in 1920 was estimated at 906,000 barrels, valued at 5,433,000 dollars; the value of natural gas produced in 1920 at 3,339,000 dollars. The State also produces crystalline quartz, diatomaceous earth, emery, feldspar, garnet, graphite, millstones, molding sand, pyrite, slate, slip clay, and zinc. The total value of mineral output in 1920 was estimated at 79,620,909 dollars.

New York City now ranks as the first shipping port of the world. The imports, including specie and bullion, during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, amounted to the value of 1,365,484,094 dollars, and the exports to the value of 1,317,440,816 dollars. Most of the great railway lines which bring merchandise from the west have their terminals on the New Jersey side of the harbour, but there are ample facilities for the transfer of goods to the docks on the eastern side by means of lighters and of barges which carry the loaded cars across.

For the year ending September 30, 1922, the bank clearings in New York City amounted to 213,326,385,751 dollars.

In New York State there were in 1921 8,390 miles of steam railway track and 5,616 miles (1921) of single track electric railway. The canals of the State, used for commercial purposes, have a length of 638 miles, of which the Erie canal has 361 miles. The State Barge Canal to connect New York City with Buffalo by means of a deep water route of 790 miles, having a minimum depth of 12 feet, is completed. It has a capacity of 20,000,000 tons per season.

In the year ending June 30, 1922, there were 144 mutual savings banks in the State, with total deposits of 2,791,353,022 dollars, and total depositors numbering 3,915,912, being 712.8 dollars to each depositor.

British Consul-General at New York.—H. G. Armstrong.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Government.—North Carolina is one of the thirteen original States of the Union. The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 50 members, and a House of Representatives of 120 members, elected for two years.

All citizens of the United States, resident in the State one year, and in the county six months next before the election, and registered, have a vote. For registration, the requirement is ability to read any section of the Constitution in the English language.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and ten Representatives.

Governor.—Cameron Morrison, 1921-25 (6,500 dollars).

Secretary of State.—J. Bryan Grimes.

North Carolina is divided into 100 counties. The State Capital is Raleigh.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 52,426 square miles, of which 3,686 square miles are water. Population of census in 1920, 2,559,123.

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1820	419,200	219,029	638,229	13.2
1900	1,269,341	624,469	1,893,810	38.9
1910	1,508,444	697,843	2,206,287	45.3
1920	1,795,716	763,407	2,559,123	52.5

In 1920 the population by sex and birth was :—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	899,031	373,965	94	5,972	1,279,062
Female	884,743	389,442	19	5,852	1,280,061
Total	1,783,779	763,407	113	11,824	2,559,123

Of the total in 1920, 7,099 (representing 0·3 per cent. of the total population) were white foreign-born, 703 being German, 932 (13·1 per cent.) Russian, and 967 (13·6 per cent.) English. Urban population formed 19·3 per cent., and the Negro population 29·8 per cent. of the whole. Cities (with population in 1920) are : Charlotte, 46,338 ; Winston-Salem, 48,395 ; Wilmington, 33,372 ; Durham, 21,719 ; Asheville, 28,504 ; Raleigh, (capital), 24,418 ; Greensboro, 19,861. Indian reservations in 1921 covered an area of 98 square miles and had a population of 11,824.

About half of the church members are Baptist, and one-third Methodist. The others are mostly Presbyterian, Lutheran, or Protestant Episcopal.

School attendance is compulsory. Separate schools are provided for white and for coloured children. In 1920 the 7,557 public elementary schools of the State had 16,854 teachers, and 691,249 enrolled pupils. There were 455 public high schools with 982 teachers and 30,868 pupils in 1920. Teachers are trained in 9 public normal schools, with 105 teachers and 1,362 students in 1911. Total expenditure in 1920, 12,214,258 dollars.

Higher instruction is given in 15 university and college institutions, the more important of which are the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill (founded in 1795) in 1922 with 125 professors and 1,600 students ; and the Agricultural and Engineering College at West Raleigh (founded in 1889) with 94 professors and 1,205 pupils. Higher education for young women is given in the State College for Women (Greensboro) which, in 1922, had 110 professors and 987 students. There are large sectarian colleges, and also schools and colleges for coloured youths.

Finance and Defence.—The State had receipts and disbursements in the year ending June 30, 1922 as follows :—

	Dollars
Balance, July 1, 1921	99,646
Receipts, 1921-1922	39,839,100
Total	39,938,746
Disbursements, 1921-1922	34,565,813
Balance, June 30, 1922	5,372,933

In 1921 the outstanding debt amounted to 27,025,600 dollars. The assessed value of personal and real property in 1920 was 3,158,480,072 dollars. According to the Council of the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders the State has a defaulted debt estimated at 12,600,000 dollars. The State declares these bonds to have been fraudulently and corruptly issued during reconstruction days.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 83 officers and 1,562 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—The chief occupation of the inhabitants of the State is agriculture. In 1920 the State had 269,763 farms, while the area of the farm land was 20,021,736 acres, of which 8,198,409 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 1,250,166,995 dollars. Wheat and maize are grown, the yield of the former in 1922 having been 5,508,000 bushels, and of the latter, 50,520,000 bushels. The chief crop, however, is cotton, of which the area for 1922 was 1,626,000 acres, and the yield 852,000 bales (of 500 pounds gross weight). Another important product is tobacco, grown on 515,000 acres, which yielded in 1922, 806,940,000 pounds, valued at 93,003,000 dollars. Other products are peanuts, potatoes, oats, and rye. Stock-raising is not important, but there is a growing dairy industry. On January 1, 1921, the farm animals were 179,000 horses, 231,000 mules, 331,000 milch cows, 386,000 other cattle, 138,000 sheep, and 1,528,000 swine. The wool-clip in 1921 yielded 395,000 lb. The area of national forest lands (June 30, 1921) was 313,075 acres.

In the eastern portion of the State there are shad and oyster fisheries, both valuable.

Minerals in great variety, but not in large quantities, are found in the State, the chief being mica, iron, talc, and soapstone barytes, feldspar, coal, phosphate rock, gold, silver, sand and gravel. The quarries yield granite, limestone, and sandstone. Monazite and zircon, used in the manufacture of incandescent light mantles, are also found.

The prosperity of North Carolina is associated chiefly with cotton, tobacco, and lumber, but within the State a variety of other industries are pursued. On August 31, 1921 there were 5,152,121 active spindles in the State, and 926,384 bales of cotton were consumed. The value of the output of all manufactures in the State in 1921 was put at 759,025,746 dollars.

According to the census of 1919 there were in the State 5,999 manufacturing establishments employing 11,688 salaried employees and 157,659 wage-earners. The total capital invested amounted to 669,144,000 dollars; wages paid to, 126,680,000 dollars; cost of raw materials, 526,906,000 dollars, and the value of the output to 943,808,000 dollars.

The chief seaport is Wilmington, the exports from which, in the year ending June 30, 1922, amounted to 9,200,071 dollars, nearly all for cotton grown in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Alabama, and shipped mostly to Bremen, Liverpool, and Ghent. The imports amounted to 3,981,985 dollars.

The State has several navigable rivers; in 1921 it contained 5,063 miles of steam railway, and 300 miles of electric railway track. The chief railway lines are the Atlantic coastline, the Seaboard Air line, the Southern railway, and the Norfolk and Southern railway, the latter being formed by the union of about half-a-dozen independent lines.

In 1921, deposits in savings banks amounted to 80,366,033 dollars.

There is a British Vice-Consul at Wilmington.

The daily average number of paupers in the county homes during the year ending August 31, 1921, was 6,150, being 105·1 per 100,000 of population, and the average daily number of prisoners in the penal institutions during the year ending July 1, 1921, was 4,664, being 80·4 per 100,000 of the population.

Finance and Defence.—The receipts and disbursements, for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1922, were:—

	Dollars
Cash in hand, July 1, 1921	14,326,674
Income, 1921-1922	56,929,119
Total	71,255,793
Disbursements, 1921-22	51,698,436
Balance, July 1, 1922	19,557,357

The public debt of the State on June 30, 1922, amounted to 25,000,000 dollars for soldiers' bonus, bearing interest at the rate of 4½ per cent. per annum and 1,665 dollars, being the Canal Loan not bearing interest.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 391 officers and 6,686 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Ohio is extensively devoted to agriculture. In 1920 it contained 256,695 farms, a decrease in number of 15,350, or 5·6 per cent. since 1910. The total area of farm land was 23,515,888 acres, of which 18,542,353 were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 3,095,666,336 dollars. The chief crops are cereals, hay, potatoes, fruits and vegetables, besides tobacco. The maize crop in 1922 is estimated at 155,000,000 bushels, and the wheat crop at 85,000,000 bushels; oats at 45,000,000 bushels. The area under tobacco (52,000 acres in 1922) is expected to yield 51,351,000 pounds. Beet sugar to the amount of 264,000 short tons is the expected yield in 1922 from an area of 33,000 acres. Horse-rearing, cattle-breeding, and dairy farming are important. On January 1, 1921, the live-stock in the State was 795,000 horses, 28,000 mules, 1,009,000 milch cows, and 998,000 other cattle, 2,773,000 sheep, and 3,921,000 swine. The wool-clip in 1921 yielded 13,200,000 pounds of wool. The farm products and live-stock industries give rise to the manufacture of butter and cheese, and the meat-packing industries.

Ohio has also extensive mineral resources; it is the fourth State in the Union for mineral output. The two leading products are coal and manufactures from clay. In 1921, 32,000,000 short tons of coal were mined and in 1920 8,229,770 tons of pig-iron were produced by 79 furnaces.

In 1919 the capital invested in the 16,125 manufacturing establishments in the State was 3,748,744,000 dollars; the amount paid in salaries and wages was 1,218,366,000 dollars; the raw material used cost 2,911,948,000 dollars, and the value of the output was 5,100,309,000 dollars. The value of the corresponding output in 1910 was 1,782,808,000 dollars.

The railways of the State had for the year ending December 31, 1921, a length of 9,201 miles steam track, besides 4,214 miles of electric railway track. Ohio has also facilities for traffic by water, and its most important city, Cleveland, has sprung up on the shore of Lake Erie.

On June 30, 1922, there were 750 State banks in Ohio, with a total of 1,262,638,456 dollars deposits; 373 national banks having 646,572,000 dollars deposits, and 745 building and loan associations having 186,199,802 dollars deposits (1921).

OKLAHOMA.

Government.—The State of Oklahoma, comprising the former Territory of Oklahoma and Indian Territory, was constituted on November 16, 1907, by Proclamation made by the United States President under the enabling act of June 16, 1906. The constitution provides for the initiative and the referendum, 8 per cent. of the legal voters having the right to propose any legislative measure and 15 per cent. to propose amendments to the constitution by petition. The referendum may be ordered (except as to laws necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety) either by petition signed by 5 per cent. of the legal voters or by the Legislature. The referendum applies to municipalities as well as to the State. The control of railways and other public service corporations is vested in a commission of 3 members elected for six-year periods, from whose decision an appeal lies only to the Supreme Court, no other court having power to interfere with its duties.

The Legislature consists of a Senate of 44 members who are elected for 4 years, and a House of Representatives elected for 2 years, and consisting of not less than 99 nor more than 102 members. Qualified as electors are (with necessary exceptions) all citizens resident six months in the State, 60 days in the county or town, 30 days in the precinct. Indians, to be qualified as voters, must have severed tribal relations.

Governor.—J. C. Walton, 1923–27 (4,500 dollars).

Secretary.—Joe S. Morris 1919–23.

The State is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 8 members of the House of Representatives. The State capital is Oklahoma City.

Area and Population.—Area, 70,057 square miles, of which 643 square miles are water. Census population on January 1, 1920, 2,028,283. Indian reservations in 1921 had an area of 1,766 square miles with a population of 119,481.

[For the history of the relations between the Indians and the Federal Government see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1907, p. 593.]

The population at the date of each of the Federal censuses was :—

Year	White	Coloured	Total	Per square mile
1900	670,204	120,187	790,391 ¹	10·3 ¹
1910	1,444,531	212,624	1,657,155	23·9
1920	1,821,194	207,089	2,028,283	29·2

In 1920 the population by sex and race was :—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	952,691	76,294	309	28,750	1,058,044
Female	868,503	73,114	35	28,587	970,239
Total	1,821,194	149,408	344	57,337	2,028,283

In 1920, 39,968 were foreign-born whites (2·0 per cent of the total population), of whom 17,029 (17·6 per cent.) were Germans, 5,005 (12·5 per cent.) Russians, 2,122 Italians, 1,393 Austrians, 2,686 English, 2,475 Canadians, 6,697 (16·8 per cent.) Mexican, and 1,120 Scotch.

Of the total population in 1920, 26·6 per cent. were urban, and 7·4 per cent. Negro. The most important cities are Oklahoma City (population in 1920, 91,295), Muskogee (30,277), Tulsa (72,075), Enid (16,576), McAlester (12,095), Shawnee (15,348), Okmulgee (17,430), Guthrie (11,757), Ardmore (14,131).

Religion and Education.—The chief religious bodies are Methodist, Baptist, Roman Catholic, Disciples (Christians), and Presbyterians.

The State has a school system embracing elementary and high public schools, normal schools, and also colleges for superior instruction. Separate schools have to be provided for whites and Negroes, all children not Negroes being classed as white. In 1920 there were in the State public elementary schools 559,282 pupils and 15,389 teachers; 364 public high schools with 35,104 enrolled pupils and 1,702 teachers in 1918. There were (in 1920) 6 normal schools with 251 teachers and 9,017 students. Total expenditure on education (1920) 22,906,219 dollars. The University (founded at Norman in 1892) had, in 1922, 163 professors and 3,900 students; the Agricultural and Mechanical College (founded in 1891 at Stillwater) had 107 professors and 2,279 students; while the coloured Agricultural and Normal University (founded 1897 at Langston), had 27 instructors, has 823 students.

Finance and Defence.—Income and expenditure for the year ending June 30, 1921 :—

	Dollars
Balance in hand, July 1, 1920	10,918,718
Receipts, 1920-21	33,218,900
Total	44,137,616
Disbursements, 1920-21	29,566,924

Balance in hand, July 1, 1921 14,570,692

On Jan. 1, 1920, the State debt amounted to 2,972,900 dollars. The assessed value of real and of personal property (1921) was 1,696,788,207 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 154 officers and 2,587 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Oklahoma is mainly agricultural. In 1920 it had 191,988 farms with a total area of 31,951,934 acres, of which 18,125,321 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 1,660,423,544 dollars. The yield of maize in 1922 was 57,600,000 bushels; of wheat, 31,350,000 bushels; of oats, 30,000,000 bushels. Other products are potatoes, hay, sorghum, fruits, and cotton. The cotton crop for 1922 on 2,951,000 acres amounted to 635,000 bales, valued at 73,025,000 dollars. Flax is also widely grown. The western part is devoted to stock-raising. On January 1, 1921, the stock comprised 549,000 milch cows, and 1,118,000 other cattle; 836,000 hogs, 110,000 sheep, 667,000 horses, and 292,000 mules. Wool-clip yielded 482,000 lb. in 1921.

Oklahoma has become an important mineral State in the last few years principally because of the increase in the production of petroleum, which followed the discovery of oil in 1904. In 1921, 113,978,000 barrels of crude petroleum were produced. Natural gas is also obtained. Coal (4,849,288 short tons in 1920), lead and zinc are also worked.

There are few manufacturing industries, flour and grist-milling, cotton ginning, the manufacture of cotton-seed oil and oil cake being the more important. In 1919 the State had a total of 2,445 industrial establishments, employing 29,503 wage-earners who earned 35,026,000 dollars with a total capital of 277,034,000 dollars, the cost of material being 312,606,000 dollars, and the value of the output 401,363,000 dollars.

In 1921 Oklahoma had 6,572 miles of steam railway besides 370 miles of electric railway. The principal lines are the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé; the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific; the Choctaw, Oklahoma and Gulf; and the St. Louis and San Francisco; the Missouri, Kansas and Texas; the St. Louis and San Francisco; and the Santa Fé Pacific Railways.

OREGON.

Government.—Oregon was admitted into the Union on February 14, 1859. The Legislative Assembly consists of a Senate of 30 members, chosen for four years (half their number retiring every two years), and a House of 60 Representatives, elected for two years.

The Constitution was amended in 1902, under the terms of which amendment the people reserve to themselves the power to propose laws and amendments to the Constitution and to enact or reject the same at the polls independent of the Legislative Assembly, and also reserve the power at their own option to approve or reject at the polls any Act of the Legislative Assembly. This is known as the initiative and referendum. Not more than eight per cent. of the legal voters are required to propose any measure to be voted upon by the people at the next ensuing general election. Measures thus initiated are enacted or rejected at the polls independently of the Legislative Assembly. Under the referendum, any Bill passed by the Legislative Assembly, except such as are for the preservation of the public peace, health, and safety, may, by petition signed by five per cent. of the legal voters, be referred to the people to be voted on for approval or rejection at the next ensuing general election.

At the General Election held November, 1912, suffrage was extended to women and "every citizen of the United States of the age of 21 years and upwards who shall have resided in the State during the 6 months immediately preceding such election shall be entitled to vote."

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and three Representatives.

Governor.—Walter M. Pierce, 1923–1927. (5,000 dollars.)

Secretary of State.—Sam A. Kozer.

The State Capital is Salem. There are 36 counties in the State.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 96,699 square miles, 1,092 square miles being water.

The population at the date of each of the Federal censuses was:—

Year	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1880	174,281	487	174,768	1.8
1900	412,431	1,105	413,536	4.3
1910	671,273	1,492	672,765	7.0
1920	781,245	2,144	783,389	8.2

Including Asiatics and Indians.

In 1920 the population by sex and race was:—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . . .	407,159	1,197	5,677	2,301	416,334

Total . . .	769,146	2,144	7,509	4,590	783,389

The foreign-born whites in 1920 numbered 102,151 (13·0 per cent. of total population), of whom 13,740 (13·5 per cent.) were German, 13,744 (13·5 per cent.) Canadian, 7,953 (7·8 per cent.) English, 10,532 (10·3 per cent.) Swedish, 4,203 Irish, 4,324 Italian, 1,928 Greeks, and 6,955 Norwegian. The Indian reservations in 1921 comprised 514 square miles with a population of 6,608 Indians.

Of the total population in 1920, 49·9 per cent. were urban, and 0·3 per cent. Negro. The largest towns, according to the 1920 census, are Portland, with a population of 258,288; Salem, 17,679; Medford, 5,756; Astoria, 14,027; Eugene, 10,593.

The chief religious bodies in the State are (in order of strength) Catholic, Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist, Disciples of Christ, and Congregational denominations.

School attendance is compulsory for the full school term for children 9 to 15 years of age. For school year ending June 30, 1922, the 2,514 public schools had 6,722 teachers and 164,705 enrolled pupils, 245 standard four-year high schools had 30,247 pupils; and the public normal school had, in 1922, 16 teachers and 536 pupils. Total expenditure on education (1921) 14,783,718 dollars. The State supports an Agricultural College at Corvallis, founded in 1870, which has an instructional staff of 267 to Dec. 1, 1921, and 3,914 students, and a University, known as the University of Oregon, organised at Eugene in 1876. In 1922 it had 129 professors, and 2,241 students. There are also Methodist, Presbyterian, Catholic, Congregational, and Baptist Colleges.

Finance and Defence.—The receipts and disbursements of the General Fund of the State, for the year ending September 30, 1922:—

	Dollars
Balance, October 1, 1921	1,586,745
Receipts, Oct. 1, 1921—Sept. 30, 1922	43,304,597
Total	44,891,342
Disbursements, Oct. 1, 1921—Sept. 30, 1922	38,594,525
Balance, September 30, 1922	6,296,817

On December 1, 1922, the amount of the State bonded indebtedness was 52,290,470 dollars. In 1922 the assessed value of real property was 748,912,570 dollars, and of personal property, 271,891,618 dollars.

On November 1, 1922, the National Guard of the United States and of the State of Oregon consisted of 31 completely equipped organizations with a total enlisted and commissioned strength of 2,339 men.

Production and Industry.—Oregon is one of the semi-arid States. In the river valley west of the Cascades there is a good rainfall and almost every variety of crop common to the temperate zone is grown. East of the Cascades lack of rainfall has been to some extent compensated for by irrigation by private companies as well as by State enterprise. Oregon has one-sixth of the standing timber of the United States; in 1922 the forest area was 19,000,000 acres, of which 10,000,000 were in national forests and Indian reservations. In 1920 there were 50,206 farms with an acreage of 13,542,818, of which 4,913,851 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 818,559,751 dollars; in 1912, it was 631,317,255 dollars. The leading crops are wheat (19,744,000 bushels in 1922), hay (1,930,000 tons), and potatoes (5,145,000 bushels). Oats, barley, and flax-seed are grown to some extent. Sugar beet and hops are important crops. Fruits are grown, especially plums, apples, pears, strawberries, cherries, and loganberries. There is an active live-stock industry. Horses on January 1, 1921, numbered 276,000; milch cows, 216,000; other cattle, 675,000; sheep, 2,270,000; swine, 272,000. In 1921 the wool-clip yielded 14,435,000 pounds. The salmon, sturgeon, halibut, and oyster fisheries are abundant.

The State has not risen to much importance as a mining State, although it possesses various mineral resources, including gold, silver, copper. The output of gold in 1921 was 39,454 ounces, valued at 815,600 dollars. Granite and other building stones were also extracted. Other minerals are occasional gems, cobalt, lead, gypsum, and platinum.

In 1919 the manufacturing industries of Oregon had 2,707 establishments with an aggregate capital of 237,255,000 dollars; they employed 6,906 salaried officials and 58,559 wage-earners, earning respectively 13,999,000 dollars and 81,094,000 dollars; the cost of the raw material used was 206,206,000 dollars, and the value of the output, 366,783,000 dollars. These industries are associated with the forest, agricultural, pastoral, and fishery products of the State.

Oregon has good water facilities in the Pacific Ocean, the Columbia river the Willamette river, and the Snake river. The Dalles and Celilo Canal, completed in 1915, opens the Columbia and Snake rivers to river navigation to a length of 570 miles from the ocean. Large ocean-going vessels can navigate the Columbia as far as Portland. The value of imports at Portland for year ending June 30, 1922, was 6,580,395 dollars, and of exports, 66,400,894 dollars. In 1921 the State had a total steam railway mileage of 3,305, besides 694 miles of electric railway track. The principal lines are the Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation Company and the Southern Pacific and the so-called 'Hill lines.'

In September, 1922, there were 280 banks in the State, with total deposits of 250,999,483 dollars; of this amount 61,690,291 dollars were in savings deposits, including postal savings accounts; demand deposits amounted to 170,056,851 dollars; time deposits, 19,805,911 dollars.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Government.—Pennsylvania is one of the thirteen original States in the Union. The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. Every citizen 21 years of age, resident in the State for one year, and in the election district for two months preceding the election, is entitled to vote, provided that he has paid a State or County tax within two years and at least one month before the election. The Senate consists of 50 members chosen for four years, 25 Senators being elected at each General Assembly election bi-annually. The House of Representatives consists of 208 members chosen for two years.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and 36 Representatives.

Governor.—Gifford Pinchot, 1923-1927 (10,000 dollars).

Secretary of the Commonwealth.—Bernard J. Myers (8,000 dollars).

For local administration the State is organised in counties, cities, boroughs, and townships. On a population basis, cities are divided into three classes, counties into eight classes and townships into two classes. There are 67 counties. The State Capital is Harrisburg.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 45,126 square miles, of which 294 square miles are water area (excluding 891 square miles of Lake Erie).

Of the total population in 1920, 63.3 per cent. were urban, and 3.3 per cent. Negro.

The chief religious bodies in the State are Roman Catholic, Methodist, Lutheran, Presbyterian, and Reformed bodies.

School attendance is compulsory for children 8 to 14 years of age for the full school term, but in fourth class (under 5,000) districts this may be reduced to 70 per cent. of the term for children over 12. In the year 1920-1921 the public elementary schools had 38,352 teachers and 1,454,092 enrolled pupils. The 1,017 public high schools had 7,133 teachers and 170,823 pupils. In the 14 State normal schools in 1921 there were 406 teachers with 5,261 students. Total expenditures on public school education (1921) 111,459,798 dollars. The Pennsylvania State College devotes special attention to modern industrial pursuits and to agriculture; in connection with the college there is an Agricultural Experiment Station which receives from the United States Government an appropriation of 110,000 dollars a year. In addition to the above expense the State normal schools receive from the State (1921) 2,159,000 dollars.

The more important academic institutions (1922) within the State are as follows :—

Begun	Institutions.	Professors	Students
1740	University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia (non-sect.)	1,006	10,193
1787	University of Pittsburg (non-sect.)	463	5,314

Finance and Defence.—For the year ending November 30, 1922, the receipts and disbursements were as follows :—

	Dollars
Balance, December 1, 1921	8,172,617
Receipts, 1921-22	97,395,983
Total	105,568,600
Disbursements, 1921-22	94,316,419
Balance in Treasury, November 30, 1922	11,252,181

On November 30, 1921, the outstanding bonds of the State amounted to 50,658,320 dollars, which are partly covered by a sinking fund of 6,772,537 dollars. The assessed value of real property in 1921 amounted to 7,431,386,401 dollars, and the taxable value of personal property to 2,016,172,796 dollars.

In the National Guard, of the total number of troops authorised, consisting of 825 officers and 15,392 men, there have been enlisted and commissioned (1922) 760 officers and 11,870 men.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture, market-gardening, fruit-growing, horticulture and forestry are pursued within the State. In 1920 there were 202,250 farms; the farm area was 17,667,513 acres, of which 11,847,719 acres were improved. The total value of farm property in 1920 was 1,729,353,034 dollars. In 1922 the yield of wheat was 25,067,500 bushels; corn, 60,944,400 bushels; rye, 3,654,000 bushels; oats, 39,773,000 bushels; buckwheat, 4,434,700 bushels; potatoes, 23,479,000 bushels; tobacco, 58,922,000 pounds; hay, 4,585,000 tons; apples for 1921, 4,161,000 bushels; peaches for 1921, 279,000 bushels; pears for 1921, 318,000 bushels. The wool-clip for 1922 is estimated at 2,895,900 pounds. On January 1, 1922, farm animals in Pennsylvania were: 486,607 horses, 54,678 mules, 862,868 milch cows, 614,372 other cattle, 456,870 sheep, 1,096,884 swine, 14,854,575 chickens, and 115,259 hives of bees.

Pennsylvania so far exceeds all the rest of the States in the value of its mineral products as to stand almost alone. This is due principally to the State's leadership in the production of coal. In 1921, 161,922 workers were employed in and about the anthracite coal-mines, and 200,419 in and about the bituminous coal-mines. In 1921 the output of anthracite coal was 90,280,242 short tons, and of bituminous coal, 114,447,132 short tons. Other minerals are petroleum, natural gas, iron ore (magnetite and hematite), and pig-iron. Pennsylvania has important quarries, cement works, and brick and tile works. The output of by-product coke in 1921 was 4,876,322 net tons. In 1920 the output of Portland cement was 28,222,100 barrels, value 59,883,800 dollars. Pittsburg, having abundant supplies of coal, has become the principal iron-work centre.

According to the report of the Pennsylvania Department of Internal Affairs for the year 1920, there were in Pennsylvania 26,077 industrial establishments, with an aggregate capital amounting to 5,799,515,800 dollars, employing 180,956 salaried officials and 1,614,099 wage-earners. The salaries in 1920 amounted to 386,684,200 dollars, and the wages to 2,370,758,400 dollars. The value of the output was 11,086,748,300 dollars. The metal industry ranked first, the principal products being iron and steel bars, valued at 338,775,200 dollars; billets, blooms and slabs, valued at 449,855,000 dollars; iron and steel ingots, valued at 696,516,600 dollars; pig iron, valued at 420,444,500 dollars; and pipes and tubing, valued at 317,044,800 dollars. Next in importance were textile products, the largest items being silk and silk goods, valued at 288,900,000 dollars; hosiery and knit goods, valued at 150,367,600 dollars; and men's, women's, and children's clothing, valued at 101,290,600 dollars. Mines and quarries came third in importance. Food and kindred products ranked fourth, the most important items being sugar refining, 192,235,300 dollars; bread and other bakery products, 144,121,500 dollars; slaughtering and meat packing, 125,659,600 dollars; candy products, 87,099,800 dollars. Chemical products amounted to 143,169,000 dollars, and oils, 215,326,700 dollars. Printing and publishing showed products valued at 184,533,100 dollars, and paper manufacture, 138,147,300. Leather products were valued at 160,834,900 dollars, and 21,511,500 pairs of boots and shoes, valued at 67,431,100; glass manufacture was valued at 101,848,300 dollars, and terra cotta and fire-clay products, 40,867,400; tobacco products, including 2,123,016,000 cigars valued at 144,021,700 dollars.

The total value of imports at the port of Philadelphia for the year ending June 30, 1922, was 120,191,347 dollars, and of exports 117,835,117 dollars. The steamship lines trading with the port are classified for the year 1921 as follows:—Regular sailings, 57 lines; occasional sailings, 22 lines; coast-wise, 10 lines; oil, 8 lines; and local and inland, 12 lines. Arrivals and sailings of vessels engaged in the foreign trade numbered 2,897, with a tonnage of 12,716,721, while 5,386 vessels arrived from and sailed to coast-wise ports with a tonnage of 10,640,748. Of the vessels arriving from foreign ports, 1,058 were American. In 1921 Philadelphia exported 65,039 tons of anthracite coal valued at 671,612 dollars, and 613,742 tons of bituminous coal valued at 4,399,230 dollars. In 1920, the aggregate length of all tracks of steam railroads, including yard tracks, sidings and spurs, was 69,676.25 miles, and the total of all tracks operated by electric railways, 4,582 miles.

Statistics on June 30, 1922, of banks and banking institutions are:—

	No.	Amount of Deposits	Total Assets	Deposit Accounts
		Dollars	Dollars

RHODE ISLAND.

Constitution and Government.—The earliest settlers in the region which now forms the State of Rhode Island were colonists from Massachusetts who had been driven forth on account of their non-acceptance of the prevailing religious beliefs. The first of the settlements was made in 1636; and their numbers and importance quickly increased, settlers of every creed being welcomed. In 1647 a patent was granted for the government of the settlements, and on July 8, 1663, a charter was executed recognising the settlers as forming a body corporate and politic by the name of the English Colony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations. On May 29, 1790, the State accepted the Federal Constitution and entered the Union as one of the 13 original States. The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. The Senate has 39 members, besides the Lieutenant-Governor who is ex officio President of the Senate. The House of Representatives consists of 100 members. Every citizen, 21 years of age, who has resided in the State for 2 years, and is duly registered, is qualified to vote for any State officer.

Governor.—William S. Flynn, 1923–25 (8,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—J. Fred Parker.

The State is represented in the Federal Congress by 2 Senators and 3 Representatives.

The State is divided into 5 counties and 39 cities and towns. The State Capital is Providence.

Area, Population, Education.—Area 1,248 square miles, of which nearly 181 square miles are water. Census population on January 1, 1920, 604,397. Population of census years:—

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1820	79,457	3,602	83,059	76.6
1900	419,464	9,092	428,556	407.0
1905	470,785	9,993	480,728	455.4
1910	533,081	9,529	542,610	508.5
1915	584,365	11,621	595,986	558.5
1920	594,361	10,036	604,397	566.4

In 1920 the population by sex and birth was —

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	292,131	5,096	238	59	297,524
Female	301,849	4,940	33	51	306,873
Total	593,980	10,036	271	110	604,397

The foreign-born whites in 1920 numbered 173,499 (28·3 per cent. of the total population of the State), of whom 25,782 (14·9 per cent.) were English, 5,692 (3·3 per cent.) Scottish, 22,253 (12·8 per cent.) Irish, 7,525 (4·3 per cent.) English Canadian, 28,887 (16·6 per cent.) French Canadian, 32,241 (18·6 per cent.) Italian, and 3,126 (1·8 per cent.) German. The chief cities are Providence, which (1920) had a population of 237,595; Pawtucket, 64,248; Woonsocket, 43,496; Newport, 30,255; Warwick, 13,481; West Warwick, 15,461; Central Falls, 24,174; Cranston, 29,407; E. Providence, 21,793. The urban population in 1920 was 97·5 per cent. of the whole, and the Negro population 1·7 per cent. In 1920 there were 15,257 births in the State, 8,689 deaths, and 6,737 marriages. The death rate in cities in 1920 was 14·4, and in rural districts 13·00 per 1,000 of population.

The principal religious bodies are Catholic, Baptist, Protestant Episcopal, Congregational, and Methodist.

In 1921 the 2,184 public elementary schools had 2,678 teachers and 96,190 enrolled pupils; 188 high schools had 424 teachers and 9,617 pupils. Total expenditure on education 6,320,132 dollars. The State maintains a College of Education with 35 teachers and 483 female students (1922), and an Agricultural and Mechanic Arts College with 38 teachers and 374 students (1921). The Brown University at Providence, founded in 1764, is under Baptist control. In 1922-23 it had 88 professors and teachers, and 1,668 students, male and female.

Finance and Defence.—For the year 1921 the receipts and payments were to the following amounts:—

	Dollars
Cash on hand January 1, 1921	1,397,428
Receipts during 1921	6,827,164
Total	8,224,592
Payments during 1921	6,801,680
Cash on hand Jan. 1, 1922	1,422,912

The net bonded debt of the State in January, 1922, amounted to 9,162,971 dollars. The assessed value of the property within the State in 1922 was as follows:—Real property, 642,067,036 dollars; personal property, 406,274,481 dollars; total, 1,048,341,517 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 50 officers and 1,138 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Rhode Island is a manufacturing State, though there is a little farming. In 1920 it had 4,083 farms with an area of 331,600 acres, of which 132,855 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 33,636,766 dollars.

According to the Federal census returns of manufacturing establishments in the State in 1919, the capital invested in manufacturing industries amounted to 594,337,000 dollars; the establishments numbered 2,466; their proprietors or firm members, 2,124; clerks, &c., 14,223, who earned 13,014,000 dollars, and wage-earners, 139,665, who earned 137,495,000 dollars; the materials used in the year were valued at 415,989,000 dollars, and the output at 747,323,000 dollars.

The dyeing and finishing of textiles with an average of 7,928 wage-earners and an output of 16,300,783 dollars in 1914, rank fourth compared with other industries of the State.

Rhode Island ranks fifth among the States in the production of cotton goods, third in woollen and worsted goods, sixth in silk and silk goods, and and fifteenth in hosiery and knit goods. On August 31, 1921, there were 2,766,428 active spindles in the State consuming 212,199 bales of cotton.

The manufacture of rubber and elastic goods is also an important industry. At Pawtucket during the close of the eighteenth century were established the first cotton spinning works in the United States.

Rhode Island has deposits of graphite, lime, and building stone.

On June 30, 1922, there were 17 national banks in the State, 3 state banks, with 1 branch, 14 mutual savings banks, and 2 branches, 12 trust companies and 15 branches. The savings banks had 182,746 depositors with 120,842,589 dollars to their credit, being 661 dollars to each depositor.

Railways.—In 1921 the railroads within the State comprised 211 miles single track steam and 298 miles single track of electric railway.

There is a British, Italian, Portuguese, and Guatemalan Vice-Consul at Providence.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Government.—South Dakota was admitted into the Union on November 2, 1889. Full rights of suffrage are enjoyed by all persons over 21 years of age who are citizens of the United States, and who have resided in the United States for one year, in South Dakota for six months, in the county for thirty days, and in the election precinct for ten days, immediately preceding any election.

Legislative power is vested in a Senate and a House of Representatives; but to the people is reserved the right that not less than 5 per cent. of the electors may (1) propose measures which the legislature shall enact and submit to a vote of the general body of electors; (2) demand a referendum in respect of laws enacted by the legislature, before such laws take effect, save in cases of urgency. The Senate consists of not less than 25 and not more than 45 members, and the House of Representatives of not less than 75, nor more than 135 members.

Amendments to the Constitution must be sanctioned by the direct vote of the people, at the first general election after such amendments have been approved by a majority of the members elected to each House of the legislature.

Governor.—W. H. McMaster, 1923-25 (3,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Charles A. Burkhardt.

The wool-clip in 1921 amounted to 18,600,000 pounds of wool.

Texas ranks second among the States in the production of quicksilver and petroleum. Of the latter, 103,332,000 barrels were produced in 1921, valued at 175,000,000 dollars. In 1920 Texas produced 21,667,407,000 cubic feet of natural gas, valued at 8,081,942 dollars. Coal is also produced (1,607,143 tons in 1920). Other mineral products are salt, cement, gypsum, granite, sandstone, and limestone. In 1920 the amount of quicksilver produced was 3,436 flasks (of 75 pounds) valued at 273,712 dollars.

In 1919 there were in the State 5,724 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 585,776,000 dollars, 23,389 proprietors, firm members and salaried employees, and 107,522 wage-earners, who earned, in the year, 116,404,000 dollars. The cost of material used in the year was 701,171,000 dollars, and the value of the output was 999,096,000 dollars.

A large trade passes through the port of Galveston, which is by far the most important outlet for the cotton grown in the United States, and as a commercial port it is now second only to New York. Imports in 1922 (year ending June 30), 18,943,620 dollars; exports, 402,337,575 dollars. A permanent causeway over 2 miles in length, to connect Galveston with the mainland, was opened to traffic in May, 1912. The level of the town has been raised so as to protect it from storms. The steam railways in the State (December 31, 1921) have a total mileage of 16,124 miles, valued at 466,040,807 dollars. There are 989 miles of electric inter-urban railway in active operation in Texas and 472 miles are under construction or proposed. There are also 91 miles of inter-urban lines operated by gasoline power.

There are 1,047 miles of navigable water in the rivers of Texas. The long coast line with its good harbour facilitates traffic by sea.

British Consul at Galveston.—J. E. Bell.

There is also a vice-consul at Galveston.

UTAH.

Constitution and Government.—Utah, which had been acquired by the United States during the Mexican war, was, in 1847, settled by Mormons, and on Sept. 9, 1850, organised as a Territory. It was admitted as a State into the Union on Jan. 4, 1896.

The Legislature consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives; but the Constitution provides for the initiation of any desired legislation by the legal voters or such number of them as may be determined by law, and such voters may require any law passed by less than a two-thirds vote of each House of the Legislature to be submitted to the voters of the State before coming into effect.

The Senate (in part renewed every two years) consists of 20 members, elected for four years; the House of Representatives has 55 members elected for two years. Qualified as electors are all citizens, male or female, who, not being idiots, insane or criminals have resided one year in the State, four months in the county, and 60 days in the precinct in which the election is held.

Governor.—Chas. R. Mabey, 1921-25 (6,000 dollars.)

Secretary of State.—H. E. Crockett.

There are 28 counties in the State. The Capital is Salt Lake City.

Area and Population.—Area, 84,990 square miles, of which 2,806 square miles are water. The area of the Indian reservations in 1921 was 2,389 square miles, and the population, 1,559 Indians.

Census population on January 1, 1920, 449,396.

The population at the date of each of four Federal censuses was :—

Years	White	Coloured	Total	Per Sq. Mile	Years	White	Coloured	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1890	205,925	4,854	210,779	2.6	1910	366,583	6,768	373,351	4.5
1900	272,465	4,234	276,749	3.4	1920	441,901	7,495	449,396	5.5

In 1920 the population by sex and race was :—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	227,232	831	2,543	1,442	232,051
Female	214,669	612	795	1,269	217,345
Total	441,901	1,443	3,338	2,711	449,396

Of the total in 1920, 56,455 (12.6 per cent.) were foreign-born whites, of whom 14,836 (26.0 per cent.) were English, 3,589 (6.4 per cent.) German, 3,029 (5.4 per cent.) Greek, 6,073 (10.8 per cent.) Swedes, 1,207 (2.1 per cent.) Irish, 6970 (12.3 per cent.) Danes, and 3,225 (5.7 per cent.) Italian. In 1914, 3,387 immigrants arriving at United States ports gave Utah as their destination. Of these 934 were Anglo-Saxon, 908 Latin, 136 Slav, 768 Greeks, and the others were Jews, Mongolians, or cosmopolitan.

Of the total population in 1920, 48.0 per cent. were urban and 0.3 per cent. Negro. The largest city is Salt Lake City with a population of 118,110 according to the census of 1920. Ogden in 1920 had 32,804 inhabitants, and Provo, 10,303.

Latter-Day Saints form about 75 per cent. of the Church membership of the State. There are Catholics, Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Christian Scientists, and Congregationalists in small numbers.

Instruction.—In 1920 the percentage of illiteracy in the population was only 1.9, the number being 6,264. School attendance for 20 weeks annually (10 consecutive), in city districts 30 weeks (10 consecutive), is compulsory on children from 8 to 16 years of age. Where high schools are established attendance for 30 weeks is required of those under 18 who have not completed a high school course, unless it is found desirable to excuse them from attendance to enter employment. Those so excused to enter employment are required to attend part-time schools where the number is sufficient to warrant the establishment of the schools.

For the school year ending June 30, 1921, the total expenditures for elementary and secondary education amounted to 10,768,859 dollars, of which 2,999,878 dollars was for buildings and sites, and 4,986,874 dollars was for salaries of teachers. During the same year there were enrolled 103,720 pupils in the elementary schools and 19,707 in the high schools. There were 3,808 teachers, of which number 635 were in the high schools.

The University of Utah (1850), Salt Lake City, during the school year 1921-1922, had 154 instructors and 2,639 regular students in residence, not including an enrollment of 1,251 during the summer quarter and 1,787 in extension work. The Agricultural College of Utah, Logan (1890), during the same year, had 79 instructors, 716 regular students, 481 Government vocational students, and 776 extension students. The Mormon Church maintains the Brigham Young University at Provo (1875), with 64 instructors, 593 college students, and 274 secondary students; the Brigham Young College, Logan (1878), with 34 instructors, 64 college students, and 497 secondary students; the Weber Normal College, Ogden, with 39 instructors, 45 college students, and 547 secondary students; the Dixie Normal College, St. George, with 20 instructors, 27 college students, and 332 secondary and special students; and the Snow Normal College, Ephraim, with 15 instructors, 45 college students, and 290 secondary students. The St. Mary's Academy, Salt Lake City, and the Sacred Heart Academy, Ogden, are well-organised Catholic schools. Schools of other denominations also are maintained in different parts of the State.

Finance and Defence.—For year ending November 30, 1921, the revenue and expenditure were :—

	Dollars
Cash on hand, Nov. 30, 1920	1,614,772
Receipts, 1920-21	11,883,061
Total	13,497,833
Total disbursements, 1920-21	12,083,993
Cash on hand, December 1, 1921	1,413,840

The bonded debt of the State on November 30, 1920, amounted to 3,435,000 dollars.

The assessed valuation of real property in 1921 was 361,754,351 dollars, of personal property, 172,217,958 dollars, and other property, 182,973,847 dollars; total, 716,946,156 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 43 officers and 613 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—The area of unappropriated and unserved lands within the State on June 30, 1921, was 27,038,183 acres, of which 13,047,079 acres were surveyed and 13,991,104 acres unsurveyed. The State contained 7,421,191 acres of state forest in 1921. In 1920 it had 25,662 farms with a total area of 5,050,410 acres, of which 1,715,380 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 341,274,728 dollars.

In 1922 the chief crops were wheat, 5,682,000 bushels; oats, 3,354,000 bushels; potatoes, 4,137,000 bushels; hay, 1,459,000 tons. Maize, barley, and rye are also grown. Much attention is paid to vegetables and fruit trees. There is a considerable live-stock industry. On January 1, 1921, the numbers were: horses and mules 148,000, milch cows 108,000, other cattle 473,000, sheep 2,245,000, swine 103,000. The wool-clip (1921) yielded 16,500,000 pounds of wool.

The State is unique in the diversity of its metal production, particularly of precious and semi-precious metals. In 1921 the principal minerals were gold (91,636 ounces, valued at 1,894,300 dollars), silver (14,028,661 ounces), copper (45,831,959 pounds), and coal (4,000,000 tons). Other products are manganese ores, gypsum, petroleum, sulphur, zinc, and salt.

In 1919 there were 1,160 manufacturing establishments employing 3,150 salaried officials, who earned 5,680,000 dollars, and 18,868 wage-earners, who earned 21,455,000 dollars. Their aggregate capital amounted to 140,785,000 dollars; cost of material in a year 110,154,000 dollars; value of output 156,933,000 dollars.

There are no navigable streams, but singularly good facilities for transportation. In 1921 the State had 2,160 miles of main line, the principal railways being the Denver and Rio Grande (762 miles), the Oregon Short Line (242), the Central Pacific (273), the Union Pacific (75), the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake railway (503), Western Pacific (122 miles).

There were also about 470 miles of electric railway in 1921.

On June 30, 1922, there were 3 strictly savings banks in the State with 46,292 depositors, who had to their credit 15,757,720 dollars, being 340.4 dollars to each depositor. There were 94 other banks who accept deposits with approximately 170,000 depositors, who had to their credit 47,500,820 dollars.

VERMONT.

Government.—Vermont was admitted into the Union as a State on February 18, 1791. The Constitution in force at the time of admission was that of 1786. In 1793 a new Constitution was adopted which, with amendments made in 1828, 1836, 1850, 1870, 1883, and 1913, is still in force. The State legislature consists of a Senate of 30 members and a House of Representatives of 248. Electors are all citizens of the United States with certain residential qualifications.

The State sends two Senators and two Representatives to the United States Congress.

Governor.—Redfield Proctor, 1923–25 (3,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Harry A. Black.

The seat of the State Executive is at Montpelier. The State is divided into fourteen counties.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 9,564 square miles, of which 440 square miles are water. Census population on January 1, 1920, 352,428. Population at four census years was as follows:—

Years.	White. ¹	Negro.	Total.	Per Sq. Mile.
1880	331,229	1,057	332,286	36.4
1900	342,815	826	343,641	37.7
1910	354,835	1,621	356,456	39.0
1920	351,856	572	352,428	38.6

Including Asiatics and Indians.

The population in 1920 according to sex and race was:—

--	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	178,504	320	15	15	178,854
Female	173,313	252	—	9	173,574
Total 1920 . .	351,817	572	15	24	352,428

The State contains a very high proportion of English. In 1920 the foreign-born white population numbered 44,526, or 12.6 per cent. of the total population of the State. Of these, 14,181 (31.8 per cent.) were Canadian French, 10,687 (24 per cent.) Canadian English, 2,884 Irish, 2,197 English, 1,854 Scottish, and 4,067 (9.1 per cent.) Italian. The largest cities are Burlington, with a population in 1920 of 22,779; Rutland, 14,954; Barre, 10,008. Of the population in 1920, 31.2 per cent. were urban and 0.2 per cent. Negro.

The religious denominations are: Roman Catholic, Congregational, Methodist, Baptist, and Protestant Episcopal, in the order given.

School attendance during the full school term is compulsory for children from 6 to 16 years of age. No child under 16 who has not completed the 9-year school-course may be employed in any railway, factory, mine, or quarry work, or as messenger during school hours. In 1922 the 2,230 public schools had 2,971 teachers and 63,439 enrolled pupils. The University of Vermont (1800) had, in October, 1922, 135 instructors and 1,044 students; Middlebury College (1800) had 43 instructors and 538 students; Norwich University (1834) had 24 instructors and 268 students.

From March 1, 1921, to February 28, 1922, the number of persons receiving aid from the towns was 5,517, and on January 1, 1922, the number of persons in State institutions was as follows: House of correction, 114; State prison, 243; hospital for insane, 782; school for feeble-minded, 167; industrial school, 242.

Finance and Defence.—The revenue and expenditure for the year ending June 30, 1922, were:—

	Dollars
Cash balance July 1, 1921	2,022,932
Receipts, 1921-22	5,090,430
Total	7,113,362
Disbursements, 1921-22	5,776,852
Cash balance July 1, 1922	1,336,510

The assessed value of real property in 1922 was 193,889,622 dollars, and of personal property, 63,492,997 dollars.

The National Guard on July 1, 1922, had 72 officers and 1,162 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture is the most important occupation within the State. In 1920 the State contained 29,075 farms with a total area of 4,235,811 acres, of which 1,691,595 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 222,736,620 dollars. In 1916 the rural population was 52 per cent. of the total population.

The chief agricultural crop is hay (1,273,000 tons in 1922), but cereals are still grown in large quantities; in 1922 the yield of oats was 3,132,000 bushels; of maize, 3,444,000 bushels; wheat, 189,000 bushels; and barley, 290,000 bushels. The production of potatoes in 1922 was 3,000,000 bushels; apples and maple sugar and syrup are important.

Cattle raising, especially of milk cows, is one of the chief agricultural pursuits. In 1920 Vermont had 435,480 cattle on farms, or nearly one-third of all the cattle in New England. The value of live-stock on Vermont farms in 1920 was 28,502,803 dollars. Vermont leads all the States of the Union in pounds of butter per capita, pounds of butter per farm, pounds of butter per cow, and in ratio of dairy cows to population. On January 1, 1921, Vermont had 275,000 milch cows, 186,000 other cattle, 84,000 horses, 91,000 sheep, and 105,000 swine. In 1921 the wool-clip yielded 399,000 lb.

The forests of the State provide material for extensive timber and lumber trade, and flourishing wood-pulp manufacture. Other industries are flour-milling, foundry and machine-shop work and the manufacture of hosiery and other woollen goods. According to the returns of the Federal census of manufactures in 1919, there were in Vermont 1,790 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 134,314,391 dollars, paying wages to 33,491 wage-earners, to the annual amount of 34,084,000 dollars, and salaries to 3,550 salaried employees to the amount of 7,345,000 dollars, using raw material costing 95,172,581 dollars, and giving an output valued at 168,108,072 dollars (an increase of 118.3 per cent. over that of 1914).

The statistics of the more important industries in 1920 are shown as follows:—

Industries	Capital	Wage-earners	Cost of material	Value of output
	Dollars		Dollars	Dollars
Cotton goods	4,477,985	1,142	2,127,285	4,383,835
Foundry and machine-shop products	3,677,499	1,203	1,399,036	3,343,596
Lumber and timber products	6,997,765	4,459	2,973,659	8,361,641
Machine tools	11,041,881	2,213	2,927,135	9,609,745
Marble and stone work	13,961,955	5,790	6,165,841	17,425,011
Paper and wood pulp	15,314,137	1,975	6,654,300	10,862,858

The marble quarries, first opened in 1785, produce half of the marble of the United States. There are also granite quarries; slate and fibrous talc are likewise found. Metals occur only in small quantities.

There are (1921) 1,077 miles of steam railway in the State chiefly managed by the Central Vermont, Boston and Maine, and the Rutland. There are also electric railways with 103 miles of track in 1921. The lakes, rivers, and canals are also used for traffic with other States and with Canada.

On June 30, 1922, there were 20 mutual savings banks and 39 savings banks and trust companies in the State with 255,859 depositors, having to their credit 125,839,771 dollars, being 522.02 dollars to each depositor.

VIRGINIA.

Constitution and Government.—The first English Charter for settlements in America was that granted by James I. in 1606 for the planting of colonies in Virginia. The State was one of the thirteen original States in the Union. On the outbreak of the civil war in 1861, Virginia, after long hesitation, decided to join the seceding States a course objected to by the western portion of the State, which in 1863 was admitted into the Union as West Virginia.

The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Delegates, the former containing not more than 40 nor less than 33 members and the latter not more than 100 nor less than 90. Senators are elected for 4 years. The Senate contains 40 members. The House of Delegates contains 100 members, elected for 2 years. Qualified as electors are (with few exceptions) all citizens 21 years of age, resident in the State for 2 years and in the county, city, town, or precinct for which the election is held for 30 days, who have paid their State poll-taxes and registered.

The State sends to the Federal Congress 2 Senators and 10 Representatives.

Governor.—E. Lee Trinkle, 1922-26 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of the Commonwealth.—B. O. James.

The State Capital is Richmond.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 42,627 square miles, including 2,365 square miles water area. Census population on January 1, 1920, 2,309,187. Population for four Federal census years :—

Years.	White. ¹	Negro.	Total.	Per Sq. Mile.
1860	1,047,411	548,907	1,596,318	24.8
1900	1,193,162	660,722	1,854,184 *	46.1 *
1910	1,396,516	671,096	2,061,612	51.2
1920	1,619,170	690,017	2,309,187	57.4

* The area having been reduced by the separation of West Virginia.

In 1920 the population by sex and race was :—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total

Total	1,617,909	690,017	437	824	2,309,187

Of the total population in 1920, 30,785, or 1.3 per cent., were foreign-born whites, of whom 3,752 (12.2 per cent.) were English, 1,732 Irish, 2,802 German, 5,421 (17.6 per cent.) Russian, and 1,327 Scotch.

The urban population in 1920 formed 29·2 per cent. and the Negro 29·9 per cent. of the whole. The population, according to the census of 1920, of the principal cities was:—

Cities	Population	Cities	Population	Cities	Population
Richmond . .	171,667	Portsmouth .	54,387	Newport News	35,596
Norfolk . .	115,777	Lynchburg .	30,070	Danville . .	21,539
Roanoke . .	50,842	Petersburg .	31,002	Alexandria .	18,060

The principal churches are: Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, Roman Catholic, and Protestant Episcopal.

Elementary instruction is free, and for illiterate children compulsory between the ages of 8 and 12. No child under 12 may be employed in any mining or manufacturing work. White and coloured children must not be taught in the same school.

In 1922 the 15,151 elementary schools had 14,313 teachers and 512,797 enrolled pupils: the 292 public high schools, 1,491 teachers and 32,872 pupils. In 1922 the 4 public normal schools had 243 teachers and 4,793 students. Expenditure on education, 1921-22, 25,521,186 dollars. Statistics of the more important institutions for higher instruction (for men) are (1921-22):—

Founders	Name and Place of College	Professors, etc.	Students
1693	William and Mary Coll., Williamsburg (State)	36	684

The bonded debt of the State amounts (October 1, 1919) to 22,912,216 dollars. The assessed valuation of property for 1919 was: Real estate, 797,414,198 dollars; personal, 535,859,124 dollars; total, 1,333,273,322 dollars. Total in 1918, 1,270,149,000 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, had 97 officers and 1,801 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—In 1920 there were 186,242 farms in Virginia with an area of 18,561,112 acres, of which 9,460,492 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1921 was 1,017,072,306 dollars. In 1922 the chief crops were maize, 53,312,000 bushels; wheat, 10,375,000 bushels; oats, 3,320,000 bushels; potatoes, 16,585,000 bushels. The tobacco area was 209,000 acres, yielding 156,750,000 pounds of tobacco valued at 37,620,000 dollars. The cotton crop for 1922 covered 53,000 acres and yielded 25,000 bales, valued at 2,875,000 dollars. The area of national forest lands (June 30, 1921) was 350,362 acres.

The domestic animals on January 1, 1922, were 300,000 horses, 96,000 mules, 426,000 milch cows, 448,000 other cattle, 328,200 sheep, and 805,000 swine. The wool-clip in 1921 yielded 1,558,000 pounds of wool.

The State has valuable fisheries, especially of oysters.

Virginia has considerable mineral wealth, coal being the most important. In 1920 the output comprised coal, 11,378,606 short tons (45,446,000 dollars); coke, 1,027,788 short tons; granite and other stone; lime; clay products; iron ores, 74,021 long tons. The production of pig-iron (1920) amounted to 390,372 long tons and was valued at 16,086,946 dollars. In 1920 the amount of capital invested in mining was 57,035,775 dollars, while the total output was valued at 29,363,449 dollars.

There are extensive ironworks in the State, and flour-milling, manufactures of paper and pulp, trunks and bags, glass, and many other articles are prosperous. The manufacture of tobacco and of cigars, &c., is an important industry. The Virginia cotton mills consume much more cotton than the State produces. On August 31, 1921, there were 585,650 active spindles, and the consumption of cotton was 105,352 bales. According to the Federal census of manufactures in 1919 there were in the State 5,603 manufacturing establishments, with an aggregate capital of 463,644,000 dollars, employing 13,926 salaried officials and 119,352 wage-earners; wages amount annually to 120,006,000 dollars: the cost of raw materials used amounted to 371,541,000 dollars, and the value of the output was 643,512,000 dollars.

In 1921 there were 4,703 miles of steam railway in the State; and 583 miles of electric railway. The telegraph and telephone companies had 20,193 miles of line in 1921.

The Federal Reserve Bank for the Fifth District is located at Richmond. There are British Vice-Consuls at Newport News, Norfolk, and Richmond.

WASHINGTON.

Government.—Washington, formerly part of Oregon, was created a Territory in 1853, and was admitted into the Union as a State on February 22, 1889. The Legislature consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives, the latter composed of not less than 63 nor more than 99 members (actually 97 in 1921), the number of Senators being not more than half nor less than one-third of that of members of the House of Representatives (actually 42 in 1921). Senators are elected for 4 years, half their number retiring every 2 years; members of the House of Representatives are elected for 2 years.

Qualified as voters are (with some exceptions) all citizens 21 years of age who have lived in the State 1 year, in the county 90 days, in the city, town, ward, or precinct where they vote 30 days, and who can read and speak English.

Governor.—Louis F. Hart, 1921-1925 (6,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—J. Grant Hinkle.

To the United States Congress the State sends 2 Senators and (since 1911) 5 Representatives.

The State contains 39 counties. The State capital is Olympia.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 69,127 square miles, of which 2,291 square miles are water area. Census population on January 1, 1921, 1,356,621. Population in four federal census years :—

Years	White	Ooloured	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1880	67,190	7,917	75,116	1.1
1900	496,304	21,799	518,103	7.8
1910	1,109,111	32,879	1,141,990	17.1
1920	1,319,777	36,844	1,356,621	20.3

In 1920 the population by sex and birth was :—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . . .	711,693	3,957	14,499	4,552	734,701

Total 1920	1,319,777	6,883	20,900	9,061	1,356,621

The foreign-born white population in 1920 numbered 250,055, constituting 18·4 per cent. of the total population. Of this number 42,988 (17·2 per cent.) came from Canada, 34,793 (13·9 per cent.) from Sweden, 30,304 (12·1 per cent.) from Norway, 22,315 (8·9 per cent) from Germany, 20,806 (8·3 per cent.) from England and 10,813 (4·3 per cent.) from Italy.

There are 18 Indian reservations with a total area (1921) of 2,655 square miles, the largest being The Colville, which contains 1,051,488 acres; and a total population (1921) of 8,150.

The principal cities are Seattle, with a population, according to the census of 1920, of 315,312 inhabitants; Tacoma, 96,965; Spokane, 104,437; Bellingham, 25,585; Everett, 27,644; Walla Walla, 15,503; Yakima, 18,539; Aberdeen, 15,337; Vancouver, 12,637; Hoquiam, 10,058; and Olympia, the State capital, 7,795. Of the total population in 1920, 55·2 per cent. were urban and 0·5 per cent. Negro.

The prevailing forms of religion in the State are Catholic, Methodist, Presbyterian, Lutheran, Baptist, Disciples, and Congregationalist. In the public schools formal religious teaching, or regular reading from the Bible, is not permitted, but moral training is given and moral principles inculcated.

Education is given free, and compulsory for children from 8 to 15 years of age. In 1922, 2,390 elementary schools had 8,575 teachers and were attended by 247,212 children, and the 496 high schools had 2,094 teachers and 54,588 pupils, the 3 State normal schools had (1921) 141 teachers and 3,805 students. The total expenditure for the school year 1922 was 28,571,968 dollars.

The University of Washington, founded 1861, near Seattle, had, in 1922, 262 professors and teachers and 5,410 students; and the College of Puget Sound founded in 1903 at Tacoma had 23 professors and teachers and 465 students. The State College at Pullman for science and agriculture, founded 1890, had 164 professors or teachers and 2,212 students. Gonzaga College (R. C.), founded 1887, at Spokane, has 70 professors and 721 students; Whitman College (Cong.), founded 1859, at Walla Walla, has 38 professors and 449 students. The various private schools of the State had 18,517 students enrolled.

Finance and Defence.—For the biennium ending September 30, 1922, the revenue and expenditure were as follows :—

	Dollars.
Balance in hand, Oct. 1, 1920	5,657,578
Receipts, October 1, 1920–September 30, 1922	75,671,728
Total	81,329,306
Disbursements, October 1, 1920–September 30, 1922	73,020,173
Balance, September 30, 1922	8,309,133

The assessed valuation of real property in September 1922, amounted to 790,502,410 dollars, and of personal property to 215,585,003 dollars. The valuation of railway roads was, 333,610,540 dollars; electric railways, 20,841,135 dollars; telegraph, 919,465 dollars. The total bonded debt on September 30, 1922, amounted to 12,500,000 dollars.

The Federal Government has large dry docks and naval dépôt at Bremerton, on Puget Sound. Garrisons of the regular army are maintained at Tacoma, Spokane, Seattle, Vancouver, and three coast defence points at the entrance to Puget Sound and one at Bremerton Navy Yard. On June 30, 1921, the National Guard consisted of 138 officers and 2,388 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture is successfully pursued in the State, not least in the arid region east of the Cascade Mountains, where there are extensive systems of irrigation.

In 1920 there were 66,238 farms with an acreage of 13,244,720, of which 7,129,343 acres or 53·8 per cent. were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 1,017,429,848 dollars, and the value of all production 227,212,008 dollars. The wheat yield in 1922 was 32,444,000 bushels; barley, 1,813,000 bushels; oats, 7,959,000 bushels; corn, 2,747,000 bushels. In Pacific coast region, as well as in the eastern counties, fruit of various sorts is produced in vast quantities. In 1922, the domestic animals were 214,603 horses, 19,381 mules, 192,900 milch cows, 220,573 other cattle, 418,101 sheep and goats, 70,273 swine. The wool-clip in 1921 amounted to 4,421,000 pounds of wool. The fruit-growing area has doubled within the last two years, and fruit-canning has become an industry in the State. The national forest-lands of the State had an area (1921) of 9,939,712 acres.

Coal is mined in large quantities: 2,267,000 short tons in 1921. Other mineral products are gold, silver, and copper. The quarries yielded granite, sandstone, marble, and limestone. Cement is produced. Lead and zinc are worked; antimony, arsenic, molybdenum, tungsten, and platinum are found.

In 1919 the manufacturing industries had 4,918 establishments with an aggregate capital of 574,235,183 dollars; they employed 13,356 salaried officials who earned 30,374,000 dollars; and 132,928 wage-earners, who earned 194,968,000 dollars; they used raw material costing 443,178,000 dollars, and gave an output valued at 809,622,984 dollars. They are connected chiefly with the products of the forests, agriculture, grazing, fisheries, and mining.

The steam railways within the State had, in 1921, 5,586 miles (main track), besides electric railway (1,034 miles in 1921). The principal railways operating in the State are the Northern Pacific Railway Company and subsidiary companies, Great Northern Railway Company, Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation Company, the Bellingham and Northern Railway, the Columbia and Puget Sound Railroad Company, the Tacoma Eastern Railroad Company and the Spokane and British Columbia Railroad Company; the Chicago, Milwaukee, and St. Paul Railway; the Union Pacific, and the North Coast Railways each have a terminus at Seattle.

Steamers ply on the Columbia and other rivers. Several lines of steamers sail regularly to ports on the Pacific coast, to Japan and China, the Philippines, and other eastern countries, and to Europe. At the Puget Sound ports the traffic facilities, both railway and shipping, are being multiplied.

In 1921, 48 domestic saving and loan associations had 59,459 depositors with total deposits 23,950,159 dollars, being 402·4 dollars to each depositor,

On September 6, 1921, there were 429 State and National Banks with total deposits amounting to 414,021,731 dollars.

There are British Vice-Consuls at Port Townsend, Gray's Harbour, Port Angeles, Seattle and Tacoma.

WEST VIRGINIA

Government.—In 1862, after the State of Virginia had seceded from the Union, the electors of the western portion ratified an ordinance providing for the formation of a new State, which was admitted into the Union on December 31, 1862, under the name of West Virginia, and whose first government began on June 20, 1863.

The Legislature consists of the Senate and the House of Delegates. The right to vote is given to every citizen (with necessary exceptions) 21 years of age and resident in the State one year and in the county sixty days prior to the election. The Senate is composed of 30 members elected for a term of four years in such a manner that half the Senate is renewed biennially. The House of Delegates consists of 94 members elected biennially.

Governor.—E. F. Morgan, 1921–25. (10,000 dollars.)

Secretary of State.—Houston G. Young.

The State is represented in the Federal Congress by two Senators elected by popular vote for 6 years and six Representatives chosen for 2 years, for the election of whom the State is divided into six congressional districts.

For local administration the State is divided into 55 counties. The State Capital is Charleston.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 24,170 square miles, of which 148 square miles are water area. The population, according to the census of 1920, is 1,463,701. Population in four Federal census years :—

Year	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per sq. mile	Year	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per sq. mile
1890	730,104	82,690	762,794	31.8	1910	1,156,946	64,173	1,221,119	50.8
1900	915,301	43,499	958,800	39.9	1920	1,377,356	86,345	1,463,701	60.9

In 1920 the population by sex and race was :—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . . .	715,869	47,129	98	4	763,100
Female . . .	661,366	39,216	16	3	700,601
Total . . .	1,377,235	86,345	114	7	1,463,701

Of the total population in 1920, 61,906, or 4·2 per cent., were foreign-born whites, and of these 3,798 (6·1 per cent.) came from Germany, 1,459 from Ireland, 14,147 (22·9 per cent.) from Italy, 3,433 from England, 5,115 (8·3 per cent.) from Austria, 6,260 (10·1 per cent.) from Hungary, and 5,799 (9·4 per cent.) from Poland. Urban population was 25·2 per cent. and the Negro population 5·9 per cent. of the whole. In 1920 the population of the principal cities was: Wheeling, 56,208; Huntington, 50,177; Charleston, 39,608; Parkersburg, 20,050.

The most numerous denominations are Methodists, Baptists, Roman Catholics, and Presbyterians. Most of the denominations have colleges within the State.

Elementary education is free for all from 6 to 21 years of age, and school attendance for 20 weeks annually is compulsory for all children between the ages of 8 and 14 years. The public or free schools are non-sectarian. A rigid code of moral instruction is enforced, but no sectarian teaching is permitted. In 1921 the 7,480 public elementary schools had 347,841 enrolled pupils and 9,729 teachers, and 190 public high schools had 1,237 teachers and 20,236 pupils. The 6 public normal schools had 123 teachers and 2,262 students in 1917. Expenditure on education in 1921, 15,638,384 dollars.

The West Virginia University, founded in 1868, at Morgantown offers higher instruction free to all residents of the State, and at nominal fees to those from other States. In 1922 it had 169 instructors and 34 assistants, and 2,118 students (exclusive of summer school and short course students and extension courses). Bethany College (1841), under the control of the Christian Church, has 25 instructors and 396 students. West Virginia Wesleyan College (1890), a Methodist institution, has 28 instructors and 556 students.

Finance.—The State Fund revenue and expenditure for the year ending June 30, 1922, were as follows :—

	Dollars
Balance, June 30, 1921	2,730,006
Receipts, 1921-22	43,515,018
Total	46,245,024
Disbursements, 1921-22	29,138,829
Balance, June 30, 1922	17,106,195

The total bonded indebtedness of the State was 26,143,500 dollars on June 30, 1922. Of this amount 11,143,500 dollars were Virginia debt bonds, and 15,000,000 dollars were road bonds.

The assessed value of real property in 1921 was 879,083,110 dollars, and of personal property, 449,199,758 dollars, and of public utility property, 367,785,493 dollars.

Production and Industry.—In 1920 the State had 1,87,289 farms with an area of 9,569,790 acres, of which 5,520,308 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 496,439,617 dollars. The chief agricultural products in 1922 were wheat, 2,760,000 bushels, Indian corn, 20,536,000 bushels, oats, 4,600,000 bushels, hay, 1,037,000 tons, and potatoes, 4,851,000 bushels. The area under tobacco was 9,000 acres; the yield amounted to 7,425,000 pounds, valued at 1,634,000 dollars. Apples, peaches, plums, and grapes are grown. On January 1, 1921, the domestic animals were 184,000 horses, 13,000 mules, 245,000 milch cows, 366,000 other cattle, 728,000 sheep, and 425,000 swine. In 1921, the wool-clip from 469,000 sheep produced 2,300,000 pounds of wool.

West Virginia has extensive mining and quarrying industries, besides great resources in petroleum (8,003,000 barrels in 1921) and natural gas. The State ranks second for mineral production in the United States. The coal area extends over 17,280 square miles, and 71,200,000 short tons was the estimated output for 1921. The quarries yield sandstone and limestone.

In the State there are important leather industries. According to the census of manufactures of 1919, there were in West Virginia 2,785 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 339,190,000 dollars, employing 8,128 salaried officials who earned 17,686,000 dollars, and 83,086 wage-earners; wages in the year amounted to 101,840,000 dollars. The cost of the raw material used was 270,041,000 dollars, and the value of the output was 471,971,000 dollars.

In August, 1922, there were within the State 6,585 miles of steam railway (including 2,070 miles of sidings), besides 423 miles of electric railway track. The more important railway systems are the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore and Ohio, the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Kanawha and Michigan, the Western Maryland, the Coal and Coke, the Norfolk and Western, the Virginian, and the Monongahela Valley. The coal-fields in the west are well opened up by the Ohio and its tributaries, which provide some of the cheapest means of coal carriage in the world.

On June 30, 1921 there was one mutual savings bank with 7,050 depositors having 2,269,000 dollars to their credit, being 321.75 dollars to each depositor.

Of the total population in 1920, 47·3 per cent. were urban and 0·2 per cent. Negro.

The chief religious bodies are: Roman Catholic, Lutheran, Methodist, Congregationalist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Christian Science, Unitarian, and Seventh Day Adventist.

Education.—School attendance is compulsory for all children between the ages of 7 and 14 years, in cities for the entire school year, and in towns and villages for 6 months a year. "Where industrial or continuation schools are established, children between 14 and 17 who are regularly employed must attend such schools 8 hours per week. In 1920-21 the elementary schools had 14,326 teachers, and 417,585 enrolled pupils, the 405 public high schools had 3,369 teachers and 64,149 pupils. The 9 State normal schools had 359 teachers and 4,117 students.

The University of Wisconsin at Madison was established in 1848. It had, in 1922, 885 professors and instructors and 7,756 students. Instruction by correspondence was introduced in 1911, and in 1919-20 gave instruction to 15,554 students. A score of private colleges and academies have from 12 to 80 professors and instructors, with from 150 to 2,000 students.

The total expenditure for elementary, high and normal schools in 1920-21 was 43,692,484 dollars.

Finance and Defence.—For the year ended June 30, 1920, the receipts and disbursements of the State Government were to the following amounts:—

	Dollars
Balance June 30, 1919	7,558,647
Receipts for year, 1919-20	52,083,559
Total	59,642,206
Disbursements for year 1919-20	48,047,486
Balance June 30, 1920	11,594,720

On June 30, 1920, the bonded debt of the State amounted to 2,160,291 dollars.

On September 30, 1920, the assessed valuation of all property in the State was 4,570,698,530 dollars, of which 3,565,811,448 was on real estate and 1,004,887,082 on personal property.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 316 officers and 5,497 enlisted men.

Production, Industry, Communications.—Wisconsin is very largely an agricultural State. In 1920 the farms numbered 189,295, with a total area of 22,148,223 acres, of which 12,452,216 acres were improved land. The value of all farm property in 1920 was 2,677,282,997 dollars. There are over 2,000 new settlers annually. The chief crops are wheat, maize and other cereals, potatoes, sugar-beets, grasses, fruit and tobacco. The yield of maize in 1922 was 98,300,000 bushels; of wheat, 3,006,000 bushels; of oats, 101,558,000 bushels; of barley, 14,222,000 bushels, rye and buckwheat being also grown. The yield of potatoes was 40,672,000 bushels; of hay, 5,553,000 tons. The area under tobacco (1922) was 40,000 acres; the yield was 45,600,000 pounds. Fruits (large and small) are extensively cultivated. On January 1, 1921, the live-stock consisted of 674,000 horses, 3,000 mules, 1,828,000 milch cows, 1,478,000 other cattle, 632,000 sheep, and 2,236,000 swine. The wool-clip in 1921 amounted to 2,818,000 pounds of wool.

Zinc is the chief mineral product. Others are iron ore, pig-iron, granite, limestone and sandstone, natural rock cement, graphite, and mineral waters.

In 1919, when the last industrial census was taken, Wisconsin was the seventeenth state in the value of manufactured products. At that time there were 10,393 manufacturing establishments, with 263,949 wage-earners, 1,371,729,000 dollars capital employed, 288,441,000 dollars paid in wages and 1,127,275,000 dollars for materials. * The value of the manufactured product was 1,846,984,000 dollars.

On Jan. 1, 1921, there were 23,000 employers under the Workmen's Compensation Act, with 400,000 employees, while the value of the manufactured product in 1920 exceeded 1,700,000,000 dollars.

At the lake ports the shipments consist of grain and flour, coal, lumber, ore and (at Manitowoc, Milwaukee, Racine and Shetoygan) manufactured articles. There is, besides, at Milwaukee, a heavy passenger traffic.

In 1921 there were 7,553 miles of railroads operated in the State besides 761 miles of electric railway track. The leading railway lines are the Chicago and North-western, the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha and Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie. In 1919 there were 494 telephone companies with 144,097 miles of wire and 338,110 subscribers.

There are in the State 77,280 miles of road of all classes, of which 20,000 miles are improved by gravel, macadam, or other surface. There are 7,500 miles on the State trunk highway system on which from 7,000,000 to 10,000,000 dollars is spent annually for permanent construction.

On Jan. 1, 1921, there were 147 national banks with 22,495,000 dollars capital and 9,894,000 surplus, with 355,627,000 dollars in resources. On November 15, 1920, there were 836 State banks with 32,070,700 dollars capital, 11,251,654 dollars surplus, and 520,502,972 dollars in resources.

WYOMING.

Government.—Wyoming was admitted into the Union on July 10, 1890. The Legislature consists of a Senate of 25 members, elected for four years (about one-half retiring every two years), and a House of Representatives of 54 members elected for two years.

The suffrage extends to all citizens, male and female, who can read, and who are registered as voters and have resided in the State one year and in the county 60 days next preceding the election.

Governor.—W. R. Ross, 1923-1927 (6,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—William E. Chaplin.

The capital is Cheyenne.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 97,914 square miles, of which 320 square miles are water. Of the total, about 3,300 square miles are comprised within the Yellowstone National Park, which since 1872 has been reserved for public uses.

Census population on January 1, 1920, 194,402.

The Federal census results since 1890 show the population to have been as follows:—

Years	White	Coloured	Total	Per sq. mile	Years	White	Coloured	Total	Per sq. mile
1890	59,324	3,231	62,555	0.6	1910	140,318	5,617	145,965	1.5
1900	89,051	3,480	92,531	0.9	1920	190,146	4,256	194,402	2.0

In 1920 the population according to sex and race was:—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	107,501	863	1,280	715	110,359
Female. . . .	82,645	512	258	623	84,043
Total	190,146	1,375	1,538	1,343	194,402

In 1910 the foreign-born white population numbered 27,118, or 18.6 per cent. of the total population of the State. In 1920 the foreign-born white population numbered 25,255 (or 13.0 per cent. of the total), of whom 2,292 were Germans, 2,505 English (9.9 per cent.), 1,438 Canadians, 1,236 Greek, 956 Irish, 1,948 Italians, 1,439 Scotch, and 2,042 Swedish.

The Indian reservation within the State has (1921) an area of 2,901 square miles, and a population of 1,764.

Of the total population in 1920, 29.5 per cent. were urban, and 0.7 per cent. Negro. The largest towns are Cheyenne (capital) with 13,829 inhabitants, according to the census of 1920; Casper, with 11,447; Sheridan, with 9,175; Rock Springs, with 6,456; Laramie with 6,301.

The religious bodies with the most numerous membership are the Roman Catholic, Mormon, Protestant Episcopal, Methodists, and Presbyterians.

In October, 1920, the 1,477 public schools had 150 male and 1,800 female teachers, and 43,077 enrolled pupils (21,376 boys and 21,701 girls); the 88 high schools had 282 teachers and 4,476 pupils (1,841 boys and 2,635 girls). Teachers are trained in the normal school which is carried on in connection with the University of Wyoming, at Laramie, where there is also an agricultural college. This University was founded in 1887 and in 1921-22 had 60 professors and instructors and 548 students. Expenditure on education in the school year 1919-20 was 4,173,828 dollars.

Finance and Defence.—The cash receipts and disbursements of the State (exclusive of trust funds) for the biennium ending September 30, 1922, are given as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, October 1, 1920	2,120,348
Receipts for 1920-22	21,242,283
Total	23,362,631
Disbursements 1920-22	18,070,530
Balance, Sept. 30, 1922	5,292,101

On September 30, 1922 the bonded debt amounted to 3,801,000 dollars, and the assessed value of property in the State in 1921 to 438,272,300 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1921, consisted of 24 officers and 363 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Wyoming is semi-arid and agriculture is carried on by irrigation and by "dry farming." Irrigation is being carried out on a large scale. In 1921 there were 15,748 farms, with a total area of 11,809,351 acres, of which 2,102,005 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 334,410,590 dollars. Such crops as are grown consist of vegetables, cereals, and fruits. About one half the State is well fitted for grazing and for sheep runs. The wool-clip (1921) yielded 21,500,000 pounds of wool. The domestic animals on January 1st, 1921, were 189,000 horses, 80,000 milch cows and 720,000 other cattle, 3,250,000 sheep, and 57,000 swine.

In 1921, 8,677,978 acres in the State were covered with timber. The State has numerous fish hatcheries which stock the streams with trout, and also possesses the largest elk herds in the world.

Wyoming is largely a coal-producing State. The output of coal in 1921 was estimated at 7,400,000 short tons. Other mineral products are copper, gold, and gypsum. The quarries yield limestone and sandstone, besides phosphate rock. The output of petroleum was 19,221,800 barrels in 1921.

Manufactures are mostly confined to production for local consumption. In 1919 (according to Federal census results), the State had 576 industrial establishments; the capital invested in manufacturing industries was 82,288,000 dollars, the wage-earners numbered 6,634, wages paid amounted to 11,189,000 dollars, the materials used cost 42,251,000 dollars, and the output amounted to 81,445,000 dollars.

Wyoming has no navigable rivers. In 1921, the steam railways in the State had a length of 1,930 miles, the Union Pacific, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, and the Chicago and North-Western railways being the principal lines. There are also 22 miles of electric railway.

The system of stage route transportation is still common.

On June 30, 1921, there were in the State 3 savings banks whose deposits amounted to 1,706,000 dollars, number of depositors, 4,087, average to each depositor 417.42 dollars.

OUTLYING TERRITORIES.

ALASKA.

Government.—Alaska was purchased by the United States from Russia under the treaty of March 30, 1867, the purchase price having been 7,200,000 dollars. The Governor is appointed by the President of the United States for 4 years, and is assisted by a Surveyor-General, who is ex-officio Secretary of the Territory, and other officials.

By Act of Congress approved August 24, 1912, Alaska became a Territory, with a legislative assembly consisting of 8 senators and 16 representatives. Congress reserved to itself the right to legislate on certain subjects, so that the Territory is now governed conjointly by Congress at Washington and by its local legislative assembly. The first session of the legislature convened at Juneau, the capital, on March 3, 1913, and continued in session 60 days. Regular sessions are held biennially. Special sessions may be called by the governor.

Governor—Scott C. Bone, 1921–25 (7,000 dollars).

Area and Population.—The area of the territory is 590,884 square miles, and the census population from 1890 to 1920 is shown as follows:—

Year	Population	Per Sq. Mile	Year	Population	Per Sq. Mile
1890	32,052	0.05	1910	64,356	0.1
1900	63,592	0.1	1920	55,036	0.1

Of the population in 1920, 34,539 were males and 20,497 females; 27,883 were whites and 26,558 were Indians, 56 Chinese, 312 Japanese, and 128 Negroes. About 20,000 people, employed in mines, canneries, and railway construction, spend a few months a year in Alaska, but these are not included in the enumeration.

The largest town is Juneau, the seat of Government, which had (census of 1920) a population of 3,058; the second largest is Ketchikan with a population of 2,458; other towns are Anchorage, 1,856; Sitka, 1,175; Fairbanks, 1,155; Cordova, 955; Douglas, 919; Petersburg, 879; Nome, 852; Wrangell, 821; and Seward, 652. There are altogether 17 incorporated towns.

Instruction, Justice.—In Alaska many religious missions are at work, representing very diverse denominations: Russian Orthodox, Roman Catholic, Episcopalian, Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist, Congregational and others.

For the fiscal year ended JULY 30, 1922, there were 68 schools in Alaska with 3,608 enrolled pupils and 165 teachers. Total cost of instruction, 355,929 dollars. In 1920, 24.8 per cent. (26.5 per cent. in 1910) were illiterate.

For the administration of justice the territory is constituted as a judicial district with 4 subdivisions and 4 courts.

Finance.—In the territory of Alaska there is no provision for taxation of real or personal property, except in municipalities where real estate and personal property may be taxed 2 per cent. for municipal purposes only. The revenues are derived from licences to conduct businesses, a long list of which, with the cost of the respective licences, is prescribed by law.

For the year ended December 31, 1921, the revenue and expenditure were as follows:—

	Dollars.
Balance January 1, 1921	316,171
Receipts, 1921	563,474
Total	879,645
Disbursements, 1921	680,312
Balance December 31, 1921	199,333

The Territory has no funded debt.

Production and Industry.—In some parts of the territory the climate during the brief summer is not unsuitable for agricultural operations. There are agricultural experimental stations which are giving valuable demonstrations. In 1920 there were 364 farms with a total area of 90,652 acres, of which 5,736 acres was improved land. Total value of all farm property in 1920 was 1,808,641 dollars. Reindeer have been introduced from Siberia, and the industry is thriving. There were (in 1920) 92,823 reindeer in the country, valued at 2,238,562 dollars.

There are considerable timber resources, mostly of the spruce, hemlock and red and yellow cedar sort. The National forests in Alaska (June 30, 1921) had an area of 20,579,336 acres. In 1919 there were 147 industrial establishments, employing a total of 77,316 persons (6,575 wage-earners), having a capital of 64,949,000 dollars. The pulp manufacturing industry is becoming established, spruce being suitable for the purpose and abounding in large quantities.

The chief industries are seal and salmon fisheries, and mining. The sea-fisheries of the Pribilof Islands are under the charge of the Federal Department of Commerce. In 1921 the seal herd contained 581,453 animals.

The salmon fisheries are very valuable, and Government has provided for their preservation by securing legislative enactments for the construction and maintenance of hatcheries. The catch of salmon in 1921 totalled 37,905,591 (65,080,539 in 1920), and was valued at 20,986,584 dollars. In 1921 the salmon canneries employed 12,986 men. The capital invested was 33,246,292 dollars. Halibut, cod, herring, and whales are also caught, the herring and whales for the manufacture of oil and manure. In the fisheries in 1921 there were employed 15,070 persons. Total value of fish products in 1920, 41,492,124 dollars; in 1921, 24,085,867 dollars.

Gold is worked in South-East Alaska, where a low-grade ore is found; in the interior on the Yukon river; and at Nome and other places on the west coast. The output of gold in 1921 was 986,927 fine ounces, valued at 7,998,500 dollars; of silver 773,999 fine ounces, valued at 753,999 dollars; and of copper, 76,808,114 pounds, valued at 7,854,496 dollars. From 1880, when gold first began to be mined in Alaska, until 1921, 15,806,883 fine ounces have been produced, valued at 318,798,734 dollars. Tin ore deposits near Cape Prince of Wales are of a high grade; lead is produced; coal is worked; petroleum, gypsum, and marble are found. Total value of mineral output in 1921, 17,004,124 dollars; in 1920, 23,303,757 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The value of the domestic merchandise shipped from the United States to Alaska in the year ending December 31, 1921, amounted to 65,954,566 dollars, and from Alaska to the United States 63,541,381 dollars, besides gold ore and bullion. In the calendar year 1920, 1,191 vessels of 450,034 tons entered the ports of Alaska in domestic trade, and 1,620 of 467,300 tons cleared. The chief ports of shipment of the United States to Alaska are on Puget Sound.

There is a railway of 112 miles from Skagway to the town of White Horse (in the Canadian Yukon region); thence transport is by coach or, in summer, by steamer. The Copper River and North Western Railway completed its line (standard gauge) from Cordova to Kennecott, a distance of 197 miles, in 1911. In 1915 the route for the Alaska railroad was decided upon, to run from Seward to Fairbanks, a distance of 471 miles (509 miles with branches). The whole of this is now open to passenger and freight traffic. The Alaskan towns are connected with the United States and with Canada by telegraph. There are about 140 post-offices and good mail services in the territory.

HAWAII

The Hawaiian Islands lie in the North Pacific Ocean, between 18° 54' and 20° 14' north latitude, and 154° 48' and 160° 13' west longitude. They are about 2,020 miles south-west of San Francisco, and are in the line of steamer travel between Victoria; B.C., and Australia and New Zealand.

Government.—The Hawaiian or Sandwich Islands formed during the greater part of the nineteenth century an independent kingdom, but in 1893 the reigning Queen, Liliuokalani (died November 11, 1917), was deposed and a provisional government formed; in 1894 a Republic was proclaimed, and in accordance with a resolution of Congress of July 7, 1898, the Islands were on August 12, 1898, formally annexed to the United States. On June 14, 1900, they were constituted as the Territory of Hawaii. The Organic Act has since been amended several times. There is a Legislature of two Houses, a Senate of 15 members elected for four years, and a House of Representatives of 30 members elected for two years. Sessions, limited to 60 days, are held biennially. The Governor and Secretary are appointed for four years by the President of the United States.

AREA AND POPULATION—RELIGION, INSTRUCTION, ETC. 659

Governor.—W. R. Farrington, 1921–1925 (10,000 dollars).

Secretary.—Raymond C. Brown.

The Territory is represented in Congress by a delegate elected biennially.

Area and Population.—The total area of the islands is 6,449 square miles. The principal islands of the group are Hawaii, 4,015; Maui, 728; Oahu, 593; Kauai, 547; Molokai, 261; Lanai, 139; Niihau, 97; Kahoolawe, 69. According to the census taken on April 15, 1910, the total population of the islands numbered 191,909, an increase of 37,908, or 24.61 per cent. since 1900. The average number of persons to the square mile in 1910 was 29.75. The Capital, Honolulu, in the Island of Oahu, had 83,327 inhabitants on January 1, 1920.

Population on January 1, 1920 (U.S. Census), 255,912 (151,146 males).

The estimated number of Hawaiians on June 30, 1922, was 21,738, and 18,868 part-Hawaiians. There are estimated to be 22,745 Chinese, 117,047 Japanese, 26,093 Portuguese, 30,763 Filipinos, 6,329 Porto Ricans, 2,120 Spanish, 32,763 Americans, British, German, and Russian, 5,486 Korean, 586 all others. Total estimated, 284,538.

Religion and Instruction.—Nearly all the natives are Christians. There is an Anglican bishop at Honolulu; also a Roman Catholic bishop, and ministers of various denominations.

Elementary education has always been free. The language in general use in schools is English. In 1922, there were 173 public schools with 1,431 teachers and 44,393 enrolled pupils; also 63 private schools with 436 teachers and 8,068 enrolled pupils. Of the pupils in public schools in 1922, 10,523 were Hawaiian or part-Hawaiian, 6,838 Portuguese, 28,906 Asiatics, 2,682 Anglo-Saxon, 3,512 others. In Hawaii there are, besides, a normal and training school, a reformatory industrial school for boys and one for girls, a territorial trading school, and a school for the deaf and blind; also a territorial University.

Justice.—Hawaii has a supreme court, circuit courts, district courts and a land registration court. The circuit judges sit also as juvenile courts. The judges of the supreme and circuit courts are appointed by the United States President; the district magistrates by the Chief Justice of Hawaii. There is also a United States District Court, the judges of which are appointed by the President.

Finance, Defence.—Revenue is derived mainly from taxation of real and personal property, income and inheritance taxes, licences, land sales and leases, waterworks and road, school and poll taxes. For the year ending

June 30, 1922, the receipts and disbursements were to the following amounts :—

	Dollars	Dollars
Balance June 30, 1921	4,892,557
Receipts, 1921-22	9,270,698
Transfers from other accounts	461,991
		14,125,246
Expenditures	7,483,230
Transfers to other accounts	461,991
		7,945,221
Net cash, June 30, 1922		6,180,025

On June 30, 1922, the bonded debt amounted to 14,649,000 dollars. In 1922 the assessed value of property was 271,662,484 dollars, a decrease of 14,895,048 dollars over the previous year.

On June 30, 1922, the Hawaiian National Guard contained 1,203 men, and 62 officers. The Federal Government, with a view to the protection of the Pacific coast and the control of the Panama Canal, has expended money for the construction of extensive military works at Pearl Harbour, about 7 miles from Honolulu, and at Honolulu and other places on the island of Oahu. The dry dock at Pearl Harbour (Oahu) naval station was officially opened on August 21, 1919.

Production and Commerce.—The islands are to a great extent mountainous and volcanic, but the soil is highly fertile and productive. In 1920 there were 5,284 farms with an acreage of 2,702,245, of which 435,242 acres were improved land. Total value of all farm property in 1920 was 151,129,085 dollars. Sugar and pine-apples are the staple industries, while coffee, honey, hides, sisal, bananas, rice, wool, tobacco, and cotton are also exported. In 1921 the sugar produced amounted to 521,579 tons. The sugar plantations are extensively supplied with irrigation canals. The forest reserves in the Territory now number 47, aggregating 817,109 acres, and other reserves are contemplated. At the close of the year there were 989 domestic corporations in operation, with a total capital of 203,023,648 dollars.

For the year ended March 31, 1922, the imports amounted to 64,042,740 dollars, and the exports to 72,748,243 dollars. The shipments of merchandise from the United States to Hawaii for the year ending June 30, 1922, amounted to 56,223,067 dollars, and those from Hawaii to the United States to 71,615,805 dollars, of which 47,411,894 dollars was for sugar, 20,874,127 dollars for fruits, 561,785 dollars for coffee, and 50,583 dollars for rice. The imports from the United Kingdom in the same period totalled 271,242 dollars, and the exports to the United Kingdom, 928,312 dollars.

Shipping and Communications.—The harbour of Honolulu has been enlarged and dredged to a depth that will admit the largest steamers afloat. At Hilo Bay, on the east side of Hawaii Island, the construction of a breakwater has now been completed, Hilo being an important place for the shipment of sugar. At Kahului, the principal port on the Island of Maui, the construction of a breakwater has been completed and dredging of the harbour has been finished. Many lighthouses have been constructed in recent years.

Several lines of steamers connect the islands with the United States, Canada, Australia, the Philippines, China, and Japan. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, 932 vessels of 6,090,145 tons entered ports of the islands. An inter-island steam navigation company with 12 small steamers provides communication between the different islands. There are about 969 miles of railway in the islands, including 667 miles of plantation railways. There are telephones on the islands of Oahu, Maui, Hawaii, Kauai, and Molokai. Honolulu is lighted by electricity and has lines of electric tramways. Wireless telegraphy is in operation between the islands for commercial purposes and for communication with vessels at sea and with the Pacific coast, and also with Japan. Hawaii is connected by cable with both shores of the Pacific.

PORTO RICO.

Government.—Porto Rico, by the treaty of December 10, 1898, was ceded by Spain to the United States. Its constitution is determined by the 'Organic Act' of Congress (1917), known as the 'Jones Act,' the main features of which are the granting of American Citizenship to the people of Porto Rico, the separation of the legislative and executive functions, extension of the appointive judiciary system and an elective senate. Porto Rico has representative government, the franchise being restricted to citizens of the United States twenty-one years of age or over, residence (one year) and such additional qualifications as may be prescribed by the Legislature of Porto Rico, but no property qualification may be imposed. The executive power resides in a Governor appointed by the President of the United States. The legislative functions are vested in a legislature which consists of two elective houses: the Senate, composed of 19 members (2 from each of the 7 senatorial districts and 5 senators at large), and the House of Representatives, composed of 39 members (1 from each of the 35 representative districts and 4 elected at large). Porto Rico is represented in Congress by a Resident Commissioner to the United States elected by the people for a term of four years.

There are six heads of departments, who form a Council to the Governor, known as the Executive Council. The essential features of the United States civil service have been incorporated into a local law by the Legislature. The judiciary comprises an Attorney General and staff and a United States court appointed by the President; a Supreme Court of 5 members also appointed by the President; 8 District Courts appointed by the Governor; and 36 municipal courts, the judges and officials of which, as well as the 55 justices of the peace, are appointed by the Governor.

Governor.—E. Mont Reily (10,000 dollars).

Executive Secretary.—E. J. Saldana.

Area, Population and Instruction.—The Island has an area of 3,435 square miles. The population in 1920 was 1,299,809 or 378·4 per sq. mile. During the decade elapsed since the census of 1910, the total population increased by 16·3 per cent. The distribution of the population according to colour, in 1920, was as follows :—White, 948,709; black, 49,246; mulatto, 301,816; Chinese, 32; Japanese, 4; all other (Philippino and Hindu), 2. The corresponding figures for 1910 were: White, 732,555; black, 50,245; mulatto, 335,192; Chinese, 12; Japanese, 8. During the decade the white population increased by 29·5 per cent., while the black population decreased by 2 per cent., and the mulatto by 10 per cent.

Chief towns, San Juan, 71,443 inhabitants (1920); Ponce, 41,912; Mayaguez, 19,124. Of the working population, 63 per cent. are engaged in agriculture, fisheries, and mining; 21 per cent. in domestic and personal service; 8 per cent. in manufacturing industries; 8 per cent. in trade and transportation. In 1920 the percentage of illiteracy was 55·0.

In 1899 the school system was reorganised and education was made compulsory. In 1922 there were 3,642 class-rooms in 2,205 school-buildings, with 226,171 pupils enrolled; and a well-distributed system of night schools and kindergartens. There are also a number of private schools. The University of Porto Rico, established in Rio Piedras, 7 miles from San Juan, is open to both men and women.

Finance.—Revenues are derived from customs and excise, from the general property tax, a collateral inheritance tax, taxes on incomes, on insurance companies and from various licences and fees. Receipts and disbursements for the year ending June 30, 1922 :—

	Dollars.
Balance, July 1, 1921	1,354,397
Receipts, 1921-22	12,080,331
Total	13,434,728
Disbursements, 1921-22	12,535,140
Balance, July 1, 1922	899,588

The assessed value of property on June 30, 1921, was 303,200,578 dollars. The total outstanding bonded indebtedness is 11,895,000 dollars.

The police force consists of about 700 men, and the military force of about 3,000.

Production, Industry and Commerce.—The cultivated land in 1920 was divided into 41,078 holdings, having a total area of 2,022,404 acres, of which 1,303,547 acres was improved land. Total value of all farm property in 1920 was 179,392,511 dollars. The chief products of the island are sugar, tobacco, coffee, pineapples, grape fruit, oranges, and other tropical fruits, sea island cotton, textile fibres, bat guano, phosphate, and vegetables, and the principal industries are manufactures of cigars, cigarettes, hats, embroideries, drawn-work, &c. Sugar crops for three years: 1920, 485,070 tons; 1921, 490,000 tons; 1922, 408,335 tons. Sugar exported in 1922 amounted to 469,888 tons, valued at 40,820,333 dollars, being over 55 per cent. of all products exported. In 1922, 140,504,000 cigars were exported. Over 22,000,000 pounds of leaf and scrap tobacco, valued at 9,002,767 dollars, were exported in 1922. Coffee decreased from 26,731,648 pounds, valued at 5,352,924 dollars, in 1921, to 23,402,127 pounds, valued at 4,316,859 dollars, in 1922. Orange exports amounted to 926,329 dollars; fresh pineapples to 600,493 dollars; canned pineapples to 71,228 dollars; grape fruit, a comparatively new product (7,586 dollars in 1907), amounted to 1,102,020 dollars, while coconuts amounted to 489,657 dollars. In 1920 there were 619 industrial establishments in Porto Rico, employing 18,454 persons (15,985 wage-earners), having a total capital of 84,151,310 dollars, with an output valued at 85,506,834 dollars. There is no established mining enterprise, but gold, silver, iron, copper, bismuth, tin, mercury, platinum and nickel are found in the island. There are very productive salt works.

In 1922 the imports into Porto Rico amounted to 64,175,149 dollars (United States merchandise amounting to 57,400,028 dollars, foreign merchandise to 6,775,121 dollars). The exports in the same year were valued at 72,172,571 dollars (66,229,771 dollars to the United States, and 5,942,800 dollars to foreign countries).

Shipping and Communications.—In 1921–22, 2,592 American and foreign vessels of 6,907,646 tons entered Porto Rico from the United States and foreign countries. The harbour of San Juan, the chief port, and naval station proper, is being improved to have an entrance 600 yards wide and 30 feet deep.

There are over 1,100 miles of road in the Island, and about 339 miles of railway. The railway system connects towns on the west coast and now almost encircles the Island, and penetrates the interior. A line is operated from Rio Piedras to Caguas inland. Extensions of existing lines are being undertaken, and a new line across the Island, with many branches, is projected. There are 1,848 miles of postal (government) telephone and telegraph wire. There are 91 post offices, and 77 telegraph stations.

The Porto Rican island of Vieques, 13 miles to the east, is about 21 miles long and 6 miles broad, and has about 10,000 inhabitants, who grow sugar and rear cattle. Like Porto Rico, the island of Vieques is fertile and healthy.

The island of Culebra, between Porto Rico and St. Thomas, has a good harbour.

VIRGIN ISLANDS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Government.—The Virgin Islands of the United States, formerly known as the Danish West Indies, were purchased by the United States from Denmark, for 25,000,000 dollars, in a treaty ratified by Denmark December 22, 1916, ratified by the President of the United States January 17, 1917, and proclaimed January 25, 1917. Under an Act of Congress, approved March 3, 1917, known as the Organic Act, all military, civil, and judicial powers necessary to govern the islands were vested in a Governor, appointed by the President of the United States, by and with the advice of the Senate; and all laws, in so far as compatible with the changed sovereignty, as set forth in the Danish code of laws dated April 6, 1906, were continued in force and effect until Congress shall provide otherwise. Tax and Customs laws were likewise to remain in effect. Danish citizens residing in the islands at the time the treaty was entered into were permitted to retain their Danish citizenship by making declaration before a court of record to preserve such citizenship, in default of which they were held to have renounced it, and to have accepted citizenship in the United States. The islands comprise two municipalities, viz.: the Municipality of St. Thomas and St. John, and the Municipality of St. Croix. The legislative functions are vested in the Colonial Council of each Municipality, that of St. Croix being composed of 13 members elected by popular elections and of 5 members appointed by the Governor; and that of St. Thomas and St. John consisting of 11 elected members and 4 appointed by the Governor. The members serve for 4 years. The right of franchise is vested in every man of unblemished character who has resided in the islands for 5 years, who has attained the age of 25 years, and has an income of at least 1,500 francs a year. The Government is strictly civil, and not military or naval.

There are six heads of Departments, who, with naval aides, form the Governor's cabinet. These comprise the Government Secretary's Office, the Departments of Health, Judiciary, Public Works, Education, Supply, Police and Fire, located in St. Thomas. The Despatching Secretary is the Government's representative in St. Croix. There is one judge in each municipality, as well as a Government Attorney.

Governor.—S. E. W. Kittelle.

Government Secretary.—Lt. Comdr. F. F. Gaffney, Supply Corps, U.S.N.

Area, Population and Instruction.—The Virgin Islands group comprises in the main the Islands of St. Thomas (28 square miles), St. Croix (84 square miles), and St. John (20 square miles). The total area is 132 square miles and the population, according to the census of November 1, 1917, 26,051. The populations of each of the islands are 10,191, 14,901, and 959. They lie about 60 miles due east of Porto Rico, between the Atlantic Ocean and Caribbean Sea. The islands contain 3 towns, St. Thomas (formerly Charlotte Amalie), on the island of St. Thomas, with a population of 7,747; and Christiansted and Frederiksted, on the island of St. Croix, with populations of 4,574 and 3,144 respectively. Education is compulsory. In St. Thomas there are 9 public and 6 private and parochial schools, 2,000 pupils and 62 teachers; and in St. John there are 5 public schools with an enrolment of 168 pupils and 9 teachers. In St. Croix there are 10 public schools and 7 private and parochial schools. Total enrolment, 2,108 with 64 teachers. Junior high schools have been established in all of the three towns, and night schools opened in Christiansted and Frederiksted. Manual training schools have been established and are working well.

Finance.—Revenues are derived from customs, income tax, ground and building tax, trade tax, &c. Estimated revenues for fiscal year ending June 30, 1921: 1,409,868 francs. The annual deficit in the operation of the government is met by appropriations by the Congress of the United States. Danish currency is legal tender.

Production and Industry.—The farms on the islands extend to 69,892 acres. Of the 430 farms, 102 were worked by white farmers and 270 by negroes. There are 85 industrial establishments in the islands. St. Thomas is the leading port in the Virgin Islands with coaling and oil-fuelling stations. The Island of St. John is noted for its bay oil, and St. Thomas for the finished product of bay rum. St. Croix's chief industries are agricultural—mainly cane-raising and cattle. A stock farm and a tobacco-stripping factory have recently been established in St. Thomas. A lace industry is being established among women and children.

Exports to the United States in 1921 were 734,674 dollars; imports from that country 2,622,396 dollars.
